THE ERA ANNUAL, 1908.
Financier, Jan. 18:—
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1908 is published at 1s. from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand. These annuals from the office of "The Era" are amongst the brightest and most popular of all, and, whilst professional interests and requirements are kept to the fore, all playgoers should appreciate the varied contents. The edition now forthcoming is valuable as a record of the past year's new productions; but what the general public will turn to with greatest zest are the contributions by stage and music-hall favourites. These are reminiscent, descriptive, anecdotal, and poetic.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1908.
Evening Standard, Jan. 22:—
"The Era" Annual shows its customary excellence, and has some good "yarns."

FLASH JAMES.

Code Word, "ETUDIANT."

At Monte Carlo a would-be gentleman is courting a wealthy young widow, the mother of a boy of ten. After a few months he succeeds in marrying her, and now he thinks he will have the disposal of her money, and a broad grin can be seen on his face. Unhappily he is a born gambler, and the discovery of his wife having made out her will in favour of her son makes him contemplate an awful crime. He will try and get rid of the boy by having him kidnapped and drowned; but a shepherd's dog, an unnoticed witness of the deed, rescues the child from certain death, and the husband, found out, takes justice in his own hands by blowing out his brains. Splendid quality and a tremendous success.

890ft. The Subject, £14 16s. 8d. Toning, extra £1 10s.

A WELL-PAID SITUATION.

Code Word, "ESCALIER."

A group of students are posting the following bill on a pedestal waiting for its statue:—"Office of Fine Arts. Situation as Statue, 5s. per hour. Perfect immobility is requested.—The Minister, Ch. Thing." A peasant just up from his village reads the poster, and asks for the appointment. His request is granted, and he settles at once to his state as statue. Worried by the flies, children, watering hoses, &c., and in spite of the policeman's entreaties, Giles does not move an inch, until the racket of an unskilful player dislodges him from his point of vantage, and sends him rolling in the street, where he is picked up by the jolly fellows.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d.

TEXT-BOOK OF A PERFECT GENTLEMAN.

Code Word, "EQUITE."

Be always obliging. Be courteous to the ladies. Be charitable and unassuming towards everyone. Support the aged. Defend the oppressed, &c. According to his father's advice, young George tries to follow the above said commandments; but he is not long in discovering the danger there is in being too gallant and obliging in this world of ours, and he writes to his parents thus:—"I have already complied with eight commandemnts, if I had followed nine it is from my grave I should be writing to you now."

428ft. The Subject, £7 2s. 8d.

THE CONSEQUENCES OF A GOOD DINNER.

Code Word, "ETALON.'

A starveling having procured a very good dinner is punished for his greediness by a bad digestion. He falls asleep, and dreams that his dinner comes back to its former shape among thrilling incidents; but two policemen march him off, and he will have plenty of time at the police-station to think and dream about his good repast.

THE MYSTERIOUS KNIGHT.

Code Word, "ENQUETE."

STICKFAST.

Code Word, "ENVERS."

This is not an advertisement, but merely the story of a pot of glue, which fastens to the ground first a whole family, then passers-by come to their rescue, and last, but not least, several policeman trying to disentangle them. Nothing less than the fire engine plied skilfully by obliging firemen can end this new mode of torment, which highly delights the onlookers.

LAST WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

MARY STUART.

Code Word "ESTIME."

Mary Stuart, the daughter of Jacques V. and Mary of Guise, was married to François II. King of France. After the death of her husband in 1560, Mary Stuart left France on account of the persecutions of Catherine of Medicis, and, weeping bitterly, she came back to Scotland. Her father having died, the throne was hers. She was barely nineteen years of age, and her youth, as well as her great beauty and charm of manners, won for her the hearts of the Scots. To those qualities were added a great generosity and a deep attachment to the Roman Catholic Faith. When Mary arrived in Scotland she found it in the hands of the Protestants, who gave their young Queen much trouble, and at last revolted against her and put her into prison. She escaped to England, and asked her cousin, Elizabeth, for protection, but the latter betrayed her, and had her imprisoned during nineteen years, after which she had her beheaded. This film, although put on the market last Tuesday morning only, has proved such a success that we have already sold all the copies we received from Paris. But we are expecting a fresh supply to-day in order to cope with the demand.

THE BOSTOCK ARENA & JUNGLE —NEW YORK—LONDON—PARIS

Code Word, "FEMINISTE."

As already announced some time ago, we have been successful in taking unique and exclusive pictures at the Bostock Jungle of Osca, the strange mortal (immune to snake poison) toying with the deadly Arizona Rattlers—The extraction of poison for scientific purposes from the deadly diamond-backed rattler of Arizona, whose venom is said to produce death in a human being in from two to twenty minutes. Another interesting picture is that of a first lesson in lion domestication, where a snappy little cub is being petted by two young ladies, Mr. Bostock himself presiding over the performance. "Wee Wee," the very smallest horse in the world, is seen driving a little girl in the gardens at Earl's Court. Other pictures, such as that of a tame crocodile or the recapture of a vulture, add to the interest of the film.

THE FRENCH MILITARY AIRSHIPS.

THE EUCHARISTIC PROCESSION.

CONCLUDING CEREMONIAL OF THE GREAT EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS, WESTMINSTER CATHEDRAL, SUNDAY, SEPT. 13, 1908.

A History-recording Subject of Great International Importance.

SCENES AT THE GRAND ENTRANCE OF THE CATHEDRAL.—Start of the Procession. Views en route, from most unique positions, of the Papal Legate, the Pontifical Mission, Cardinals, Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Generals of Religious Orders and Congregations, Clergy, Choirs, Banners, and Insignia.

SUPERB CULMINATING SCENES AT WESTMINSTER CATHEDRAL.—Return of the Procession. His Eminence the Papal Legate pronouncing from the balcony altar over the great door the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament to the vast concourse assembled outside the Cathedral. A most Devotional and Picturesque Series.

No. 2255. Code "Devout." Length 390ft.

The Balancing Bluebottle.

DISCOVERY BY ACCIDENT OF AMAZING JUGGLING POWERS IN A COMMON BLUEBOTTLE FLY.

The original fly, anchored by its wings to a sticky fly-paper, instantly suggested humorous and educative possibilities to the scientific kinematographer, who, by patient effort, secured marvellous results. Inconceivably interesting, undoubtedly original, most laughable. A valuable demonstration in natural history. The fly experiments with a miniature plank, a ball, a dumb-bell, and with a cork sphere upon which is perched a second fly—all tremendously magnified.

No. 2246. Code "Muscular." Length 200ft.

Travelling Through Russia.

Palaces, Streets. Military, Sporting, Industrial, and River Life of St. Petersburg, Moscow, Tiflis, &c. Cossack Dances and Pastimes. Grand Review of Troops. Logging on the Volga, &c., &c. An Unusual Travel Series of Great Merit and Beauty.

No. 4055. Code "Don." Length 690ft.

Launch of H.M.S. St. Vincent

THE LARGEST WAR VESSEL AFLOAT, at Portsmouth, Sept. 10, 1908.

By permission of the Lords of the Admiralty.

From Unique Positions we were enabled to secure a Panoramic View of the Vessel, and of the Stern, showing the mighty Propellers. Launching Scenes: The "St. Vincent" Released —Leaving the Cradle—Gliding down the Ways—Passing within a few feet of a Camera— Tremendous displacement as she takes the Water—Casting the Anchors—The Vessel riding gracefully in her native element, &c.

No. 2253. Code "Release." Length 210ft.

Motor-Boat Races.

AT BURNHAM-ON-CROUCH, SEPT. 12, 1908.

Swiftest Motor Launches in the World Competing.—"Daimler II," "Brook II," "Defender," "Sea Dog," "Arab," "Fleurette II," "Napier Minor," etc. Exciting incidents of the finals: Motor-boats exceeding 10 knots for the Motor Club Challenge Trophy. Handicap for Cabin Cruisers for the B.M.B.C. Silver Cup, etc., etc.

No. 2256. Code "Skim." Length 300ft.

NOTE.—As the above Five Subjects are included in the Urbanora Programme at the PALACE THEATRE, LONDON, they are sold on condition that they be not exhibited within two miles of the said theatre.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1908.

Morning Advertiser, Jan. 20:—

That very useful, one might with truth add indispensable, publication, "The Era" Annual, has once again made its welcome appearance, and once again it is crowded with information concerning the theatrical doings of the past year. Those who purchase it (it is sold at the modest price of 1s.) will have in their possession a complete and succinct history of the year's drama in this country, and a record of the plays produced in Paris and Berlin. As an appetising hors d'œuvre to the solid information, the book contains a number of interesting short stories and amusing anecdotes by well-known actors and theatrical managers.

1908. Letter L. No. 679.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE (CHANCERY DIVISION), LIVERPOOL DISTRICT REGISTRY.

Mr. Justice Joyce.

In the Matter of the LIVERPOOL THEATRES OF VARIETIES, LIMITED (Kiernan v. The Liverpool Theatres of Varieties, Limited, and Others).

Particulars of Important and Valuable Licensed THEATRES AND MUSIC HALLS in the City of Liverpool,

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION

(Pursuant to an order dated the 11th day of July, 1908, made in the above action) by

MR. PETER DAVIES, F.A.I.

(the person appointed by Mr. Justice Joyce to sell the same),

On Thursday, the 24th day of September, 1908, at Three o'clock in the Afternoon prompt, at the Law Association Rooms, 14, Cook-street, Liverpool (subject to conditions of sale to be then and there produced).

PARTICULARS:—

situate on the south-west side of Lime-street, in the city of Liverpool, together with the scenery, stage effects, loose furniture, trade utensils, and other loose articles used in connection therewith or belonging thereto, but save and excepting therefrom the electric lighting installation in and upon the premises which is not included in the sale. The building has an entire frontage of 115ft. and 5in. or thereabouts to Lime-street, and the site thereof is held for the unexpired residue of a term of seventy-five years from the 4th day of November, 1882, created by an indenture of lease dated the 24th day of February, 1884, and made between the Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens of the City of Liverpool of the one part and The Liverpool Real Property Company, Limited, of the other part, and will be sold subject to a peppercorn rent and to the covenants and conditions contained in the said indenture of lease.

SECONDLY, all that building licensed for use as a Theatre and Music Hall, known as situate on the east side of Mill-street, in the city of Liverpool, having a frontage to such street of 82ft. 4in. or thereabouts, together with the scenery, stage effects, loose furniture, trade utensils, and other loose articles used in connection therewith or belonging thereto, but save and excepting therefrom the electric lighting installation in and upon the premises, which is not included in the sale. This property is subject to restrictive covenants referred to in Condition 9 of the Conditions of Sale. The site, which contains 722 5-9 superficial square yards or thereabouts, is freehold and free from chief rent.

THIRDLY, all that building licensed for use as a Theatre and Music Hall, known as

with the FOUR SHOPS forming part of such building, situate on the northerly side of Paddington and easterly side of Upper Mason-street, in the city of Liverpool, and having a frontage to Paddington of 102ft. 6in. or thereabouts, and to Upper Mason-street of 55ft. 6in. or thereabouts, together with the loose scenery, furniture, trade utensils, and other loose articles used in connection therewith or belonging thereto. The site is freehold and free from chief rent, but is subject to restrictive covenants referred to in Condition 9 of the Conditions of Sale. The said four shops are let at a total annual rental amounting to £88 8s. gross.

These well-known and established properties will be offered in one lot.

They are especially adapted for music halls, and are situate in very desirable positions in the city of Liverpool, the Tivoli, in Lime-street, being in the centre of the city, and the Park and Paddington being situated in the densely-populated districts of Toxteth Park and Edge Hill.

Particulars and Conditions of Sale may be obtained from, and the schedule of furniture fittings, scenery, and stage effects in the premises may be seen, at the Offices of the Auctioneer,

Mr. PETER DAVIES, 8, Cook-street, Liverpool;
Messrs. G. E. HOLT and SONS, Chartered Accountants, 8, Cook-street, Liverpool;
Messrs. OLIVER JONES, BILLSON, and CO., Solicitors, 5, Cook-street, Liverpool; or Messrs. GRUNDY, KERSHAW, SAMSON, and CO., Solicitors, 31, Booth-street, Manchester, and 89, Gresham-street, London, E.C.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

EARLY TRAINS.

The Railway Companies are despatching many morning trains earlier than hitherto. This will enable subscribers and advertisers in the provincial towns to get copies of "The Era" in time for the breakfast table. Advertisers are requested to forward their advertisements as early in the week as possible, and not later than 7 p.m. on Thursday.

WINSLOW'S Skates

THE BEST ICE AND ROLLER SKATES

The Standard of the World for more than Fifty Years. Are used in all the best Rinks in the United States, and the greatest number of Rinks everywhere. Are noted for speed, beauty, strength and durability. Roller Skating is more popular to-day than ever before. A Rink can be established in any hall, irrespective of its size or shape, and will prove to be a very profitable investment. The only essentials are a good floor and good skates. We refer, by permission, to C. P. Crawford, Esq., General Manager of the large and excellently appointed Rinks now being operated in Tournament Hall, Liverpool; Exhibition Hall, Newcastle; Hippodrome, Llandudno; and the American Roller Rinks at Sunderland and Edinburgh. In all these Rinks Winslow's Skates are used exclusively.

We are prepared to make prompt deliveries from our London Office.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Miss Maude Western and company are fulfilling a week's engagement here with A Mother's Salvation. Mr. Geoffrey Broughton is well placed as Leslie Mervyne, Mr. J. O. Stevenson supplies a vigorous impersonation of Reuben Smith; the rôle of Beckey is acted by Miss Maude Western with marked ability; Miss Ada Hender plays with dramatic instinct and intelligence the parts of Naomi Lester and Miriam Mervyne; and other rôles are well sustained.

ABERDEEN.—H. M. THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. Courtneidge's company presents The Dairymaids here this week. The piece is beautifully staged, and the gymnasium scene with the Sandow girls in full force is in itself an exceptionally stirring attraction. Miss Clare Marsden is a charming and wholly delightful Peggy; Mr. Johny Osborne keeps the audience in continual fits of laughter as Joe Mivens; Mr. Nelson Keys is conspicuously successful as Lieutenant Sam Brudenell; Mr. J. A. Ward is a most genial Irish doctor; and good work is contributed by Messrs. Cottell, Ashdowne, and Bellew. Miss Clarice Lockstone plays cleverly and gracefully as the other dairymaid; Miss Gladys Silvani makes a decided hit in the "slavey" part; Miss Mabel Younge is a stately Lady Brudenell; and Miss Madge Avery shows much ability in her portraiture of Miss Pyechase. All the minor parts are well filled.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The most exciting feature of the entertainment is Dick Turpin's Ride to York, which is presented by Mr. Fred Ginnett and a powerful company. All throughout the performance rivets the attention of the house. That first-class comedian Mr. Whit Cunliffe is warmly encored; and the excellent company also includes Miss Maud Prenton, a vivacious comedienne; Mr. Harry Bold, an admirable raconteur; Terry and Bentley, versatile comedians and smart dancers; Zenora, a remarkably expert equilibrist; and the Claymores, who are successful as vocalists, dancers, and jugglers. Another capital turn is the mirthful sketch Rejected Remounts. The amusing film The Chauffeur's Dream is shown by the Bioscope.

BEACH PAVILION.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. David Thomson.—Miss Violet Davidson continues in her best voice; and Mr. Jack Marson is warmly welcomed on a return visit. Mr. Percy Maye is an expert female impersonator; Mr. Thomson sings a number of quaint songs inimitably; Vulcares is a first-rate entertainer; and a fine selection of cinematograms are shown by the London Safety Bioscope Company. The houses continue large and thoroughly appreciative.

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL. — Proprietor, Mr. John Sinclair; General-Manager, Mr. George B. Lee.—The principal artists this week are Mr. Dan Fraser, the noted Scotch comedian; Mr. J. H. Harris, another mirthful comedian; Miss Nellie Osbourne, a charming soprano; Mr. George Millard, humorist and dancer; and Miss Ada Brogden, soprano vocalist and dancer. Miss Brogden is also soloist to the illustrated songs. The Alhambra cinematograph continues to work splendidly under the direction of Mr. Kennedy.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—Mr. G. W. Fyvie continues on his successful course as an Irish comedian and dancer; and among the other artists may be specially noted Mr. Arthur Bright, comedian; Mr. James Grant, tenor vocalist; and Miss Jessie Bunting, contralto and dancer. The cinematograph is now skilfully operated by Mr. Alexander Calder.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborne.—The Lady of Ostend is staged here this week, and the audience is kept in a roar of laughter from start to finish, the two most amusing rôles, Dick Whortles and Le Baron de Longueville, being effectively portrayed by Mr. William Spray and Mr. Lawrence Brough respectively, to the high appreciation of the house. Mr. Robert Bolder is very clever as Dick's would-be gay father-in-law; and Miss Barbara Glyn stands out conspicuously as the charming and natural Dorothy. Miss Kitty Devenlin gives a good conception of the title-rôle; and Miss Bessie Harrison makes an admirable mother-in-law.

PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—This popular playhouse and palace of varieties is favoured with the presence of Miss Loie Esmond's clever company in The Sorrows of Satan, one of Marie Corelli's works. Mr. Edward Neville gives a masterly interpretation of Prince Lucio; Mr. F. Douglas Howard as Geoffrey Tempest is very good; and Mavis Clare is admirably portrayed by Miss Hilary Burleigh. Credit should be given to Miss Rosie Neville for her excellent acting as Lady Sybil; Miss Loie Esmond gives a capital interpretation of Diana Chesney, an American millionairess; and the part of the Prince's valet, Amiel, is cleverly handled by Mr. E. Holland Day. The play is well staged.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—We are favoured this week with an up-to-date musical play, rendered in a most efficient manner by Mr. Edward Marris's company in The Dandy Doctor. Mr. George Brentwood as Melchisadek Brown kept the house in roars of laughter; Miss Mollie Whynee acted with grace and charm as Ivy Pendred; Miss Florence Smithers was exceedingly amusing as the servant Jane; Mr. Burrunston Williams as Arthur Vandyke is seen to advantage; Mr. Herbert Pearce makes a good impression as the Colonel Pendred; and Mr. A. Leslie Martin is well placed as Bertie Bolingbroke. Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of clever dancers add greatly to the success of the play, and are loudly applauded.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—Full houses are nightly giving Mr. Herbert Sleath's company a hearty reception in A White Man. Mr. Frank E. Petley has the leading rôle of Capt. Wynnegate, and obtains a great histrionic success; Mr. Lewis Broughton gives a capable enactment of the financially embarrassed Earl; Mr. F. W. Jackson gives a careful impersonation of Sir John Applegate. A fine piece of acting is Mr. Bric Hudson's Red Indian Chief, the correct Ute tongue being spoken. A capital Malcolm Petrie is that presented by Mr. Wm. Dempsey; and Mr. J. G. Lambert's Private Secretary is good. Mr. T. F. Martin adds effect to the bar scene as the desperado, Cash Hawkins; and Mr. John Wilmer as the Sheriff is excellent. Of the ladies, Miss Eleanor May makes a charming Countess of Kerhill, her fine acting being one of the best features of the performance. Miss Gertrude Price as the Dowager Countess excels her previous efforts. The staging is admirable.

ARBROATH.—PUBLIC HALL.—Mr. Durward Lely, the celebrated Scottish tenor, paid a visit to his native town on Saturday and Monday evenings. Along with Mrs. Lely and an excellent company Ian Maclaren's modern Scottish drama, The Bonnie Brier Bush, was performed both evenings to large audiences. Lachlan Campbell had a faithful interpreter in Mr. George Hunter; as Tammas Mitchell, the shepherd, Mr. Clyde Macintosh was very droll; Dr. Maclure, the kind-hearted physician, received excellent treatment from Mr. Louie Macintosh; Harry Egan as the "posty" kept the house in roars of laughter; Mr. Durward Lely, as the much-respected Free Kirk minister of Drumtochty Glen, acted the part with quiet dignity. He was in excellent voice, and his rendering of "The rigs of barley," "The Land o' Cockpen," and (by special request) "O' a' the airts" was received with unbounded applause. As Flora Campbell Miss Georgina V. Clifford acted with genuine pathos; Mrs. Durward Lely looked handsome and was beautifully gowned as Kate Carnegie.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Mr. Lester Collingwood's company is here with the realistic drama, When London Sleeps. Miss Mabel Scudamore as Queenie Carruthers is very acceptable; and an equally meritorious embodiment is given to Carrie Jones by Miss Mona Hall. Miss Lilla Wilde finds plenty of opportunity for the display of her powers as Hilda Carrode; Mr. E. E. Ashby as David Engleheart finds abundant scope for his art in delineation of character.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Frank Sley and his Nipper are refined comedians and speciality dancers of extraordinary vigour and cleverness; the Colonials, including James Grant, popular Scotch comedian, give a really artistic musical treat; Chas. Rowen is a clever speciality artist; Coverdale and Huxley's Bijou Juveniles also give a really entertaining musical scena, Pansy's Birthday; Frances Haskoll is a decided attraction; the Four Netherlands, character singers and dancers, are diverting in The Tale of the Stockings; a delightful comedy duo is that of Milner and Storey; and Larry Lewis is a very acceptable singing comedian. The Onlaw Trio, in a novelty wire act; and Kirk and Saraski give expert performances.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Pease; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Hary Sanders.—The special feature of this week's bill is the startling cycle performance of Le Diabelo, in "Looping the Devil's Wheel"; Lieut. Travis is a clever and original ventriloquist; under the title of A Domestic Musical Squabble, Sterling and Love give a highly appreciated turn; an amusing act is that of the Two Eeduns, who are seen to advantage in "vocal scenas"; other meritorious turns are contributed by Miss Marie Clifton, vocalist and skipping-rope dancer; Mr. Dan Robans, a fine baritone vocalist; Zellini, eccentric juggler; and the "Attergraph" pictures.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr Harry W. Day.—Peter's Mother is being interpreted here by an able company. Miss Elias Earle as Peter's mother gives a bright rendering; Peter is in the capable hands of Mr. Vivian Gilbert; as John Crewys Mr. Eille Norwood makes a good impression; and Mr. Townsend Whitling makes an ideal Sir Timothy.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company is appearing here in the drama entitled Geoffrey Langdon's Wife. Mr. Paul Beckett has many opportunities for fine dramatic acting, and plays Felix Beverley with ability; as Jack Stirling Mr. Wilson Summers has a firm grip of the part; Mr. Wilford Cheetham as Geoffrey Langdon is well placed; Mr. Arthur Lowry as Arthur Belairs creates much amusement; Mr. Percy Brown as Thomas and Mr. Herbert Fuller as Charles cause hearty laughter; as the heroine, Mary Geoffrey, Miss Cissy Bellamy enacts the rôle in a sympathetic style; Miss Agnes Collier shows ability as the Hon. Mrs. Sands, and Miss Katie Lever is a flippant Sweet Nancy.

BARNSLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. C. Mitchell.—Mr. James Bell's company is here this week in The Idol of Paris. Miss Annie Bell is admirably adapted to the title-rôle, and plays with much feeling; Mr. Wilson Howard submits a well-studied and forcible impersonation of Phillipe d'Esterre; the Prince Serglus of Mr. Gordon Robey is a well-rendered character; Mr. Chas. Stafford is satisfactory as Victor Cashelle; Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh a dignified Mme. Sancterre; Mr. Ellis Carlyle as Tatave and Miss Annie Megson as Ann are well suited to their parts.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Barnsley Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Will Smithson.—The Szarvasi-Ferencz family of acrobats head the bill; the Three Romas receive applause for clever head and hand balancing feats; Marjutti supplies a new and original act, "From Demon to Fairyland"; Bert Terrel is a typical Dutch comedian, and sings well; Allsopp and Beckwith (Fred and Florrie), in song and dance, are popular; The Orchids, in a vocal comedy duo, and the Bodnia Trio, musical and vocal artists; Billy Yeager and Emma Da Costa, singing and dancing act; Lily Dunne, vocalist; and the Palacescope are also on the programme.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Reginald Dance's company is here in Raffles. Mr. Lewis Edgard is a most interesting A. J. Raffles, and Mr. C. Kean a smart Mr. Curtis Bedford; Mr. Arthur Beel does some fine acting as Harry Manders, and Mr. Oswald Griffiths makes a capital Crawshay; Mr. P. Alexander as Lord Amersteth and Mr. Rivers Bertram as Lord Crowley are both good, and Miss Kitty Lofting is a dignified and stately Lady Melrose; Miss Beatrice Marsdene is an attractive Gwendoline Conroy, and Miss Brenda Gibson a successful Mrs. Vidal. Jerry and a Sunbeam precedes.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in Mrs. Ponderbury's Past is here. Mr. Mudie is brilliantly effective as Mr. Ponderbury, and Miss Annie Stalman gives an exceedingly clever portrayal of Mrs. Ponderbury; Miss Florence Wix does admirably as the vulgar and frivolous Mme. Polace Modjeski, and Mr. Alfred Ibberson supplies a clever clear-cut sketch of Peter; Mr. Drew Mackintosh is a capable Mr. Mervyn Thorpe, and Mr. George Child as Captain John Rumford, R.N., and Mr. Charles A. Staite as Mr. Hyacinth Grayling are both good. A curtain raiser is furnished in His Landlady.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—An exceptional array of talent is here this week, the premier position being held by the Carmos, who give an exceptionally clever Hurculean balancing and novelty juggling act; their performance met with a great reception; the Three Royal Dreadnoughts gave a marvellous exhibition of rifle shooting; the Sisters Casseli, duettists and dancers, Archie Peff, eccentric comedian, Sadie Simpson, pleasing comedienne and dancer, Géne Selby, the coffee-coloured coon, and Vernon's Bioscope are other attractions.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—As excellent programme of pictures is being presented here this week. Miss Vena Valma intersperses the entertainment with some pleasing songs and dances.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Brogden.—Mr. Morton Powell presented The Woman Who Gambles to a large and appreciative audience on Monday. Mr. Clifford Rean as Count Otto plays a difficult rôle capably; as the Countess Miss Laura Walker is admirable; Mr. N. A. Overton is a truculent Baron, Mr. Reg. Fox a capital Karl Ctzaroriski, and Mr. Ernest H. Clarke a successful Chief of Police. The comic element was well supplied by Messrs. Reg. Oldroyd and V. T. Raymond. Miss B. Conway as Cora Gouldhart is attractive, and Miss Lily Malvern is successful as Stella.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—You Never Can Tell, the brilliantly humorous satire of Bernard Shaw, is meeting with great favour here this week from a numerous section of the playgoing public. Messrs. Taylor Platt and Trevor Lowe, who present the piece, have gathered around them a clever company, in which Mr. Trevor Lowe himself scores a conspicuous success as William, the waiter. Miss Katherine Stuart is capital as Mrs. Clandon; and her three children, Gloria, Dolly, and Philip, are admirably hit off in their various moods by Miss Gladys Morris, Miss Clara Earle, and Mr. Donald Calthrop. The stern Fergus Crampton is undertaken firmly by Mr. J. Edward Pearce; Mr. Charles Daly is well suited to fulfil all the requirements of Finch McComas; Mr. Leslie Hamer enters into the spirit of the play as Valentine, and is responsible for much clever work; Bohun, K.C., is enacted on humorous lines by Mr. George Howard; and Miss Ivy Fenton completes the cast as a parlourmaid.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The Dancing Gilberts gain the plaudits of the house by smartly-executed dances; an old friend is found in Chas. F. Best, who once again demonstrates his wonderful contortionist abilities as MacBunker the Mountebank; Albert Letine, female impersonator, makes up realistically, his dancing being excellent; the Austins give a varied turn as comedy jugglers and dancers; Talbot and Pearce, in their pretty Japanese scena Yo-San, give evidence of cultured vocalism; Emma Don wins her usual warm reception from local audiences with her fine character male impersonations; the Brothers St. Clair, upon bicycles, perform many difficult and amusing feats; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux winds up with up-to-date films.

MR. CARL FREDERICKS and his company of merry-makers, who have had such a successful season at the Sydney Gardens, Bath, are now giving their varied and amusing programme at the Assembly Rooms in the evenings. On Thursday and Friday this week Mr. Carl Fredericks had his benefits, when special attractions were announced.

BATLEY.—THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company in Sapho had a hearty reception here on Monday. Mr. Abbott played the part of Jean Gaussin with ability; Miss Ada Abbott was immensely successful in the title-rôle; Mr. John Thorpe did well as Dechelette; Mr. D. C. Douglas' Flamant was very good, and Mr. Frank Stephen gave a capital delineation of Ceassaire. For Friday night Trilby was billed.

BEDFORD. — ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. Fred J. Webb's company are here this week presenting Wm. Hibbert's drama, The Hour of Her Triumph. The part of Zelia Clairmont is well interpreted by Miss M. Danvers Smith; Mr. Fred J. Webb is clever as Eugene Harberry; Mr. Will Henderson displays feeling as Harold Clovening; and Mr. Geo. Raymond is straightforward and manly as Jack Vernon; Mr. Louis Nanton imparts some welcome humour as Ben Brodie; and as a broken-down Shakespearean actor Mr. Hyland O'Shea is very good; Miss Isabel Stevenson is pretty and pathetic as Nellie Clavering; and Miss Lallah Price gives a clever sketch of an inebriate.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened here on Monday, with Florodora. Mr. Fred Eastman was the life and soul of the piece as Anthony Tweedlepunch, creating roars of laughter; Miss Maisie Ellinger made a charming Dolores, singing her numbers with much effect; and the rôle of Lady Holyrood was delightfully played by Miss Edith Housley, who, for "Tact," received a deserved encore. Mr. H. V. Cropton as Frank Abercoed acted well, and his fine voice was heard to much advantage. A capital exponent of Cyrus W. Gilfain was found in Mr. Stanley White; Miss Bessie Middleton achieved much success as Angela Gilfain, her dancing being very smart; and Mr. Herbert St. John appeared with much acceptance as Captain Arthur Donegal. The special dances, introduced by the Misses Vida Oxlee, Harrie Tidd, Daisy Caley, and Emmie Oxlee found much favour. The full chorus and augmented orchestra were under the direction of Mr. J. Morton Hutcheson.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The chief feature of the programme here is the farcical absurdity, The Bloomsbury Burglars, produced by Lew Lake and company, which has created roars of laughter; Tom and Marie Motramo present, with much success, their drawing-room sketch, Do You Reverse; and a decided hit has been made by Mr. Sammy Shields, one of the drollest of Scotch comedians. Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor appear to advantage in their American comedy act, The Dancing Master; and Paul Cavali, musical athlete, Mr. Harry Luck, comedian, Miss Edie Veno, comedienne and dancer, Beattie and Blanche, duettists and dancers, and Palace pictures are also included in the bill.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Will Sley and Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Vasco heads the bill, and plays a large number of musical instruments (twenty-eight in all) so cleverly that his reception has been tremendous; Walter Ellis and company appear in their laughable playlet, entitled The Sleep Walker; and a smart turn has been supplied by Fraser and French, ragtime and hurricane clog marvels. John Lloyd's Gondolier glee singers afford the utmost satisfaction; and Mlle. Alexandra and Mons. Bertie present their daring aerial act, "After the Ball." Also in the programme are James Hare and company, who present their sensational episode, The Guilty Man; Mr. Martin Conway, comedian; Cosgrove and Burns, comedy duettists; Miss Gertrude Lytton, comedienne; and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mr. G. H. Elliott is the star here, and this clever coon comedian was accorded a flattering and fully deserved reception on Monday; Brown and Le Clerq create roars of merriment with their screaming absurdity, Black Justice; and Lady Mansel and juveniles appear in their speciality, A Concert Rehearsal, which is one of the features of the programme. The Howards (Ralph and Nellie) appear in their musical comedy scena, Military Maid; and Mr. Harry Herbert, eccentric comedian, is certainly very droll. The Sisters West are charming duettists and dancers; and also here are the Four Watsons, in their comedy speciality, and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—This hall is still achieving great success with animated pictures, this week's programme including The Launch of the White Star Liner, "Laurentic," at the Queen's Island, Belfast, The Son's Crime, The Nurse's Strike, Through Floating Logs, The Bachelor's Baby, &c. In addition are the Sisters Ely, talented duettists; and France and Francis, acrobatic comedians.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The two houses per night system has caught on here, the attendances being constantly on the increase. This week's programme includes the following films, Oh, those Boys, Law of Honour, The Village Fire Brigade, Scottish Highlands, &c. Miss Ailsa Douglas, a charming vocalist, also appears, with every element of success; and W. Dex is a clever comedy necromancer.

BILSTON.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—This week sees a change in the management of Bilston's popular place of amusement. The new manager is Mr. John M. Dawson, late of the Queen's Royal Theatre, Dublin, Royal Divorce, &c. Mr. Dawson has chosen as his first attraction Two Little Vagabonds, given by Hardie and Von Leer's company. Mr. George Denham, the courteous business-manager for the company, plays George Thornton in a highly creditable manner; Miss Dora Frank Harvey is effective as Marion; and Miss Leonora Castelle is very good as Barbara Scarth. Miss Chrissie Frances and Miss Ethel Frances Greene are excellent as Dick and Wally; Mr. Herbert Standing, jun. (Capt. Darville), Mr. Herbert Russell (the Gaffer), Mr. Hal Charlton (the Cough Drop), and Miss Ethel Lodge (Biddy) are all deserving of praise.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—A return visit from Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche's company, in What the Butler Saw, has been received with delight by crowded houses. Mr. Rignold repeats his irresistibly humorous and clever performance of Pink, the butler; Miss Ada Blanche is a charming and vivacious Mrs. Barrington; and Mr. Charles Fawcett revels in the part of Jack Barrington. Sir Charles Foden is well represented by Mr. Raymond Dudley; Mr. G. Nelson Wallace is inimitable as Professor Shale; Dr. Clayton is carefully played by Mr. Hornby Warburton; and Mr. Harry H. Rignold as Abram Wienstein, Mr. George Ascot as General Dunlop, Mr. Howard L. Tracy as Sidney Clifford, and Mr. Louis Lingard as Vere de Bogyns, add materially to the evening's enjoyment. Miss Christine Jensen is a capital Miss Foden; Nora is well played by Miss Gladys Lloyd; and Miss Babs Stewart, Miss Beatrice Egerton, Miss Mona Garland, Miss Julie St. George, and Miss Lilian Rose are all thoroughly efficient. The comedy is well staged.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Harry Tate and his capable company in the new sketch, Billiards, form a leading attraction here, and deservedly score heavily. An amusing boxing sketch by the Brothers Horne also figures largely in the entertainment; Miss Maude Mortimer, a talented comedienne, has made a hit; and Smiler Lee, a comedian of ability, is a favourite turn. Miss Dot Stephens, a versatile variety artist and mimic, is a prominent success; and an excellent programme also introduces the Raymond Trio, in a pleasing musical act. Talberto and Douglas, speciality comedy artists; Walter Aubrey, comedian and dancer; Billy Trench, wooden shoe dancer; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical director.

OLYMPIAN GARDENS, ROCK FERRY.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Edwin Adeler.—Mr. Marriott Edgar (the man in red) heads an excellent combination, which also includes Mr. Clifford Morgan, elocutionist and card manipulator; Mr. J. W. Barker, comedian; Miss Josey Leyton, comedienne; Mr. C. D. Reekie, comedian; and Mr. Bernard Knox, accompanist. On Thursday Mrs. Adeler took a well-deserved benefit.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch was most welcome on its return on Monday last. Mrs. Madge Carr Cook's clever characterisation of Mrs. Wiggs, with her quaint humour and sympathy, as before, "took" instantly with the audience; while in a different way Miss Rita Carlyle was the cause of abundant mirth as the Doleful Miss Hazy. Clever character sketches of Mrs. Eichorn and Mrs. Schultz were submitted by the Misses Mabel Durrant and Eva Campbell respectively; Miss Violet Vivian won sympathy for the character of Lovey Mary; Mr. Fredk. Forrest made the most of that eccentric character Mr. Stubbins; Mr. Walter Cameron as Mr. Wiggs does very well; and other clever types of character were played by Mr. Sidney Carlyle as Chris Hazy, Mr. Arthur Vezin as Billy Wiggs, Miss Mary Deverall as Miss Lucy, and Miss Ruhamah as Asia, &c.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Fiander's Widow, with which Mr. Edward Terry commenced another welcome engagement, has been very popular here, with the famous comedian in his new rôle, Isaac Sharpe. Several old favourites have also been submitted, Mr. Terry's Posket in The Magistrate on Tuesday drawing and satisfying his admirers in full. On Wednesday his characterisation of Dick Phenyl in Sweet Lavender came as fresh as ever; and for Thursday he was billed for another favourite rôle, Todman, in Liberty Hall. Capital support has been afforded him on both sides the footlights, and Miss Edith Coleman, Miss Gwendoline Wren, Mr. William Dexter, Mr. Kenneth Brampton, Miss Evelyn Ormonde, and company have well sustained the rôles allotted them.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—The Tyrant, with its rich Venetian environment, has drawn well here. Miss Marie Dagmar as Tisbe does some fine dramatic acting; Mr. Fred C. Somerfield, the adapter, plays Homodei in highly finished style; Mr. Roy Fortesque gives a forcible and capable rendering of Angelo; Mr. Edw. E. Louis as Rudolph wins praise by his able and manly acting; Mr. T. Ashmore is popular as Pan; Miss Margaret Frame is a most acceptable Lady Catherine; Miss Cherry Veheyne fills the rôle of Eulie with perfect ease; and Messrs. Frank Etheridge, Willie Barrett, and Miss Nellie Freeland are very entertaining as Victor, Nobbo, and Reginella respectively.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—At Cripple Creek, the return visit of which has been attended with complete success here, is well acted by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company. Mr. Henry Hare imparts a fine distinction to the part of Joe Mayfield; Miss Constance Elgin lends herself admirably to the rôle of Dynamite Ann; Mr. Chas. E. Johnson's acting as Martin Mason is graphic, and Mr. Roy Jackson is realistic as Alveraz; Mr. Reginald Harley West gives a faithful sketch of Wahketah; Miss Daisy Carlton as Maggie Mason acts and looks the part well; Little Rosy Hopkins is an ideal Little Tatto; and the humorous rôles are well played by Mr. C. E. Preece as Ben White, Mr. Will Hook as Reggie Harwood, and Miss Nora Dillon as Sarah Lively. Miss Lily Bergle is very happy in her assumption of "the luckiest girl in Cripple Creek," Belle Gordon.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer's descent on Saltley in a big, comprehensive répertoire has been an event of much import and success. On Monday she essayed the tragic rôle of Mary, Queen of Scots, applause and perfect stillness at her powerful acting alternating conspicuously throughout. On Tuesday she gave a wonderfully clever portrayal of Hamlet, being supported by her company in a very able and loyal manner. On Wednesday her remarkable diversity was shown in the fascinating rôle of Sapho; and Nell Gwynn, Leah, and Jane Shore have figured brilliantly in her répertoire. The company includes Mr. F. Skein, Miss Alice O'Dea, &c.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Lake.—Her Nameless Child is a strong draw here, with Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company. Mr. J. W. Evelyn is very powerful, and evokes great applause as Anthony Ford; Miss Pattie Hastings as Phyllis acts with fine spirit as well as pathos, as the part requires; Mr. Sidney C. Cranston is seen favourably as Arthur Ford; Mr. Arthur E. Pringle leaves nothing lacking to complete the villainy of Lord Woodville, and his fair accomplice, Lady Sybil, lacks nothing in such a representative as Miss Mona Grey; Mr. Frank Thompson is successful as the catspaw, Mongrole; and some very funny "comic relief" is vouchsafed by Mr. Larry Clements as Tom Rivers and Miss Renie Douglas as Bessie.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Her Forbidden Marriage takes place here nightly to tremendous applause, in which all the members of Mr. Frederick Melville's company have deservedly shared. Mr. Henry Lonsdale, chief among all perhaps, has won admiration with his well-acted part of George Maddison; Miss Geraldine Le Sage as the persecuted Lucy has gained full sympathy with her well-studied pathetic portrayal; Mr. Louis Hector has enacted the plausible villain, Charles Devereux, thoroughly well; Mr. C. Davidson has done well as Geoffrey Broughton, and other good support has been rendered by Mr. H. Gomer May, Mr. Fred De Vere, Miss Maud Merrick, Miss Grace Lester, and Miss Agnes Imlay, &c.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Fred Storey and his company are here in a tabloid production of The Merchant of Venice, which is beautifully played and mounted. The cast includes Messrs. A. M. Stapley, Wilfred Blair, and Miss Lilian Holmes. Alexandra Dagmar was loudly applauded for her songs; Herbert Lloyd gets more eccentric every time, and knows how to please his audience. Other prominent turns are John Humphries and company in an amusing sketch, Ancient Britons; Charles Danton, a double-voiced vocalist; the Cumberlands, acrobatic cyclists; the Boccacio Trio, humorous mandolinists, and Rose Cabini.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—The Boissett Troupe are on a return visit here with The Bricklayers, which is awfully funny; Lottie Lennox scored a terrific success with her "Old green bonnet" song; the Carina Sisters have an artistic musical entertainment; Charles Stevens, Leslie Harris, and Johnny Walker all win applause; and Nellie Coleman, La Belle Nello, and the Six Lancashire Lassies are big attractions.

HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—Kate Carney with her company present a new scena, The Yiddisher Boy, which makes a hit; Walter Emerson and Bellman and Moore are applauded for their humorous songs; Rosie Lloyd does well with her songs; B. Troba is an exceedingly clever juggler; Zeta Grey and company have a smart musical comedy interlude; Lillie Lassah and Sibb and Sibb complete the company.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Arthur Rigby and his company appear here in an Eastern episode, The Isle of Ooma, and are a big attraction. The production is exceedingly picturesque, and there is plenty of fun in the piece. The Bros. Webb are clever musical clowns; Frank Lymne is loudly applauded; and other turns are supplied by Fred Curran, Dora Martini, Alice Maude, Bromley and Fontein, and Ethel Dunford.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—This popular house has been reconstructed and elaborately furnished and fitted with private boxes. Bessie Willows provides an excellent turn, and Jan Johnson, cycling ventriloquist, is applauded.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Lingford Carson and his company opened to a capital house on Monday in The Great White Chief. Mr. Carson gave a well-marked and dramatic portrayal of Reinder, the dumb chief; Mr. Mansell Fane was excellent in the title-rôle, his singing being a feature of the evening; Mr. Leonard Maitland acted with his accustomed drollery as George Rupert Walker; Mr. W. Melrose and Mr. S. Elland, in the respective parts of Hartley Deane and Dave Carter, were excellent; and Mr. Hugh Brady as John Warton gave a satisfactory presentation. Miss Amy Ross Clyde made a creditable Martha Jane Curtley; Miss Dulcie Lawrence was painstaking in her arduous part of Hester Stafford; and Miss Polly Denville as Latika deserved great praise. The scenic effects were admirable.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The new version of The Christian, played by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, is finding favour here this week. Mr. Henry Renouf's fine acting as John Storm is much admired; and the Glory Quayle of Miss Doris Gilham is also appreciated. Mr. Oswald Marshall ably portrays Horatio Drake; and Mr. G. R. Montford plays Lord Robert Ure with distinct credit. Other parts are also in capable hands, and the staging calls forth admiration.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's Tom Jones company is paying a very welcome return visit here this week, and meeting with another huge success. The principal parts remain in the same worthy hands, and the applause is loud and long at every performance. Mr. Dan Rolyat as Partridge, Miss Florence Smithson as Sophia, Mr. Ambrose Manning as Squire Western, and Mr. Harry Welchman in the title-rôle, retain their high reputations. The minor parts are also well played, whilst the chorus is well up to the Courtneidge high standard.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—George Lashwood shines here this week. The lesser, but still bright, lights are Alexandre and Hughes, clever musical comedians; Winifred Ward, a capable male impersonator; R. A. Speedwell, aptly described as the wizard painter; Maude Wilton, a pleasing comedienne; Frank Seeley, eccentric comedian; the Paxton Trio, the wonderful head-balancers; and Dolly Ross, comedienne and dancer.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. Carlton Wallace's company has presented the romantic play The Love That Women Desire, and has met with very liberal patronage. Messrs. J. O. Stewart as Squire Abingdon, Morris Maud as Richard Abingdon, and Sidney Smith as Philip Carnaby are prominent; and the acting of Mesdames Aimee Gratton Clyndes, Jessie Elvin, May Neilson, Violet Young, and Dorothy North-Ore is highly efficient.

GAIETY.—Lessee, Mr. Wm. Yates Gregory; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baugh.—Heading the bill here is Milo. Florence, the famous globe walker. The Moncktons in their comedy act, A Woman's Curiosity; Sadie Bonelle, juvenile male impersonator; Marshall and Wright, comedians; Wragg and Wragg, military athletes, and a charming series of moving pictures make up a capital programme that delights crowded audiences twice nightly.

HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Doyle and O'Connell; General-Manager, Mr. Tom Doyle.—The pictorial drama, Lady Audley's Secret, has proved a special feature of the week's programme, and others prove attractive. Douglas and Gordon are a pair of clever comedy artists; Miss Tilly Afden, comedienne and speciality dancer, has a good reception; Hector Lee, comedian, does a good turn; and Bert Crosbie, in quaint patter and parodies and clever dancing, finds favour with the numerous patrons of the "Drome."

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—A full house greeted Messrs. José and Young's company on Monday in Amasis. The part of Pharaoh was depicted by Mr. W. H. Denny with excellent effect; Miss Winifred O'Connor played the Princess with charming grace, her vocal numbers being capitally rendered; Miss Mabel Burnege was a piquant and pleasing representative of Natis; Mr. Edward McKeown portrayed the part of Prince Anhotep in a highly commendable manner; the part of Cheiro was undertaken by Mr. Arthur Stroud, whose rendering of "Prayed for life" was in every sense excellent; and Mr. Fred Hudson was dignified as the High Priest; Mr. W. H. Brodie as Sebak, the irrepressible crocodile keeper, and Mr. Frank Attree as the ill-fated Ptolemy provoked great merriment.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A welcome return visit is this week being made by Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls, who are accorded a hearty reception; Marlo, juggler and equilibrist; Lilian Lowe, ballad vocalist; the Three Rubys, contortionists and acrobatic ladies; Mr. Charles Diamond, harpist, and Miss Beatrice, soprano saxophonist; Cyril Carle, in dramatic songs and scenas; Josie Delaine Gallimore, in songs and dances; Charles Prelle's bijou dog circus; Miss Diana Hope, in the society episode Her Good Name, assisted by Mr. James White and Dick Cruikshanks, and, lastly, Vernon's Imperial Bioscope, are other attractions.

THE EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—The Martialo Trio head the bill here with their sensational juggling and balancing act. Other attractions are the Sisters Essie and Baby Herbert, duettists and dancers; Morimura, Japanese magician, assisted by Miako; Rowland Hill, "Ye Dame" and historical humorist; Daisy Morell, comedienne; Carlos Menard, trick violinist; F. W. Purcell's company in That Brute Simmons, in which appear Mr. Julian Cross, Mr. George Delaforce, and Miss Oliph Webb; and the Bioscope pictures.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Wilmott; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—This week the stock company are presenting the romantic Irish drama, Lord Edward, or 98. Mr. Albert Sember in the title-rôle gives a capital performance, receiving good assistance from Mr. Stanley S. Gordon as Neilson; as Pamela Miss Nina Vaughton is a charming and graceful heroine; Miss Kathleen Magee is very good as Mrs. O'Moore, and Francis Magan finds a most successful exponent in Mr. Alfred D. Adams. The comedy parts are in the able hands of Mr. Tom H. Solly and Miss Effie Macintosh.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—Frank Fenton heads the bill here this week in his clever impersonation of David Garrick, and is ably supported; C. Emlyn Jones and the "Daughters of Britain" meet with a hearty reception in their vocal scena; Oliver Conroy's droll songs keeps the house in roars of laughter; Nita Clem, comedienne and dancer, is fully appreciated; a clever and sensational performance is given by the Flying Halyons; Russell Carr is successful as a military ventriloquist; Charles Maye as a quaint comedian is worthy of mention; and the Hippo pictures are extremely good.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company in The Beloved Vagabond was well received here on Monday. Mr. Arthur Royston has made a careful study of the part of Gaston de Nerac and rendered it with much effect; Mr. Warburton Gamble in the unpleasant character of the Comte de Verneuil was very good; of Asticot Mr. Ramsay Macbeth gave a capital sketch; and Mr. Alfred Drayton did all that was possible with the part of Lord Rushworth. Blanquette was well played by Miss Nita Faydon, and Miss Kathleen Harrington was quite charming as Joanna Rushworth.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—A return visit of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company with The Dairymaids is the attraction here. Hearty laughter greets the performance of the comedy, and for this Mr. Harry Dent as Joe Mivens is mainly responsible. Miss Phyllis Dare is a sweet and graceful Peggy; Miss Edith Blanche an altogether excellent Lady Brudenell; and there is a breezy heartiness in the humour of Mr. Percy Marshall as Dr. O'Bryne. Mr. E. Statham-Staples as Lieut. Brudenell and Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., as Lieut. Meredith do well.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—This week Mr. T. Edward Wards company is on a return visit with Second to None. Capable acting is shown by Mr. Fred F. Loyd as the scheming Captain Philip Mannering, Mr. Leonard Williams as Private Harry Wilding, Miss Dorothy Clifton as Nell Greystone, and Mr. Theo. Balfour is conspicuous in the part of Sir Reginald Greystone. Mr. Allan Carruthers, Mr. Louis Edmonds, and Miss Carrie Yondell are entertaining in the humorous interludes.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Tom Foy and company elicit hearty laughter here this week in the absurdity The Yorkshire Lad in London, and Barton and Ashley introduce a sketch on novel lines, full of rollicking fun. The Proveanies are exceedingly clever lady trick cyclists; Lola Patey renders her songs in pleasing style; there is some good speciality dancing by the Eight bright Stella Girls; two excellent character songs by Tom Woolwell meet with hearty approval; Olga and Elgar's instrumental entertainment is enjoyable; Ted and May Hopkins are well received; Nettie Starr, comedienne, submits a bright turn; and the usual excellent display of pictures by the Bioscope highly entertain the large audiences.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Gunner Moir, champion pugilist, is crowding the theatre this week, and entertaining all comers with the gloves. His recent fight with Tommy Burns is also realistically reproduced by the Bioscope and watched with rapt attention. Very great applause greets Sergt. Brennan's very remarkable gyroscopic feats; Edie Tennis and Gertie Laune are dainty and charming duettists; clever comedy acrobatic work in the turn by Gladys and Alber wins applause; Lawrence Barclay's comic character songs are very funny; Georgina Middleton, soprano, renders her songs in dainty style; in an expert skipping-rope dance the Sisters Brenton are good; Harvey's American Boys and Girls contribute a versatile and bright dancing and vocal entertainment; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are, as usual, an interesting item of the excellent programme.

BRIDLINGTON. — ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE. — Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The vocalist this week is Mr. W. A. Peterkin, a capital bass. In the Grand Pavilion, Mr. H. Flockton-Foster's entertainers are giving extra programmes this week. The Loyal Dominion Animated Picture Co. are showing pictures.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS. — General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—Herr Simon Würm's Viennese Band and Mr. Surrie Lindon's vaudeville entertainers finished their season on Saturday with a combined programme, and were rewarded with a crowded house. The Stingarees, under the direction of Mr. Roland Henry, occupy the stage in the Opera House this week, and render some excellent programmes. Miss Roma Castille is a sweet soprano, and Miss Winnie Harbor a clever comedienne; Mr. Robert Carr possesses a fine baritone voice; Mr. Harry Hearne's humorous songs are laughable; and Mr. Roland Henry is a humorist of ability.

SUMMER GARDENS. — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Chas. Beanland. —That amusing sketch, Hamelton's Diorama, is one of the big items in the capital programme of the Waterloo Pierrots this week. Mr. Beanland's comically portrayed songs, and Mr. Chas. Danton's songs and dances, are always very cleverly done.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company opened here on Monday with The Prince and the Beggar Maid, and has been doing splendid business. Mr. Ivan Cleveland gave a masterly impersonation of Prince Hilred of Sylvania; Miss Annie Saker made a very charming enactment of the Princess Monica of Illyria, Mr. Herbert Ford was an attractive Prince Olaf of Sylvania; Mr. Graeme Campbell displayed great skill in his portrayal of Prince Michael; Miss Dido Drake was well placed as Candida, a beggar maid; Mr. Francis Hawley acquitted himself admirably as the Bishop of Illyria; and Mr. D. Lewin Mannering's Captain Hector, Mr. Kendal Chalmers' Lieutenant Karl Stromberg, and Miss Isla Vayne's Viola were ably represented. The play was superbly staged.

ALHAMBRA.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is an excellent company here this week. Margaret Cooper, as usual, gives her songs in winsome and artistic style, gaining very enthusiastic applause; Haley's company of vocalists and dancers also achieve marked and well deserved success; their efforts in "The Garden of Girls" being enhanced by excellent scenery and electrical effects; Carl Howard, in comedy and magic, merits warm praise; Millie Engler and company are well received in the farcical episode, Beauty and the Burglar; Fred Sheppard is a popular comedian; the Alberto Troupe are clever equilibrists; Professor McCann, with his highly trained dogs, submits a capital turn; Mabel Bright is a novel entertainer; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur R. Hollands.—A capital programme is sustained here this week. John Tiller's company prove very attractive in the nautical spectacular ballet, Jolly Jack; Hal Forde, light comedian, is a great favourite; the Delevines are very cordially received in Flipp and Flopp; Harry Brown, American coloured comedian, scores heavily; Mons. Gerard, herculean manipulator, performs excellent feats; Ajax and George appear in a novel gymnastic act; Arthur Albert, light comedian, wins warm applause; the Three Orros submit an original act on the silver chains; Ryder Slone is a good character comedian; Fred Hastings, comedian, is cordially received; and Horace and Olga give an entertaining turn with their great table troupe of cats and dogs.

WEST PIER.—Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw's company is here this week, with Marjory Strode. Miss Christine Silver makes a delightful Margaret Strode; Mr. Carter Pickford achieves great success as the Viscomte de Selac; Mr. Hawley Francks as Christopher Strode, and Mr. John H. Willes as Peter Strode, display admirable acting; Mr. Leonard Calvert's Dackhum is a clever character study; Mr. Stephen Wentworth is highly successful as Richard Strode; and the remaining characters are satisfactorily sustained.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Prominent among the attractions here is the late Lord Leighton's model, Venus, whose poses are warmly appreciated. Her representations include Helen of Troy, The Coquette, and The Bath of Psyche. In addition to Venus, Mr. L. Austen Millais' vaudeville company is here. Little Sunbeam, "the miniature Marie Lloyd," achieves great success; Messrs. Coombes and Webb are clever banjoists; the Four Sisters Sligo give a pleasing musical turn; Dorothy Joan and Pic are good singers and dancers; Lynn, the original singing boy, from the Tivoli, and Aerola, gymnast, are well received; and other turns are provided by Dainty Van Delle, Harry Francis, Leoville, and W. H. Blackman.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Fred Bauer.—There is a capital series of animated pictures here this week. Prominent among the films is one depicting a daring robbery of diamonds, and the capture of the thieves. The Bee and the Rose is a beautiful picture, and among those that are delightfully amusing are There's a Smell of Smoke, The Slippery Pickpocket, Anything to Oblige, and The Page and the Baby. Miss Beatrice Felsted contributes songs in good style.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. James Welch, with the entire London company, scenery, and production from Wyndham's Theatre, London, in When Knights Were Bold, is packing the house at each performance. Mr. Welch as Sir Guy de Vere is most amusing. He presents a very clever exposition of the part, always humorous, but at the same time consistent. Miss Audrey Ford is graceful, interesting, and very pleasing as Rowena, her performance of the part being highly effective throughout; Mr. Arthur Grenville acts cleverly as Isaac Isaacson; Mr. George Desmond is capitally placed as Widdicombe; Mr. Cecil Kinnaird does excellently as Sir Brian Ballymote; Mr. George Tully makes the most of Wittle; and Mr. Guy Lane is sufficiently dignified as the Clergyman. Mrs. Waldegrave is impersonated in stately style by Miss Helen Palgrave; and the Misses Mary O'Hea, Gwendoline Rayne, and Annie Ferrell are pleasing exponents of the younger ladies. The performance commences with the one-act play, The Changeling, in which Miss Helen Palgrave, Mr. J. H. Carson, and Mr. George Tully distinguish themselves.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Why Men Love Women is being well performed by Miss Ellen Snow and her company. Miss Snow presents a clever and interesting exposition of Violet Livingstone; Mr. Oliver Rogers is manly and convincing as Gerald Fielding; Mr. Lionel Gadsden displays power as Captain Staniloff; Mr. Ernest Griffen is well placed as the Maharajah of Balore; Mr. W. Norman does well as the Rev. Arthur Gray; Miss Maud Court gives a characteristic performance of Muriel Zoluski; and the remaining parts are all capably represented. The drama is staged in an effective manner.

COLSTON HALL.—Ralph Pringle's animated pictures and variety entertainment continues to be attractive. This week the speciality films include Nero, or the Burning of Rome, Samson, and The Black Princess.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—From Shop Girl to Duchess drew a full house on Monday. Sylvia Grey was well sustained by Miss Mary Neil; Mr. Douglas Cecil played capitally as Arnold Vyvian, the hero, and Mr. Frank Strickland as Gilbert Spate presented the villain in fine style; Miss Beatrice Hudson was successful as Lady Delamere; the comedy element was ably given by Mr. Douglas Tremayne as Pelham, Mr. Henri Gerald as Tommy Tinkler, and Miss Florrie Grove as Tilly Dobson. Excellent staging contributed to the pleasure of the production.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A great success is the production here this week of Lucky Durham by Messrs. H. Armitage and A. Leigh's company. Mr. S. Herbert Humber as John Durham puts life and sincerity into the rôle; Lord Mountfallon is portrayed in a convincing manner by Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood; and the character of the happy-go-lucky son, the Hon. Reggie, is aptly rendered by Mr. Arthur Leigh. Mr. Vallerton is undertaken by Mr. Wm. Heilbron, and Mr. J. H. Gerald is good as Arthur Walcombe; Miss Alice Esther Belmore, a charming actress, makes a decided hit as Helen Vallerton, and Miss Beatrice Sinclair as Mrs. Durham is exceedingly good; Miss Rosabel Dodd and Miss Florence Dunhulty as Lady and Miss Mountfallon are very good, and the remainder of the company are up to a high standard.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The great draw here this week is Tarro Miyake, the Japanese ju-jitsu wrestler, and great excitement is created by contests with local aspirants; the Five Musical Tritons, vocalists and instrumentalists, give some fine selections of high-class music, and Miss Lydia, a soprano vocalist of excellent quality, fully deserves the applause with which she is greeted. A very smart gymnast is Azella Wilson, with novel feats, and Sid Owen, Scotch comedian, pleases; Grace Dane, in song, is appreciated greatly, and Miss Alma de Liera captivates the audience with "The songs my mother used to sing." The ventriloquial efforts of Harry Vardon prove highly amusing; Fayre and McHenry, the "Two in green," are good at singing and dancing, and An Escaped Lunatic is the title of an amusing picture by the Empire Theatroscope.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The various turns comprising the programme here this week are all well received by good houses. A Trip to Coontown given by Wm. Garland and Fred Douglas's company is thoroughly enjoyed; the Denwaris Troupe of five juvenile acrobats perform clever feats, and the Florias, in a novel and difficult wire act, earn a good reception; Miss Annie Schubert, soprano, is applauded for her delightful singing, and Gibbon and Bell, in an acrobatic potpourri, introduce good work; Pearce and Ward cause much laughter with their burlesque boxing; Jimmy Laurie, with smart talk, puts the audience in a merry mood; and Oliver Martyn is a success

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body. —The Midnight Wedding, by Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company, is drawing good houses this week. Miss Yvonne Orchardson gives a highly finished study as Princess Astrea; Miss Gwladys Faunce does extremely well as Satanella; a sympathetic audience soon recognises in Mr. A. E. Wennington Barnes (Paul Valmar) a hero of exceptional interest and ability. The unscrupulous Captain Rudolph and his victim Eugene are capably played by Mr. Mayor-Cooke and Mr. Forbes Harrison respectively. Three jovial comrades are Mr. Jas E. Page (Max), Mr. Harry Richardson (Otto), and Algie Spalding (Bobo), the later being extremely droll, especially in his scenes with Kathie (Miss Ada Champion). Mr. John Nesbett and Mr. Francis Hawley creditably sustain their parts. The play is admirably staged.

BURY (Lancs.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND PALACE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—A fine programme this week includes De Ganty's illuminated water grotto, a beautiful spectacle; Bennett and Martell, a pair of real comedians; the Five Juanitos, marvellous acrobats; Rita and Roma, in a little comedy act; Ethel Walker, who entertains at the piano; Phil Parsons, comedian; Lindon's Entertainers, in a sketch, Monks at Play; and Tom Colquitt, the great jumper.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Animated pictures are again the attraction here. The series this week is a good one, and includes The Lightning Postcard Artist, The Rag Picker Caricaturist, Scenes in Venice, Over the Sticks, Married Under Difficulties, Jones and the Lamp-post, and A Victim of Science.

THE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons.—Some remarkably good turns are in this week's bill, the best one being a most interesting dramatic sketch, entitled The Master Card, played by Thompson Carruthers. Others are the Original Zedoras, gymnasts; David Poole, ventriloquist; Signor and Mme. Borelli, in humorous imitations; Brothers Ford, singers and dancers; Doyle and Massey, comedians; the Denchars, duettists and dancers; and Kendrick and Laura.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve. — The Belle of Mayfair, presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, is drawing packed houses. Mr. Sidney Burt as Sir John Chaldicott brings out the humour of the part to the full; Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft is admirably suited as Raymond Finchley; Lord Mount Highgate is cleverly played by Mr. Stephen Hall; and Mr. Michael Raven's singing and acting as Hugh Meredith are far above the average. Other praiseworthy performances come from Mr. A. Batting (Comte de Perrier) and Mr. Lionel Yeoman (Simpson). Miss Nellie Barnwell is bewitching in the title-rôle; Miss Dora Lyons, a pretty dancer, makes a vivacious Pincott; Miss Denny Fitzherbert is delightful as Lady Chaldicott; and Miss Rosina Effingham plays Princess Ehrenbreitstein very gracefully, Lady Rosaline and the Gibson Girl being cleverly portrayed by Miss Grace Mackay. The excellent work of a powerful chorus, added to the rich dresses and mounting, make the piece remarkably attractive.

CAMBRIDGE.—NEW.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company in Two Little Sailor Boys provided the opening performance of the season on Monday. Mr. H. E. Herbert gives a fine reading of Noel Tregarthen; Miss Blanche Steele plays convincingly as Lola Grey; Mr. Horace Booth is sufficiently repulsive as Richard Redstone; Miss Effie D. Crawford and Miss Ivy Millais play admirably as the two boys; Miss Muriel Dean makes a pleasing Mildred Grey; Mr. Tom E. Seymour as Ben Baxter proves himself a capable comedian; and he is well assisted in the humour by Mr. Fred Acton as Jack Jolly and Miss Lizzie Chambers as Lucy Wilson.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—A visit has been paid this week by the delightful Diana of Dobson's, Miss Lena Ashwell's principal company presenting the piece with exceptional success. Miss Dorothy Green in the title-rôle charms all; Mr. H. Grendon Bentley achieves a great success as Captain Bretherton; Mr. Alfred Harris deserves praise for his impersonation of the baronet; Miss Mary Stuart, beautifully gowned, admirably fills the part of Mrs. Cantelupe; while Miss Nannie Griffin gains well-merited applause for her really fine representation of the old woman; the ladies of Dobson's are capably enacted by painstaking artists.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—George Gilbey makes a hit here with his funny representation of "Spouty," the goal-keeper; a more refined and purely mirth-making sketch than Kleptomaniacs, by Fred Edwards and company, could not possibly be desired; two concertina solos are contributed in finished style by Perci Honri; the Bros. Egbert once again delight us as the Happy Dustmen; Millie Payne, low comedy artist, evokes hearty laughter in her couple of up-to-date songs, her get-up in the "Directoire" gown being absurdly funny; the Hartley Wonders in a marvellous jumping speciality, are the best of their kind; Phil Rees' stable lads are most entertaining in their racing dialogue; Hal Hughman is an exceptionally talented imitator; and Maggie Walsh is also in the bill, of which the Bioscope is also an attraction.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the Management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—A large audience witnessed at the Royal on Monday night a fine performance of the brilliant drama Leah Kleschna. The piece is presented by H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company. Mr. William Clayton in the part of Kleschna gives a powerful portrayal; Mr. Hamilton Deane fills the rôle of Paul Sylvaine with much effect; Miss Bessie Rignold is a powerful Leah; Mr. Gilbert Heron does well in the character of Schram; Raoul Burton is capitally impersonated by Mr. Algernon J. Hicks; and Mr. Charles Barrett as General Burton submits a dignified delineation.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton. —An unusual attraction here is a beauty competition for ladies, with prizes of £50, and numerous local beauties compete at each performance for the coveted honour; Miss Alice Hughes, a great favourite, goes down well in a musical comedietta entitled Star of the Bazaar; Ferguson and Mack make a hit with their amusing turn; J. W. Aitken and company appear in a realistic sketch called Nihilism; Marie Jones, protean artist, gains much appreciation; and the turns provided by Gold and Sterling (the Welsh girl and the artist), Annie Heath (a comedienne out of the ordinary), and Edwards and Dacre (in a comedy duologue), all add to the success of the programme.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. William Holles and Miss Nannie Goldman's company is here in the drama The Stepmother. Mr. Holles as Bob Bristow is a prominent feature in the performance; Miss Goldman as Danny is also conspicuous; and Mr. Edwin Stevens makes a capital comedy policeman. The piece is well staged.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Binns and Binns, who top the bill here, are new to Carlisle audiences; Miss Carlotta Levey renders catchy songs most effectively; a graceful and artistic trapeze performance by Alcide Capitaine is a popular feature; the singing of the Scottish Meisters is excellent; Frank Sylvo, quaint comedy juggler, is on a return visit; the twin Sisters Melba, duettists, and Ward and Davis, a comedy duo, contribute popular turns; and the Pepiscope, with some interesting pictures, complete a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment.

NEW PUBLIC HALL.—Lessee, Mr. Sydney Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas France; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Uden.—Mr. Sydney Bacon's Animated Picture company still continues to attract large and enthusiastic audiences. Gibson and Doyle, a couple of smart comedians, also entertain.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—A cordial greeting was accorded Mr. Lingford Carson's company in A Fight for a Throne. The scenery, dresses, and uniforms are all good. Mr. John S. Millward is an actor of great strength, and his portrayal of Capt. Jack Fortesque calls for warm praise; Miss Dora Hammersley gracefully undertakes Princess Esmee; Nicholai I. is ably represented by Mr. Gerald Byrnne; A vivid depiction of the dastardly Prince Otto is submitted by Mr. Chas. E. Linney; Lieut. Rodna is carefully and earnestly played by Mr. John Worth; while General Rodna, his father, receives effective treatment at the hands of Mr. Tom Roydon; Miss Margaretta Tueskie cast with appropriate spirit as Countess Valeska. The humours of the drama are by no means wanting. Mr. Chas. H. Hughes as Tom Ferret, a detective, keeps the audience in roars of laughter; while Miss Lilith Gabriel as Lady Pat and Mr. Patrick Evans as Lieut. Fitzmaurice also cause a considerable amount of amusement; Mr. Stewart Quartermayne is well placed as Sir George Coventry, and Mr. Eric B. Daventry makes a capital Sergeant.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Travis.—The Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures are still a strong feature here, good audiences being in attendance. Most of the films are of a humorous description, but several dramatic subjects and views of travel are included. Miss Marion Blake renders several songs in a manner which meets well-merited applause. Percy Vale, a comedian and raconteur, sings well and tells several tales with fluency and precision.

CHATHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is here this week with The Sailor's Wedding, which is proving very popular. Mr. C. W. Standing makes a fine straightforward Gordon Drake; his friend, Sir Victor Lascelles, is capitally represented by Mr. Cecil Klein; Mr. Frank Stone makes a good Count Bellini; Mr. Hodgson Taylor is sufficiently villainous as Giovanni Ferici; and Mr. F. Finch Smiles does creditable work as Giacomo "of the evil eye"; Mr. Walter Pemberton is a fine breezy Jack Hawkins, and with Miss Belle Travers (Polly Clarke) is responsible for any amount of fun; Miss Maud Linden is effective and pleasing as the Countess Bellini; Miss Dulcie Greatwich makes a sweet little Mary, and Miss Winifred Pearson's Leonore de Gresac is a praiseworthy performance. The scenery and costumes are particularly good.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. Barnard.—Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are again making a big success here with their expert cycling act; another leading turn is that contributed by the Hilgert Arkas Company of Continental equilibrists; Joe Archer is back again with his comic songs and smartly delivered patter; Beau and Belle please with their vocal scena, Past and Present; McAskell, comic conjurer, Queenie Delle, comedienne and dancer, the Sisters Selwyn, duettists and dancers, and Geo. Porter, patter comedian, complete the variety turns, and Lacey's Erascope has a change of films.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis.—Mr. W. T. Ellwanger and a well-chosen company are giving the utmost satisfaction here with their sketch, A Kiss; Molly Maguire's Irish songs take well; Enzer proves very smart in a juggling act; H. E. Beresford, the bluejacket magician, has a flattering reception nightly; Eugene and Willie repeat their acrobatic musical act; Poppy Lytton and Jack Bland are favourites in A Lesson in Love; Louie Hurman and Jack Foley also appear, and the Edisonograph is up-to-date.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, in The Bondman, is here this week. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin scores heavily by his masterly acting as Jason; Mr. Oswald Lingard as Adam Fairbrother does well; Mr. Lionel Atwill is convincing as Michael Sunlocks; Miss Georgina Wynter acts with quiet power as Greeba; Mr. W. H. Rotherham has two parts; as the Grandfather he is thoroughly convincing, and no whit the less so as Father Ferrati; Mrs. Fairbrother is effectively personated by Miss Madge Lanerton; Doctor Boni is ably represented by Mr. F. G. Waller; Governor Testa is a telling impersonation in the hands of Mr. Alfred Fisher; Miss Lillian Mayne is good as Martha; as is Miss Emily Mayhew as Christian Ann; and the irrepressible children, Mona and Danny, are delightfully represented by Miss Gertrude Helene and Master Walter Neville.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Harry Foxwell's company, in the drama, An Abandoned Woman, is here this week under the direction and management of Mr. Teddy Myles. Mr. Herbert M. King as Captain Herbert Seaton is a distinct success; Mr. W. Fraser-Brunner is capable as Phillipe Malvoisin; Mr. Teddy Myles creating much humour as Paddy Boyle; Miss Marion West in the title-rôle, displays power; Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam attractively rendering Eleanor Deane; while Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner is vivacious as Sally Sloper.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—The Monckton Hoffe comedy company, by arrangement with Miss Lena Ashwell, is this week presenting Irene Wycherley. In the title-rôle Miss Maude Henderson showed real artistic skill; Mr. Charles Garry in the part of Philip Wycherley was powerfully dramatic; Mr Ralph Hutton as Sir Peter was extremely natural; Mr. Edward Sorley played Harry Chesterton with easy confidence; and Mr. Claude Haviland did well as Charles Summers; Miss Phyllis Stuckey was both naïve and vigorous as Muriel; and Miss Muriel Carmel was painstaking as Linda. As Lily Summers Miss Olive Warne was quite a success.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Mr. F. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Chas. Baldwin's company of comedians and knockabouts, in the absurdity, The Bank Clerks, is the head of this week's programme. Great Scott, the London fireman, is seen to advantage on the unsupported ladder; George Antill, with his amusing eccentricities, is a much-applauded comedian; Lillian Rigby performs on various musical instruments with much success; Johnny Fuller, in his entertainment, goes extremely well; Ethel Hilliery is well received; and Florence Turner contributes with low comedy; and Pathé films are also an attraction.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell. —Mr. Reginald Dance and company opened a week's engagement here on Monday, presenting for the first time in Cork Beau Brocade, by Baroness Orczy and Montague Barstow. The title-rôle as played by Mr. Reginald Dance is a breezy performance; Miss Ruth Mackay filled the rôle of Lady Patience with marked ability; Mr. Frank Darch as the Earl of Stretton was convincing; and Mr. Frank Powell's delineation of Sir Humphrey Challoner was all that could be desired. Mr. Dalziel Heron as John Stutch was spirited and vigorous; Miss May Brooke as the Maid was successful; and Mr. Edward Irwin as the Village Nincompoop was full of humour. The play was preceded by a one-act piece entitled "Proof," by Alice Clayton Green.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The principal turn here is Miss May Moore Duprez, who contributes some capital songs and dances. Palette and his dog "Max" give a novel turn as a musician and sketch artist; Clarice Sefton sings and dances admirably; Carl Rosine, conjurer, assisted by Mlle. Margaret, provides a clever turn; the Four Regals introduce feats of strength; Ingram and Irving, comedians, have a humorous piece entitled The Office Boy; Les Voces remain over from last week; and the Sisters Allen are a smart pair of duettists and dancers. The Palascope continues to amuse with new pictures.

COVENTRY.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Woman and Wine is always assured of a successful run here, and this week proves no exception. Miss C. St. Elmo gives an inimitable impersonation of the adventuress, Marcel Rigadout; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds invests with much spirit his part of Dick Seymour; Mr. J. Milne Taylor and Miss Violet Simms are successfully responsible for Dick's father and Mary Andrews; Mr. W. Manning is amusing as Professor Sauter; Mr. Harry Harrop as Charles Sauter; and Miss Ethel Vinroy as Mrs. Marlow, are also entertaining. Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers provide a pleasing interlude.

HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Miss Annie Purcell is a graceful comedienne, and her songs are much appreciated; Pip Powell and Kate Vesey give a smart farcical comedy, entitled A Perfect Woman; Emmie Ames tunefully foretells events by the stars; Harry Taft is a comedian of great originality; Walter Stanley supplies an amusing interlude; the Sisters Hall are good vocalists; Max Gruber and Miss Adelina give a fine show with performing elephant, horse, and pony; and the Bioscope shows some good pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—A well varied programme is drawing good houses here this week. Arthur Watson, Flo Stanley, and a company of comedians head the bill with a laughable comedy-sketch, entitled The Cruise of H.M. Victory. The Daunton-Shaw troupe of cyclists execute some exceedingly clever tricks; Herbert Shelley is successful with his Irish protean act, Dan the Outlaw; Vanando gives an amusing ventriloquial entertainment; Jack Pleasants is an entertaining comedian; Jack Hayton is a capable comedian and dancer; Venie Clements, comedienne, and the Three Meers, wire performers, also capably assist, and the Bioscope pictures conclude.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—An excellent programme here this week is headed by James Willard and company in the dramatic episode, The Ace of Hearts, which well deserves the commendation elicited. J. H. Milburn, vocal comedian and burlesque actor, makes himself a great favourite; Nelson Hardy, ventriloquist, with his doll "Joey," affords much amusement; Jules Kiaro proves himself a master of the equilibristic art; Spencer and Marks, as the "Stage-struck waifs," are another source of amusement, and introduce some very good dancing; Charles Morton is an excellent mimic and impersonator; Connie Gilbert, the charming vocalist, is very good; and the Operascope shows some excellent pictures.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson. Ltd.; Resident-Manageress, Mrs. Wallace Davidson.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company occupies the boards here this week with the sensational drama, Is Life Worth Living? Mr. Ernest Owttrim is excellent as the heroic and amorous Lionel Roy; and the character of Isabel Corsbie is finely portrayed by Miss Jeannie Burgoyne. Miss Lilian Earle as Madge Roxton is a great success; Mr. Herbert Hollister as Randolph Kerr is most effective; and Mr. Harry Belford acts well as Roland Roxton. As the ruffian, Peter Sloke, and his worse half, Sally, Mr. Harry Bristow and Miss Lottie Moss are good; and the efforts of Mr. Victor Howard as Tim and Miss Pearl Noyle as Betty are fully appreciated. The scenic effect is realistic.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Great satisfaction is expressed in Croydon this week at the visit of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, the répertoire being Carmen, Tannhäuser, The Bohemian Girl, Faust, Lohengrin, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and Il Trovatore. The first-named, on Monday, was splendidly mounted, and a fine chorus and artistic dresses added greatly to a superb production. Miss Doris Woodall acted with vivid actuality as Carmen, and submitted a performance of the highest order; Miss Christine Ritz gave an exquisite picture of Mercedes, and sang sweetly; Miss Bessie Cartwright made a picturesque Micaela; and Miss Annie Walker was in good voice as Frasquita. Mr. Edward Davies as José deserves a warm tribute of praise; Mr. Hesten Foster's commanding appearance admirably fitted him for the rôle of Escamillo, and his songs were heartily re-demanded; Mr. Alexander Richard gave due weight to the character of Zuniga; Mr. William Rousell did ample justice to the part of Morales; Mr. Herbert Felton made the most of Lilias Pastia; Mr. Frederick Clendon thoroughly identified himself with the character of Dancairo; and Mr. William O'Connor gave invaluable aid as Remendado; Mr. Walter van Noorden creditably conducted the large orchestra. The bookings for the week have been exceptionally heavy.

HIPPODROME AND NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Osmond.—Mr. William A. Armour's company in The Best of Her Sex is here this week. Mr. Herbert J. Walton is a capable representative of Sir Stanton Faringdon; Mr. Percy Horton earns distinction as Philip Faringdon; Mr. Henry Lloyd portrays the villain, Leslie Verney, with force and skill; Mr. W. A. Armour gives an excellent representation of the Rev. Stephen Maxwell; Mr. Herbert de Ville maintains the difficult rôle of Jake Smith with dignity and power; Mr. J. W. Hooper deserves the highest congratulations upon his impersonation of P.-C. Peter Jorkins; Holy Joe is in the able hands of Mr. Dan Mining; and Mr. Hume Fergus as Simon Downey deserves praise. Miss Dora Price as Vera Delorme proves herself an accomplished actress; Miss Alvina Mining is seen to advantage in her high-class characterisation of the heroine; and Miss Alice Buckland is commendable as Polly Perkins.

DARWEN.—PUBLIC HALL, PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Lewers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—Buval, the happy Dutchman, is well received; as also is Jessie Wilton, a dainty comedienne; Chas. Coll scores in his topical songs. The pictures are quite up to the standard.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company is here this week with The Hypocrites. Rachel Neve is most ably accounted for by Miss Gladys Harvey, whose portrayal is perfect; Mr. A. B. Imeson is admirable as the Rev. Edgar Linnell; Mr. Alfred S. Barber leaves nothing to be desired as Mr. Wilmore; Mr. King Fordham as Lennard is also praiseworthy; while Viveash is excellently played by Mr. Charles Harley. Miss Amy Ravenscroft makes a delightful Mrs. Wilmore, and Miss Gladys Purnell figures prettily as Helen Plagenet; the Rev. Everard Daubeney receives due justice at the hands of Mr. Cecil Brooking; Sir John Plagenet is well impersonated by Mr. Sydney Hamilton; Dr. Blaney is satisfactorily depicted by Mr. Hamworth Browning; Mrs. Blaney is played with consummate skill by Miss Florence Steventon; Mrs. Linnell is safe in the charming custody of Miss Madge Severne; and Patty is made thoroughly acceptable by Miss Violet Harley.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The Elliott-Savonas pay a return visit here this week, their rendering of the storm scene from William Tell being particularly fine, and with the aid of electrical stage effects they achieve an artistic triumph. Another old favourite is Sam Redfern, the black oracle, whose songs and business prove him a first-class comedian; the Milfords, comedians and dancers, are well received; Senorita Elvina, gymnast, performs daring feats in an exceptionally neat manner; the Milsted Bell Trio cause great hilarity in their knockabout sketch, Three Sharps in a Flat; Jan Vanbert, illusionist and smoke-painter, is a good all-round entertainer; and Ray Ford, comedienne, has some pretty songs which make her deservedly popular. The Bioscope projects the St. Leger film, which concludes a most acceptable programme.

DEVONPORT.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Messrs. Van Biene and J. F. Traynour's company this week present Man and Wife, which proves a popular draw. Mr. J. F. Traynor takes the leading part of Paul in excellent style; Miss Kate Hallam as Marcelle is delightfully sympathetic; Messrs. Hall-Eldon and George Vinning relieve the heavier situations with some refreshing humour; and other capable members of the cast are Messrs. G. Overs, E. M. Hamilton, and G. Rammell, and Miss M. Doris.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—Devonport's latest addition to the halls entered on the second week of its career on Monday with a fine company, the opening number being a well-rendered song and dance by Miss B. Brillant, a comedienne of much promise. The Marvellous Woodwards furnish an attractive cycle-balancing act characterised by cleverness and precision; Hampton and Barron amuse with a negro turn entitled Down in Kentucky, which quite catches on; and Sam Spira proves a first-rate pianoforte entertainer. Mme. B. Stone, an operatic vocalist, was loudly recalled after a capital rendering of "The lost chord"; Alburtus and Jessie Millar, American artists, are acceptable in a sketch entitled A Scene in the Fairgrounds; and Charles Majilton and company conclude the bill with a humorous three-scene sketch entitled The Trippers.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The Flower-girl is being played by Mr. Chas. M. Bestic's company. Mr. Martin Adeson makes one feel alive with his mirthful mannerisms and droll actions as Joe Wheeler, the "cabby," whose occupation is defunct by reason of the all-pervading, overpowering motor-car. In the rôle of the flower-girl, Lily, Miss Dorothy Firmin shows qualities of gracefulness, charm, and dignity, and achieves sincerity and effectiveness in her portrayal; Mr. Alf. Donahoe is a mirth-maker who has learned his trade and learned it thoroughly, and his version of Johnny Wheeler has a plenitude of humour in utterance and acting; Mr. Robert H. Howard develops to the best advantage the part of the Hon. Billy Greenhill; Mr. Norman Bowyer deserves very warm praise for his happily-presented conception of Reginald Rackit; Miss Florence Wilton is a piquant Lizette de Racquet, full of saucy diablerie and amusing sangfroid; Mr. Adnes infuses the Continental manner and accent into his acting and speech as Alphonse, and affords huge diversion to his audience; Miss Jeannie Holmes figures with amusing success as Miss Greenhill, a Suffragette, and caricatures the "politician in petticoats" with fine unction and energy. Other parts are suitably presented, including that of Bertie by Mr. F. Williams, who discharges his duties, vocal and otherwise, with pleasing ability.

DONCASTER. — NEW GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman. —The Shiavonis Troupe are full of merit as acrobats; Dolly Moore, male impersonator, is much admired; Fred Horsfall, vocal comedian, adds to his popularity by imitations; a delightful playlet, Nell of the Halls, with Mr. Hugh Ardale, Miss Leila Russell, and Miss Bardine as the principal contributors, gives the greatest satisfaction; the Three Tivoli Girls, vocalists and dancers, are fascinating and dainty; Lisbon and Barker, comedians, are clever in patter; and Zelda, with musical novelties, is applauded; Wal Owen, silent comedian, is refreshing.

DOUGLAS.—GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—A large and appreciative audience witnessed the presentation of Mr W. Somerset Maugham's latest comedy of manners, Jack Straw, at the Grand on Monday evening. Miss Florence St. John was the accentuated attraction, but Mr. Lionel Glenister and Mr. J. W. Wood Ingram have surrounded their star with well-graced actors and actresses. Miss St. John's reception was enthusiastic. She played Mrs. Parker Jennings artistically. Mr. Lionel Glenister as Jack Straw afforded great amusement. The subsidiary characters were well played by Miss Edie Graham, Miss Lucie Milner, Miss Jessica Waters, and Miss Estelle Despa, Mr. Edgar Stevenson, Mr. Frederick Moyes, Mr. A. T. Guilfoy, and Mr. J. W. Ingram. The scenery is a duplicate of that used in the original production at the Vaudeville.

PALACE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Bullain.—For the final week of the season we have the De Wynne Brothers, comic athletes, who create much fun; Miss Barbara Babbington, a versatile comedienne; Mr. Mike Gray, an expert juggler; Miss Ada Gatley, in a novel act; the Sisters Aindow, in a pleasing musical interlude; Hanid Alexander, a refined and talented entertainer at the piano; and Miss Ada Gatley, a favourite turn. There is also dancing to the strains of Mr. Harry Wood's orchestra, and Vernon's Bioscope. The management have inaugurated dance competitions with prizes. On Thursday his Excellency the Governor of the Island, Lord Raglan, presented the trophy to the winning motorist, and the successful car was on exhibition.

MR. FREDERICK BUXTON'S concerts still continue, either in the open air or in a pavilion. Also Mr. Charles Dare, at the Empire Theatre, which he will continue all the winter, with two performances nightly, maintains his popularity.

DOVER.—PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. C. Whitelock.—The Four Rio Brothers, who top the bill this week, are gymnasts of exceptional skill, their sensational feats being neatly and cleanly performed; the amusing patter of Mr. Chas. Gardiner and his songs make his turn very popular; Miss Gladys Hooley's violin playing is displayed to advantage in the musical episode "The Violin Girl"; in The Artist and the Intruder, presented by Stevens and Gillard, the latter cleverly impersonates celebrities, the former sketching their portraits in chalk with lightning rapidity; the Sisters Du Cane have an original and amusing act, their singing and dancing being of a high order of merit; smart cross-talk is the main feature of The Lorrisons' performance; Miss Lil O'Gorman has two good songs in "Pretty picture postcards to-day" and "What a terrible thing to be tall." The Hippodrome pictures conclude.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—A large audience gave Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company a warm greeting on Monday, when they produced, for the first time here, Brewster's Millions. Mr. Percy Hutchison is exceedingly funny in the character of Monty Brewster; Miss Cicely Stuckey is all that can be desired in the rôle of Margaret Grey (Peggy); Mr. Cyril Rawdon ably portrays the part of Charlie Harrison; and Miss Violet Ley is dainty and pleasing as Mrs. Dan De Mille. Mr. Robert Forsyth capitally fills the part of Mr. Grant; Miss Frances Davie acquits herself admirably as Janice Armstrong; Mr. A. Andrews is well placed as Colonel Drew; Miss Sybil Walsh makes an acceptable Trixie Clayton; Mr. Frank Hill creates much amusement as Rawles; and the Barbara Drew of Miss Eva Stuart is quite satisfactory. Mr. Henry Hampson makes the most of the part of Archie Golding; and Miss Mary Seton is excellent as Miss Boynton.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Miss Lena Ashwell and her excellent company are here this week, and on Monday night Diana of Dobson's was presented. Miss Lena Ashwell scored a brilliant success as Diana Massingberd; Mr. C. M. Hallard deserves commendation for a clever impersonation of Captain Bretherton; and Miss Frances Ivor was particularly good as Mrs. Cantelupe. A word of praise is due to Mr. Dennis Eadie as Sir Jabez; and Miss Gertrude Scott was a distinguished Mrs. White Fraser. Constable Fellowes had an able exponent in Mr. Norman McKinnel; and Miss Nannie Bennett as Miss Smithers, Miss Mary Barton (Kitty Brant), Miss Muriel Vox (Miss Jay), Miss Doris Lytton (Miss Morton), and Miss Ada Palmer (Miss Pringle) were also successful. Mr. W. Lemmon Warde was satisfactory as the waiter; and Miss Beryl Mercer played the old woman with excellent effect. The piece is preceded by The Likes of Me. Irene Wycherley is also billed.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. S. Pearse; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hereford Jones. — Thomas Sweeney, "the Dublin singing jarvey," sings his songs in capital style, and is deservedly applauded; the Sisters Ford, character and comedy duettists, give a pleasing turn; and Bob Pearson, the popular humorist and guide, is going as strong as ever. The films shown are excellent.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The principal attraction here this week is Miss Arabella Allen, "the Dickens Girl"; Johnson and Bert, in their novel act, A Queer Customer, create roars of laughter; Jennie Johns renders her songs in a charming manner; Charles Leighton in his pianoforte selections is decidedly popular; Stewart and Morgan, in a pleasing vocal act, make a hit; Bob Hamilton keeps the audience highly amused; Wee Mona Vivian, juvenile vocalist and dancer, is greatly appreciated; Bert Osborne, actor vocalist and banjoist, is well received; and the Empire pictures are always worthy of notice.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Another capital bill of fare is provided here. A charming spectacle, entitled "Electra's Dream," is presented by Abdullah and Superbe; Kurkamp, the singing conductor, is heartily applauded; Victor Courtney at the piano gives a turn of much merit; the Ramlos, in their comedy bar act, are clever and entertaining; the Days, second-sight performers, achieve success; Woodhouse and Wells are expert dancers; Daisy Reed has good songs; the Olmars work hard in their acrobatic act; Edith Chantler, child vocalist, renders some talking songs and the Bioscope concludes.

ROUND ROOM, ROTUNDA. — The Irish Animated Photo Company on Monday entered on their seventh and last week here. The artists who contribute include Mr. Patrick O'Shea (tenor), Miss Agnes Meehan (contralto), and Mr. Ralph Goggin (baritone). The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Harry Peters.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The following artists are appearing here this week:—Bett and Bett, comedy couple; Harry Monkhouse, descriptive vocalist; Sadie Yost, comedienne; Walter Conilla, chorus vocalist; Tom E. Swift, descriptive vocalist; Foster and West, duologue artists; and the Cinematograph.

PAVILION (KINGSTOWN).—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—The reappearance here of The Saucy Arethusa company attracted a large audience on Monday. Mr. Bertram Noel's singing of "Wondering Willie" was warmly applauded; Mr. J. W. Hughes's fine baritone was heard to advantage in "The Garden Beautiful" and "Jack's at home at sea"; Miss Claire Reed sang "Love is meant" and "Voices of the wood" in capital style; The Adeler and Sutton Girl" and "The Travelling Menagerie," by Mr. Kemsley Scott-Barrie, were heartily enjoyed. On Thursday evening, the popular manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott, took his benefit.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Charles Macdona as Freddy Popple in Mr. Popple (of Ippleton), has delighted Dudley audiences this week, his artistic portrayal of the country gentleman being greatly admired. Miss Nellie Hodson as La Bolero displays an attractive personality combined with rare skill. Another prettily-played part is that of Louise by Miss May Hart, who secures well-merited encores. Mr. Cecil Du Cane acts with earnestness and fervour as Norman Popple; Messrs. Nap Barry as George Hennay and James Stevenson as Henry Doring, together with their respective wives, represented by the Misses Lilian Last and Amy Singleton, cause endless fun; Miss Marie Moss as Violet

The original and genuine WORCESTERSHIRE.

By Royal Warrant to H.M. the King.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. B. Peberdy.—The Four Juggling Breens are an attractive top turn, and supply some humorous business; Horace Shrillo is an operatic whistler of the highest order; the Sisters Draycott are first-class vocalists; W. G. Webber is a bass singer of good calibre; Harry Piquo, comedy gymnast; Vi Gibson's Girls, in song and dance; Amos Howard, the American dancing comedian; and the Empire pictures help to make up a good programme.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Her Second Time on Earth is staged here this week in that complete manner usual with Mr. Walter Melville. For the part of Dora Grey an admirable artist is found in Miss Edith Blande, whose acting leaves nothing to be desired; Miss Emily Stevens plays the part of Mrs. Burke exceedingly well; and Miss Amy Venimore and Miss Gladys Newcombe as Laura Norman and the maid respectively likewise do well; Mr. Robert Purdie makes a manly Jack Carlton; Mr. Otto Minster is very effective as the Captain; Beppo is made a striking and picturesque character by Mr. A. Fellows Bassett, and the villainous Guy Brand is capitally represented by Mr. Ellis J. Preston.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Moul; Local Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—The Royal Tokio Troupe are topliners, and give a capital exhibition of skill; Sid Cotterell and company, in The Substitute, cause screams of laughter; a mirth-provoking act is given by Hunter and Maris; Sandy and Carl, comedians and burlesque boxers, are both amusing and clever; Dusty Rhodes treats us to some excellent patter; and Fred Poplar, comedian, is accorded a warm welcome. Also appearing are Kitty Wager, a chic comedienne; Charles Banks and his dog; Harry Marie, who gives a novel dancing act; and the Sisters Marion, duettists; and the Bioscope also provides entertainment.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The place of honour here is held by Lowenwirth and Cohan, who make a hit; Bosanquet, with his violin, proves a remarkable turn; and Yvonne Lamor gives a very realistic impersonation of Maud Allan in "Salome"; George d'Albert, a versatile comedian, receives repeated recalls; Welda and Wynne are seen to much advantage in their juggling act; Eva Darton, a sweet Japanese singer; Atlas and Collins, the eccentric comedy couple, and the Three Calbas, in a clever acrobatic act, supply the rest of a capital bill of fare.

EMPIRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—A delightful cinematograph exhibition is being exhibited by the Franco-British Moving Picture Company. The variety part of the programme is ably sustained by James Miller, a fine baritone singer; Joe Humphreys, a good all-round comedian; and Rosie Dawn, an expert dancer.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—Large and appreciative audiences assemble twice nightly to enjoy the long and varied programmes of pictures submitted here; Johnnie Beveridge, a local comedian, and a diabolo contest, for which handsome pictures are offered, are also attractive items.

GILFILLAN HALL.—The entertainment provided here by the B.B. Pictures Co. is being much appreciated. In addition, Mr. Harry Liston and Miss Lord Lumley appear in their clever humorous sketches. A special matinée was given on Wednesday afternoon, the proceeds being handed over to the unemployed fund.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—The popularity of Mr. J. W. Turner and his English Opera Company was evidenced by the large and appreciative audience which gathered on Monday to witness the production of Maritana. Mr. Turner himself took the rôle of Don Cæsar de Bazan, and sang superbly. Miss Christine Gomez, who plays Maritana, is possessed of a voice of considerable power and quality, and achieved great success. Mr. Tom Griffiths as Don Jose gave an admirable impersonation of the part; Mr. Frank Clarke did equally well as Charles II.; Miss Jessie Dennis was an excellent Lazarillo; and the chorus and orchestra contributed a large share to the success of the performance. The Bohemian Girl and Faust complete the three nights' engagement. Mr. Coleman Davies's company in Beneath the Stars is billed for the last three nights of the week.

EASTBOURNE.—NEW PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Payne Seddon's company appeared here during the earlier part of the week in The Mystery of Edwin Drood. The interesting drama was very well staged, and the company proved a capable one. Mr. C. H. Croker-King as Jasper gave a powerfully impressive performance, penetrating and effective yet free from exaggeration; Mr. Riddell Robinson's work as Edwin Drood commanded high praise for its realism and effectiveness; Mr. Edward Thirlby was equally at home in the serious and humorous sides of the rôle of Mr. Grewgious; Mr. Charles Bruce was a well-defined and earnest Neville Landless; Mr. Lloyd Townrow contributed a fine character study as Durdles; and Mr. Leslie Ray as Crisparkle and Mr. Henry Williams as the Dean were satisfactory. Miss Nita Charlton was a pleasing, girlish Rosa; Miss Gladys Jesson was an attractive and animated Helena; Mrs. William Mallalieu as the old hag Princess Puffer contributed clever and sound work; and other parts were in good hands. Mr. Herbert Ralland's company was to appear later in the week in His House in Order.

DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. James Welch's excellent company is appearing here this week in When Knights Were Bold, and crowded houses are being nightly kept in orars of laughter. To Mr. Henry J. Ford falls the lion's share of the work as Sir Guy de Vere, and his cleverness and ability as a comedian were again and again recognised. Mr. Cecil Clayton is a distinct and individual Widdicombe; Mr. William Lockhart is a happy and comfortable Dean Pottleberry; Mr. Vernon Sansbury is very effective as Isaacson; Mr. George Rowlands is an admirable Sir Brian Ballymote; Mr. Talbot Homewood is a quietly skilful Wittle; and Mr. Reginald Hunter is a helpful Barker. Miss Bruce-Joy is a dignified and charming Lady Rowena; Miss Ethel Royale is a realistically aristocratic Mrs. Waldegrave; Miss Violet Grahame and Miss Gretchen Yates are the attractive representatives of Lady Millicent and Lady Marjorie; Miss Adrienne Yates and Miss Bessie Walters do capitally as Kate and Alice; and Miss Phyllis Back as Miss Isaacson introduces very commendable work. The Follies were billed for the latter half of the week.

THE ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—Florence and Lillian occupy the place of honour here this week, and in their artistic work as musicians they obtain great applause. Miss Georgette Thierry and company appear in a finely staged and played sketch, A Daughter of the Revolution; Lord, Murray, and Lord again entertain with their smart athletic act; Miss Eleanor Lorraine sings very charmingly; Mr. Johnny Val is a comedian who dances admirably; Miss Lily Eyton is a dainty and pleasing comedienne; the Fedora Quartet sing and dance smartly; and new pictures are shown.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. G. F. Slatter.—Messrs. Alf. Northway and W. V. Garrod are presenting here A Country Girl in London. Miss Bertha Kingstone as Marjorie Hamilton gives immense satisfaction, as does Miss Leslie Adair in the rôle of Adelaide Puttyphat. Miss Josephine Colonna gives a strong rendering of Gwendoline Gordon; Frank Gordon is capably depicted by Mr. W. V. Garrod; Mr. S. John Sheridan acts well as the Squire; and Mr. G. Moreton Williams does full justice to the part of Godfrey Clinton.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Herbert Sleath and the Lyric Theatre company had a gratifying reception here on Monday when they began a six nights' engagement with A White Man, which riveted the interest of a crowded audience from first to last. It received an admirable interpretation. Mr. Herbert Sleath as Captain James Wynnegate played with force, passion, and pathos. The scene in which he bids good-bye to his little son was acted with great feeling, and deeply moved the audience. Miss Gertrude Ellis played the Countess of Kerhill with grace, charm, and the power of dramatic expression; Mr. George Fawcett, a character-actor of rare ability, realised alike in physique, and many vivid touches in acting, the part of Big Bill; while clever sketches of the "cow punchers" were given by Mr. Cecil Yapp as Shorty, Mr. S. J. Warmington as Andy, and Mr. Richard F. Symons as Grouchy. Mr. Menifee Johnstone's Cash Hawkins was an admirable piece of work; and Mr. A. S. Aspland made an outstanding figure of the Chief of the Utes. Miss Dorothy Dix excited the sympathies of the audience by the genuine art of her impersonation of the Indian girl, Nat-u-rich; the child, Little Hal, was prettily played by Miss Victoria May Harris; and capital acting of small rôles was accomplished by Miss Emma Gwynne, Miss Enid Sass, Mr. A. G. Poulton, and Mr. Harold Richardson. The drama, which was realistically mounted, evoked the loud applause of the audience again and again, recalls being frequent, and Mr. Sleath had to appear at the end in response to the enthusiasm, and express his thanks on behalf of himself and his fellow-artists.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—A crowded holiday house gave a cheery welcome on Monday to Mr. Milton Bode's principal company with The Belle of Mayfair. Mr. Harry Parker and Miss Nellie Cozens caused much amusement as the parvenu couple, Sir John and Lady Chaldicott; Mr. Percy Yorke, in his old part of the peppery Earl of Highgate, rendered the notable "Military" song with great gusto; Mr. Laurence Wensley's powerful voice was used with good effect in the part of Hugh Meredith; Raymond Finchley found a satisfactory representative in Mr. Edward Hugonnet; and Mr. Laurie Lisle was entertaining as the Comte de Perrier; a careful portrayal of Dr. Marmaduke Lawrence was given by Mr. G. McGloskie. Miss Florence Imeson, with her pleasing and expressive singing, made a very attractive Julia; Miss Blanche Astley was a smart lady's maid; Miss Agnes Tandy created a good impression as the Princess; and the accustomed applause was accorded to Miss Aurelie de Loriere for her "Gibson girl" song. Beautiful stage setting and handsome costumes lent their aid to an excellent production.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—An excellent company here includes the popular comedian Mr. Harry Ford, who scores a success with his song "Wondering" and other humorous contributions; Miss Violet King gives a remarkably clever entertainment, in which she shows equal command of the violin and the pianoforte; the Lannons (Will and May) display grace and dexterity in their high pedestal act, The Dancing Policeman and the Maid; Bayne and Hope are dramatic and effective in the sketch An Emperor's Divorce; Mr. Steve Bartle plays with excellent taste on the Edeophone and the English concertina; Sims and Sims are good in their musical sketches; and Mr. Chas. Carr, comedian; the Sisters Cora, duettists and dancers; and the Bioscope impart additional interest to the programme.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—That merry comedian Mr. Mark Sheridan heads the bill here this week, and his entertaining patter and amusing songs, rendered with great art, cause abundant laughter; Miss May Edouin, a graceful comedienne with a taking style and a cultivated voice, calls forth loud applause; the Bensons provide a clever musical sketch, The Page and the Maid, in which they introduce expert dancing; the Ten-Ji Troupe give a delightful exhibition of sleight-of-hand tricks, their feats with miniature water-fountains being particularly noticeable; the Craggs are seen to advantage in their sketch entitled Billy, an act full of droll business and expert tumbling; Miss Lottie Govell is a capital comedienne and dancer; Mr. Gus le Clerq is an excellent comedian; the Four Jumels show distinct ability in their musical act, and the Bioscope displays a series of amusing films.

PORTOBELLO NEW TOWER PAVILION.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harry Maryello.—The vaudeville season, which has been highly successful, in spite of the attractions of the Scottish National Exhibition, is drawing to a close. The summer company includes several talented artists, such as Mr. Michael Kemble, Mr. Sam Thomson, Miss Elaine Cliff, and Miss Victoria Carmen, while Mr. Geo. Cornille-Pescud, whose comedietta, The Emperor Commands, is noticed in another column, has been very happy in his writing and rendering of topical songs.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—The return visit of Sergeant Brue has drawn crowded houses, and Mr. Benet's company has won enthusiastic applause. Mr. Denis Lyndon, in the title-rôle, gives a natural and finished impersonation; Mr. Lister Morrah has a fine tenor voice, and his personation of Michael Brue makes him a special favourite; the Crookie Scrubbs of Mr. Harry Benet is a most amusing piece of acting; Miss Ray Anderson's graceful presence is of much value in the charming personation of Lady Bickenhall; and Miss Daisy Dale, as Aurora Brue, and Miss Stella Miller, as Daisy, the servant, are both clever and smart.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—For the first three nights of this week Mr. Gilbert Payne's company presented the musical oddity The Honeymoon to large audiences. The piece is admirably staged, and the parts are very capably filled. The pivot of the play is, of course, Mr. Gilbert Payne himself, who as Nathaniel Noodle has a part which seems much to his liking. In speech and action he has a great wealth of quite original "business," which provides the laugh incessant for his audience. A feature of the play is the speciality dances by the Godfrey Girls. On Thursday night, in the same theatre, Messrs. Sidney Rennef and G. M. Copping's company opened a three nights' engagement with the domestic drama Love Rules the World.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—We are this week favoured with a visit from Mr. Walter Melville's company in A Girl's Cross Roads. Mr. J. Fortescue as Jack Livingstone gives a capitally effective performance; as John Meadows, the old farmer, Mr. Chas. Feanmore is responsible for a sound piece of character acting; Mr. Edward Valentine enacts the part of Dr. Weston in a thoroughly finished manner; and Mr. Edward Chester as Cuthbert Lumley is all that could be desired. Miss Hilda Beverley as Barbara Wade has a part which requires careful and artistic handling; and the lady is to be complimented on her complete success in the character; Miss Dorothy Hildebrand gives a realistic impersonation of Constance Cornell; Miss Kate Walton as Jessie Wilson is very bright and pleasing; Miss Daisy Maynard as Tilly Vane is bright and vivacious; and Miss Nita Langford as Nellie Meadows is natural and convincing. The staging is all that could be desired.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—The bill for the first three nights of the week was supplied by Mr. Leigh Lovel, Miss Octavia Kenmore, and company in Ibsen's plays, Hedda Gabler, A Doll's House, and The Master Builder. The week opened with the tense drama Hedda Gabler to an appreciative audience. Miss Octavia Kenmore as the ill-fated Hedda proved herself to be an emotional actress of exceptional power. The part of Egbert Lovborg allows Mr. Leigh Lovel to appear on the stage in two acts only, but the whole sentiment of the play hinges upon his striking personality, and it was admirably maintained. As the too-confiding Mrs. Elvestead Miss Gladys Morris was a complete success, holding the sympathy of the audience from start to finish; George Jerman, the scholarly husband of Hedda, is a difficult rôle to sustain, but Mr. Claud W. Sykes proved himself equal to the task; Judge Braek, the evil genius of the play, was cleverly portrayed by Mr. E. Stanley Yorke; and the other characters were well sustained by Miss Katherine Maynard and Miss Amy Wood. For the last three nights Mr. Chas. Frohman's company in The Hypocrite was billed.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—For the last three nights last week we had Mr. Campbell Kelly's company with A Gamble With Life. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday Mr. C. Watson Mills' company appeared in A Wrecker of Men. Miss Florence Melrose Millett gave a superb rendering of the principal part; Mr. Eric Campbell was excellent as Murley; and the rest of the characters were well played by Mr. Milner Noble, Mr. J. Andsell Wilson, Mr. Arthur Robinson, Miss Talbot, Miss Reynolds, &c.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Local Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—A very amusing operatic burlesque, entitled The Singing Servants, presented by Joe Peterman, heads the bill here; Luis Hardt, in a new scena, Flights of Imagination, performs some almost incredible feats of strength; Allis and Cassati, in a comedy act, form one of the cleverest pairs seen here for some time; Harry Nelson, a local dialect comedian, makes a decided hit; Tom Kelso and company are on a return visit with The Yorkshire Servant; Renée, a girl juggler, is highly praised; Roy Beavis is an uncommonly smart conjurer, and the pictures shown by Vernon's Bioscope are attractive.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—Lingford Carson sends a powerful company to present The Power of The Cross at this house. Mr. George A. De Gray (the author) provides a finished portrayal of the chief figure, Baron Curzola; and a clever actor in the person of Mr. Robt. Hall does full justice to the part of Gerald Fairfax. Very convincing is Mr. Alex. J. Haviland in the rôle of Dr. Fairfax; and Mr. Francis Serle efficiently depicts the shady solicitor Hawke. Some very humorous lines emanate from Tim O'Dowd, a part capitally played by Mr. Tyrone Power. Miss Annie Hylton presents a very intelligent rendering of the part of Margaret Seaton, and the adventuress, Rita Lascelles, receives excellent treatment at the hands of Miss Stella Carmichael. Miss Phyllis Vaughan seems well fitted for the rôle of Blanche Kingsley, and the lighter side is in the capable hands of Miss Etta Turner, who excels in the rôle of Dolly Gray.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—A large audience gathered on Monday to witness the presentation of Mr. Arthur W. Pinero's play The Thunderbolt, and a considerable amount of appreciation was shown. The company are well up to their work, every part being adequately sustained. Mrs. Patrick Campbell is very charming and natural in her portrayal of Phyllis; Mr. Julian Royce is to be congratulated upon his able embodiment of Thaddeus; and Miss Stella Patrick Campbell gives an excellent character-study of Helen Thornhill; James Mortimore, in the hands of Mr. Murray Carson, is worthy of commendation; as also is the Colonel Ponting of Mr. Nigel Playfair.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—A crowded house and appreciative audience welcomed Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton here on their opening in Othello. A powerful and telling performance of the hapless Moor was given by Mr. Asche, while the Desdemona of Miss Brayton was a splendid conception, restrained yet convincing. Mr. Herbert Grimwood revelled in the villainies of Iago, and fully shared the honours of the evening; Mr. Caleb Porter was excellent as the old father, Brabantio; Mr. Ian Penny as Cassio was another able member of the cast, and his acting in the quarrel scene was accorded most hearty applause; the affected Roderigo was cleverly played by Mr. G. Kay Souper; Miss Constance Robertson as Emilia; Mr. J. Fritz Russell as the Duke; Mr. Ewan Brooke as Gratiano; and Mr. James Siden as Lodovico all gave able support. On later evenings Frank Stayton's mediæval comedy The Two Pins was played, and also The Taming of the Shrew.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in The New East Lynne is the attraction here this week, and is being well received. Miss Beth Elliott as Lady Isabel is equally powerful as the jealous wife and the sorrowful mother; Mr. Frederick Harker gives a quietly dignified portrayal of Archibald Carlyle; and the unscrupulous Francis Levison is ably rendered by Mr. W. H. Garbois. An amusing character well performed is Murty O'Flynn, by Mr. Richard Nugent; Miss Guinevere Shilton cleverly doubles the parts of the sisters Afy and Joyce Hallijohn; Miss Daisy Gwynne acts pleasantly the part of Barbara Hare; and the child part of Willie Carlyle is nicely interpreted by Miss Doris Denville. Richard Hare gets a good rendering at the hands of Mr. W. T. Ellonby, and Mr. Byron Pedley makes an amusing Mr. Dill; Miss Sophy Shenton brings out all the contrariness of Cornelia Carlyle.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Artistic performances of The Sign of the Cross have been responsible for a successful week here. Mr. William Greet's chief company includes Mr. Cyril Austin-Lee, whose performance as Marcus is most effective. Mr. C. Yorke as Nero; Mr. Charles Aldred as Tigellinus; and Mr J. Weatherall as Licinius show a fine conception of their parts; Mr. Frank Wood as Glabrio is quietly humorous; Mr. Walter Fleet and Mr. Clifton Yates give a most natural representation of Favius and Titus respectively; Miss Constance Little as Mercia makes a profound impression; Stephanus is presented in a sympathetic manner by Miss Edith Drayson; and Miss Beryl Hamilton as the Empress, Miss Lily Ward as Berenice, and Miss Cissie Carlton as Dacia figure prominently.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Patrons here are being entertained this week by Mr. Chas. H. Lester and company in A Life for a Life. Mr. Lester as Don Leon Fernandez fills the leading part capably; Miss Beatrice Anderson as Aulalia is satisfactory.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The Girl Who Wrecked His Home, which last week filled the bill at the Princess's, is this week at Govan.

EMPIRE, LTD.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Fred Karno's company in Moses and Sons is the attraction here. The cast is a good one, and includes Fred Kitchen, who again proves himself a favourite with the Glasgow public. Another good turn is provided by Albert Whelan, whose singing and whistling are highly appreciated; in place of the old favourite, J. W. Rowley, who is indisposed, J. Johnston, the copper coon, makes a successful appearance; the Narow Bros. are amusing eccentrics on wheels; Frank Leon is a wonderfully expert dancer; Marguerite Arrold, the French vocalist, sings several ballads; and Fred Locking is heard to advantage in illustrated songs; Blanche Vincent, burlesque actress, is well received, and an excellent series of pictures is shown on the American Bioscope.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—The chief item here this week is The Capture of Venus, presented by J. C. Piddock and company, in which mirth and music are happily blended. Radie Furman, called "the jolly Dutch girl," sings and dances in the favourite coon style; Colin Bryce and company give a laughable sketch, Are You a Socialist? Dolly Denton is a pleasing singer and dancer; Madoline Rees, a comedienne who infuses much feeling into her songs, and the Bros. Zenary in A Meeting at the Club do some graceful acrobatic feats. The Bros. Lawrence's dancing, the Three Arleys, in trick cycling, Leah Adell, with a fine presence and a good voice, and the Bioscope are other attractions.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—An interesting and varied bill of fare is supplied this week, the chief item of attraction being the impersonation of a Virginian Judge by Walter C. Kelly; Chanti is responsible for a capital quick-change entertainment; the Brooklyn Comedy Four sing excellently; as trick cyclists the Sisters Warwick are well received; the Three Panamas in a pot-pourri act also come in for a good reception; Williams and Warden are amusing Irish comedians; W. H. Downs, the coloured ballad vocalist, is well received on a return visit; and Princess Pauline is a comedienne with taking songs and a good voice.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—The company here is worthily headed by Von Etta, a lady who gives wonderful examples of sleight-of-hand and quick changes; Tom E. Hughes' talent as a character comedian is fully appreciated; the operatic scena of Dora Barrington affords a treat for those who like good music; while in the way of a screaming farce there is W. T. Thompson and company in Watch the Chalk; Tatten Hall cleverly burlesques the songs of the day; American comedy is well represented by Halter and Ray in The Hebrew and the Maid; Bernard and Weston's humour is sound and wholesome; Mabelle May sings and dances gracefully; and The Meet of Keith and Merson provokes a hearty laugh.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Bella and Bijou are appearing here this week, in their latest sketch, The Suffragette, an immense success; St. Alban and Moore's company give the castle scene from Les Cloches de Corneville with capital effect, the principal performers being Kitty Brownless (Serpolette), E. St. Alban (Gaspard), Marian Ayling (Germaine), and Conrad Kingsley (Marquis). The dramatic episode, Told in a Flat is presented in good style by Harry Rogers and company; David Stewart is a pleasing singer of illustrated chorus songs; and George Newburn is a popular mimic; the Jackley Trio with their whistling comedian provide an amusing act; some smart dancing is submitted by the New York Nippers; the cake walking of C. J. Johnson is highly diverting; and Nellie Martelle proves a good exponent of song and dance.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Perhaps the best turn seen in this popular house for some time past is that of Horace Wheatley. This well-known Irish comedian has lost none of his old wit, and his reminiscences of McIntyre are responsible for continuous laughter. His dancing, too, is still of the same high-class order, and the vociferous appreciation of his audiences goes far to prove his immense popularity. Joe Wesley and his minstrel company are well received; Florrie Bray's choruses are catchy, and Harry Bland, comedian, is well received. This week a dancing competition is being carried through, with Mr. Joe Wesley as judge.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—The variety turns here include the Three Neros, a trio of smart acrobats and contortionists; Alf Bentley, mimic; Tom Melrose, vocalist and dancer; Nellie Joyce, comedienne and dancer. There is in addition the Bioscope.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE, LTD.—Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—A welcome return visit of Ernie Myers is made this week, and his turn is thoroughly enjoyable; Adams and Ward give an excellent acrobatic comedy entertainment; an original protean act by Miss Addie Dorina is well received; and Bert Woodward, the cycling coon, is much above the average. A pleasing number is contributed by Miss Lily Lonsdale, who sings with taste; the Two Madges speedily find favour; Julian Mack proves to be a quaint and interesting "Dame"; Flo Melville is clever and bright in songs; and the Palacescope concludes as usual.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. W. Poole.—The initial night of this hall with Animated Pictures drew a full house. Some admirable films were shown, and proved to be quite to the taste of the audience. Welcome variety is added by Miss Nicholas in illustrated songs.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—On Monday Mr. Dickie Clare and company presented the farcical absurdity Lucky 'Liza. The title-rôle is daintily interpreted by Miss Madge Brownie, who, in addition to being a sweet singer, is a clever dancer. Mr. Dickie Clare in the dual rôle of Silas Slim and the Judge is screamingly funny; Miss Vesta Brownie plays Virginia with spirit and vivacity, her songs and dances being worthy of special mention; Mr. F. W. Benson is an effective Peter Pettitoe; Mr. Norman H. Lee a highly amusing Paul; Mr. J. W. Forrest contributed largely to the success as Bimns; Mr. Harry George is an excellent Barnaby Blatherwick; and Mr. Jack Harrington a lively Tompkins. Miss Evelyn Wood is a charming Sadie Potts, and Miss Helen Douglas is well placed as Marie Pettitoe. The dances by the La Belle Trio meet with warm appreciation.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—A large audience greeted the first appearance in Yarmouth of Miss Emma Hutchison's and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, in Lady Frederick. In the title-rôle Miss Mabel Love plays with irresistible charm, and is a big favourite with the audience; Mr. Robert Minster gives an excellent portrayal of Paradine Fouldes; Lord Mereston has a clever exponent in Mr. E. F. Meades; Miss Eleanor Delaporte plays with natural charm as Lady Mereston; Captain Gerald Gumbier is excellent as Admiral Carlisle; and Mr. Edward Bonfield is good as Captain Montgomery.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert.—The Seven Wulfrunas are popular with their comedy acrobatic turn; a pretty cycling exhibition is given by the Whitworth Girls; Campkin, the tramp cyclist, is clever as well as funny; the Babusio Bros. appear in a sensational head-to-head acrobatic act; Silbin introduces some cleverly trained cats; Jock Neil, the Scotch comedian, scores a success; and Doodles and his satellite poodles are still very popular.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—Chappell's vaudeville company is appearing here this week. Miss Ada Victor is a pleasing vocalist; Leslie Reed sings some good character songs; Mr. Harry Barker, a very refined entertainer, is a big success; Mr. Jack Heath delights everyone with his funny songs; Daisy Silcott sings a catchy Dutch song; Byden Currie is an exceptionally clever ventriloquist; Bros. Hannaway are smart cross-talkers; Ernest D'Almaine is a good tenor; J. H. Crew is funny; Blanche Marion is a charming comedienne; Roberts's sporting dog act is very popular; Nora Doone is an excellent singer of coon songs; and excellent pictures are exhibited on the Britannia-scope.

THE GEM.—This place of amusement finished last week a successful season of continuous performance from 11 o'clock in the morning till 11 o'clock at night. From Monday last two shows nightly have been given, and so successful has the first week been that the same arrangement will be continued during the winter. The Gem is controlled by a company, the managing-director of which is Mr. C. B. Cochran. The programme for the first half of the week included Incendiary Foreman, Saved by a Cripple, Earth to Moon, Pied Piper of Hamelin, A Little Hero, The Miser, Juvenile Scientist, Through the North, Customs in Australia, Dynamite Throwers, and Take a Sail in My Boat, an illustrated song.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—That popular actor-vocalist, George Leyton, presents his latest successes, including his famous military scena, Boys of the Chelsea School, in which he is assisted by twenty local lads and two Crimean veterans, and is creating great enthusiasm here this week. Lily Burnand, an attractive comedienne, sings in her best style, and is exceedingly popular; an expert acrobatic act by the Lizzette Troupe is much enjoyed; Yetta is much applauded for her clever performance on the wire; and other good turns are Molly Augarde, burlesque artist; Durazcoe, comedy equilibrist; and Harry Carlton, a quaint comedian. The pictures are again a capital collection.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—J. Gar Kiddie and company in The House of Tinn are here, and gain a great reception, Mr. Kiddie as Jeremiah Jinks being exceedingly funny. The Melroses introduce some good dancing in their comedy act; Ned Cole, a coloured Scotch comedian, has a good supply of humour and comic songs; Godfrey James, the singing collier, is successful; and W. B. Raby, comedian, is good. Some first-class pictures on the Bioscope add much to the pleasure.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—A capital programme is provided here this week, the premier item being a musical comedy, The Duchess of Tooting, presented by Sidney Bacon and company, which nightly arouses a great show of demonstrative approval. Cummin and Seaham make a decided hit as comedy acrobats; the Sisters Brand are pleasing vocalists and dancers; Jimmy Shields is a clever one-legged comedian, his dancing being very good; the Brothers Brooks submit an amusing vocal item; Hurman gives a fine exhibition of juggling and hoop manipulation; Fuller and West are amusing in their sketch, and the Dromoscope pictures are still up to date.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Mr. F. Mouillot's company is presenting, for the first time here, the musical comedy The Girl Behind the Counter. Miss Ida Stratham wins much favour for her charming acting as Winnie Willoughby; Mr. Sam Lockridge achieves honours for his excellent singing; and he represents Charles Chetwyn in breezy fashion; Mr. Kennedy Allen is the life and soul of the comedy in the part of General Sir Wilkie Willoughby; Mr. Frederick Park is also responsible for much droll business as Adolphus Dudds; Miss Irene Vere sings and acts daintily as Millie Mostyn; Miss Irene Lavington is also very pleasing as Susie; Mr. Ferris Pounds is amusing as Viscount Cushington; Mons. Claude Dampier successfully impersonates the French shop proprietor, Mons. Duval; whilst others contributing good work are Miss Eileen Clanford as Ninette; Miss Winifred Knightly as Lady Willoughby; Mr. Geoffrey Allsopp as Rudolph; and Messrs. A. M. Moore and William Amery as the humorous waiters.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Dale and O'Malley create endless amusement in their comedy speciality, introducing a fund of smart patter and good songs; the Kurios present another entertaining comedy turn, with a number of clever stage effects; Mr. Leslie Bell and company are appearing for a second week, this time presenting a new sketch, The Blackmailer, which is excellently played; Miss Maud Bettison is a talented vocalist, and is well received; the Three Coopers introduce harmonised choruses, &c., with pleasing effect; Grace Darling is another successful vocalist; and Harry Simms gains considerable favour as a comedian, with good songs.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Polini and Melford's company is here with The Silver King. Mr. Fred D. Daviss gives a finished representation of Wilfred Denver; Miss Edith Goodall is no less successful as Nellie; Mr. Edward J. George is still the faithful old servant, Jaikes; Miss F. H. Daviss plays well as Cissy; Mr. Stanton-Sharp makes an ideal Spider; and Henry Corkett, Elijah Coombe, and Cripps are well played by Mr. Geo. Belmore, Mr. Arthur Wright, and Mr. Fred May.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Pictures are being shown here this week. Frank Leslie scores with "Saint or Sinner," and Recco causes considerable amusement in his scena How to Become an Acrobat.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Violet Nunn is an acceptable coon singer; Thornbury as an artist in smoke and oil is clever; the Lecardo Bros. are capable acrobats and hand-balancers; the Waldrons give a screamingly funny sketch, The Silly Burglar; Madge Allan is a pretty, graceful, and daintily-dressed comedienne and dancer; Berzac's ponies are clever, and the educated mule causes roars of laughter; Happy Attwood is a quaint comedian; the Twin Sisters Edwardes give an acceptable turn as singers, dancers, and drummers; the Fitzgerald Troupe (one gentleman and six girls) of Indian club jugglers give a skilful, novel, and entertaining turn; and Pictures complete.

VICTORIA HALL.—The Moody-Manners Opera Co. opened at this hall on Monday with Carmen. Mr. Philip Brozel played the part of Don Jose admirably; Mr. Lewys James was eminently successful as Escamillo; Mr. C. Tattersall (Il Remendado), Mr. C. Moppett (Il Drucario), Mr. R. Carter (Morales), Mr. S. King (Zuniga), Miss W. Burns (Frasquita), and Miss Penville (Mercedes) assisted a good all-round performance. Miss Kate Anderson used her splendid voice to good effect in the part of Michaela, and Mlle. Zelie de Lussan was an ideal Carmen. On Tuesday Tannhäuser was performed, Il Trovatore was played on Wednesday, Aïda on Thursday, Madame Butterfly on Friday, and the visit will close to-day with Faust at the matinée and Maritana in the evening.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—The Derrington Family in their daring trick cycling act are topping the bill here; Rose and Kitty Sims are well received in their scena From School to Stage; Maud Hillman and Maurice Russell appear, with gratifying results, in a vocal comedy duologue, The Somnambulist; Will Stoplt is amusing in his acrobatic dancing; Marlow and Manton are well received in their comedy sketch Winning a Wife; and Alf. Holt, American mimic and whistling comedian, Minnie Mace, comedienne, Harry Claff and Alice Tremayne all lend zest to an excellent programme. Mr. Ernest Montefiore and company in The Little Colonel are very popular.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—A visit from Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and their always excellently selected company is looked upon in the Potteries as a great treat, and enormous audiences have nightly gathered to witness the well-chosen répertoire, which includes The Twelfth Night, Julius Cæsar, The Merchant of Venice, Henry V., Macbeth, Merry Wives of Windsor, and Hamlet. On Tuesday night Julius Cæsar was staged, when Mr. Murray Carrington as Cæsar gave a powerful reading of the title-rôle; Mrs. Benson was the Portia, and played with power, her elocution being perfect; Mr. Benson's Mark Antony was marvellous in its fire, spirit, and moving eloquence, notably in Antony's famous oration; Mr. E. A. Warburton's Brutus was an exceedingly fine piece of acting, though his voice in the first act was too low to be heard all over the house; Mr. Baliol Holloway as Cassius could not be improved upon; Mr. H. O. Nicholson's Casca was one of the best character portrayals in the piece, and showed much study; Miss Helen Haye played Cæsar's wife cleverly; Miss Leah Hanman made much of the part of Lucius; Miss A. P. Nicholson acted well, and Mr. F. C. Worloch was fine as Octavius. The play was beautifully staged.

GRAND.—Proprietor and Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—The Kremo Troupe of acrobats and risley performers star, and receive great applause; Harry Tate's company in Fishing is responsible for hearty laughter; the Soho Trio sing, dance, and play, to the delight of all; the De Brenns, Japanese entertainers, provide an original quarter of an hour's show; Webb and Branston sing two duets in high-class style; Raymond's Bio-tableaux show Motor-boat Racing at Burnham; Fred Barnes is a clever comedian; Bert Williams is a smart ventriloquist; Daisy James, in pleasing dresses and catchy choruses, makes her usual hit; and Herbert La Martine also appears successfully. Business is good, notwithstanding the great trade depression among the potters.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Acting-Manager and Operator, Capt. F. Shaw.—"Picture Land" is doing capital business this week. The chief films are Mind My Boil, Ragpicker's Daughters, The New Maid, Housekeeper and Fairy, Neapolitan's Revenge, Race for a Rose, A Pleasant Surprise, and Winner of the Lottery. T. C. Johnstone is an actor-vocalist of much ability.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's company is here this week with The Gay Gordons. The play is beautifully mounted and dressed, and went with a rare swing from start to finish. Mr. Stanley Brett was excellent as Angus Graeme, and Mr. Edward Lewis, experienced artist that he is, was exceedingly amusing as the old showman, Nervy Nat. Miss Nellie Dade as Charlotte Siddons, the show-woman, was admirably effective; and Miss Madge Vincent as her daughter Victoria both sang and danced well. Mr. Ernest Torrence was a dignified Andrew Quainton; Mr. Wilfred Norman was quaint as Edmund Siddons; Miss Zena Dare played Peggy Quainton in a manner that delighted the large audience; and the smaller parts were in reliable hands. The capable orchestra was under that bâton of Mr. Arthur Spittle, and Mr. J. Alban Newton was the acting-manager.

THE KURSAAL.—General-Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. Julian Clifford; Assistant-Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. Eldred.—Miss Belle Green is the entertainer at the piano this week. The vocalists engaged are Miss Katherine Jones and Mr. Fowler Burton. The last garden party of the season is announced for this week, and also a display of fireworks. Better accounts are heard of Mr. Julian Clifford, who hopes to return to his post as conductor before the end of the season.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. Ferrier.—The pictures shown here this week are gaining increased popularity. The list includes The Gold Prospector, The Silver King, and Napoleon and the English Sailor. Amusement is provided by Call Me at Seven and The Aspirator. Mr. Ferrier renders two songs in capital style, both numbers being charmingly illustrated on the screen.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—The Hypocrites was presented here on Monday by Mr. Charles Frohman's talented company, under the direction of Mr. Silvanus Dauncey. The exacting rôle of the Rev. Edgar Linnell was an altogether admirable characterisation by Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton; Mr. F. H. Ruston was a pompous and self-assert'ive Mr. Wilmore. An artistic embodiment of the worldly-wise and devoted mother Mrs. Wilmore was supplied by Miss Laura Graves; the cowardly rôle of Lennard Wilmore was cleverly sustained by Mr. John Dennys; the family lawyer, Mr. Viveash, was well defined by Mr. Frederick Morland; and Mr. Charles Tyrel as Sir John Plugenet supplied a good embodiment of a high-minded gentleman. Miss Muriel Mason was charmingly natural and sincere as Helen Plugenet; Miss Muriel Pope played Rachel Neve with much delicacy and refinement; the meddlesome, prying Mrs. Blaney was finely portrayed by Miss Sybil Brooke; Mr. F. G. Thurstan's Rev. E. Daubeney was a truthful character sketch; and the remaining rôles were well played. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company were billed for the latter part of the week in Mrs. Dot.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. R. Vivian Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Miss Letty Lingard, a dainty comedienne, opens a good programme. Metz and Metz are amusing comedians and dancers; some exciting scenes in steeplechasing are shown on the Bioscope; Mlle. Edythe is singularly unique as a lady posturer; and Toto throws much humour into the turn. Miss Norah Desmond illustrates some very pleasing songs; a "lady in black," introduced by Lieut. Albini, mysteriously disengages herself from knots and doubly-tied straps; the droll sayings and manner of Sam Dalton gain great applause; Miss Lilian Travellie is an attractive ballad vocalist; and some clever feats are displayed by the Austrian trick cyclists, the Rangers.

PIER PAVILION.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The Bioscope pictures are an attractive feature in a variety entertainment. Mr. Walter George's "Smart Set" are paying a return visit. They are excellent vocalists, and render their songs, glees, and selections in a very pleasing manner. These are contributed by Mr. Walter George, the Misses Georgie Martin, Pattie O'Hanlon, and Mollie Seymour. Mr. Walter Graham introduces his new marionette seance, "King Neptune."

BEACH CONCERT PAVILION.—The present is the last week of the season of the Wallis Arthur Syndicate Co. The concerts here and in the Alexandra Park have been well sustained by Miss Marie Schultz, Miss Edith Blanchard, Miss Elsie English, and Messrs. H. V. Cropton, Frank Wood, and the popular local manager, George Blackmore.

PUBLIC HALL.—The people's Picture Palace Co. remain here, under the management of Mr. F. R. Griffiths. The fine series of pictures produced this week prove of great interest and amusement to large houses.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. Thomas augmented his programme on the occasion of his annual benefit by engaging the local St. Cecilia Quartet to sing on Wednesday, the 23rd. During the week the Gipsies and their Jester are appearing, and introduce a variety of songs and dances in characteristic costume. This little concert party is very attractive, and includes Miss Dorothy Francis, Miss Florence Croft, Miss Inez du Buisson, Messrs. Edgar Berte, Walter Grigg, and Will Gane.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. P. Barnsley.—The Convict is presented here by Miss Winifred Maude's company under the direction of Mr. Victor du Cane. Miss Winifred Maude displays much tenderness of feeling as Dora; Mr. J. M. Olivert makes a fine, manly hero; another character, that of Olga Brandon, is capably treated by Miss Marie Lyons; Captain Hurley is impersonated in a forcible and convincing manner by Mr. St. Clair Forbes; as Jenny Perkins Miss Amy Maitland acts with commendable spirit and humour; and Mr. du Cane causes much merriment in the character of Freddy Freckles.

HORWICH.—NEW PRINCES'.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—This week's attraction is The Guiding Star, presented by Miss Emma Litchfield's company under the direction of Mr. Stuart Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland's portrayal of Harold Hagar, alias Paul Lerant, is a powerful one; Mr. Alfred Stretton plays the manly young squire, Jack Hilton, in good style; Mr. Louis Gordon as the Hon. Algy Allonbury is natural; Mr. Willie Reid is responsible for comedy in the character of Bob Bonser; Mr. Geo. Wallace as Martin Hardcliffe and Mr. H. Pyne Warburton as Farmer Dean are good; Miss Nancy Blackwood gives a fine impersonation of Pattie Barnes; Miss Alice Granville's Dollie Dean is excellent; Miss Mabel Durham gives an artistic rendering of the twin sisters Gladys and Madge Goodwin; and Miss Emma Litchfield's Mother Hagar is powerful.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. J. Phillips.—By way of holiday attraction Mr. Milton Bode's principal company is here with the merry musical comedy A Chinese Honeymoon. Full houses have shown the keenest delight on renewing acquaintance with the many old favourite numbers rendered, as these have been so effectively by the clever cast engaged. The principal parts are in the hands of Mr. Rudolph Kloss as Hang Chow, Miss Elsie Skillings as Princess Soo-Soo, Miss Gwennie Harcourt as Fi-Fi, Mr. Will Harman as Mr. Pineapple, Mr. Harry Jennings as Chippie Chop, Mr. Leonard May as Hi Lung, Mr. P. A. Turner as Hatherton, Miss Veronica Brady as Mrs. Pineapple, and Miss Maud Adams as Mrs. Brown. The scenery and dresses are in Mr. Milton Bode's usual lavish style.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The holiday attractions are Edmund Tearle and Miss Kate Clinton and company, in a condensed version of The Taming of the Shrew; Miss Georgina Leonard, comedienne; the Dunvilles, in a musical speciality; the Onyx Duo, quick-change dance artists; the Brennans, expert clog dancers; the Fimans, in their amusing sketch The Fire Station; the Brothers Attilla, strong men; and interesting films on the Bioscope.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Intellectual Hull has had a perfect treat in Mr. H. H. Davies's delightful comedy, The Mollusc. Miss Annie Hughes as Mrs. Baxter is perfection, and fully deserves her high reputation. Her efforts were ably seconded by Miss Lilias Waldegrave, who as Miss Roberts caught the author's idea with singular charm and artistry. The Tom Kemp of Mr. Athol Stewart was bright, breezy, and convincing, whilst Mrs. Baxter's husband was well suggested by Mr. Wylie A. Thompson. The skill in construction shown by the dramatist was excellently brought out by the quartet alluded to. Miss Hughes again delighted with that admirable picture of Saucers in the now familiar A Bit of Old Chelsea. Jack Hillier afforded Mr. Alick Chumley opportunities of which he availed himself.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—Happy Hooligans, an American medley, built on the lines of musical comedy, is responsible for a deal of laughter at the Royal this week. It is a class of entertainment that has all the vim needed to keep the audience in a state of effervescence, bubbling over with risibility as each fresh phase in this conglomeration is presented. Of all the crowd Miss Lottie Wilson is possibly the best. As our tastes are not transatlantic, we may not be able to appreciate to the same extent the funniosities of Mr. Wm. H. Lester (the Happy Hooligan), Mr. J. J. Sullivan, nor Mr. John K. Hawley.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Old Folks at Home is a play new to the city, but one that has all the necessary ingredients in it to make a hit with the audience at this favourite home of drama. Mr. J. A. Campbell has gathered his materials well together and welded them into a successful whole. As the unfortunate wife, Miss Maud Warburton plays the part with fine emotional power; the adventuress of Miss Kate Froud is a fine piece of work; Mr. A. Lovett contrives to give an excellent account of himself as the yeoman farmer; As Lord Howard Mr. Frank Liston is a distinct success; Mr. Arthur Dudley plays the part of the hunchback with merit; and the comic relief finds scope for Mr. F. Caffrey.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Appearing here are the Four Madreds, who are clever in a carpet-spinning act; William Heriot and company give a comedy protean sketch; Marie de Vay, the Prinellas, Rosie Bartlett, the Camerons, and T. C. Jaques complete a good company.

THE CIRCUS.—Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—John and C. Tompkinson's Royal Gipsy company give a delightful entertainment, prominent among the artists being the Sisters Leshmere, Cissie Madcap, Wee Winnie, Elsie Rubina, La Vie, the Four Louberts, Sam Paul, and others.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—A Girl Redeemed from Sin is being played here by Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company. Mr. Jo Monkhouse's Will May is highly appreciated, the like remark applying to the Nancy Lee of Miss Olive Fulton. Mr. Phillippe Orr receives marked attention as Robert Denham; Mr. John E. Tomlinson is very good as Samuel Lee; Mrs. Lee finding a capable exponent in Miss Fanny Olive. Mr. M. Part is successful as Rundle; Mr. Victor Knight (Jim Jakes), Mr. Wallé Spinner (Hon. Bertie Boyes), and Miss Ada Oxley (Peggy Grey), represent the comedy of the piece, of which Mr. Clinton Baddeley as Ernest Sylveston impersonates the evil genius.

INVERNESS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Cameron Burgess.—Mr. Russell Rosse and company are here with A Pair of Spectacles. The part of Mr. Benjamin Goldfinch was ably played by Mr. David James, and Mr. Fred Dobell's assumption of the brother from Sheffield was convincingly lifelike; the sons were satisfactorily impersonated by Mr. Robert Noble and Mr. Edward Comber; Mr. Robert Rivers as Lorimer was good; and Mr. George N. Williams as a shoemaker did a smart bit of low comedy. Miss Ida Chapman as Mrs. Goldfinch and Miss Frances Carlyle as Lucy Lorimer were all that could be desired; and the parlourmaid had a competent exponent in Miss Gertrude Sage.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM.—Mr. John Gerant presents this week his romantic military drama entitled At Duty's Call. Mr. John Gerant as the villainous Harold Allison gave an excellent piece of acting; the Captain Allison of Mr. Charles Calvert was effective, as was also the General Gordon of Mr. Ernest St. John. Miss Beatrice Weston as Dora Drummond was a success, and the Salema of Miss Ada Roscoe was also good.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Manager, Mr. Stead. — Miss Clarise Mayne is a versatile comedienne; Miss Dora Lyric fully deserves the appreciation she receives; Dan Whiteley is successful both with his singing and his quaint antics; the Two Donatos, although possessing but one leg apiece, are very agile; The Tree of Truth is an absurdity given by Harry Brayne and Bert Lloyd; Mozetto, a talented juggler, took the place of an absentee from the programme; Bert Weston has a funny song, entitled "If I were a Member of Parliament"; and Miss Dorothy Dundas also sings well. The Bioscope concludes.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. E. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—This week C. Verner figures as the vocal comedian; Mac and Hill supply some amusing cross-talk patter; Maisie Gerrard, who, when with Mr. Edward Marris's companies established herself a firm favourite here, had quite a reception; the Milton Trio are wonderful dancers; Marie Bernard contributes illustrated songs; Little Dando, although only about three feet high, is a genuine artist, and his quaint turn is very well received; the Le Cren Trio are very funny, and the lady's dashing dancing gained big encores. Raymond's Bio-tableaux bring the entertainment to a close.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company is drawing excellent houses the first three night of the week with The Dairymaids. Miss Empsie Bowman is an excellent Peggy; Winnie is well played by Miss Vera Crichton; Lieut. Sam Brudenell is in the capable hands of Mr. Richard Telford; Mr. Dan Agar as Joe Mivens and Miss Nellie Bowman as Eliza create no end of fun.

KIRKCALDY.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—After a lapse of sixteen years, Dr. Walford Bodie is again with us, and, needless to say, is breaking all records. Besides an interesting display of mesmerism, the Doctor is effecting some wonderful cures. Miss Florrie Gallimore, who occupies the bottom position on the bill, is partly responsible for the large audiences, as she is a great favourite here; Mr. Harry Seaton, an excellent descriptive vocalist, has some capital songs; a good turn is presented by Dolly, Agnes, and Maud; Little Dollie Robson is a clever singer and dancer; and successful also is Miss Bella Skene, burlesque actress. Some good pictures conclude.

LANCASTER. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—The attraction this week is the drama, Sexton Blake, which has been remarkably well presented. Mr. Horace Hunter, in the dual rôle of detective and philanthropist, gives a vivid portrayal of Sexton Blake, additional interest being given to the part by the introduction of a fine bloodhound. The characters of Randolph Lovell and his accomplice, Simon Fagos, are capitally sustained by Mr. Chas. East and Mr. J. M. East; and there is some excellent acting by Brian Daly and Mr. Wm. Felton, as Farmer Blackburn and Roger Blackburn respectively. Miss Lily Hammersley is responsible for a careful study of Marjorie Lovell; and the comic element is successfully introduced by Mr. Billy Ross as Tinker and Miss Lena Delphine as Euphemia Pattacake. The staging is all that could be desired.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—A varied and attractive bill is again put before the patrons here, good business being the result. The Three Cunards are at the top, and give a clever display of dancing; Henry and Tyler, comedy cyclists, are very amusing; and Friskey is a juggler of no mean order. Mlle. Haydee introduces a miniature vaudeville turn, which is most acceptable; and Maud Esmond sings nicely. Frank Boyce, character vocalist, sings in good style; and Frank Hemming and Marie Free supply a pleasing little sketch. The Hippogroph, with Baby's Playmate and Dick the Kisser, creates roars of laughter.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Walter P. Wright.—At the head of the bill this week is Oswald Williams, Winifred La Barte and company, who submit most mystifying illusions; Fremel and Fremel provide much amusement as eccentric comedians; two old local favourites, Harry Morris, comedian and mimic, and Jim E. James, in his musical entertainment The One-Man Minstrel Troupe, appear with distinct success; and other turns include Amy Bellwood, a clever vocalist and dainty dancer, and Miss Sylvia Bond, a delightful American soprano. The Premier Imperial pictures also prove highly diverting.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Musical comedy lovers are crowding this premier theatre this week, for the favourite actress, Miss Marie Studholme, is starring in the new piece, My Mimosa Maid. The part of Paulette gives Miss Studholme unlimited scope for the display of those arts for which she is famous, and a most cordial reception is her portion nightly. Mr. Frank Curzon's company includes Mr. Charles McNaughton, in the rôle of the sweep, and in his hands the part is provocative of continual merriment.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Mr. Walter Melville's popular melodrama, The Worst Woman in London, again proves a big attraction to the patrons here. That accomplished actress, Miss Sidney Crowe repeats her fine conception of the worst woman to general satisfaction; Mr. Hubert Skardon gives a correct and convincing delineation of the part of Jack Felton; the generous humorous characters are capably sustained by Mr. Willie Scott and Miss Polly Marsh; whilst Mr. George Gaisford, Mr. F. V. Travers, and Miss Dorothy Haigh are also seen to advantage in leading parts.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—An effective sensational racing sketch, The Futurity Winner, is the leading turn here, evoking great interest and enthusiasm; Ella Retford is an established favourite; and May Mars scores a pronounced success with a neat song scena. The Herald Comedy Four stand high in popular favour; the Great Northern dancers again present a comprehensive turn; Dion Wade and Little Zola are both comedians of merit in different styles; whilst Stella Dell and Bi-Bo-Bi also make a successful appearance.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The Geni Family here present a remarkably fine acrobatic show, earning general appreciation; the Elite Harmony Boys score with a clever song and dance entertainment; the Brothers Harrison are distinctly good in a comedy line; and amongst other popular turns we specially note the Cromwells, the Hughes Bros., in a cycling novelty, and Gillin, the ventriloquist.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—That accomplished violin virtuoso, Jan Rudenyi, again presents his musical scena, The Power of Music, making it the vehicle for some charming playing; Henry Grattan and company score a success with a mirth-provoking sketch, Man—the Brute; a novel comedy turn by Ted Karno and company goes well; Mlle. Renee displays great musical accomplishments; Blanche and Powell are to the fore with a good turn; acceptable comedy items are subscribed by J. W. Gallagher; and Nash and Noel, the Three Sisters Tree, Maud and Gill, and the Three Donals also do well.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Charles Parker's Six Æolians are prominent here with a vocal and dancing act, which is much above the average; Arthur Alexandra and company, in an impressive dramatic episode, are well liked; Arthur Boyne and Alec Kendal lead the comedians in clever style; Kloof and Ramsay provide a popular turn; and Selby and Myers are also a prominent feature in a good bill.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton.—Mr. Leonard Boyne and company are here in Raffles, in which he is repeating his success. As Mrs. Vidal Miss Lillian Hallows is extremely good; the Bunny of Mr. Harold West calls for high praise; and Miss Hilda Moore as Gwendoline plays well. Others in the cast to be singled out for special eulogium are Mr. E. W. Thomas as Curtis Bedford, Mr. Buckstone Clair as Crawshay, Mr. Arthur Willoughby as the Earl of Amersteth, Miss Blanka Stewart as Lady Melrose, Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald as Lady Ethel, and Mr. Cecil Brymer as Viscount Crowley. Mr. Francis Simpson is the business-manager for Mr. Boyne.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The Woman Pays is being capitally presented here by Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company. Mr. John Davidson as Roger Marchant is effective; and both Mr. Phil Harper as Sir Armstrong and Miss Maud Russell as Madge Armstrong win admiration. Mr. Frank M. Thorne (the author) is a funny Micky Maloney; and Miss Anena Walton a vivacious Polly Stokes. Miss Kate Blair is a success as Nell Morland; and Mr. Beresford Innes as Cyrus Treadgold and Mr. Dunlop Stewart as Luke Morland are also to be commplimented.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Horace Goldin, the star this week, goes through his work with smartness and briskness; Charles Whittle is making a hit; Charlene and Charlene, bright and entertaining artists, submit clever juggling and musical contributions; Verno and Voyce are great favourites in their smart skit on the aeroplane craze; R. H. Douglass displays great versatility as a monologue artist; Cissie Curlette, mimetic artist, is heartily welcomed; Mlle. Eldee is seen in a number of beautiful poses; Fred Lincoln creates merriment with "My pal Jemmy"; and the American Bioscope is again an entertaining feature.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Messrs. Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholl's company has been retained over another week, and hold premier position with the burlesque drama That Dreadful Detective. The playlet The Game of Love is also being presented. Mlle. de Rose, baritone, is meeting with a good reception; Frank Street is an excellent comedian and story-teller; Alpha gives a capital ventriloquial turn; G. W. James is an entertaining comedian; and J. W. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, is another turn of merit. A special feature is Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Hurley.—The great popularity of the pictures shown here continues unabated, the principal films this week being Poverty and Honesty, The Thief at the Casino, A Man in a Thousand, Good Medicine, Miss Pimpernel's Gown, and The Lazy Man. A successful first visit is being made by Houston, in a magical show.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draycott's company is appearing here this week in a répertoire of plays, The Octoroon being selected for Monday night. Mr. Charles Draycott as Salem Scudder submitted a performance that deserves high commendation; Mr. George Arthur gave a capable delineation of the rascally Jacob McCloskey; Mr. Wilfred J. Short was satisfactory as George Peyton; Mr Harry Scatchard acquitted himself admirably as Pete; Mr. George Steel cleverly portrayed the rôle of Wah-no-Tee; Mrs. Chas. Draycott did full justice to the part of Zoe, the Octoroon; Miss Issa Steel charmingly portrayed Dora Sunnyside; and Miss Louise Millard deserves praise as Miss Peyton.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—This theatre reopened to a bumper house on Monday, when the pantomime The House that Jack Built was produced by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's company. The piece is well equipped in the matters of scenery and costumes, and, with the aid of a good chorus, attractive ballets, and special turns, wins popularity. Miss Jennie Hughes as the fairy Twinkle Star, Miss Daisy Wood as Jack, Miss Dolly Dodds as Jill, Miss J. Marsden as Gretchen, and Miss Gladys Wise as Wee McGregor all please the audience with their acting, singing, or dancing. Mr. Jimmie Watson in a dame's part, Mr. H. Hillerby as the Squire, with Graham and Barron in knockabout business, contribute very happily to the comedy element; and the many minor characters are all smartly presented.

LIMERICK. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. George V. Fogerty.—A talented variety company occupies the Royal this week. The Selwyns, in their entertaining jugglery feats and trunk tricks are much applauded; and Miss Gilotti, the queen of knots, is really clever. The clog-dancers and mimics, Vosco, are unique in their species of breakdowns; and the athletes, Brothers Deroney, in their great jumping performances, have won rounds of applause. The great attraction is centred in Mme. Sahara, who, as Salome, gives a delightful classic interpretation of Cleopatra, and, in addition, dances beautifully; Mr. Tom Black, comic singer, is well received.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Seddon and Pope; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ernest Pope.—The Prince of Pilsen is offered by Baron Harriss's company. Miss Sophie Harriss as Mrs. Crocker is a complete success, and the whole show, taking its time and tone from her lead, goes smartly. Mr. Harry Kilburn as the Cincinnati brewer is responsible for most of the fun, with Mr. Charles Rogers as Lord Shrimpton and Mr. Ernest Gifford as François. Mr. Leslie Owen sings well as the real Prince, Mr. Arthur Geary is excellent as the Lieutenant, and Miss Dora Christian as Edith and Miss Nellie Lomas as Nellie Wagner score.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. R. R. Black.—Harry Weldon's drolleries catch on; and Elmo and Rego, acrobatic entertainers, win immense favour. Clifford and Gibson pay a welcome return visit; Jack Lane scores at the piano; Mlle. Bartenelli's contortionism is sensational; and the Smythsons, Helen Martin, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux meet with generous appreciation.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Playgoers who during the week witnessed here the first performance in Liverpool of The Thief experienced keen satisfaction that the enterprising management of the Court Theatre had afforded them such an opportunity. The richness of the treat was enhanced by reason of the fact that Mr. George Alexander and Miss Irene Vanbrugh, along with the St. James's company, presented the fine work; and although admission prices were generally increased the house on Monday evening was filled in all parts. To the whole of the artists an especially warm welcome was given, and the deepest attention was paid to the stage, the audience following the unfolding of the powerfully dramatic story with a fixed tension that showed the fulness of their enjoyment. This was particularly evidenced in the second act, where Miss Vanbrugh and Mr. Alexander held their audience spellbound; indeed, the lady achieved a triumph which will long be remembered by all who listened to the thrilling confession of guilt. The other members of the company lent admirable support. Mr. Reginald Owen so naturally presented the character of a silly infatuated boy that it is difficult to believe his efforts could be surpassed; Mr. Dawson Milward deserved the highest praise for his striking depiction of the unhappy father of the accused; Miss Nina Sevening delighted everyone with her Isabel Leyton; and Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds filled the rôle of the detective Protheroe with an ease and manner that showed the true artist. The mounting and dresses were a special feature of the production, which was preceded by an amusing curtain-raiser named The Nursery Governess, in which Messrs. Ashton Pearse, Harcourt Williams, and the Misses Jean Sterling Mackinlay and Barbara Hannay took part.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Here this week, through John Glayde's Honour, Liverpool renewed acquaintance with Mr. Arthur Bourchier and his talented wife, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, both of whom were called upon to respond to many "curtains." Sutro's stirring play was received with every satisfaction. Miss Vanbrugh, whose share of the work was the heaviest, displayed her accomplishments to the fullest degree and shared with her husband the honours of the evening. Mr. Bourchier's rôle of the American millionaire was one which fitted him to a nicety, and his efforts were watched with pleasing interest; Mr. Charles Bryant undertook the part of Trevor Lerode to the general satisfaction; richly deserved praise was earned by Mr. Leon Quartermaine for his Michael Shurmur; Mr. Arthur Whitby did justice to Christopher Branley; Mr. Bertram Forsyth as Howard Collingham showed to advantage; and the female characters were ably filled by Miss Henrietta Watson (Princesse), Miss Mary Weigall (Lady Lerode), Miss Pamela Gaythorne (an excellent Mrs. Rennick), and Miss Winifred Bateman (Dora Longman). Next week Mr. Bourchier will present The Walls of Jericho and at a matinée, by special desire, The Arm of the Law.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Melville's Married to the Wrong Man paid a first visit to Liverpool this week, and was received here with much gratification. The piece contained some thrilling sensations, and was not without capital comedy. Miss Gertrude Boswell handled the somewhat difficult rôle of Ruth with conspicuous ability; Mr. Oswald Cray made a manly and heroic Jack Gladwin; Mr. H. Lane Bayliff filled the part of Captain Deering with credit; Miss Mary Pemberton submitted a sympathetic Rose O'Connor; and worthy support likewise came from Mr. Joe Livesey (Sergeant Manners), Mr. Syd Claydon (Timothy Clinker), Mr. Charles Vivian (Jasper Skinner), and Miss May Davies (Dolly Fritter).

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—A big attraction at this popular resort during the week was Melville's The Soldier's Wedding, which, with its numerous striking features, particularly the live farm stock, was thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Wingold Lawrence was a typical soldier, and his Jack Brown earned general favour; Miss Dorothy Richardson played with much tenderness and earnestness the part

Home from the Honeymoon; Mavis Clare, a child vocalist, was heartily welcomed; and the Haytors, as comedy sketch artists and eccentric dancers, were an acceptable turn; Mlle. Theresa Cerutti, "presented" by Miss Loie Fuller on Monday night, gave a "prehistoric dance," representing Eve in the Garden of Eden. Others who contributed to the programme were Bessie Butt, soubrette and dancer; Will Johnson, comedian; and Daisy Martell, comedienne.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville. Mr. Stanley Carlton's company have been here this week with London with the Lid Off.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Francini Olloms topped the bill here this week with an excellent all-round entertainment of juggling, balancing, &c., as well as performing on the xylophone and concertina; Grant and Grant, the American Octoroons, pleased with their singing and dancing; Moon and Morris showed themselves to be a couple of funny comedians and smart dancers; Farr and Farland, the aristocratic comedians, raised much laughter with their "strike gag"; Leo Carle as a quick-change artist and eccentric comedian, gave a neat show, and also in the list were Patty Yole, comedienne and dancer; Smarte Bros., acrobatic eccentrics; and Harry Blake, comedian.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Foremost here this week was the popular Vesta Victoria, who had a rousing reception for all her latest songs; also prominent, Topsy Sinden charmed everybody with her dances; George Blunt and E. H. Knight's company, including Fred Powell, gave a condensed form of The Grip of Iron; the Three Braggs, novelty acrobats, introduced "the living bridge" sensation; Violet Lorraine had some dainty songs; roars of laughter followed the antics of Wright and Lawson; some remarkable feats of strength were performed by John Grun Max; Lillie Soutter, a capital comedienne, amused greatly; and Hayes and Watson went through a clever dancing act on the billiard table.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Here during the week the stock dramatic company gave Send Him Victorious, the parts in which were held by Messrs. R. Seath Innes (King of Ravonia), Sydney Grant (Colonel Kauffman), Leo Montgomery (Sergeant Strauss), David G. Noble (Captain Allison), Cecil Ravenswood (Sergeant Max), E. D. Allen (Johann Arany), Robb Wilton (Geordie Walker), the Misses Florence Palmer (Ethel Hardinge), Florence Cameron (Gretchen), and Lilian Radbourne (Countess Kara). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed some of the latest pictures.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Top of the programme here this week have been Clark and Hamilton, whose entertainment of fun, singing, music, and dancing proved exceedingly enjoyable; Harry Tate's company amused greatly with Motoring; a series of living statuary under the title "Makers of History," by Albert Toft, were much admired; Rossi Ashton in "song-sketching," showed great talent with his charcoal and crayon drawings, for which he was loudly applauded; Rosie Ring and her assistants had a neat scena, Songs of Schooldays; the vocalism of Fatmah Diard, the American prima donna, was much enjoyed; Howie and Ardie, comedy gymnasts, had a funny trifle, Up in a Balloon; the chronomegaphone was witnessed with interest; and the list also contained the names of Walter Curtis, comedian, and J. W. Hall, comedian. The Bioscope showed the Eucharistic procession.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Morny Cash has been the bright particular star here this week, and his Lancashire songs and patter caused endless laughter; the Six Brothers Luck, Ltd., gave a screaming absurdity, The Hermit; a pretty novelty scena entitled A Children's Christmas Eve was provided by Harwood's Juveniles; Fred Athalan showed some wonderful head balancing; Gala and Norris were cordially received for their musical duologue, Down South; Percy Curry, comedian, had some capital songs; Ada Jenner gave an amusing trifle, "The Lady Barber"; and others who appeared included Leo D'Alvar, gymnast; and Edith St. Clare, comedienne.

LLANDUDNO.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. G. Pugh.—On Monday Dear Old Charlie appeared here for six nights. Mr. George Lestocq, as Charles Ingleton, causes endless fun; Mr. Douglas Cox as Gabriel Peploe could scarcely be improved upon; and Mr. R. S. Trelawney as Thomas Dumphie is excellent. Mr. Duncan Young gives a good impersonation of Colonel Fishbourne; Mr. Arthur Stanley is quite at home as Purkitt; Miss Leonora Braham is a typical Mrs. Fishbourne; and Miss Edith Hall is all that can be desired as Agnes. The piece is preceded by The Cause, in which Miss Leonora Braham and Mr. Cyril Vernon distinguish themselves.

PIER HEAD PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. A. R. Sutcliffe.—Messrs. Adeler and Sutton's Pierrots are in the last week of their season here. Among the artists may be mentioned Mr. Fred Walmsley, a comedian of more than usual ability; Mr. Tom Isherwood, light comedian, has a pleasing voice; Mr. Dougal McDougal is a good Scotch artist; Mr. Harold Brown is a first-rate basso; and Mr. A. R. Sutcliffe is as great a favourite as ever. Mr. Tunbridge is an efficient accompanist.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Z. Andrews; Resident-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—The Master Criminal is being given here this week with success by Miss Winifred Chalmers's company, Miss Chalmers herself taking the part of Cecile in very effective style. Mr. Henry L. Osmond is very good as Telford Lestage; as Phillip Manners, Mr. Edward Avinal does remarkably well; and Mr. J. C. Carlyle as Ben Beaudy is capital. Mr. Chas. Tolcher as Gentleman Jim and Mr. Harry Cooke as Tommy Dale are both to be highly commended; Miss Violet Lytton makes a charming Mabel Manners; and Miss Mabel Tremaine as Peggy Perks is most amusing.

LONG EATON.—ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—We have here Mr. Augustine Knight and his company, in The Assassin. Miss Ella Vane takes the part of the Countess and Mr. A. Knight that of the Prince; Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson as Ivan, a soldier, is a rival of the Prince for the hand of the Countess; and the duel scene between the Prince and Countess is very interesting.

THE PALACE.—Business-Manager, Mr. Alf. H. Smith; Acting-Manager, Mr. Crisford Gaston.—A boxing exhibition between Joe Knowles (8st. 6lb. champion of Derbyshire) and Whistler Tilling is the chief feature here.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. B. Reed.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here in Mr. Popple of Ippleton Mr. Charles Macdona as Freddy Popple is received with unbounded applause; Mr. Leon Sinclair as Norman Popple plays with ability; Mr. Nap Barry as George Hennay and Mr. James Stevenson as Henry Doring are well suited; Mr. Tom May is an inimitable Platt; La Bolero is in the capable hands of Miss Nellie Hodson; Miss May Hart as Louise captivates the house by her clever singing and dancing; Miss Amy Singleton as Mrs. Doring plays with great dramatic power, being most ably supported by Miss Lillian Lait as Mrs. Hennay; and Mr. Eric Barrington as Jacques Kenyon sings with taste and feeling.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Mr. Edward Compton is appearing this week in a number of successful plays, including David Garrick, She Stoops to Conquer, School for Scandal, &c. Mr. Compton is admirably supported by a talented company, including Miss Viola Compton.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Splendid houses are the rule here, and the programme is highly appreciated. The variety turns include the Four Cecilians, in a bright musical act; Manton Spry, comedian; Muellen and Coyne, American sketch artists; and Rochez, with his wonderful performing ponies and dogs. The British Biograph shows some pleasing pictorial subjects, which include A Trip to Madeira, Stalwarts at the Stadium, and Over the Sticks, the latter being a highly-interesting sporting subject.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. Fred Melville is to be congratulated on yet another good and original play in The Ugliest Woman on Earth. Miss Beatrice Homer portrays the title-rôle powerfully; Morits, the Italian girl, has a good impersonation from Miss Violet Macaree; Miss Nellie Jackson and Miss G. Harrison, as Aggie Brown and Rose Courtenay respectively, are also very good; the Jack Merryman of Mr. P. Darien is popular; and Mr. Leyton Cancellor as Hubert Gold is exceptionally good. Mr. Leonard Thackeray, as Antonio, and Mr. W. De Brigord, as the young artist, are well placed.

MACCLESFIELD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Morton Powell's company, in When it was Dark, was accorded a hearty reception from a full house on Monday. Mr. Wilfred Lynden played the part of the Rev. Basil Gortre with wonderful skill and spirit; Sir Robert Llewellyn was intelligently portrayed by Mr. Chas. Brandon; and Miss Ethel Griffies is a delightful exponent of Gertrude Hunt; the humorous part of the Hon. Charles Gayfly was in the capable hands of Mr. George Tawde; Mr. Charles Grandley, as Tonides, submitted a capital study; Mr. W. H. Burton was a typical Rev. Mr. Byars; Constantine Schwabe was exceptionally well played by Mr. Haldane Dalton; and Miss Marie Barrett as Helena Byars displayed considerable ability. The piece was very well staged and dressed.

MAIDSTONE. — PALACE. — Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The Dandies, under the direction of Mr. H. J. Corner, give a smart act, comprising solo singing and concerted numbers, which are enthusiastically received; Eadie and Ramsden, in a clever acrobatic speciality act, are as popular as ever; Davis and Deane, shadow dancers, and Julian Ross, vocal comedian, score heavily. A well-written sketch, The Bonnet Shop, is rattled through, to the accompaniment of hearty laughter, by Miss Elsie Irving and company; May Day is a clever mimic; and the Doreen Girls and the Palace Pictures complete the bill.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Beslee.—A variety company, under the management of Mr. Lloyd Forsyth, is drawing good houses here. Taka, Japanese ju-jitsu wrestler, heads the bill, and gives a clever wrestling act; Tom Thumb, a diminutive comedian, sings cleverly; Miss Dorothy Dryden is a smart dancer, and submits a Salome dance; Belasco, drawing-room entertainer, and Zasma, gymnast, are popular; Whit Acre, comedian, and Isa Davis, comedienne and mimic, together with the Bioscope, make up a good programme.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—For the first time in Manchester, Mr. G. B. Shaw's Man and Superman was played here on Monday by the Vedrenne-Barker combination, including Mr. Granville Barker, in the rôle of John Tanner. A growing appreciation of the author in the intelligence of the audience was evident throughout, and the singular humour of the play was accompanied by laughter at just the proper moments. The same understanding was even more marked in the members of the cast, who acted perfectly, and who were headed with superb cleverness by Mr. Granville Barker. The total effect was, in fact, extraordinarily good, and the cast shared equally in the general excellence of the achievement.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A huge audience witnessed Monday's performance here of The Gay Gordons, by the original London company, including, of course, Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss. The whole piece amounts to a mine of opportunity for the delightful talent of this theatrically well-matched couple, who achieve their object admirably, and are quite satisfactorily assisted by the remaining members of the company. Among the latter, special praise must be given to Miss Sydney Fairbrother as Charlotte Siddons, Mr. Johnny Danvers as Nervy Nat, the showman, and Miss Maud Milton as Janet McLeod. The scenery is admirable, the dresses are appropriately brilliant, and a capable augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Frank Tours.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmund's company is proving an attraction here in the picturesque drama A Soldier of France. Mr. Leonard Aardale has a strong part as Corporal (afterwards Father) Jean, which he renders with distinction; and conspicuously good work is done by Mr. Albert Guyon as Judas Delara and Mr. Milton C. Curtis as the Duke De Laval—both on the evil side of affairs; while Miss Florence Zillwood gives a charming and sympathetic rendering of Pauline Lorraine, and Mr. Edward Hobart plays well as the Captain. Acceptable humour is added by Mr. Freddy Edwards as Pollyput Jollyboy and Miss Jenny Clare as Margot.

GAIETY THEATRE. — Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne.—A play by Hermann Sudermann is this week offered to the patrons of this delightful little theatre. It is The Vale of Content (Das Glück im Winkel), which serves further to exemplify the thoughtful genius of the author. The principal success is gained by Miss Darragh, who, as the second wife of the schoolmaster, Wiedemann, acts with quiet power and a convincing emotional restraint; good also is Mr. Jules Shaw, in the peculiarly difficult rôle of the Baron von Röcknitz; and Mr. Henry Austin gives a commendable rendering of Wiedemann. Others who do well are Mr. Edward Landor, as the inquisitive Dr. Orb, Miss Hilda Bruce Potter as the blind Helene, Miss Penelope Wheeler as Bettina, and Mr. Basil Dean as Dangel, the assistant master. This kind of fare is calculated to test the temperamental quality of the average playgoer, who, it is to be hoped, will generously respond. Woman's Rights, by J. Sackville Martin, precedes.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Andrew.—Leslie's Comedy Cadets top the bill here this week, their comedy scena, After Lights Out, being brimful of good vocalism and humour; Florry Cooper, the popular comedienne, is also a capital turn; Fanny Robina sings enjoyably in new business; George Westland, Scotch comedian, makes a decided hit; Baddow gives an excellent ventriloquial sketch; Billie Bint adds an amusing turn; and other good items are Helm and Cozens, in a lively sketch; Ada Parker, comedienne and dancer; Mlle. Naveeda, a novel illusionist; and A. E. Clifford, versatile vocalist.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The star turn here this week is provided by Arthur Roberts and company in Till Sunday, a highly amusing sketch, which furnishes the well-known comedian with ample scope for the exercise of his extraordinary humour. Corbin and his Dogs add a remarkably entertaining act; Ted E. Box, comedian and siffleur, is particularly successful; and other good items are those of the Five Olracs, rag-time acrobats; Bros. Lester, duettists and expert dancers; Ian Colquhoun, the popular baritone; Takio, the Japanese mimic of sounds; the Avrignys, expert Japanese jugglers; and Marie Empress, smart comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Hetty King is very much to the front here this week, and scores highly, her reception being deservedly great; John Warren is seen to advantage, assisted by Miss Mollie Wynter, in a new magical act; Lionel Brough and Mary Brough are excellent in a short sketch, The Yarn Spinner; Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten, in the vocal comedy act A Model School, are very entertaining; Will Poluski, jun., scores as an eccentric comedian; Rhoda Paul makes a hit with her song "It's the Gay Gordons"; Prof. Dubois' baboon is well taught; Seener and Fridkin's Imperial Russian Troupe are good vocalists and dancers; and Will Cornish presents a delightful musical ball act. Part singing by the choir and Bioscope pictures complete.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. R. Trippett.—Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty's company is here this week in An Unwedded Wife. Prominent parts are well sustained by Miss Ethel Van Praagh, Mr. George D. Daiper, Mr. J. Edward Whitty, Mr. Charles Stirling, Mr. R. Wilton Bedford, Little Doris, and Jessie Gillette. The lighter vein is well brought out by Messrs. Will Casey and Robert Young. The scenery is effective.

PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—John Tiller's company is highly amusing here this week in High Jinks, which is well presented; Jock Whiteford, Scotch comedian, is smart and popular; Arthur Hickman, tenor vocalist, sings well; Dorma Morgan, a pleasing American comedienne, sings with her usual charm; Billy Williams, the "Man in the Velvet Suit," is good; and Astley's American Circus introduces some clever animals. On the occasion of our visit, Jack and Evelyn, the well-known duo, and the Three Romas, gladiatorial marvels, who figure on the programme, did not appear. The Martelloni Troupe were announced for subsequent appearance. Pictures complete.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Miss Sylvia Cavalho, supported by a first-rate company, including Mr. Clifford Pembroke, is well received here this week in the dramatic episode Lulu; Ike and Will Scott are exceedingly smart comedians and neat simultaneous dancers; Marie Vere, burlesque artist, has a good voice; Violet Stockelle is a chic comedienne and dancer; Maude Beaumont, burlesque actress, is well received; Les Rubins are excellent singers; Beatrice Lindley entertains at the piano; Wat Tyler is a good character comedian; and Minnie Fenton is a capital Scotch comedienne.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—After a successful week at the King's Theatre, Mr. Harry Roxbury's capital company, including Tubby Edlin, in The Cowboy Millionaire, is doing well here this week; the Carney Brothers, in a vocal scena, Brothers, are vocalists of more than average merit; Ikey Moe, a very clever little Hebrew, sings and dances well, and tells tales in a highly amusing style; Wyndham and Waters are funny in their drawing-room act; and Kingston Trollope, in a dramatic monologue, Only a Dream, is successful. Other good turns are Herbert and Linden, comedians and dancers; the Sisters Lotus, duettists; and the Sisters Valli, in a musical and dancing act. Pictures, as usual, are included in the programme.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Day.—Walton and Lester top the bill here this week, and create much amusement as "the world's worst wizards"; th veteran comedian Charles Coborn scores a big success; the Merrions are vastly amusing; the Bouncing Dillons, comedy gymnasts, cause roars of laughter; Gena Manon, vocalist, has a good voice, and is well received; Wal Robbins, the black and white musical comedian, takes well; and other enjoyable items are offered by Jessie Jukes, who dances well; the Betsons, comedy cyclists; and George Griffin, comedian. The Idara Quartette of dancers did not appear on the night of our visit. The Gipsy and the Painter is the Bioscope subject.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Phillips.—Messrs. Adeler and Sutton present here this week, with great success, the musical comedietta entitled Old Virginia, the following capable artists all doing well: Mr. Kit Keen, Mr. Bert Erroll, Mr. H. Buckland, Miss Mildred Bryan, Miss Odeyne Spark, Miss J. Ellis, Miss Nellie Sheffield, Mr. Leonard Russell, and Mr. William Pringle.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Keene; Manager, Mr. C. R. Hardy.—Miss Lena Ashwell's company delighted theatre-goers for the first three nights of the current week with their admirable presentation of Diana of Dobson's. In the title-rôle, Miss Emelie Polini sustained her part in a manner that carried conviction, and aroused the general sympathy of the audience; Mr. Frank Woolfe as Captain the Hon. Victor Bretherton was also good; Miss Gwynneth Galton as Mrs. Cantelope, Miss Clarissa Selwynne as Mrs. White-Fraser, Mr. W. Kinsford Pearce as Sir Jabez Grinlay, Miss Dorothy Garth as the old woman, Mr. Stewart Dawson as P.C. Fellowes, and Mr. S. Cole Winton as the waiter, were all admirable in their respective parts. Miss Daisy England as Miss Pringle, and the Misses Violet Gould, Eva Lonsdale, Dorothy Garth, and Olga Esme, all rendered effective help in carrying off the dormitory scene in a spirited manner. The comedy has been preceded each evening by The Bishop's Candlesticks. For the remainder of the week The Mystery of Edwin Drood has been the attraction.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—One of the smartest turns seen here for some time is that contributed by Texas Hattie, a clever tight rope artist; Tiger Lilly, another dusky artist, is a good dancer and vocalist; Morelli and Moore, eccentric comedy duo, are smart; Alice Maple, comedienne and dancer, sings sensible songs delightfully; and Wallau, a youthful juggler, has been favourably received. Lazern, the mystic, and Wilkie Bard's comedy company, in the "Let me sing," and "Zuyder Zee," have created considerable merriment.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Home, Sweet Home, presented by Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company, is here. As the young fisherman, Stephen Armitage, Mr. Arthur Hinton is capitally effective; Mr. Fred G. Kay plays well as David Armitage; Miss Lydia Audre is a sweet and convincing Joan; Mr. Charles Clifford displays tact and energy as the Duke; Mr. David Beattie ably emphasises the rôle of Lucas Lyle; as the Hon. Percy, Mr. Victor G. Mallard is smart; Little Hilda Vokes is well placed as Dora; and as Sybil Fay Miss Laura Wright is pert and pleasing.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Heading the bill are the Andos Troupe of Japanese performers; Les Kullis provide an amusing novelty in The Artist and His Monkey; Bertha St. Ruth and Cissie Conyers present two good numbers, and are warmly encored; Miss Nellie Gannon is a pleasing vocalist; Stephens and Kennoir, comedians and dancers, Kose and Wold, in a comedy sketch, The Sentry and the Maid, Peggy Fame, the girl in grey, and Harry Wright, vocal comedian, are also well received.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arnold.—A well-filled house on Monday witnessed the drama, Man or Beast, presented by Messrs. Chas. H. Phelps and Ernest Vaughan's company. The Hon. Jack Newton was portrayed in manly fashion by Mr. Chas. D. Pitt; the invalid Lord Newton was faithfully represented by Mr. Fred Newland; Mr. Frank Hertie, as Col. Bruce Anderson, was earnest and convincing; Mr. Ernest Vaughan, in the cryptic title-part, was excellent, his playing rousing the audience almost to animosity; the woman-hating Captain Macdonald of Mr. Chas. H. Phelps was at first funny and later quite deep in pathos; and Pat O'Brien was well played by Mr. Fred Gresham. Miss Irene Carrington, in the trying part of Bella Newton, displayed evidence of careful study and considerable emotional power; Miss Madge Douglas as Rosie Newton made an undoubted hit, her singing being much appreciated; Nurse Annita had a capable representative in Miss Florence M. Daly; Miss Cissie Clark was capital in the whimsical part of Marie, the lady's maid; and various smaller rôles were played in satisfactory manner. One Woman's Wickedness was billed for the last three nights of the week.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is here this week, with The Fatal Wedding. Miss Ethel Kaye wins admiration for her Mabel Wilson; Cora is played with skill by Miss Elaine Vanbrugh; the "little mother" (Jessie) is cleverly presented by Miss Lulu Wohlmann; Mr. Cecil A. Melton is a capable Howard Wilson; and a vigorous Robert Curtis is found in Mr. Frank Harrison.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Jno. Ed. Jowsey.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company opened a week's engagement here on Monday in Mr. W. Somerset Maugham's famous comedy, Lady Frederick. Mrs. Brown-Potter gave a perfect interpretation of the title-rôle; Mr. Philip Cuningham, a great favourite with Teesside playgoers, was as pleasing as ever; and especial commendation is due to Mr. Shirley Lea for his forceful and amusing character-sketch as the Admiral. Mr. Herbert Ganthorne infused much spirit into the part of Lord Mereston; and Mr. R. Van Ranney was very successful in the character of Sir Gerald O'Mara. Miss Rosemary Rees was responsible for a remarkably good impersonation of Lady Mereston; and Mr. Cecil Bevan as Captain Montgomerie and Miss Edith Deverell as Rose Carlisle were all that could be desired. The play was preceded by The Peacemaker.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—A Desperate Marriage is being presented to large audiences here this week by Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company. Mr. Gordon Raymond makes an ideal hero; whilst the villainies of the piece are ably portrayed by Mr. E. W. Maule Cole. Miss Winifred Whyte as Audrey Howard and Miss Helen Anderson as Betty McKenzie are also responsible for good work. Mr. Herbert Lloyd makes himself a great favourite by his capital humour as Elijah Boggs. The piece is admirably staged.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. Rembges.—A very entertaining programme is provided here this week. Foreman and Fannan, "the millionaires," make a decided hit; the Donaldson Brothers and company create much laughter; Herbert Clifton receives a hearty welcome; Miss Mabel Carr sings excellently; Johnson and Pelham are good; and a delightful musical turn is given by Alex Prince. Edmond and Evelyn do well in a sketch, Express Baby.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. J. C. Nicholls.—A unique entertainment is presented here by Colibri's Midgets; Beattie and Babs, two clever juvenile artists, are very successful; and roars of laughter are elicited by Joe Nightingdale and Arthur Stigant in their duologue, Two Sides of a Wall. Nellie Lawrence is an excellent vocalist; and other turns are given by the Saletos, in a balancing act; Sprangles and Sawdust, comedy aerial act; Harry Leybourne, comedian; and Oakdene, ventriloquist.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey are paying a return visit in Rollicking Rory. Mr. Mackey fills the rôle of the irrepressible Rory with delightful ease; Mr. Chas. Homer makes a dashing Desmond; and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey a sweet and sympathetic Rosaleen. Stephen D'Arcy is suitably represented by Mr. Fred W. Lenond, Brady Saving having an equally apt exponent in Mr. St. John Stuart; Mrs. Nana Flensberg is deserving of praise for her excellent comedy acting in the rôle of Rosie; and Mme. Constance Bellamy's singing of songs is a notable feature.

MUSSELBURGH. — GAIETY THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. A. W. B. Kingston; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. M. Richardson.—Last Thursday and Saturday nights, Miss Emily Huby and company presented a comedy-drama, The Convent Bell. Mr. C. E. Howell, first as Colonel Vautier, and afterwards as his son Philip, played well; as Henri Cassella Mr. H. Croma Osborne was effective; Mr. Arthur Manville showed versatility in the parts of the Prison Warder and James, the servant, contributing in the latter rôle a couple of songs; Pickle Pods, the breezy British sailor, was in the capable hands of Mr. C. Howell Webb; the heroine, Margaret Courier, was capably portrayed by Miss Amy Blanche.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—Mr. Charles Coverdale is a comedian with a distinctly original style; Mr. Hyam Long, another comedian, scores enormously; Princess Pocahontas, a coloured lady with a delightful voice, receives much applause; a clever sketch, Set a Thief ——, is enacted in admirable style by Miss Ethel Norrie and Herbert Evelyn; a smart illusionist is Mr. O. Penstone, who has two clever Chinese assistants; the Two Le Bruns are excellent jugglers; and Mr. H. Goodburn, actor vocalist; Miss Vio Laud, child singer and dancer; and Herr Spiegler, violinist, complete the programme of artists. The animated pictures are first-class.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. W. G. Sutton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parker.—A welcome return of some old favourites is made this week. Mr. J. H. Scotland sings as well as ever; Miss Elsie Steadman also received warm applause for her clever and effective items; Mr. Alfred Maynall and Mr. Douglas Maclaren cause much laughter; Mr. Austin Mahoney sings pleasantly; and Mr. Frederick Arthur is a painstaking accompanist.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—A special visit of Mr. Georgé Edwardes's company in The Girls of Gottenberg is taking place here this week. The company, which includes Mr. Edmund Payne and Happy Fanny Fields, is particularly strong, and crowded houses are the order. In the part of Mitzi Miss Fields is delightful; ever merry and gay, she infuses an undoubted charm into the character which is heartily appreciated, whilst her singing and dancing are also particularly fine. Mr. Edmund Payne as Max Moddelkopf (his original part) is excruciatingly funny, his quaint style and natural gift of comedy showing to the greatest advantage, and enabling him to keep his audience in the best of humour whenever he is visible. Otto, the soldier prince, is humorously portrayed by Mr. Leslie Holland; whilst Mr. Fred Allendale as Albrecht is excellent in a part all too small for him. Clementine, the Burgomaster's daughter, is played with spirit and grace by Miss Masie Gay, and Miss Thelma Raye gives every satisfaction as Elsa. Other leading rôles are ably played by Mr. Fred Payne, Mr. Jocelyn Hope, Mr. Louis Denver, Mr. Douglas Munro, Mr. A. Chentrens, and Miss Florence Phillips. The choruses are rendered in spirit under the direction of Mr. Philip Braham, and the staging and dresses are all that could be desired.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Miss May Palfrey and Mr. F. Kinsey Peile, supported by an excellent company, in Mrs. Dot, are paying a first visit here, and are entertaining large audiences. Miss May Palfrey in the title-rôle has a part that suits her admirably. Her portrayal of the wealthy and fascinating widow is a clever and convincing study. Mr. F. Kinsey Peile is successful as the witty and cynical Blenkinsop; whilst Mr. Hugh C. Buckler ably fills the rôle of Gerald Halstane; as Freddy Perkens Mr. Basil Hallam contributes an amusing study; Mr. McIntyre Wicksteed makes a capital part of the inscrutable valet; while Miss Evelyn Beaumont is a pretty and graceful Nellie; Miss Aida Jenoure does well as Lady Sellenger, and other parts are also in capable hands. The performance is in every respect a great success. Mrs. Dot is preceded by a bright little curtain-raiser, A Lively Dinner.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard's company, in the new drama, The Girl With the Angel Face, is being presented here for the first time in Newcastle, and on Monday was well received by a large audience. Miss Florrie Green is entrusted with the title-rôle, and is entirely successful, while Mr. H. Naylor Grimson proves his cleverness by his excellent portraiture of Sir John Wentworth; that sound actor Mr. Fred G. Evison as Jaspar Death was no less successful, and Miss Phyllis Dailley acquitted herself in a manner worthy of the highest praise. Other capable artists are Miss Mildred Carr as Mollie Maitland, Miss Winifred Delevanti as Millie, Mr. Austin Mortimer as Stephen Arkwright, and Mr. J. L. Mann as the Rev. Gordon Cross, who all contribute to the success of the play.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. F. W. Bolam.—Straight from the Shoulder, a striking melodrama, is being presented here this week by Mr. R. A. Roberts. The company is well selected, and give a capital interpretation of the play. Leading characters are well undertaken by Mr. Matthew Boulton, Mr. Leonard Clarke, Mr. Fred Beck, Miss Beatrice Burdett, Miss Edie Casson, and Miss Beatrice Moore.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—An interesting programme is provided here this week, in which Mr. Laurence Irving is given the place of honour. He presents a tragic episode, 009 West, and, along with Miss Mabel Hackney, succeeds in winning the appreciation of his audience. In the musical absurdity, The Tea Shop; or, Tigers, Ltd., Daley Cooper, Mabel Lait, and company provide any amount of fun in plenty of singing and dancing, Daley Cooper being in his usual good form. The Jackson Family furnish a most pleasing musical turn, their work being thoroughly artistic and their selections in the best possible taste. Capital entertainment is provided by Spry and Austin, and Reichen gives an exhibition of the wonderful training of his dogs; Bert Harrow is distinctly funny in his songs and patter, and the Brothers Redmond prove clever acrobatic comedians. Other well known and capable artists appearing are J. P. Ling and Marion Scott, the Bioscope completing.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The chief turn here this week is Jake Friedman and company in Happy Holland, which proves extremely attractive; and other artists contributing to an excellent programme are Kellie and Agnas, Marguerite Broadfoote, Minnie Love, Harry Rogerson, Picitt and Lizette, Society Quartette, and Leonie de Lausanne.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—The Gamester of Metz is being played here this week by Mr. Chas. March's company.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—George Bastow, who is the star this week, provides a turn that is delightfully quaint; Hy. Coutts, a protean actor of great merit, has a novel way of presenting a quick change in the bright sketch Outflanked; the Eight College Girls, charmingly dressed, give several catchy numbers, and Albert Christian is a fine baritone; Naughton and Gold enliven the house with plenty of typical patter; Fred Elton, a gifted vocalist and pianist, displays ability; and the Three Cape Girls, in a novel long-boot dance, present a pleasing turn; Katie Cohen sings a couple of songs with considerable charm. The Bioscope, showing some good pictures, completes the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—NEW PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans; Musical Director, Mr. Walter Ashton.—A strong programme of thirteen items is dominated by Jenny Maningo, in a surprisingly clever juggling act, which is loudly applauded; Ida Barr renders songs in excellent style; Maggie Rimmer, comedienne, is successful; Bell Leaburn is pleasing as a descriptive vocalist; the Sisters Slater are quite at home as banjoists and dancers; the Burnells provide some excellent fun; Ross and Lewis contribute eccentric dancing; and Ackabarr, novelty gymnast, Charlie Craston, comedian, Dennis and Moris, American comedy duo, and the Palace Pictures also furnish well-appreciated items.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's capable company has presented In Holy Russia here this week, which has been heartily greeted by appreciative audiences. As Colonel Richard Forrest Mr. Henry Compton submits a carefully studied rendering of the character; and Mr. Frank Copeland gives a capital exhibition of acting as Sir Harry Beresford. Mr. Rolf Leslie makes much of the part of Count Petrolski; Mr. George H. Doyle creates a good impression as Laurice Sterrgoff; Mr. Robert Cockcroft is good as the Czar of Russia; and Mr. J. Rice Cassidy scores a well-deserved success as Mickey Nolan. As Renee Rubinoff Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy plays the part in an artistic manner; Miss Alice Holland gives a finished performance as Madame Natolski; Miss Agnes Durham is admirably suited as Natalie Natolski; Miss Madge Trevellyn is a satisfactory Mrs. Richard Forrest; and Miss Roma Tremayne gives a good account of herself in the part of Catska Lavoski.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The bill here is headed by the Brothers Ashley in Next, Please, in which they introduce some clever boxing, for which they are loudly applauded; Messrs. Warren, Doyle, and Clare Fenwick, clog-dancers, are popular; Misses Ada Forrest and Dora King, in their comedy act, are well received; Messrs. Perette and Allen, speciality artists, are very entertaining; and Mr. Harry Jennings, eccentric comedian and dancer, Master Willie Roberts, juvenile Scotch comedian, and the Mouldoscope contribute successfully to a good programme.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Secretary, Miss E. Golden.—Mr. A. Campbell Kelly's répertoire company is this week drawing good houses. The well-known drama The Ticket-of-Leave Man was given on Monday, and was thoroughly appreciated. As Hawkshaw Mr. A. Campbell Kelly was all that could be desired; credit is due to Mr. Arthur Bell, who took the part of Jem Dalton at a few hours' notice; Mr. T. Robertson was a manly Bob Brierley; Miss Blanche Hill was a charming May Edwards; and Miss Nana Cameron made a capital Sam Willoughby. His House Disordered and Lady Audley's Secret were also announced.

THE PAVILION.—Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Towyn Thomas.—The programme this week meets with the heartiest appreciation from large audiences. Jock Dewar is vociferously applauded for his Scotch songs; Joe S. Atkins is quaintly humorous; Clifford Stuart, Lancashire comedian, gains a well-deserved encore for his laughing song; and Miss Madge Goodall is a dainty and graceful comedienne and dancer. The Ruffell's Bioscope shows some very clever and amusing pictures. The entertainment is brought to a conclusion by Mahatma, who is introduced by Prof. J. Steen, and gives wonderful exhibitions of her powers of second-sight.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Moody-Manners' Opera Company is delighting good audiences with some charming operas. On Monday Madame Butterfly was given, on Tuesday Il Trovatore, on Wednesday Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci, on Thursday Faust, and on Friday Carmen. On Monday Miss Enriqueta Crichton, as Madame Butterfly, was delightful both vocally and in her acting; Miss Benyon was deservedly well received as Suzuki; Mr. Charles Carter was very good as Pinkerton; and Mr. Charles Moorhouse did well as Sharples. On Tuesday Mr. John Childs as Manrico was much appreciated, as were Mr. Charles Moorhouse as Count di Luna and Miss Mary Norton as Azucena, and Miss Nina Bruckshaw as Leonora was most charming.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Carl and Mary Ohm's animal circus is most attractive; Corman's Juveniles, in a vocal scena, The Waif, are most interesting; Hugh Cedar and Edward Elgar in Ye Dayes of Old submit a quaint performance; the Three Richards are clever in their comedy acrobatic act; Fred Land is quite a favourite; and clever Rose Hamilton, comedienne, Nat Watkins, and Alec Lynn, with the Hippo. Bio., complete a good programme.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Chas. W. Poole's interesting myriorama is here for two weeks. There is a pleasing variety company, which includes the Royal Banzais Japanese Troupe of acrobats; Amasis, the Egyptian magician; the Eight Bramusus in an extravaganza, Music Afloat; Sydney Bach, "the Welsh landlady at the piano"; and Harry Raymond, comedian. Mr. Frank Lyndon is an interesting guide.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. Fred Terry presents The Scarlet Pimpernel this week, and one night is devoted to Matt of Merrymount. In the former Mr. Terry repeats his admirable interpretation of Sir Percy Blakeney. In the absence of Miss Neilson, the part of Lady Blakeney is taken by Miss Miriam Lewes, who acts with passion and verve, revealing a wealth of artistic temperament. Mr. Horace Hodges plays the unscrupulous Chauvelin with his accustomed force; Mr. J. Carter-Edwards adds fresh business to his portraiture of Brogard, and Mr. Alfred Kendrick aptly assumes Sir Andrew Ffoulkes. Misses Claire Pauncefort, Kathleen Doyle, Mary Jennings, Marion Sterling, and Stuart Innes, with Messrs. Malcolm Cherry, Fred Groves, H. F. Wright, and L. Race Dunrobin capitally sustain their different rôles.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning is being keenly appreciated here. Mr. F. Ronald Adair has all the breeziness and vigour of the sailor, and his interpretation of Willie Mason is excellent. Mr. Sydney Sarl as Bill Slater forms a very clever character study; Mr. Frank Robertson capitally plays Jack Fenton, and Mr. Frank Denis is good as Richard Fenton; Miss Jessie Belmore makes a big success of Sophie Coventry, on whose conduct the play turns, and Miss Zoe Davis gives an earnest and thoughtful reading of Lucy Coventry. As the evil genius, Miss Nannie Meade shows conspicuous merit, and her Vesta la Clere is a clever piece of work; Miss Marie Kildare makes a fresh and engaging Poppie, and laughter reigns supreme at the efforts of Mr. Fred Ingram as Johnny Walker.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Vast crowds fill this place nightly to greet the always dainty and charming Vesta Tilley, and a triumph awaits her at each performance. Hubert Carter presents an excellent sketch, entitled Davy Garrick, receiving well-deserved applause; the drollery of Drew and Alders is rightly rewarded by peals of responsive merriment; the turn of Lydia Yeamans is greatly enjoyed, and evokes hearty plaudits; an agreeable acrobatic entertainment is provided by the Sisters Grovini, and much favour is shown to the Barton Franklin Trio for their instrumental and vocal speciality; Edie King, in her quick-change scena; the Crown Trio of vocalists, and Tom Parker, a comedian and dancer, call for a word of praise, and the Bioscope shows the usual humorous pictures.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd.—Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—We have here this week an excellent representation of The Eve of Her Wedding, by Mr. Wilson Benge's company. Mr. Benge as George Tremain gives an excellent impersonation; Mr. Arthur Keand is good as Squire Leverton; Mr. Arthur Danson is well placed as Dick; as Rudolph Earle Mr. Charles Digby is highly amusing; Mr. Wallace Campbell as Dean Clifton is a capable villain; Mr. Chas. Groves, in the dual rôle of Paul Cairstair and Hyram Younger, is well placed; Mr. Arthur E. Holland is a capital Jack Herne; Miss Eppie Bartlett gives a good impersonation of the crafty, scheming Renie de Telle; Miss Daisy Cooke wins favour as Gwendoline Younger; and Miss Sadie Smith is a capable Mavis Leverton. The smaller parts are ably handled by Mr. Fred Rivers (Giovanni), Mr. K. Arthur (Bill Groggins), Mr. Alexander George (Rev. Goodman), Mr. Joe England (P.C. Lockings), and Miss Amy Milstead (Edith Trevanion). The piece is well staged and dressed.

OLDBURY.—PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—A capital programme is offered here. The Beddoes, sketch artists, give a good show; Ethel Yorke is a charming comedienne; Benno is a remarkable performer; Sisters Amy and Ada, eccentric comediennes, are a clever couple; Beanland, female impersonator, wins much applause for his own particular business; Miss Ray Thorne is much appreciated; and Messrs. Malone and Conley, knockabouts and patterers, keep the audience in a good humour. The pictures conclude.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—The Belle of the Ball visits Oldham for the first time this week, being played by Violet Osmund's company, under the management of Mr. Alexander Loftus. Miss Gertrude Melville as Poppy acts with charming grace; Vera Grafton is excellent as Lucy Foster, and Miss Florence Watson is clever as the suffragette, Queenie Trevor; Miss Ethel Bertram as Alice and Miss Corona L'Estrange as Mary cause much amusement; Mr. Johnny Schofield is the life and soul of the piece as Timothy Timkins; Mr. Robert Hyett sings well as Sir Francis Lake, and Bobbie Fletcher is well acted by Mr. L. C. Hughes; Mr. Chas. Adeson also does well as Farmer Jones, Mr. E. W. Chewd being very good as James Foster; Mr. E. H. Bertram is a capital Showman Jack.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Messrs. Elliman's company is here on a return visit with A Heart's Desire. Mr. R. F. Stacey acts in a forcible manner as Lord St. Ives; Mr. Edward Leroy is powerful as the blackmailing Luke Forest, and Mr. Chas. King is a capital David McCulloch; Miss Lily Prescott is clever as Oiya, Miss G. Gilman is a dainty Hon. Elsie Beresford, and Miss Blanche Leroy a smart Julie. Miss Hilda May as Gwendoline Ross and Mr. H. Lawrence as Bertie Beresford cause much laughter.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—The Gothams sing and harmonise in a capital manner, and Pipifax and Paulo in Humpsti-Bumpsti are exceedingly funny; Her Princely Betrayer is well played; Miss Amber Wyville acts cleverly as Teresina, Miss May Ollam is excellent as Sancia, and Mr. Joynsen Powell as Bruna is very good; Mr. Brunton and Mr. Roe give able assistance. Pasquali Brothers are clever in an equilibristic tumbling act; F. V. St. Clair does well with his songs; Natalia and Diana are a smart pair of aerial artists; Fox and Melville are good song illustrators; and W. Burnand is a capital mimic.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Hyde and Cody perform capitally as acrobats; Hyram Travers, character comedian, sings good songs; the Three Seabornes are wonderful equilibrists; Mi Narom is a clever eccentric vocalist; and the Danbys, comedians; Elliott and Warne, a funny couple, and Leo Trainor, vocal comedian, also appear. Amusing pictures on the Dottoscope conclude.

OXFORD.—EAST OXFORD THEATRE.—Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and Mr. C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Miss Grace Warner's company is here with The Scarlet Clue. Mr. George Gordon gives an effective rendering of Michael Stanton; Mr. T. O'Brien is a success in the dual rôle of Jack and Harry Esmond; Mr. A. B. Lyons does well as Edward Croker, and Mr. Roy Rhind is admirable as Crazy Jim; Mr. E. H. Keith is responsible for the fun as Billy the Rotter. Miss K. Stewart is sweet and natural as Elsie Dane; Miss Phyllis Massey is good as Reggie Carstairs, and Little Norah Brettan shows ability as Little Polly; Miss Kathleen Cranston makes the most of Mother Scrooge, and Miss A. Corrie is well placed as Miss Tabitha Esmond; Miss Grace Warner, on whom much devolves, portrays Sal Scarlet very powerfully.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Frank Adair present this week Man to Man with a powerful company. Mr. Edward Lloyd gives an admirable rendering of George Gordon; Mr. Frank Adair as Richard Ellerton is excellent; Mr. H. Holland as Matthew Ellerton is commendable; Mr. Clifford Bown submits a capital portrayal of Bill Burkley; Mr. Bruce Williams as Samuel Plumtree acts with effect; Mr. R. Val Shane is well placed in the character of the Rev. Philip Ormond; and a word of praise is due to Messrs. Charles Russell, J. C. Thornbury, and George Edwin in minor parts. Miss Louie Adair plays with sincerity the rôle of Ethel Maythorne; Gipsy Madge is capably enacted by Miss Evelyn Warde; Miss Ada Martin makes a humorous Mary; Miss Adeline Lester is successful in her interpretation of Miss Lavinia Dove; and Miss Phyllis Oakley as Ned Doyle is good.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Douglas F. Bostock.—Harry Radford and Mlle. Valentine, the jolly juggling jesters and maniacs of mirth, meet with a cordial reception; the Selbinis submit a daring and marvellous pot-pourri bicycle performance, and are applauded; in his humorous and pathetic studies of children Wilson Hallett is very entertaining; Pat Lynch pleases with his wooden-shoe dances; clever are the Three Phydoras in a novel specialty act; Charles Russell appeals with his military song-scena, "1854," and is supported by Tom E. Cliffe and eight veterans; as a comedian and clog-dancer Charley Rose becomes popular; a smart and clever comedy act, The Porter and the Parcel, is presented by Howard and Collinson; and the Hippodrome Bioscope is also an attraction.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—An excellent bill is this week topped by Fred Cary, the favourite comedian. In a comedy act, entitled Fun at a Railway Station, Farley, Rennie, and Farley evoke roars of laughter; the humour is further continued by Charlie Walker and May, coloured comedians and dancers; Craig, Roze, and Craig execute marvellous gymnastic feats; the Markies have a humorous, vocal, and instrumental sketch; a clever exposition of juggling is given by Ray; and Miss Kittie Upton deserves a word of praise as a comedienne. Reed and Stevens are also smart in a comedy sketch, entitled Married or Photographed; and the Tivoliscope concludes.

PETERBOROUGH.—EMPIRE.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—A fine company this week includes Flo Hovis, comedienne; the Incemores, the merry manikins; Halma, the Scottish society juggler; Fred Bamford, the whistling newsboy; Melvin and Max, in an entertaining pot-pourri; Silly Billy Elliott, the famous comedian; the talented Lily and Elsie Judge, with their society bird act; the Two St. Johns, musicians, campanologists and comedians; and Forest to Fireside on the Bioscope.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Frank Gallagher.—The programme this week includes Frank Jester, an artist who well justifies his name; the fascinating Sisters Du Cain; Ryan and Hall, grotesque acrobatic comedians; Sandy McNab, in laughable sketch; Maud Nestle, ballad vocalist; Vesta, the musical Momus; and Mysticus, who gives a very clever turn. The Hippodrome pictures are good.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The ever-popular Uncle Tom's Cabin is again on a visit to the West, and a fine house which assembled on Monday was alternately moved to tears and merriment by the really clever acting of Mr. Chas. Harrington's No. 1 company. Mr. J. Carr as the venerable Uncle Tom gave a portrayal that will bear comparison with previous renderings; Mr. C. Harrison is particularly well adapted to the rôle of Phineas Fletcher; and Mr. F. Forbes-Robertson distinguishes himself as St. Clair. Mr. Ernest Regent is a capable George Harris; and other noticeable members of the company are Misses A. Watson, M. Turner, E. Vernon, and H. Hathaway.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The Ten Loonies are starred for the week, and their performance is again popular; Sivoni earns plently of applause for his comedy act, entitled Mixtures, receiving material assistance from Miss Amy Broughton; Rauschle impersonates well-known celebrities, past and present, with remarkable exactitude; and Wilson and Waring raise many a hearty laugh with their amusing patter; Bowman and Morton being also adepts in the same business. George Prince and Fred Dunstone, comedians, furnish acceptable numbers.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—At the head of an exceptionally attractive bill here this week are the Cheers, in a refined scena, Dick Whittington, done with some effective scenic effects, and introducing some cleverly-trained cats. Angelina, a really smart juggler, does some wonderful feats with a cannon ball; Rose D'Aubby sings some effective songs with swinging choruses; and Chant and Chant rattle through a number of quips and jokes in sprightly fashion. Frances Hanlon, a chic and dainty dancer, sings smart ditties; Arthur Elvey, as a racing tipster, gives a sketch of the racecourse prophet; Miss Gladys Cooper as a ballad singer gains much favour; George Acre is a comedian full of character; and the pictures are, as usual, interesting.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—Mr. E. H. Knight's company is the attraction here this week, with The Lighthouse Robbery. Tom Manly is admirably played by Mr. Henry Herne; William Farren is in the able hands of Mr. Wm. Annesley; James Hammond is faithfully portrayed by Mr. Percy Beresford; and Miss Hilda Baynton scores a distinct success as Rose Prescott.

PORTH.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Topping an excellent programme at the above for this week we have Doody and Wright, the Australian comedy duo; Jenny Alexander, child mimic, deserves special mention; the Seymons give a creditable equilibristic act; Will English, the real coon, scores a success; Phern and Phern are admirable musical speciality artists; Irene Meldon is a dainty vocalist and dancer; Dan Thomas is a noteworthy turn; Ben Harries and his Nippers score a success; and the Palascope pictures are effective.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Miss Hook of Holland is being presented here by Mr. George Dance's principal company. Mr. Arthur Reynolds makes a droll Mr. Hook; Mr. Frederick Hobbs sings admirably and acts with vigour as Captain Adrian; Mr. Powis Pinder is highly successful as the Bandmaster; Mr. Percy Davidson is well placed as Schnapps; and Mr. Fred Lyne keeps the house in one ripple of merriment by his capital performance of Simon Slinks. Miss Queenie Preston is a charming Gretchen; Miss Mabel Sealby makes the very best of the part of Mina by her droll acting and singing; Miss Marie Wilson is full of life and gaiety in the title-rôle; and the Misses Amy Preston and Mandy Jennings are praiseworthy as Freda and Clara.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. B. Agate.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is here, with The Mystery of Edwin Drood. Mr. Bartlett Garth as John Jasper gives a powerful and convincing interpretation of the character; Mr. G. Ridgway makes a capital Edwin Drood; Nevill Landless is well taken by Mr. J. H. Twyford; Mr. Richard Harris is well fitted with the part of Mr. Septimus Crisparkle; and Mr. David Phillips is amusing in his portrayal of Durdles. Miss Jenny Risley is brisk and smart as the Deputy; Miss May Beatrice, in the rôle of Helena Landless, is quite satisfactory; Miss Addie Adair sustains the part of Princess Puffer with marked ability; and Mrs. Morton Powell is entirely successful in her delineation of Rosa Bud.

KING'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A powerful attraction here this week is Lafayette, the American entertainer; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon-Wilde, society shadowists, are responsible for plenty of laughter; Frank Hardy and company, in the sensational sketch The Traitor, score well; the Maximillian Trio of equilibrists gain plenty of applause; Frank Cass is an amusing vocal comedian; Star and Leslie contribute a smart Indian club act; and also billed are Dan Whiteley, eccentric comedian; and Edward Lauri and May Beatty and company.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Captain Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The star turn here for the week is Florrie Forde, who is in excellent form and voice, and submitted three of her popular and up-to-date numbers, gaining the warm approval of a full house; Woolmer Young, a tuneful and capable vocal comedian, did well; Geo. C. Doughty and company, in comedy sketch Captain Cupid, caused plenty of merriment; Frances Letty, American wooden-shoe dancer, is smart in song and dance; Albas on the wire is very clever in an equilibristic sensational act; the Sisters Henderson are most meritorious performers as musicians, dancers, and vocalists; Pete and Minnie Lee, in sketch, The Scotchman's Visit to London, proved an acceptable item; W. D. Mackenzie and company, in new and original scena, Moments With the Masters, gave a very artistic and pleasing entertainment in a picturesque setting; and Payne's Bio portrays popular pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Acting-Manager, Colonel Roberts, V.D.—The bill of fare for the week here includes Messrs. Fred Ginnett and Wal Pink's company, in the elaborately-mounted sketch St. George and the Dragon, in which Messrs. Harry Valdo and Harry Calver and the Misses Mona Hungerford and Dora Gregory appear with success; Miss Kitty Taylor is a brisk and pleasing comedienne; the Brothers Dean give much satisfaction by their excellent terpsichorean efforts; Howard and Harris, in Adventures of a Happy Tramp, are most ludicrous; Mr. Arthur Aldridge, with a rich and powerful voice, gives old-time favourites with signal success; Wittie Waittie Walton is as diverting and mirth-provoking as usual; the Mackweys, in their knockabout contribution, are very smart; that capable artist Van Biene, actor-musician, in The Master Musician, assisted by Miss Mary Mannering and Miss Kingston, is responsible for a sympathetic and artistic turn. The Hippo pictures conclude.

PRESTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—This week Miss Ida Molesworth's company is presenting Under Two Flags. Miss Agnes Verity as Cigarette carries all before her, and is a great success; Miss Dorothy Lart is excellent as Princess Corona; Miss Jean Stern as Countess Olga and Miss Madge Stevens as Lady Beatrice are also most successful in their respective parts. Mr. Austin Milroy both looks and acts the part of Louis Victor in a masterly manner; Mr. D. FitzGibbon is capital as his brother, Barklie; and Mr. Charles Brooke is a dignified Lord Royellieu (his father). Mr. Victor Garden is a typical Lord Rockingham; Mr. Harry Benson as Rake extracts much humour from the part; Mr. Arthur Elwyn imbues the character of the domineering Colonel Chanteroy with the necessary treachery; while Mr. A. Holmes as Captain Claude de Chaurellon, Mr. Johnny Leoni as Ezri Baroni are each good. The remaining characters are all in good hands, who work hard for the success of the piece. The mounting and stage effects are good.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Miss Harriett Vernon tops the bill here this week, and is enthusiastically received in her new song scena, entitled "A Yuletide story"; Henri Cazman gives a selection of his well-known representation of celebrities, and concludes with some amusing shadowgraphs; Barrie and Wood are a team of exceedingly clever acrobatic dancers; Fame and Fortune are versatile speciality comedians, who please; Miss Florence Yamen deservedly wins loud applause for her very original coon caricature act; George Young is an expert blind musician, his concertina solos being exceptionally well rendered, and he is well received; Shavo, expert comedy juggler, does some smart tricks; Celest has a sensational act on the slack wire; Leslie Race has some capital comic ditties, which go down well; and Eva Chadwick, who possesses a good soprano voice, of which she makes good use, and wins applause. The Wrong Lottery Ticket on the Bioscope concludes.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Convict 99, by Miss Marie Connor Leighton, is well staged here. Mr. Frank Beresford acts the part of Lawrence Gray with power; Mr. Benson North is to be complimented on his Ralph Villiers; Mr. J. Warris Lindon gives a strong rendering of Christopher Lucas; Mr. Walter Westwood as Warder Gannaway is good; and Mr. H. Peachey and Mr. W. Fordyce both deserve a word of praise. Mr. Edward Kipling as James Stinchcombe and Miss Jennie Richards as Maggie Mason do well; and Miss Dorothy Milne as Geraldine Lucas displays ability.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jules Richeux.—The Gay Deceivers has been paying a welcome return visit here this week, and the bright musical comedy has had a cordial reception at the hands of large audiences. Mr. Mark Lester is wonderfully droll as Joseph the butler; Miss Pauline Primm proves herself a graceful danseuse and a clever vocalist; Miss Dorothy Chard is a charming heroine as Dora Dartrey; Mr. Douglas Phillips makes an effective appearance as Lieut. Dewar; Mr. Frank Stanmore is most amusing as Lord Reggie Muddleton; and the other parts are skilfully impersonated.

ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Resident-Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest.—Miss Frances Delaval and company have been staging Love's Golden Dream and Her Lost Self this week with success. The first-named drama filled the bill on the evenings of Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Miss Delaval played in accomplished style as Margery, while Mr. Harry Rutland depicted the difficult part of the captain in capable fashion. The representatives of villainy found able representatives in Mr. W. Bradford and Miss E. Crawford, while humour had excellent exponents in Miss Doris Strathmore and Mr. Gus Ernest. Mr. Edmund Grogan also contributed considerably to the quality of the production.

MARINA THEATRE.—The animated pictures continue a source of attraction here, the films being first-class. Mr. Fred Pollard, an old Ramsgate favourite and former manager of the Marina, has been paying a return visit this week.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. B. Feather.—We have this week a first visit of Mr. C. Watson Mill's company in A Warning to Women. Miss Lillian Herries as Moira Kennion gave a powerful impersonation; as Sheila Kennion Miss Winifred Rutland was charming; and Miss Edith Rutland was a sympathetic Myles O'Moore, and Miss Ellen Beverley scored a success as Molly O'Moore; Mr. William Vane made an excellent and manly Shaun; Mr. C. O'Connor as Fergus McNaughton gave a capital interpretation, as also did Mr. Henry Rutland as Squire Vennion. Mr. Leonard Lawrence as Dr. Marcus Dread gave a powerful and uncanny portrayal; Mr. Harry Douglas was a success as Lord Eversleigh; and Mr. Oscar Power made the most of the character of Mike McQuade; whilst Mr. Alec Finlayson was a thoroughly typical Father Wallace.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Miss Hook of Holland is being presented this week in first-class style by Mr. George Dance's principal company. Miss Alice Coverick gives an acceptable rendering of the title-rôle; Miss Cissie Sephton is exceedingly good as Mina, her singing being highly appreciated; Mr. T. A. Shale is a clever Mr. Hook; and Mr. Tom Seymour a most amusing Simon.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—Fred Karno's new musical production, The Adventures of Mr. Right 'Un, is being well received. In this sketch, Mr. H. C. Barry as Bob Right 'Un and Mr. Rolando Martin as the Butler are specially good. Clive and Clark, comedy artists, give a lively turn; Harry Barclay is an amusing comedian; Kitts and Windrum afford much diversion in the military sketch, The Cuckoo; Les Belles Americaines sing and dance cleverly; Ariel and Astarte give a very smart trapeze act; Pat Rafferty makes a welcome reappearance, and his songs quite bring down the house. The Launching of the new Brazilian Battleship is shown on the Bioscope.

REDDITCH.—PUBLIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas E. Field.—John H. Tomkinson's Royal Gipsy company opened here on the 17th for three nights, and, being old favourites, did excellent business. Miss Hook of Holland was announced for the 25th and following nights.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—Dare-Devil Dorothy is the attraction here this week. Mr. Walter Ashley makes a capable George Fielding; Mr. Walter B. Nugent cleverly impersonates the villainous Edward Dudley; and Mr. Harry Ugar keeps the audience in roars of laughter as Silas Crump. Miss Nellie Harcourt is a vivacious Judith; and Miss Dorothy Desmonde as Dorothy Montrose acts well and contributes some capital vocal numbers.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Ella Shields heads the bill here this week, and is accorded a hearty reception, her refined and graceful vocalism being thoroughly enjoyed; O'Connor and Brady, comedians, create much amusement; Miss Amy Elvira is a charming burlesque artist; and Percy Farrimond, singing collier; Mlle. Pollo, lady gymnast; Fred Lyndo, comedian; Ena Corelli, speciality dancer; and the Empire Bioscope pictures complete a capital programme.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—The management here has this week gone in for variety with an exceptionally strong company. Carlton, the mysterious, heads the bill, and fully justifies his title, some of his manipulations being quite extraordinary; Leo and Roland are clever hand balancers and equilibrists; Miss Ethel Sheffer is well received in her illustrated songs and the faceograph; Mr. Harry Cotton is highly amusing in his eccentric comedy act; and Mr. Tom Dunmore is deservedly applauded for his clever work. The other turns are also entertaining, and the Bioscope is used to great advantage.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Messrs. Jordan and Harvey, the original Hebrew comedians, bring down the house with their extremely funny gags; the Ellimans (Alice and Van) give a highly finished and refined musical turn; Mr. Dan Filmer is a very clever comedian; and Mr. L. B. Athol is deservedly applauded for "Dreamland." A clever sketch, Half a Dollar, by Messrs. Haines, Borthwick, and Co., creates roars of laughter. Mr. Alan Borthwick as Harry Helton is smart, and Mr. W. A. Haines is quite a treat as Harry Hutchens. Miss Margaret Damer is pleasing as Kate, being ably seconded by Miss Ida Vynall as Nelly. Miss Marguerite Ismay and her White Coons are responsible for a pretty and effective turn, and Miss Ida Adelaide scores a great success in her songs and dance. Messrs. Harding and Preston are responsible for a capital comedy act, The Editor and the New Sub, and Miss Nellie Lunelle is a sprightly song and dance artist. Mr. Thomas Richardson continues to entertain with some excellent musical numbers.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Junius Booth's company had a good house on Monday, when was presented Monte Cristo, adapted by Mr. Booth, who made a good impression as Edmund Dantes. Miss Lelia Drummond was a charming Mercedes; Danglars was well sustained by Mr. A. Bowerman; Mr. Miller Anderson (Nortier), Mr. Ed. Coates (Fernand Mondego), Mr. C. W. Crowe (Villifort), Mr. K. Milson (Albert de Morcef), and Miss V. Carter (Sophie Danglars) supplied good studies of their respective characters. Much fun was caused by Mr. Herbert Colley as Caderousse; and Miss Alice West as La Caronte.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Edwin Boyde heads an excellent programme this week, and keeps the house in roars; Cestria is a smart acrobat and a comic juggler; the Four Amaraths are clever acrobatic dancers; the musical and patter business of Kenneth and Kane is much enjoyed; and other acceptable turns are given by Tom Sherlock, vocalist; Royal Delones, in song and expert dance; W. L. Murray, the Roman gladiator; Stacey and Williams, duettists; Jack Martin, vocalist; Norman and body in a merry mood; as Slinks Mr. Fred Dark fills his part to perfection; Mr. J. B. Fox as Capt. Paap is highly distinguished, and has a magnificent voice; as Bandmaster Van Vuyt Mr. Adrian Burgon is decidedly smart; Mr. Robert Corray as Schnapps is equally successful. Miss Ethel James as Miss Hook looks and acts in a charming manner, and sings with admirable expression; Miss Muff Carew as Mina is superb, her singing being encored; and Miss Molly Trevor is a favourite as Gretchen. The dressing and mounting of the piece is on a lavish scale, and the chorus, under the conductorship of Mr. Harry Richardson, is effective.

OLD FREE LIBRARY.—Lessee, Mr. George H. Davis.—Mr. Fred Norman and his star variety company were here for four nights. Mr. Tom Yorke, patter and character comedian, was very droll; Norminto, "the handcuff king," gave one of his marvellous performances; Prof. Vaux gave two successful turns as a conjurer and ventriloquist; and a long series of animated pictures was also shown.

SCARBOROUGH.—LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Waddington and Son; Manager, Mr. J. T. Carpenter.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's Gay Gordons company is here. Miss Marie Ash, in the rôle of the millionaire's daughter, acts with skill and ability; Mr. Frank Lincoln as Angus wins well-deserved applause; and Mr. Tom Graves as the old showman contributes much to the success of the play.

THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. L. Holland.—This week the Six Albyns give a musical entertainment of a refined character here; the Flying Orenius on the trapeze are wonderfully clever; the Glenroy Troupe of dancers do a refreshing turn and sing well; the Yokels supply a successful musical turn; and Satsuma, juggler, is clever. The programme includes Nellie Nora, instrumentalist; Stan Aubrey, comedian; and J. J. Mannia, coon singer and dancer. Good pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

Stewart as Richard Chelford is very successful; Miss May Cogden as Marise is delightful; Mr. Gerald Ames as Raymond Leyton has a part that fits him exactly; and Miss Mary Dibley as Isabel Leyton is excellent.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. Garside; Manager, Mr. Fred P. Morgan.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company, in The Lancashire Lad, is here, with Mr. Alec Alexander in the title-part. Miss Stanley Burt as Jessie Wincote wins recognition, and Miss Nell Oliver as Lorna Wincote is delightful.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company is proving a powerful attraction here this week in The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Alfred Goddard gives a calm and well-managed interpretation of Jack Frobisher; and Mr. Russell Barry appears to great advantage as the frank and genial Hankey Bannister. Mr. Ben Lewin does all that is required for the Marquis of Steventon, Lord Drayton (his son) being well depicted by Mr. Christopher Steele. The roué and traitor, Harry Dallas, has a capital exponent in Mr. A. W. Tyrer, Bertram Hannaford, the Hon. Wilfred Renton, and Lord Marchmont being ably presented by Mr. George Percy, Mr. Francis Drake, and Mr. O. Gee respectively. Miss Ormonde Wynne gets in some effective touches as Lady Westerby; Miss Mornington (Miss Pauline Strauss), the Duchess of Skye (Miss Millie Emden), Lady Porchester (Miss Gladys Meyrick), and Miss Wyatt (Miss Mabel Mears) all give good renderings of their respective rôles. Miss Elsie Ross displays a clever naïveté and abandon as Lady Lucy Derenham; and Miss Nancy Beresford scores heavily by her clever and well-studied delineation of Lady Alethea Frobisher.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. H. D. Lyle.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's company had a fine reception from a crowded audience on Monday, when A Merry Maid was presented. Larry O'Hooligan is portrayed by Mr. Vivian Wakeman in rollicking style; Mr. Neil Hardy as the Hon. Cecil Toft is very droll; Thady Clancy is submitted in pleasing style by Mr. Howard Lawrence; as Von Swank Mr. H. Tracey is a clever comedian; Mr. W. S. Hutchinson as Biddy is immensely popular; Mr. C. W. James as Sharp Scrivener does well; and Bertie is smartly played by wee George Wood. As Peggy O'Hooligan Miss May Gibson's singing is a feature of the performance; Angela is played in dainty style by Miss F. Adamson; and Miss Ray Watson as Flossie Kixie is popular.

SHEERNESS. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Hippodrome Co.—A welcome visit is being paid here by Mr. Ernest Dare and company in the successful farcical comedy In the Soup. Mr. Dare is supported by a small but excellent company, prominent amongst which appears Mr. Louis Palgrave as Horace Gillibrand, this character being portrayed in humorous style. He is ably assisted by Miss M. Lowe-Dare as Judith. An excellent portrayal of a peppery old Indian judge is given by Mr. A. Field Fisher as Abernethy Ruppershaw, Mr. Ernest Dare as Paul Hemming is a great success; and special praise is due to Miss Vera Wallace for her delightfully natural rendering of Mme. Moppert. Mr. James E. Taylor is also effective. The piece is preceded by a short dramatic play, entitled The Glow of an Ember.

CO-OPERATIVE HALL.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Co.; Manager, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—An attractive programme is again provided here. The best are The Guardsman's Bride, Tricksy, the Clever Princess, The Great Marathon Race, Hoist with His Own Bomb, Jack of all Trades and Master of None, and His Sweetheart's Birthday.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The world-famous artist, Ellen Terry, opened to a crowded and representative audience on Monday, in Captain Brassbound's Conversion. Miss Terry's visit has naturally aroused great enthusiasm in Sheffield.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Claudian, the great play by Wells and Herman, has been acted to big houses here this week. Mr. William Maclaren acts with the requisite fire and dramatic passion as the splendid Claudian; Miss Lily Bandmann makes a graceful and winning representative of Almida; and all the other characters are excellently played. The scenery and costumes, together with the mechanical effects, are faithful copies of the originals used at the Princess's Theatre.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company began a welcome visit on Monday, in a selection of plays. Elliston, Mr. Richard Pitt, Mr. Basil Mitchell, Mr. H. C. Robinson, Mr. Cedric Thornley, Mr. F. Wheatcroft, Mr. Fred G. Ingleby, Mr. P. Pierce, Miss K. Dempsey, and Miss M. St. John. The Woman from Russia, a new drama of modern life (noticed in another column) and East Lynne have also been performed to appreciative audiences.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The Fighting Parson is again delighting large audiences. Mr. George Gray repeats his robust and characteristic representation of the title-rôle. The other parts are well played, and the piece is effectively mounted. Little Ganty causes hearty laughter; Mr. Ernie Mayne also makes the welkin ring with laughter and applause. The Lumars do a graceful, agile, and elegantly staged gymnastic act; and other engaged are the Huxter Bros., jumpers; Miss Muriel Harding, comedienne; Miss Madge May, comedienne; Orpheus, instrumentalist; Mr. Drew, vocalist; and the Bioscope, with The Phantom Motor Ride.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—Large houses this week are lavishing applause on Mr. Harry Roxbury and his company, in the screaming musical and pantomimical absurdity, The Prince of Monte Carlo; Rell and Bell, comedians; Mr. Richardsons Taylor, mimic ventriloquist; the Three Krags, gymnasts; Bostock's Baboons; the Three Transfields, in a refined musical entertainment; Carr and Rose, musical comedy artists; Mr. H. C. Lovell's company, in Mlle. Pom-Pom; the Barrascope, with beautiful coloured moving pictures; and Miss Zona Vevey, in a gorgeously mounted musical scena, assisted by M. Max Erard.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—In addition to the Raymonde Bio-Tableaux, with all the latest films, there are engaged here Garden's celebrated Royal Quintette, Scotland's representative vocalists, pipers, and international dancers; Mons. Alfonzo does some extraordinary feats; Mr. W. C. Wesley is a funny character comedian; the Sisters Clare are pretty and clever.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Lessees, the Jasper Redfern Co., Ltd.—The new-comers here on Monday were Mr. Tom Joy, a funny comic singer; Miss Bessie Travis, lady ventriloquist; and Mr. G. H. Keith, ballad vocalist.

ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr. J. Peace.—Mr. Joshua Dyson's Diorama and choir are still delighting big houses with excellent and varied programmes.

THE PAVILION.—As a picture theatre, pure and simple, this establishment is a great success.

SHREWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—The sensational drama, Partners in Crime, is being played here this week by Mr. H. Keates Hale's capable company, and proves a popular show. Mr. Frank Englesfield plays with ability the part of the satanic Dr. Mortimer Caine; Mr. A. J. Ede is an excellent Philip Bardsley; Mr. Lewis de Burgh a manly and talented Jack Brandon; Mr. Wm. Walters acts cleverly as Capt. Tom Cornise; Mr. Fred Joyce merits praise as Nicholas Pickles; Mr. Wm. Passmore performs creditably the part of Joe Norton; Mr. H. Claude Merton is a jovial and successful Irishman as Tom O'Mallory; Mr. Claude Merton makes a capital policeman; Miss V. Winifred Hamilton acts capably as Mrs. Brandon; Mrs. Maud Buchanan as Ruth Maitland in a trying part performs it with power and success; Miss Dorothy Lesleigh makes a bright and lively Pollie Prince, and Miss Violet Leslie is pleasing and meritorious as Dora Bardsley.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. George Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—By arrangement with Mr. George Alexander, three delightful performances of His House in Order have been given by Mr. Herbert Ralland and company. Miss Kitty Cavendish as Nina won repeated applause for a highly commendable portrayal; Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont's ability is cleverly displayed as Hilary Jesson; Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves as Filmer Jesson, M.P., was creditable; Mr. Randolfe Reade was well suited as Major Maurewarde; Messrs. T. Langford Browne, Dudley Stuart, and L. Wallis were capable; and Misses Peggy Rae, Avis Grahame, Victoria Wray, and Katie Neville maintained their respective characters capably. A three nights' engagement of The Belle of Mayfair commenced on Thursday.

THE KURSAAL. — Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—Commencing on Monday, two evening programmes are now submitted, and reduced prices of admission augur well for increased support. A special feature of this week's capital entertainment is the Bioscope pictures; Miss Rosie Rosedale has a good reception for descriptive songs; Miss Bessie Neilson wins hearty applause with illustrated songs; Miss Phyllis is a miniature danseuse who merits applause; Mr. A. W. Reed entertains as a lightning artist, his pictures and smoke and colour painting being particularly good; Mr. Tricks is closely watched in his illusions and magical wonders; and the Dahomey Warriors prove delightful in their receptions.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless; Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—This week's entertainment is entirely devoted to pictures by the Anglo-American Animated Picture Co. Among a long series that affords unusual interest are the excellent films dealing with the Life on a Submarine, the Harlequin's Love Story, and the Sports at the White City.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—Hardie and Von Leer's original company is here this week in Two Little Vagabonds, which was well received by a large audience on Monday. In the rôle of Marion Thornton Miss Florence Dalton played exceedingly well, the pathetic and emotional scenes being very effectively depicted; and Mr. Richard A. Greene portrayed George Thornton with convincing force. The name-parts were capitally delineated by Miss Denise Zaleski and Miss Alice Leon as Dick and Wally respectively; Captain Darville was admirably impersonated by Mr. Arthur E. Melborne; Miss Marion Fawcett was seen to advantage as Barbara Scarth; Mr. Martin Sands is a successful representative of Bill Mullins, and is ably seconded by Miss Marie Pritchard as Biddy Mullins; Mr. Stanley Field and Mr. Fred Archer are brisk and alert as Dido Bunce and the Coughdrop. The minor parts are well played.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company in The Breed of the Treshams is here. Lieut. Beresby is strikingly depicted by Mr. Sydney Bland; Batty is skilfully portrayed by Miss Grace Harlington; Miss Mildred Hodson is a charming and powerful Margaret; the Viscount Dorsington of Mr. Alfred Holles is a spirited interpretation; Mr. W. R. Winning as Clement Hungerford, Mr. George Trail as Sir Henry Curwen, and Mr. Howard Brennan as Francis Tresham are all well placed. The minor parts are in good hands.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The Lukushima Troupe, introducing Otara San, in some clever acrobatic feats, is easily first; Mr. Gus Garrick takes the house by storm; Mendel, the blind pianist, makes a great impression; and good artists are Jock Mills, Scotch comedian; Harry May Hemsley, a clever mimic; Probyn and Bates, in comedy, vocal, and dancing act; Tennyson and Wallis, comedians, and Marie Wilton, comedienne and dancer. The Bioscope is admired.

TIVOLI, LAYGATE LANE.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall.—The Three Moxons, clever acrobats, tumblers, and dancers, are very popular here; Rob Campbell, a comedian and one-legged dancer, provides an interesting turn; and the rest of the entertainment is provided by the Tivoloscope.

COSY CORNER, SEA FRONT. — Mr. Geo. Burton's clever comedians bring their season to a close this week, and still hold their audiences by their concerted numbers, witty sayings, and patter, concluding their performance with a strong sketch.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. H. Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—Mrs. Frank Bateman and Stuart Lomath's company provides the attraction here with No Wedding Bells for Her. As Frank Hatherleigh Mr. Stuart Lomath is excellent; and as Lola Miss Lizzie Montague gives a fine performance. The other parts are well played by Messrs. Percy Shaw, G. Harvey, Edward Vivian, George Herbert, and Harry G. Momber, and Misses Cicily Clutterbuck, Ellen Owen, and Nellie Wilson. On Wednesday and Thursday Sapho will be played, with Miss Montague in the title-rôle.

STAFFORD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Sapho, as presented by the stock company, met with a good reception on Monday. Mr. Edwin Turner's Jean was an able study; Miss Lallah Davies made an enthralling Sapho; Mr. Edwin Warden's Dechelette was convincingly good; Mr. Johnny McElroy gave fine zest to the character of Césaire; and Mr. Fred Carroll's Hettéma was clever. As Alice Miss Mabel Marte proved her ability as an emotional actress; and as Cleopatra Miss Dora Moorhouse did well.

STALYBRIDGE. — HIPPODROME. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—Wyndham and Kitty perform a number of clever feats on the aeriel wire; the Burgons, speciality couple, must be congratulated on the rapidity and completeness of their changes of costume; Stanley's Urchins are warmly applauded for their harmony and dancing act; Du Roche is a favourite burlesque artist; and Frank Soleby, mimic, Frank Newbury, comedian and siffleur, and the McConnell Family, vocal comedians, also entertain.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader.—Are You a Mason? is the special attraction at the theatre this week, Mr. Charles Macdona's company appearing in the production. Mr. E. H. Paterson is excellent as Amos Bloodgood; and as Frank Perry Mr. Francis J. Bithel proves himself a capable actor. Mr. H. Langdon Bruce is the life of the piece as the irrepressible George Fisher; and Mr. G. P. Polson is very funny as John Halton. Miss Adelaide Grace acts with becoming dignity as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood; and Miss Rita Narcelle and Miss Rita Johnson are sweet and pretty and very natural as Eva and Annie respectively. Miss Dulcie Verney is an attractive Lulu; and Miss Viola Garland a graceful Mrs. Halton. Miss Mary Kilpack is amusing as Lottie. The curtain-raiser, A Bad Penny, is excellently played.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—The programme this week is headed by the Norman Leonard Trio, who are pleasing in musical sketches; H. O. Wills receives a warm welcome; Maud Courtney recites and sings well; Mr. C. has some amusing stories to tell; Lucy Coventry dances prettily; and good turns are given by Arthur Woodville, Moxford and O'Neill, and Robert Dohn.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—The visit here this week of Tom Jones has been anticipated with a marked degree of pleasure, and as represented by Mr. Mouillot's company has commanded enthusiastic praise from crowded audiences. As Benjamin Partridge Mr. Geo. Elton makes a great success, his every saying and movement being provocative of hearty laughter. Mr. Cyril Thompson acts and sings ably as Tom Jones; Mr. Michael Dyer is an excellent Gregory; and Squire Western is satisfactorily portrayed by Mr. Fred Seymour. Miss Olive Elton acts with delightful charm and ability as Lady Bellaston; as Sophia Miss Margaret Stonor's vocalism is highly appreciated; whilst Miss Florrie Saunders is exceedingly pleasing as Honour.

EMPIRE. — Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—A capital all-round company is appearing here this week. The Robertys, in their clever balancing and juggling act, head the bill, which also includes Rose and Calvert, who are very amusing in their burlesque; Martinett and Wallace, coloured musical entertainers of ability; Hans and Lux, amusing patterers; Les Zelovas, acrobatic equilibrists, who accomplish several smart feats; a pleasing Irish comedienne in Eileen Bernard; the Allisons, successful character duettists and dancers; Flo Hilton, an entertaining male impersonator; and Harrigan and Holt, comedians and dancers.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—CASTLE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson and company appeared here on Monday in the romantic drama, Who is She? Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson, author of the play, takes the leading part as Prince Bora, and gives a good representation; Mr. Graham Woods as King Vladimir gives a good rendering; Mr. Sinclair Holden as Captain Arthur Gower is very successful; Miss Violet Carlyle plays the title-rôle with dramatic skill; and is ably supported by Miss Alice Barber as Countess Ladori, Miss Mabel Ronald as the Little King, Miss Mary Collier as Sarette, and Messrs. Arthur McCulloch as Sergeant Metroff and J. Russell Bogue as Chang-Tee.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—The Seven Perezoffs head the bill in an artistic juggling speciality, A Supper at Maxim's; the Four Maisanos, musical eccentrics, are very clever, and receive encores; the Wakeman Quintette sing well; the Sisters Terry, vocalists and mimics, delight the audience; Ted Curtis and Picaninnies are very amusing; Onda and Artell, in a gymnastic pot-pourri act, do daring feats; Vowles and Bryan, comedian and comedienne, have some funny patter; and the Bioscope is up to its usual standard.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company produces this week a stirring drama, entitled A Touch of Nature, which is well received by large audiences. The leading characters are in the able hands of Mr. Ernest Wingfield, Mr. Fred Terriss, Mr. H. Hesslegrave, Miss Lilian Beaumont, Miss Sassie Evans, and Miss Lina Nazeby. Payne's Bio-Photoscope concludes with an excellent picture, Vengeance is Mine.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Muller.—The character-sketches (with effects) by Mr. Leo Dryden are most entertaining. His répertoire includes A White Man, The Only Way, Sherlock Holmes, &c. The Davis and Gledhill Trio appear on their roller cycling track, on which also competitions are held nightly. Cumminger and Colonna are seen to advantage in a singing and dancing act; Nellie Walton, "singing mill girl," has a nice voice; the Lauri Bros., in some new and smart acrobatic feats, are clever; Willard's Marionettes cause much amusement; and the Two Kays, Ernesto, and the Bioscope are also to be noted.

STOURBRIDGE. — ALHAMBRA THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—Miss Maude Hildyard and company are playing The Great Awakening. Lola Selby is undertaken by Miss Hildyard, who is also part author of the play. Her acting is of a high standard, and arouses the enthusiasm of a full house. The dual rôle of Sir Henry and Jack Merton is undertaken by Mr. Cecil Grey with great credit; Mr. Wallis Clarke is a sinister James Selby; and Mr. Dudley Wynton submits an interesting study of Captain Harry Lambert. Mr. Tracy Barrow proves vastly diverting as Billy Brass, and receives excellent support from Miss Cissy Podmore as Selina. Miss F. Garnet Vayne gives a sympathetic reading of Molly Merton

STROUD.—SUBSCRIPTION ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. H. J. Twitchett.—On Saturday, the 19th, Miss Harriet Greet's company was here with The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Wallace G. Court submitted a careful and convincing study of Marcus Superbus; clever character impersonations of Tigellinus and Licenius were given by Messrs. G. Osmond Tearle and Rupert Carlton respectively; Mr. Burton W. Yaldwyn acquitted himself admirably as Nero; and much amusement was extracted from the part of Glabrio by Mr. Donald McAdam. Highly commendable were Messrs. W. Burton as Favius, Edward Clowes as Titus, Alex. Taylor as Servilius, and Francis Leslie as Strabo. Miss Vera Crichton (Mercia) was sympathetic and natural; and Miss Effie Dane represented Stephanus with much ability.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. Walter Dean.—Charley's Aunt, played by Mr. Brandon Thomas's company, has attracted good houses here this week. The title-rôle is played by Mr. G. A. Sagar, who enters so keenly into the humour of the part that he keeps the audience convulsed. He receives excellent support from Messrs. Hastings, Lynn, and Basil Lynton, who, as Jack and Charley, are always in evidence. Miss Oliver Glynn makes a winsome Kitty; and Miss Grace Russell as Amy acts with charm. Mr. Theo. McCausland Stewart is capital as Sir Francis Chesney; another excellent delineation is Mr. Sydney Compton's Brusse; Mr. Roy Byford (Stephen Spettigue), Miss Vera Gerald (Donna Lucia), and Miss Evelyn Gray (Ella) maintain well the standard of the company. Charley's Aunt is preceded by The Lancashire Sailor.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is responsible for the capital production of The Little Breadwinner this week. In the title-rôle little Minnie Crisp acts with grace and ability; Lord William Dorrington finds a capable impersonator in Mr. H. B. Peppin; and Mr. Reginald Brown as Richard Lawrence acts naturally throughout. Mr. Sidney Lynn as Charles Prior is a real comedian.

THE EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—Gustave Fasola heads the bill this week in his extraordinary illusions, with which mirth and melody are agreeably combined; Carney and Armstrong provide excellent fare, singing, dancing, and whistling well; Duncan and Godfrey are dispensers of Cockney humour, and in their sketch Me and 'Er are distinctly clever; Fred Keeton is full of eccentricities, and has good songs; the Eight Lancashire Lads' dancing is much beyond the ordinary; Leo Tell, a mimic of great powers; Madge Osmond, a dandy, who does particularly well; and the Bioscope complete.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Heading the bill at the above this week is Brinn, who gives a sensational balancing act, entitled Pastimes on a Battleship. Chas. Williams, comedian, does well; Effie White is effective in her kaleidoscope dance; W. Ellis is a clever comedian; Fred and Lulu Camplin, a musical comedy couple, are exceedingly smart; Jack Rae, with comedy act on the rings, wins approval; Rosine Devere, vocalist, meets with appreciation; a turn of excellence is that of Stowe Bros., novelty equilibrists; and the Empire Bioscope depicts the production of the Football Star.

G.W.R. MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—Secretary, Mr. H. J. Southwell.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, including Miss Empsie Bowman, Miss Nellie Bowman, and Mr. Dan Agar, was billed here for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in the popular musical comedy The Dairymaids.

TON-Y-PANDY.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. S. Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Watson.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, in A Soldier's Honour, is proving a powerful attraction. Mr. Kimberley as Captain Deane is fully capable; and the Captain Temple of Mr. T. Ellis is also a meritorious assumption. As the villain, Henry Thornton, Mr. H. Percy is a great success; Mr. H. Lyndon is highly amusing as Lieutenant Percy Prattle; and as Smartz Mr. F. Mewburn adds to the comedy element of the piece; Miss E. Barton gives a thoroughly sympathetic interpretation of Doreen Illingworth; and Mrs. Kimberley plays with remarkable force as Cora Lee. The Gwendoline Temple of Miss Bales is agreeably light and bright.

HIPPODROME. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Tudor's educated ponies provide a smart act, which is well received; Jack and May McKenzie score heavily in their duologue; Bunsen and Burner are much applauded; Mat Merry Mount and Geo. Grenville add considerably to the evening's success. Of the pictures, pride of place is given to Foul Play, and Through the North is also good.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Mr. George Alexander's company is drawing crowded houses with performances of The Thief. Miss Marie Polini gives an excellent impersonation of Marise Chelford; Mr. Rupert Lister also deserves the highest praise for a finished representation of Richard Chelford; Mr. Cyril Harcourt is decidedly good as Raymond Leyton; Miss Jean Cadell makes a clever study of Isabel; and Mr. Owen Nares is a typical Harry Leyton. The excellent setting of the piece is much admired.

PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, The Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T Tremlett.—The Olympian Entertainers commenced a fortnight's engagement here on Monday. Miss Bertha Callen renders some pleasing light-comedy songs in a dainty and piquant style; Miss Haidee St. George is also applauded for her soprano singing; Mrs. Paul Mill at the piano is a clever accompanist; and Mr. Robert Macaig is frequently encored. Mr. Harry Harmer is amusing in some clever songs and Mr. J. G. Taylor evokes hearty laughter. Mr. Paul Mill's character sketches are very humorous.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale; Manager, Mr. A. H. Burdett.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, in Mrs. Dot, has had a most appreciative reception this week. Miss Decima Moore is as charming as ever in the title-rôle; and Miss Emma Hutchison herself gives a very clever study of Lady Sellenger. Miss Ethel Grahame ably cooperates in mantaining the love interest, and is particularly good as Nellie Sellenger; while Miss Celia Gordon gives a successful interpretation of Eliza MacGregor. Mr. Frank Lacy is responsible for a very realistic and excellent portrayal of James Blenkinsop; and Mr. James Gelderd gives an admirable impersonation of Gerald Halstane. Mr. Philip Leslie's comedy powers are well displayed in the part of Freddie Perkins; Mr. H. A. Sampson and Mr. R. V. Cortland are excellent as dunning tradesmen; and the other characters are well sustained by Mr. W. Midgeley, Mr. K. Brandon, and Mr. F. Abbott.

TYLDESLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. W. Brierley, A. Brierley, and W. German; Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn and company in A Beautiful Fiend are here on a welcome return visit. Mr. Beaudyn fills the rôle of Major Ivan Paulovitch with conspicuous success; Mr. G. M. Montanina is an earnest and impressive Count Fedor Karateff; Sergius Strogoff is presented in capable fashion by Mr. Frank Holyoake; Mr. James Burt is admirable as Malachi; Miss Irene Munroe gives a clever rendering of Nadine Strogoff; Miss Marie Robson shows ability as Wanda Lubinoff; Miss Cecilia Crawford is excellent as Paddy Woodlands; Mr. Arthur Tomlin causes laughter as Crackles; and the minor parts are in good hands.

TYNEMOUTH. — PALACE-BY-THE-SEA.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—This week the Jamaicans, some dozen or thereabouts of coloured artists, who appear in native costume, are agreeably prominent as coon singers, dancers, &c. Vallance, mimic and magician; and Mumford's wire act are also good. The animated pictures are still a strong feature. The benefit last week to the urbane manager, Mr. Lindon Travers, was quite a success.

WAKEFIELD. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Clifton Aldersons company in the drama The Coal King is here this week. Mr. Alderson acquits himself in excellent fashion as Tom Roberts; Mr. George Hanbury does good work as the villain, Walter Harford; Mr. Sam Roberts ably depicts the rôle of Jim Williams, creating much laughter; Mr. Frank Dalton gives a clever impersonation as Dick Shirley; Mr. Ulrick Burke is successful as Sir Reginald; and Miss Winifred Love submits a charming and sympathetic conception of Grace Shirley.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—A sketch, Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, presented by Messrs. Arnold Richardson, A. Gordon Laws, and Miss Ethel Lonsdale, has a capital reception; Spry and Monti, comedy artists, give a popular turn; Spira, one-legged acrobat, wins applause; Miss Chummie La Mara, comedienne, gives some clever songs; Percy Johnson, comedian, is amusing; the Reays are smart on the silver chains; and Will Serjeant, vocalist, merits favour.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. John Leopold's company is reappearing here this week in the musical absurdity New Frivolity. The fun is as fast and as furious as ever, and the members of the company maintain the high standard of efficiency which characterised their previous visits. On Monday night the principals were all recalled. The new business introduced lends a freshness which makes the play as welcome as ever. The Houseboat is a delightful curtain-raiser, and the company scores an all-round success.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—The Tally-Ho Trio of vocalists are charming huge houses here this week with their delightful singing. Kelly and Ashby are a capital pair of acrobats, and their act, Fun in a Billiard Saloon, is very amusing. Bertha Winder is a rare exponent of the terpsichorean art; Dolly and Elsie are dainty duettists; and Cullen and Carthy and Little Cluley, old favourites here, score with their cross-talk. The Three Sisters Silcott are capital vocalists; and Jock Walker an expert mimic and whistler. The pictures showing the Story of a Lost Overcoat are amusing.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—Mr. Frank J. Pitt's company, in £1,000 Reward, is drawing favourable houses here this week. The acting of Miss Kathryne Eckart in the rôle of Mme. Sanson evokes continuous applause; a talented artist is seen in Miss Alice Clarke as Mrs. McCarthy; and as Kitty Springthorpe Miss Minnie Goepel contributes praiseworthily; Gilbert Lisle being artistically portrayed by Mr. J. Wilton. Mr. Edward de Vere as Fred Ingleford and Mr. W. Gibson as his son are highly commendable in their respective parts. An excellent interpretation of Vincent Rainsworth is submitted by Mr. Frank J. Pitt; Mr. Arthur Merton is responsible for some good humour in his representation of Fighting Jepps; and the important part of Meg, the flower girl, is adequately portrayed by Miss Marjorie Seymour. The scenery and effects are excellent.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Musical Play entitled
"THE MERRY WIDOW."

The Merry Widow has proved very attractive here. The theatre has been crowded nightly, and record attendances have ruled. Mr. George Edwardes has sent out an extremely capable company, with costumes and scenery which are elaborate and expensive. These, added to the bright music of Franz Lehar, have been amply sufficient to keep audiences in excellent humour. Mr. Leonard Mackay shines brilliantly as Prince Danilo, his easy style of acting and pleasant singing being of first-class quality. As the Vicomte Camille de Jolidon Mr. W. Tailleur Andrews secures much favour, his voice being heard to great advantage in his several songs. A really droll Nisch is Mr. W. H. Rawlins, at whose performance the audience is highly amused; Mr. Somers Bellamy is a good Marquis de Cascada, and M. de St. Brioche is well played by Mr. Norman Greene; Mr. Theodore Leonard is a capital General Novakovitch; M. Khadja is ably interpreted by Mr. Robert Whitehouse; an immense hit is made by Mr. Eric Thorne as the Marsovian Ambassador, Baron Popoff, whose sallies and gags keep the audience in hearty laughter; Mr. Robert Rous makes a comical waiter at Maxim's; Miss Constance Drever in the title-rôle bewitches everyone by her fascinating portrait of Sonia. Whether as actress or singer, she is simply delightful, and there can be no question that, so far as the King's is concerned, her success is unequivocal and complete. Natalie is pleasingly represented by Miss Ethel Cadman; the rôle of Olga is satisfactorily sustained by Miss Sylvia May; and Miss Kathleen Courtenay is a charming Sylvaine. The girls at Maxim's are handsome and picturesquely gowned, adding much to the general brilliancy of the scene. Miss Vivienne Tailleur as Frou-Frou contributes a spirited dance. The chorus is carefully selected, and the orchestra, under the masterly direction of Mr. A. McCunn, does its duty admirably.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Drury Lane Drama entitled
"THE SINS OF SOCIETY."

Mr. F. W. Bolam presents this Drury-lane drama, by Messrs. Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton, at the Notting Hill Gate theatre this week, and it is hugely appreciated by crowded houses. It is staged, mounted, and dressed on a lavish scale of magnificence, and it is wonderful how much is made of the small stage-space at command in some of the big scenes, such as Longchamps race-course, the Weir, and the sinking of the good ship Beachy Head. A more thrilling and exciting drama of action could not be wished for, nor is love interest lacking, and an excellent company take the piece at the rattling pace necessary to reach the goal of success in this kind of drama. It's success on the road may be safely predicted. Miss Grace E. Leslie acts with great tensity and force, allied to a certain charm of dignity and sweetness, as the hapless victim of extravagance, Lady Marion Beaumont, and contributes a most engrossing embodiment. Miss Pattie Browne is delightfully bright and breezy as the tender-hearted and wealthy widow Lady Goldbury, and here is a comedienne with a rare sense of humour, vivacity, and nous. Miss Dorothy Giles is a very sweet and gentle heroine, Lady Gwendolen Ashley; and Miss Mabel Murray as the bridge-playing Mrs. Murgatroyd, Miss Janet Hodson as the snobbish "Carrotty" Caroline, Duchess of Danebury, are distinctly good. Mr. E. Vassall-Vaughan acts with great verve and enthusiasm as the heroic young soldier Sir Dorian March, and creates an excellent impression of strength and resource. Mr. C. F. Collings gives a very clever and polished portraiture of the somewhat remarkable villainy embodied in the person of Mr. Noel Ferrers. Mr. Blake Adams causes roars of laughter by his persistent and untiring efforts to capture the heart of the little widow Lady Goldbury at the price of much physical discomfort. Mr. James Percy, who stage manages the show, does well in the small part of Captain Carruthers; Mr. George A. Brandram is good as Sergeant Wrangham; and Mr. Walter Shomberg as Colonel Gretton; whilst a word of praise is due to Mr. Edward P. Gee for his clever character-sketch of the butler Parker, and to Mr. Frederick Annerley for a very natural and even performance as the money-lender Mr. Morris. Mr. Edwin Palmer makes a most impressive figure of the Rev. Martin Hope. Mr. L. Ashton-Jarry is manager for Mr. Bolam.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Revival of the Drama, by the late Henry Pettitt, entitled "HANDS ACROSS THE SEA."

Jack Dudley	Mr. Rawson Buckley
Joseph Stillwood	Mr. Adam Alexander
Robert Stillwood	Mr. G. Clifton Boyne
Tom Bassett	Mr. Cecil A. Collins
Jean de Lussac	Mr. Clive Currie
Dick Melford	Mr. Frank Woodville
Captain Lane	Mr. Robert Hunter
Count Paul de Renai	Mr. Edmond Beresford
Governor	Mr. Forrester Harvey
Lieutenant Victor	Mr. John Wilson
The French Minister	Mr. Lionel Hutchinson
Hiram Hickory	Mr. A. L. Burke
French Waiter	Mr. Arthur Blair
1st Mate	Mr. Stanley Brew
Inspector Thompson	Mr. Henry Willis
Lieutenant Mayne	Mr. Olfred Ritson
Port Official	Mr. Hugh Grimshaw
Lillian Melford	Miss Beatrice Whitney
Lucy Nettleford	Miss Lilla Nordon
Mme. Vallerie	Miss Marjorie Davenporte
Polly	Miss Kirsteen Græme

Mr. Cecil A. Collins, with an admirably-selected company, has revived, after a period of rest extending over twelve years, that excellent drama by that excellent writer, the late Henry Pettitt, entitled Hands Across the Sea. The Dalston Theatre audience on Monday night accorded a most hearty reception to the piece, and the fact may be accepted as a happy augury of future success. Mr. Cecil A. Collins has undertaken the part of Tom Bassett, a most lovable character. He is the big Devonshire fellow who is in love with the heroine of the piece, Lilian Melford; who leaves England for Australia in the full assurance that the woman he loves will wait for him; who returns to find her the wife of another man, and that man his old friend; but who, despite all this bitter disappointment, proves that he can not only "to himself be true," but to his friends also. Mr. Collins fully deserves the ovation he receives. Miss Beatrice Whitney plays Lillian Melford successfully. She hits the part off most accurately, and the spirit of devotion which she displays is very estimable. The Jack Dudley of Mr. Rawson Buckley is an admirable impersonation, and he succeeds in making himself decidedly popular with the audience. He has the sympathy of all from the moment that he is falsely accused of the murder of the satanic Count Paul de Renai—a part, by the way, well sustained by Mr. Edmond Beresford—and the onlookers are not content until he is fully righted. Robert Stillwood, the upstart son of a crafty farmer, is played by Mr. Clifton Boyne with a degree of studied villainy which is quite fascinating in its intensity. Mr. Adam Alexander portrays Joseph Stillwood's cunning and rascality with convincing effect. Mr. Clive Currie's Jean de Lussac is a carefully thought out piece of work. His outburst of passionate hatred and violent rage is a powerful feature of the convict scene. Mr. Frank Woodville's Dick Melford, otherwise known as the "Australian King," is a pleasing Colonial study, and his favourite expression, "Forward Australia!" evidently awakens an ardent response among many who follow the development of the story. Miss Lila Nordon is very vivacious as Lucy Nettleford, and her scenes with the worthy Tom Bassett, to whom she is eventually engaged, are among the brightest interludes in the performance. Miss Kirsteen Græme is sprightly as Polly, and Miss Marjorie Davenporte's treatment of the character of Mme. Vallerie provides evidence of careful study. Mr. F. Harvey, Mr. J. Wilson, Mr. A. L. Burke, Mr. Arthur Blair (a French waiter), Mr. Henry Willis, Mr. A. Ritson, and Mr. Hugh Grimshaw (Port official) also appear creditably in the parts allotted to them. The scenery, by Mr. Charles J. Sayer, also claims favourable notice, the deck of a steamship and a view of Sydney Harbour, Australia, appearing to please the audience most. Some excellent selections of music are performed during the evening.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Sept. 21, Shakespeare's Tragedy,
"HAMLET."

The seating capacity of the Shakespeare Theatre has been strained to its utmost capacity this week on the first visit to Clapham of Mr. H. B. Irving, Miss Dorothea Baird, and company, with a répertoire of plays with which the reputation of the late Sir H. Irving is so closely associated. The old Lyceum traditions are kept fully alive by the worthy son of a worthy father, and the enthusiastic reception accorded Mr. Irving by Clapham playgoers was a striking tribute to the excellence of his art. For the opening performance Shakespeare's great tragedy, Hamlet, was chosen, and Mr. H. B. Irving's study of the melancholy Dane was marked by great variety of treatment. He suggested with artistic restraint the brooding nature of the character, and the intensity of his acting held the audience completely in thrall. His admirable elocution stood him in good stead from first to last, and his sterling performance was loudly cheered by a discriminating audience. Miss Dorothea Baird gave a touching rendering of the part of Ophelia, and shared the honours with her husband. Her rendering of the rôle was shaded with that delicacy of touch that betokens the gifted actress, and her playing in the mad scene made a deep impression, the applause at the conclusion being very emphatic. Mr. Frank Tyars was realistic in his impersonation of the saturnine King of Denmark, every phase of the character being carefully embodied in his delineation. Mr. Tom Reynolds gave distinction to the rôle of Polonius, and acquitted himself with decided success. His acting throughout was excellent, and he made every point in the dialogue tell. Mr. Eric Maxon supplied a sound performance as Laertes; and Mr. Stanley Howlett ably depicted the nobility of character of Horatio. The oddities of First and Second Gravediggers were admirably rendered by Mr. Charles Didsworth and Mr. H. Cook; and the excellent delivery of Mr. Frank Cochrane as the Ghost stimulated interest. Mr. J. Patrick Curwen, Mr. Arthur Curtis, and Mr. Frank Randell as Courtiers were deserving of warm praise; and good support was also given by Mr. C. Stevens and Mr. P. Walder as Officers, and Mr. B. A. Pittar and Mr. W. Cass as First and Second Players. Miss Eily Maylon played the part of the Queen of Denmark in a manner that was thoroughly in keeping with the character; and Miss E. Frances Davis was satisfactory as the Player Queen. The minor parts were capably sustained, and the mounting of the play was all that could be desired. During the week Mr. H. B. Irving also presented The Bells, Louis XI., and Charles I., and at each performance large audiences have been attracted. Mr. W. T. Cunningham is business-manager, and Mr. Tom Reynolds stage-manager for Mr. H. B. Irving; and Mr. H. Percival Young is acting-manager for Messrs. Bennett and Bennett.

THE PAVILION.

"TWO LANCASHIRE LASSES IN LONDON."

For the current week the audience of the Pavilion are enjoying a visit from Hardie and Von Leer's company in Two Lancashire Lasses in London, which contains a strong stirring story, dealing with the life in the great Metropolis. The play is excellently produced, the setting of Jago Court being especially effective. The persecuted inventor, John Edmunds, is well played by Mr. Herbert Pearson; and the kind-hearted Rev. Frank Selby is made the most of by Mr. E. Rayson Cousens, who becomes a great favourite. Mr. Chris Mason supplies plenty of humour as Samuel Hallett, being well assisted by Miss Evelyn Shaw as Jane Broomfield. Mr. Harry Mann is a satisfactory Edward Langley; Mr. Jack Miller is resourceful as Jim Price; Mr. Walter Walmesley is a capable Ratty Gabbitt; and Mr. Ronald Clive is a competent Jellaby. The scheming Jonas Deane is played with vigour by Mr. Fred Morgan; and a character study of much neatness is presented by Mr. Dick Winslow as Dr. Gay. In the title-rôle Miss Rosslyn Vayne is excellent as Constance; and Miss Alice Defoe is pathetically good as Nellie. Bessie Edmunds is portrayed with much emotion by Miss Marguerite Trevosper; and Miss Marie Corri as the suffering child Lucy does very well. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Victor Vorzanger, renders with effect many fine selections.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Play, in Four Acts, by F. A. Scudamore, entitled
"THE BEAUTIFUL AVENGER."

Mr. Tom A. Taylor's company is playing in a dramatised version of F. Scudamore's novel. The play makes more than the average demand on one's credulity, and does not even disdain the aid of "parlour-magic"; but it possesses some few situations for dramatic effect. Mr. Leonard Robson plays gallantly the part of Cyrus Telford; Mr. Arthur Estcourt and Mr. Allen Davenport make the most of the villainous Foxbanes, father and son; Mr. Newman Maurice extracts some fun out of the rôle of Peregrine Patch; and Mr. Lionel Ernest represents, with much ability, a very depraved specimen of humanity in the shape of Jim Jhams, chronic inebriate and tramp. Miss Ida Taylor does well as the boy, Baldie Mansfield; Miss Lorna Treherne makes use of her opportunities as Edna Volta, a part with a strong feminine interest; and Miss May Ellis is bright and amusing in the comic part of Arabella Binks. Miss Grace Murielle acts cleverly in the double rôle of Vashti Volta and (in man's attire) of Victor Stanhope.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

"HER LOVE AGAINST THE WORLD."

Mr. Sam Barnard must be congratulated on securing Messrs. W. H. Hallett and Walter Howard's principal company in this interesting and well-written military drama, supported as it is by a powerful cast. Besides being cleverly acted, the play is lavishly uniformed and excellently mounted, and puts forth strong claims on the attention of the theatre-going public, who are ever ready to respond when a first-class performance is brought before their notice. Consequently, full houses are the order of the evening. Eric, Earl of Strathmere is judiciously portrayed by Mr. Fred Emery, who supplies a clever study of an honourable and manly soldier of fortune; Miss Bessie St. John is soon on good terms with the audience, and essays the rôle of Nella with pathos and dramatic feeling; Ulric, Prince of Ravensburg, an unscrupulous villain, is capably undertaken by Mr. Lewis Gilbert, who besides possessing a fine presence delivers his lines with marked effect. Mr. W. H. Hallatt is successful as Prince Ottmar, and acts with sincerity and earnestness; Mr. Victor Rowland also makes a favourable impression as Prince Maurice; Mr. Henry B. Lewis and Mr. John Mill as Heinrick and Fitz Pimpernickle respectively provide the comic relief in conjunction with Miss Gertie Reid and Miss Hettie Fergusson in their respective characters of Katinka and Gretchen. Miss Grace Heywood gives a good delineation of the character of Iris, the much-perturbed Princess of Idalia. Mr. Charles R. Hann and Miss Nellie Fletcher also render excellent assistance.

ROYAL ARTILLERY, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Musical Comedy entitled
"FLORODORA."

Mr. Charles Constant's No. 1 company, in the ever-welcome Florodora, is proving a great attraction at this house. Gaiety, charm, lilting refrains, pretty dresses, and artistic mounting still combine to maintain the firm hold this play has always had on popular favour. Mr. Gus Danby is quite in his element as that quaint individual Anthony Tweedlepunch, and imparts much humour to the character; Cyrus G. Gilfain is capably undertaken by Mr. Jack Parker; Mr. Martin D. Pitt shows to advantage in the part of Frank Abercoed, his songs being well received; Mr. Stanley Bartram is successful as Capt. Arthur Donegal, and is happily suited in the song "I want to be a military man"; Mr. Emlyn Davis does justice to the rôle of Leandro. Miss Daisy Lake offers a bright and lively impersonation of the character of Dolores, and submits an excellent rendering of her numerous numbers; Miss Lille Blythe essays the rôle of Lady Holyrood with charm and vivacity, and gives a clever impersonation, her song "Tact" being rendered with marked effect. Miss Louie Danby submits a good characterisation of Angela Gilfain, equally pleasing in song and dance. Other members of the cast are well placed, and may be congratulated on their share of the work.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Sept. 21, a Play, in Four Acts, by Thomas Raceward, entitled
"SUNDAY."

Mr. Louis Calvert's company in Sunday is this week's attraction here, and the return visit of this delightful play is very welcome. Large and well-pleased audiences are present at each performance. Miss Marjorie Murray now plays the title-rôle, and is very charming in it. Sunday wins all hearts at the opening of the play, and holds them firmly at the finish. Mr. William Giffard enacts Colonel Brinthorpe with ease and finish, and has a warm reception; as has Mr. J. N. Walter, who now represents Tom Oxley in capital style. Mr. Wilson Blake is the Arthur Brinthorpe, and plays the part admirably. Mr. James Skea is very good as Towser; Mr. A. Cotton Homes presents a good portrayal of Davy; Mr. James Hussey is a lovable Lively; and the quartette of "boys" is completed by Jackey, depicted with skill and effect by Mr. Alec Alves. Mr. Thomas Nixon is good as Abbot; and Mr. Harry Lenton is satisfactory as Robert. Miss Lila Barclay is a charming nun; and Miss Helen G. Edwins is all that can be desired as Mrs. Naresby. The scenery and appointments are capital. The production is under the direction of Mr. J. N. Walter, Mr. James Hussey being stage-manager. Mr. Bertram Iles is the courteous resident-manager.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, entitled
"A LION'S HEART."

Mr. Henry Bedford, after a long absence, makes a welcome reappearance here, and as Rizardo, the lion tamer, is thoroughly well suited. He acts with earnestness and vigour, carrying the play along with great "go" and spirit. He is well supported by Mr. Stephen Scanlan, who, as Gaspard Dobre, gives a very finished and effective performance. Mr. Leonard Booker is excellent as Dick Lorimore; and the other members of a lengthy and excellent cast do well. Mr. Edward Lowrie is an amusing Timothy Puggs; Mr. Edgar C. Coyne is well suited to the character of Jack Bealby; and Mr. Archie Helsby plays admirably as Colonel Robert de Villefort. Mr. Robert Eyre is a clever Dobson; and Mr. John Belton is good as Daddy Mason. Other parts are well sustained by Mr. Peter Bennett (the ringmaster), Mr. Reginald Fletcher (Jean Lorrain), Mr. Chas. Flynn (Captain Gavarnas), and Mr. Patterson (Pitou). Miss Ada Oakley as Louise, and later as Marion, once more proves herself an actress of ability and personal charm; Miss Ida Bastow is very good as Hélène; and the Bessie of Miss Madge Beresford is bright and attractive. Little Gilbert is well acted by little Elsie May; Miss Beatrice Homes is excellent as Sister Gertrude; Miss Kitty Ross is well cast as Mme. le Cheminant; and the female convicts Louise and Adèle are well represented by Miss Edith Lambert and Miss Robinson respectively.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

"THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

Once again is drama triumphant at this playhouse, Mr. Walter Melville's play meeting with a favourable reception. The company is Mr. Douglas Bruce's, and a capital all-round interpretation is given of the piece. Miss Violet E. Lawson, in the title-rôle, scores well, and gives a striking picture of the wayward Molly Vernon. Mr. Edward Maclean is to be highly commended for his Rev. Robert Everton, and in the part of the wicked and unscrupulous Capt. Caversham Mr. Richard Ferris is villainous enough to rouse the opprobrium of all. Mr. Harold Macartney as Jack England proves a manly, virile, and soldier-like hero; Mr. George H. Asquin is clever and humorous as Dick Punch, being ably assisted by Miss Mary Poulton as Isabella Jones. Miss Lydia Mannington is a striking adventuress as Marian Franklyn; Miss Sybil Hare is capital as Rose Seymour; while Mr. George Mitchell is uncommonly good as James Sutton. The play is nicely mounted, and the scenery good

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 21,
"THE CHRISTIAN."

Mr. Wentworth Croke's new version of Hall Caine's great play, The Christian, has been the attraction at Kennington Theatre this week, and the hold which it possesses on the affections of the public has been amply shown by the large audiences which have nightly assembled. The new version is certainly an improvement on the original. Many of the crudities of the first production have been effaced, the story has been brought down to date, there are but thinly veiled allusions in the dialogue to Father Bernard Vaughan's crusade against the sins of Society, and the melodramatic episodes have been strengthened. A story of deep human interest, which stirs some of the deepest emotions in life, is vividly told, and in its telling becomes a great drama. It is safe to predict that the revived Christian will do big business throughout its tour. The play is splendidly mounted, and admirably presented by a company strong both in numbers and in talent. The grounds of Lord Storm's house make a picturesque Manxland set; the Foyer of the Frivolity Theatre is a faithful reproduction of a fashionable theatre; and the effect of the great scene in the final act is heightened by the Shrine of the Madonna at one side of the room. There is an abundance of powerful situations, there is much fine repartee, and the author's views find adequate expression by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. In the part of John Storm Mr. Roy Redgrave scores a veritable triumph, for he makes Hall Caine's hero step right out of the pages of the novel and live before one's eyes. A fine manly cleric is Mr. Redgrave, and he appeals with irresistible force to the popular fancy. The Glory Quayle of Miss Daisy Scudamore is excellent, and she holds the balance well between the wayward fancy of the girl anxious to enjoy life, and of the woman who, in her better moments, desires to share in the lot of the man she loves. Her histrionic powers are put to a severe test in her struggle for life, and she emerges from the ordeal with great success. Lord Robert Ure is ably impersonated by Mr. Herbert Hewetson. It is an unpleasant part, but Mr. Hewetson enacts it with great discretion. Miss Cora Deane makes a pathetic figure as Polly Love; and Miss Kitty Symons is a refined and graceful Lady Robert Ure. Archdeacon Wealthy is finely sketched by Mr. J. J. Hooker; Mr. F. Llewellyn gives a careful study of Father Lamplugh; Miss Molly Hayden faithfully interprets the role of the motherly Mrs. Callender; while Mr. Wilfred Noy is splendid as Mr. Drake. Miss Florence Hunt does full justice to the part of Black Meg; Mr. Royce Milton enacts Lord Storm with considerable power; Mr. Bruce Lindley is good as Parson Quayle; and the Bert of Mr. Fred Goodyer deserves a word. Miss Nellie Wyndham (Rosa Ray), Miss Muriel Marsden (Betty Belmont), and Miss Minnie Willett (Letty Belmont) are a trio of pretty and graceful girls; and Miss Ada Rose is a lively 'Liza. The other parts are all well taken.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Musical Comedy, by George Grossmith, jun., and L. E. Berman, entitled
"THE GIRLS OF GOTTENBERG."

We have a very powerful attraction here this week in the first visit to Peckham of the favourite Gaiety success, The Girls of Gottenberg, and the theatre has naturally been crowded in every part. Mr. George Dance's company present a splendid rendering of the piece. Miss Ellaline Thorne as Mitzi, the innkeeper's daughter, gives a delightful impersonation of the character, looking very fascinating, and rendering her various vocal numbers with much sweetness and cleverness; Miss May Marshall is a tall and prepossessing Clementine, and acts with much naturalness; while Miss Gladys Gay scores a great success as Elsa, her voice and appearance thoroughly suiting the rôle. Mr. Bertie Wright as the diminutive schemer, Max Moddelkopt, is the life and soul of the piece; he acts with much humour, and has a good singing voice. Mr. Tom Shelford thoroughly realises the rôle of the tall dandy, Prince Otto, and his topical song, "Jericho," is repeatedly encored. Mr. Howard Cridland furnishes a good character sketch as Sergeant Britti Botti; and Mr. Hugh Hinson sings well as Captain Albrich. Mr. David Miller as Colonel Finkhauser, Mr. Morgan Richards as the Burgomaster, and Mr. Tom Squire as Adolph ably aid in the fun-making. Miss Susie Raymond supplies some graceful solo dances. The chorus sing and dance admirably, and the augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Otto Manns. The two principal scenes, the Market Place and the Garden of the Red Hen, are very pretty pieces of brushwork.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, the Musical Play, by Victor Leon and Leo Stein, entitled
"THE MERRY WIDOW."

The beautifully decorated theatre at Kingston presented a brilliant appearance on Monday evening, when Mr. Peter Davey presented to his patrons Mr. George Edwardes' company, The Merry Widow. If the Kingston playgoers had journeyed to London to visit Daly's Theatre they would not have found a more finished performance. Mr. Peter Davey brings to the very doors of his patrons the latest London successes, and he should be rewarded by overwhelming audiences. The theatre itself is worthy of the name of the town, Kingstown or Kingston, and is equal to any West End theatre. While the comfort of his patrons is Mr. Davey's first care, his second care, that of the artists engaged, is aptly illustrated in the comfortable, convenient, and clean dressing-rooms provided for the players. A crowded house rewarded his enterprise on Monday night. Full justice was done to the play by a thoroughly capable company sent out by Mr. George Edwardes, and that it was staged with perfect completeness in every detail therefore goes without saying. The bulk of the honours are carried off by Miss Mysie Devine, who appears in the title-part, and fills it with a captivating charm that wins her many friends in all parts of the house. The part of Prince Danilo finds a most capable exponent in Mr. Frank Greene. Not the least attractive feature of the performance was the impersonation of the young wife of the Marsovian Ambassador by Miss Ada Thomas, which she invested with a delightful mixture of the serious and the gay that was not lost upon an appreciative audience. The chief feature of the play, however, was the acting of Mr. Percy D'Arcy, who filled the part of the whimsical Ambassador with a drollery that kept the large audience in roars of laughter what time he was on the stage, and showed himself to be a comedian of more than average ability. An amusing impersonation of the part of Nisch was also given by Mr. Fred Fowler. Mr. Ripley Evans's fine tenor voice was heard to great advantage in the songs allotted to him as the Vicomte Camille de Jolidon; whilst Mr. F. W. Pedgrift, the possessor of an excellent baritone voice, gave a good account of himself as M. St. Brioche. It is unnecessary to add that all the minor parts were filled by ladies and gentlemen of experience in musical comedy.

THE NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Play by C. Watson-Mill entitled
"THE LOVE OF THE PRINCESS."

This play is somewhat out of the ordinary run of drama now on tour. As a rule a heroine is satisfied with two lovers, a good and an evil one, but here she has four, two of each kind. The usual adventuress is also missing. The Love of the Princess contains an abundance of incidents, and the dialogue is good. An excellent piece of acting is given by Mr. Beckett Bould as Lieut. Orlans, of the King's Guards. Mr. Wilson Coleman, who speaks his lines with much effect, is all that a hero should be as Prince Conrad; as the degenerate King Josef Mr. E. H. Dobell gives a particularly clever characterisation; Mr. Ernest E. Imeson as the traitor Count Nicholas proves himself a "heavy" man of much ability, acting well and with restraint; Mr. Graham Winsford does good work as Lieut. Zaroff; Mr. W. F. Stirling is satisfactory in the rather colourless part of the Prince Regent; Mr. Edgar Morgan is good as Boris; the part of the Duke Scarfe receives a humorous interpretation at the hands of Mr. George Antley; Miss Ward plays Princess Idalia with much sweetness; and as Lady Irene Miss Nellie Garside acts charmingly. Mr. Ward's high reputation for artistic productions is considerably enhanced by The Love of the Princess, the staging and costumes being most effective.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Russian Drama, entitled
"THE NIHILIST."

This week, by way of a change from the semi-German military dramas, we have a full-blooded Russian drama, The Nihilist, by Hugh Montgomery and O. Silverstone, at this popular South London theatre. The drama is brimful of exciting incidents in the shape of murders, brandings, and whippings. Mr. Cowell Clark appears to much advantage as Karl Orloff, a Nihilist; Mr. Leo R. Neilson undertakes the part of the villainous Prince Alexander in powerful style; Mr. O. Silverstone does well as Piertre Pitoff, of the Secret Police; Mr. J. Brunelle Harvey is the exiled priest, Father Gourko; Mr. Henry Wright is funny as the British subject, Bobbie Stuart; Miss Jessica Ford is his companion in the general fun as Katrina; Miss Edna Clark plays well as Alexina Orloff; Miss Florrie Kelsey as Princess Olga plays the character in a capable manner; and Mr. Walter Bentley forcibly fills the part of Ivan Nowasky, the village blacksmith.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the meeting of the Council held at 409, Strand, on Tuesday. Present: Mr. Robson Paige (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Fred Grove, Chris Walker, Clarence Derwent, Fred Annerley, J. Sebastian Smith, Miss Marion Lind, Miss Rose Mathews, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary).

The Chairman read a telegram from Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn stating his inability to attend the meeting owing to a severe cold.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A letter was read from the Actors' Union with reference to an alleged bogus manager. The Secretary was instructed to write to the Union thanking them for placing the case before the Council, and stating that the name would be recorded in the Bogus Managers' book, marked second case, as this was the second complaint the A.A. had received in a few weeks. He was further instructed to say that all matters sent by the A.U. to the A.A. were regarded as strictly confidential and private, and to hope that the same course would be taken in communications sent by the Association to the Union.

A letter was read from a non-member with reference to forming a limited company on the same lines as the Army and Navy Stores. The Secretary was instructed to thank the writer and say that they were very interested in his scheme, but owing to the fact that the Association was removing they regretted having to defer any further steps in the matter until Friday, Oct. 2, when they would be pleased if he would interview the Council at 353, Strand. At the same time the Secretary was instructed to write to Mr. F. R. Benson with reference to the matter.

The Secretary read a letter from a member with reference to a manager, and was instructed to write to the member asking him to send the facts of the case, together with his agreement, to Mr. Mote.

The Hon. Solicitor reported that he had had an interview with a member, and had written two letters on her behalf. He also read the revised draft agreement between the A.A. and the Cabins, Ltd., as to the taking of the rooms at 353, Strand, which agreement was approved, sealed with the A.A. seal, and signed, with Mr. Robson Paige, Mr. Chris Walker, and the Secretary as witnesses.

Mr. Vincent Clive, Mr. Edward Harrison, and Mr. Walter Cross were elected members.

The Council gave the Secretary instructions to put a notice on the door to the effect: "That owing to the move the rooms will be closed on Monday next at 12 o'clock, and that the new premises at 353, Strand, will be opened for letters only on Tuesday from 10 to 12."

The Council decided, owing to the Association moving on the 29th inst., to hold another Council meeting on Friday, the 25th, and on the following Friday at the regular hour at the new premises instead of next Tuesday.

The Council interviewed a member who complained of members obtaining and offering engagements in the rooms at a salary of less than £2 a week, and the Secretary was instructed to put up a notice on the engagement board to the effect: "That the Council of this Association having heard of engagements being made in the rooms, and not through the Agency, at salaries less than £2 a week, would be glad of any information, which would be strictly confidential, concerning such cases."

The Secretary was instructed to look up information regarding the insertion of life members in the next issue of the Year Book, and put the matter on the agenda to be dealt with at an early date.

The Council gave the Secretary instructions to ask The Era kindly to insert the following paragraph:—"That all names of the members of the A.A. who have not paid their subscriptions on Sept. 30 will be excluded from next Year Book. Such defaulters will be posted in the new premises at once."

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual weekly committee meeting of the Actors' Union was held on the 17th inst., when the following were present: Messrs. F. Rawson Buckley (in the chair), Royce Milton, Cecil G. Calvert, W. Ruddle Brown, John W. Braithwaite, Frank Gerald, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary). Letters were received during the week from Messrs. George P. Lester, J. Hastings Batson, H. Naylor Grimson, Jerrold Heather, Fred F. Loyd, Arthur Bawtree, H. Howard Templeton, and James English.

The secretary, having reported the circumstances which led up to his withdrawal of the resolution at the Trades' Union Congress at Nottingham, a motion that the committee fully endorsed, his action in the matter was carried.

The secretary of the Actors' National Protective Union, Mr. Lew Morton, having, through Mr. Creamer (the American delegate to the Trades' Union Congress), invited the Actors' Union to correspond with him on the subject of affiliation, the secretary was instructed to forward Mr. Morton a copy of the rules of the A.U.

Two cases of bogus management were reported, and the secretary was instructed to send particulars to the hon. solicitor.

Six candidates were elected members.

The secretary reported three engagements through the A.U. Agency.

The Benevolent Fund stamps will be ready, it is hoped, by the end of next week, and members wishing to take up books for sale among their friends are asked to send in their names and addresses to the general secretary.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 21, the Drama, by Nita Rae, entitled
"HER FATAL PAST."

Large and enthusiastic audiences have attended this week to witness the above drama. The play, which has intense human interest, is well played by Mr. Montgomery's company. Mr. Harry Tresham, to whom is entrusted the exacting rôle of Mark Desmond, does it complete justice; he has a commanding figure, a fine stage presence, clear enunciation, and histrionic ability, and he well deserves the applause that he evokes. Mr. H. Ryland-Leigh submits a sound performance as the rascally Gilbert Fernside, and his acting in the final scene is deserving of commendation. Mr. Herbert Young supplies a good impersonation of Dicky Bird; Mr. C. Alan Himeson is responsible for a fine character study of the stammering postman Reuben Tredway; Mr. H. G. Brandon scores as the humorous Jonathan Backstone Nobbs, and is ably assisted by Miss Florrie Barnes, who presents an excellent impersonation of Kittie Springwell. Miss Ethayle Gordon Murray is to be highly congratulated upon her really fine performance as the woman of pleasure, Bella de Lara, a character which gives her great opportunities, and Miss Murray thoroughly deserves the praise she receives. Miss Edna Lester gives a fine study of Martha Springwell. A charming and dainty Honor Symes is Miss LaHa Stanhope; the part suits her style, and appeals strongly to the sympathies of the audience. A performance which stands out prominently is Miss St. John's Little Leonard; her acting and pronunciation are excellent. The drama is well mounted and artistically dressed. The Barrascope closes the entertainment with two excellent films, named A Nervous Twitching and Three Young Ladies and a Bull.

"THE WOMAN FROM RUSSIA."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Fred G. Ingleby, produced at the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, on Tuesday, Sept. 22.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Hypnotic suggestion, an international marriage, and a brother's cruelty to his sister form the solid basis on which Mr. Fred Ingleby has built a strong dramatic story, the general plot and incidents of which offer a distinct contrast to the ordinary domestic or sensational drama of the day. In this case "the play's the thing," nothing of a spectacular nature allowing the interest of the spectator to waver in watching the development of a Muscovite scientist's villainous scheming. There are some good situations, the dialogue is crisp and worth listening to, and the humorous relief provided is natural and inoffensive. The story begins in a hut in Manchuria during the Russo-Japanese War. Frank Haldane and the Hon. Reginald Fitzgerald, two war correspondents, protect Wanda Sonorovitch from the cruelty of Captain Alexis Yarviski, alias Sonorovitch. This scoundrel is gifted—or cursed—with great hypnotic power, and he uses this power, through Wanda, for his personal advantage. Maddened for the time by a blow from Haldane's strong fist, Alexis makes a mental suggestion of marriage to Wanda and Haldane, and the act ends with the interest of the audience thoroughly aroused. Three years elapse, and the curtain rises on an apartment at The Beeches, near London, where Frank Haldane and his wife Wanda are staying with Frank's father, a wealthy invalid. Captain Alexis is also in England, bent on securing revenge and wealth. Acting under his will, Wanda steals behind the old man as he sits in an armchair and stabs him. Frank enters the room at the moment and sees the blow struck. He accuses his wife of murder, and she, when Alexis allows her for the time being to use her normal faculties, grasping the fact that she has killed the father and turned the son's love to hatred, falls lifeless on the floor. In the third act the interest deepens, starting in Ezra Baroni's house, where Alexis enlists the services of the eccentric Jew. At the Beeches the startling discovery that Wanda is not dead, as supposed, but in a state of catalepsy, is made by Frank, to whom Reginald Fitzgerald has just been propounding the theory that the crime was committed at the instigation of Captain Alexis. Leaving Wanda on the couch, they rush out to summon medical help. Captain Alexis and Baroni enter, and they carry off the supposed dead woman to Baroni's house, where she is secreted in the cellar. They are watched by Wun-Hi, a Chinese, who has reason to hate the Russian villain. Frank Haldane gets into the Jew's cellar and confronts Captain Alexis. A struggle ensues, and things look bad for Frank; but Reginald turns up in the nick of time, accompanied by the faithful Jerry and the irrepressible Wun-Hi, and the tables are turned. As the villain and his satellite Baroni turn to escape to the vaults beneath, the door opens, and they are confronted by Wanda. "Can the dead return to life?" cries Alexis Sonorovitch, and the curtain falls. The final scene takes place at the Captain's apartments. Here comes Wanda, recovered in mind and body, Frank Haldane, Edith Haldane, and Reginald, her affianced lover. They draw back in the shadows of the room as Captain Alexis enters. The listeners hear his soliloquy on "Conscience." He rises, and Wanda confronts the unnatural brother who would have murdered her soul. He attempts to regain his influence over her, but fails. Wanda exerts her hypnotic power, and causes the villain to make a full confession of his evil deeds, and thus frees Frank from any suspicion of complicity in the murder and robbery. Wanda's mind is set at rest, as medical evidence proves that old Mr. Haldane had died of heart disease just previous to the blow being struck. On realising his position Alexis rushes to the table and drinks a glass of poisoned wine, previously placed there by himself for the benefit of his Hebrew confederate. With the prospect of happier times for Frank and his beautiful Russian wife, the play ends.

Mr. Ingleby's piece had all the advantage accruing from first-rate stage-management and a strong cast. Mr. Robert Ayrton's fine presence, convincing sincerity, and manly delivery imparted a sense of reality to the scenes in which Frank Haldane appeared, and he was repeatedly and heartily applauded. Miss Adria Hill is a great Alexandra favourite, and her acting in the part of Wanda was marked by her wonted grace and dramatic earnestness. One of the hits of the piece was the cleverly-drawn character of Ezra Baroni, in which Mr. G. Mortimer Hancock kept the house in roars by his whimsical acting and quite unforced drollery. Mr. Harry Elliston was lively and alert as the Chinese spy; and Mr. Fred G. Ingleby gave a clever and interesting study of a curious type of character as Captain Alexis Sonorovitch. Mr. Basil Mitchell made a smart and agreeable young war correspondent as the Hon. Reginald Fitzgerald; Mr. Frank Wheatcroft was funny as the dapper "tiger," Jerry Moriarty; and other good impersonations were Mr. Richard Pitt's James Haldane, Miss Maude St. John's Mary Ann, and Miss Maggie Hobart's Edith Haldane. Mr. Forsdike had the drama staged with his usual care.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

The works of the great Beethoven formed the principal feature of the concert on Friday evening, Sept. 18, and attracted a very large audience. In Mr. Woods' interpretation of the composer's masterpiece, the "Symphony No. 5 in C Minor," some exception might be taken to his reading of the first movements in this fine work; but there could be no question in regard to the superb playing of the orchestra in the splendid finale, and the cheers which greeted both conductor and orchestra at the close were warmly deserved. The programme also included Beethoven's "Leonora" Overture No. 1, one of the overtures written for the composer's opera Fidelio, of which an excellent performance was secured by the orchestra. Equally successful was the master's lively Trio in C for two Oboes and Cor Anglais, most skilfully played by Messrs. Henri de Busscher, E. C. Dubrucq, and H. H. Stanislaus. Brahms' Concerto in A Minor for Violin, 'Cello, and Orchestra, although not one of the composer's most interesting works, was admirably executed by the soloists, Messrs. Arthur Beckwith and C. Warwick Evans. A performance of Gluck's overture "Alceste" and Auber's overture "Le Cheval de Bronze" was also given at the concert on Friday evening. Miss Jenny Taggart and Mr. Lloyd Chandos were the vocalists, and each gained hearty applause for their artistic singing in Beethoven's scena and aria, "Ah! Perfido," and the same composer's song, "Adelaida."

MR. ARCHIE SELWYN has been engaged by Mr. E. Oswald Brooks, of the Grand Theatre, Swansea, to play Rev. Stephen Stingles and stage-manage on the spring tour of The New Housemaid.

THE LATE MR. WHEELER.

The funeral of the late Mr. Benjamin H. Wheeler, the well-known South African manager, whose death on Aug. 31 we recorded in our issue of the 12th inst., took place on the 1st at Maitland (No. 1) Cemetery. The cortege left the White House Hotel, the residence of the deceased, at 3 o'clock, for Cape Town Railway Station, whence the remains were conveyed by train to Maitland.

A number of townspeople accompanied the funeral to the cemetery, amongst them being Mr. Lay, the Acting American Consul. The chief mourners were Mrs. Ben Wheeler (wife) and Mr. Frank Wheeler (son).

Over forty magnificent wreaths, conveying expressions of deepest sympathy, were placed on the coffin. They were sent by the following:—C. and M. Willoughby, Gaiety Company (Durban), The Era (London), Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vincent, Miss Alice Pollard and Miss Cullen, Opera House and Tivoli Orchestras, Mr. Harry Burton and Miss Mabel Medrow, Mr. and Mrs. Grant-Fallowes, Members Orchestra, Theatre Royal (Durban), Staff, Opera House (Cape Town), Staff, White House Hotel, Dr. and Mrs. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. Sytner, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, Mr. E. Klein, Mrs. Perrie Green and Misses Green, Mr. and Mrs. Barlow-Coulthard, Staff, Theatre Royal (Durban), Mr. P. J. Casey, Messrs. Reid and McAllister, Mr. A. Mortimer-Jones, Mr. Ohlsson, Messrs. Vallantine, Brown, and Taylor (Durban), Mr. and Mrs. Hinton, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Frost, Front Staff, Opera House (Cape Town), Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hyman (Johannesburg), Mr. and Mrs. B. Hart, Mr. Chas. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Woodman, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. E. Johnston, Mrs Lancaster, Boys and Girls, Gaiety Company (Cape Town), Mr. Attwell, Americans in Cape Town, Mr. Leonard Rayne, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest, Messrs. Dickson and Bayly, Cape Town Operatic and Dramatic Society.

The Rev. Canon Browning, of St. John's Church, officiated at the graveside.

The coffin was of polished teak, brass mounted,

AMUSEMENTS IN BOMBAY.

BOMBAY, Sept. 4.—The Bandmann Opera Co. has just visited here for a short season, playing only seven nights. The plays staged were The Girls of Gottenberg, Miss Hook of Holland, The Greek Slave, Amasis, and The Merry Widow (two nights). The last-named was undoubtedly the greatest success ever produced in Bombay, and on both Friday and Saturday night the theatre was packed to the ceiling. It has been an absolute record, chairs being brought in to the gangways, whilst the promenade was crowded by people, who preferred to stand rather than miss this piece. To stand for 2½ hours in India is no mean feat, and speaks for itself as to the success of the company. The honours amongst the ladies were evenly divided between Miss Constance Lait and Miss Wilmot Karkeek, both old favourites in Bombay, and encores were repeatedly demanded each evening. The chorus was very strong, and quite superior to anything seen in Bombay, both in singing and dancing. Amongst the gentlemen Mr. Frank Danby was really excellent, every one of his parts being a distinct hit each night. Mr. Fred Coyne and Mr. Dan E. Clifford were both received with open arms by our old theatre-goers, and their merry quips did much to soothe the weary Bombayite after our Tilak worries. Mr. John Doran, a fine singer, and G. Villiers Arnold well upheld the reputation of the company, and in their various duets, &c., with Miss Lait and Miss Karkeek had invariably to return and give the audience another taste of their powers. We congratulate Mr. Fred Coyne on the lavish mounting, the productions every night being admirably staged. We also must really congratulate Mr. Bandmann on his excellent choice of artists, and we predict another record for this company when they reach Calcutta after their trip to Java.

The season 1908 will prove an eventful one in Bombay in theatrical circles. Mr. Bandmann's new theatre is rapidly nearing completion, and is situated facing the fine municipal building and Victoria Terminus. Already booked are Mr. West's "Our Navy and Army," Bandmann Comedy Co., Liddiard's Company, Royal Italian Opera Company, Ellis Opera Company, Blanche Vauden in the "Salome" dance, Carter, the American magician, &c. Mr. Bandmann's enterprise will, I think, be amply rewarded during the coming cold season, and especially after the visit and success of last week's opera company.

"MALIGNANT GROWTHS!" (?)

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you permit me space to acknowledge publicly Mr. Walter Stephens' charming letter in your last issue, wherein he refers so gracefully to Butterflies. After such an interesting epistle from him I feel bound to admit that my remarks were somewhat pointed; but I am satisfied Mr. Stephens now appreciates my intention was merely to uphold the working side of our great industry, against which, we must all admit, many people would appear to be ever ready to make unfounded accusations. After Mr. Walter Stephens' letter it will be patent that he aims for the elevation and progress of the British stage, and if we all adopt a similar plan of campaign we shall be able to successfully combat "prudes on the prowl" and the other interfering people who take upon themselves to use the stage as a target at which to direct the shots born of impure minds. "To the pure all is pure."—Yours faithfully,

W. SCOTT PHIPP.

MISS ROSALIE NOTRELLE.

The clever and versatile young actress whose photograph is here reproduced was educated for a career on the stage. Her first appearance before the public was at the early age of nine, when she delivered a recitation which was vociferously encored. Studying under the late Mme. Scotti, and subsequently under the well-known elocutionist and teacher, Mr. Charles Fry, Miss Notrelle finally took her diploma as a teacher of elocution and reciter, and wrote a useful thesis on the theory and practice of the art. Miss Notrelle soon formed a good teaching connection in and around London, Oxford, and Leamington, and fulfilled reciting engagements at most of the London concert halls and throughout the provinces. In 1901, as the result of her own dramatic recital at Leamington, she was enabled to send a substantial cheque to the Daily Mail fund in aid of the widows and orphans of those who fell in the South African War. As a reciter, Miss Notrelle is equally at home in dramatic, pathetic, comedy, or musical pieces. She has made a study of dialects and broken English, and has gained a great reputation in depicting French characters. In several of Mr. Charles Fry's Shakespearean and other recitals at the St. George's Hall and the Royalty Theatre Miss Notrelle played prominent parts, such as Rosaline in Love's Labour's Lost, Celia in As You Like It, Queen Katherine in Henry the Fifth, Katherina in The Taming of the Shrew, Helen in The Hunchback, Lady Teazle in The School for Scandal, &c. In 1903 she left the concert platform for the legitimate stage, and joined Mr. Edward Compton's comedy company, playing various parts in his répertoire, which included The School for Scandal, David Garrick, The Rivals, The Rake, She Stoops to Conquer, &c. Next followed a long tour with Mr. Charles Frohman in The Admirable Crichton, and then three tours in the famous play Sherlock Holmes, in which she played the part of Thérèse. Later, she played Vera in Moths. During the summer months of 1907 she was engaged for lead in a company of Shakespeare and old English comedies, and did particularly good work as Portia in The Merchant of Venice, Emilia in Othello, Ophelia in Hamlet, Celia in As You Like It, Lydia Languish in The Rivals, &c. Feeling the necessity for a rest she accepted an autumn engagement with Mr. George Day to understudy Miss Lily Hall Caine as Thora in the Drury Lane success, The Prodigal Son.

NEW ZEALAND AMUSEMENTS.

WELLINGTON, Aug. 10.—OPERA HOUSE.—Mr. Frank Thornton finished one of, if not the, most financially successful seasons he has ever had on Saturday, July 25, due in a large measure to the fact that this is advertised as a farewell tour, for Mr. Thornton is a very great favourite in this part of the world. He gave place to the Dramatic Company, headed by Miss Madge McIntosh and Mr. Harcourt Beatty, who have appeared in many plays during the three weeks' stay now drawing to a close. In Fedora Miss Mackintosh invited comparison with a half score actresses who have attempted this and similar "Sardou-esque" parts in Australasia. Mr. Gaston Mervale is responsible for the admirable productions and for a satisfying performance of the part of De Sérieux. Mr. T. Cannam, in make-up and performance, was extremely funny as Gretch. The plays during the season have been Her Love against the World, Camille, The Midnight Wedding, Feodora, and A Beggar on Horseback. The band was admirably handled by the company's conductor, Mr. Fred Chapman.

TOWN HALL.—Messrs. G. P. Huntley and Herbert Clayton's "Merrymakers" are here in a Pierrot entertainment à la "The Follies." The company contains Miss Doris Lind and Messrs. Sam Walsh and J. M. Campbell.

THE staff of the Tunbridge Wells Opera House had their fifth annual outing on Sunday, when a most enjoyable day was spent at Hastings. Dinner was partaken of at the Queen's Hotel, under the presidency of the popular lessee, Mr. Welton Dale, supported by Mr. W. E. Urquhart, Mr. Arthur Burdett, Mr. P. J. Walker, and Mr. P. Stuart, who duly acknowledged the various complimentary toasts which were honoured. Mr. Welton Dale took the opportunity to pay a tribute to the municipal authorities, and also expressed his satisfaction at the revived prosperity of the theatre.

A WELL-KNOWN Berlin actress, Fräulein Freida Kluht, has just been robbed of her jewels by ingenious means. Under the pretext that he had been sent by an assurance company to see the actress on important business, a young man gained admittance into the reception-room, and seized the actress's jewel-case which lay on a table. When the lady appeared the thief stated his business, declaring that he had forgotten certain documents, but would go back to the office for them, and return in a few minutes. Fräulein Kluht missed her jewels after his departure, and at once communicated with the police.

The Philadelphia Opera House will be opened by Mr. Oscar Hammerstein on Nov. 17 with a "mammoth" performance of Carmen. The enterprising impresario also proposes to offer, free of cost, the use of halls and rooms in the opera building for a conservatoire of music. Subscriptions for seats for the entire opera season already amount, it is stated, to £22,000, and with those for boxes, a sum of £45,000 will be available. During the first week of the season it is proposed to present Saint-Saën's Samson and Delilah, La Sonnambula, with Mme. Tetrazzini, Massenet's Thais, and Debussy's Pelléas et Mélisande.

THE LATE ALFRED TATE.

We regret to announce the death, which took place on the 17th inst., of Alfred Tate, who became principal comedian of Miss Alleyne's company about 1879. In 1902 he played as Lancelot Gobbo and the First Gravedigger in Hamlet. In the spring and early summer of 1903 he was on tour with Mrs. M. Gunn's company, playing Dogberry in Much Ado to Miss Haidee Gunn's Beatrice, Sir Toby in Twelfth Night, &c. Of late he had been playing Bullock with Messrs. Leigh and Armitage's East Lynne company, and was engaged to resume the part when the company went out again. Mr. Tate was trained in the school of the old stock companies, when actors and actresses had to study many difficult parts. In one week at North Shields he had to learn 2,200 lines. Two of the parts he studied on this occasion were Polonius and Charles Surface.

As a boy Mr. Tate started on the stage in his native town, and made something of a hit in a pantomime, in which he played the part of a page. In consequence he was re-engaged for the Shakespearean season to follow the pantomime, in which the star was of no less magnitude than Barry Sullivan.

The play was Hamlet, and the youthful Tate was cast for the part of the Second Actor. He had only been twelve months on the stage, and in consequence his theatrical wardrobe was not very extensive in character. For the part of the Second Actor in Hamlet they served him out a big cloak and a huge sombrero hat, and under the cloak he donned his pantomime page's jacket, with immense red buttons, to keep him warm (the jacket, not the buttons).

His wig was made out of an old stocking, with curls sewn on, but under the big hat the stocking could not be seen, and the curls looked "bee-utiful," as De Pechman says.

Prior to the opening performance Mr. Tate stood talking to the prompter on the stage, when down came Barry Sullivan to superintend the setting of the stage. The quaint-looking figure in the prompt corner at once caught his attention, and he said, "What are you dressed for?" "The Second Actor, sir," said young Tate.

"And who gave you that hat to wear?" continued the great man, snatching off the offending headgear and revealing the stocking "wig" with its row of too palpably sewn-on curls.

This sight added to Barry Sullivan's anger, and his next action was to drag away the boy's cloak, exposing to view the pantomime jacket, with its double row of buttons as large as saucers.

Of course, this extraordinary attire for the Second Actor in Hamlet sent the tragedian into a paroxysm of rage, and he threw both cloak, wig, and hat far from him, stalking away in speechless anger.

The mortified young actor was naturally terribly offended, and as he was very popular in the town, and had a good home behind him, he did not scruple to speak his mind on the subject. Moreover, he resolved upon a terrible revenge for the affront which he had had to endure.

In pursuance of this project he made his entrance in the play scene in all the comic glory of his pantomime dress, exciting the audience to screams of laughter, and completely "queering" the scene. Barry Sullivan, prone at the feet of the Queen, looked unutterable things, and when the curtain fell Tate had to be hastily hustled from the theatre to escape the righteous vengeance of the wrathful tragedian. But he was only a boy, and was delighted to think he had "got his own back," as the saying has it.

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

DURBAN, AUG. 17.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs B. and T. Wheeler, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. Woodward.—A crowded house received the first production in South Africa of The Girl Behind the Counter, which met with undeniable appreciation. In the hands of the Wheeler-Edwardes company the piece lost none of its success, the catchy music, neat dancing, and comedy business being well accounted for. Mr. Foster Courtenay as General Sir Wilkie Willoughby was very amusing; a capital representation of Dudd was given by Mr. Alfred Beers; a dainty and winsome Susie was found in Miss Crissie Ralland; and Miss Elsa Parkin as Winnie Willoughby ably accounted for the title-rôle, acting and singing herself into public favour. Miss Hilda Guiver as Mlle. Mostyn was thoroughly at home in the rôle; Miss Ruby Vincent made a chic Minette; Mr. H. E. Pearce as Viscount Gushington was satisfactory; the Rudolph of Mr. J. Morrison was a capable study; Mr. Harry Clark as Mons. Duval acted well. The piece was produced under the experienced direction of Mr. Blackmore, and the dressing and staging left nothing to be desired.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Empire Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Aubrey Hyman.—Arthur Stacey, comedian and dancer, opens the programme here, and is well received; the Kellaways are wonderful child vocalists; Daisy Mayer, coon artist, has made herself very popular; Guy Ryder, clever whistler, gives imitations of birds; the Kremo Family of acrobats top the bill in marvellous feats; Miss Jennie Belmore, comédienne, takes well; and others in a successful programme are Hunter and Maris, Fred Shepherd, the Chronomegaphone, and the Bioscope.

THE Consett New Town Hall was packed to the doors on Sunday evening to listen to two most successful concerts given by the Consett Iron Company's Workmen's Prize Brass Band, who were assisted by the Consett and District Contest Choir and also Mr. E. J. Potts, baritone, Newcastle, and Mrs. Norman Snowball, soprano, Newcastle. The concerts were in aid of the band's excursion to the Crystal Palace, where they intend competing for the National Band Contest Prize to-day.

Mr. Rass Challis, whose prolific pen was responsible for the popular drama, The Curate, has supplied another play in which "the cloth" is set off to advantage. The new play is described as a new military comedy-drama, and although the plot is complicated to an unnecessary degree, and encumbered with too many characters, a series of stirring incidents is presented. Early in the story the fact is disclosed that Captain Romney Kent is the father of Angel Grantham's supposed illegitimate boy. There is a worthy parson, Rev. Philip Gordon, who is married to a Frenchwoman, Judith Puison, the she-devil of the piece—villainess is far too weak a term to apply to such a character, so heavily has the author laid his colours on. Colonel Kent, Romney's father, has great estates, which in due course will come to the boy if legitimate. Without knowing it, Romney has legally married Angel Grantham in Paris before the boy's birth, and Judith Puison, having left her clerical husband, endeavours to get Romney to marry her in order to obtain the Kent estates. She obtains possession of the boy's mother, and keeps her prisoner at various places, in Paris, at a bungalow on the Thames, where the boy also is incarcerated, in a cellar in London, and elsewhere. Romney Kent drifts low enough, surely, but he refuses to marry this diablesse, and she remains with him as his mistress, constantly plotting to attain her end, and constantly persecuting the poor mother. Angel, meanwhile, deserted by Romney Kent, to whom she was legally married, though neither he nor she was aware of the fact, has sunk to the uttermost depths of female degradation, and the brave and self-sacrificing efforts of Rev. Philip Gordon to rescue her form the most dramatic points in the play. Judith Puison turns up, disguised as an Arab woman at a camp in the Soudan, where Colonel Kent, a cavalry officer, in on active service. She both stabs and shoots him, so as to make sure of the job, just as he has found out and declared that the boy who has enlisted in his regiment as a bugler is his own grandson. Her next appearance is in a cellar in London, where the boy's mother is held a captive bound in iron chains. Just exactly at the right moment the bugler turns up, bugle and all, and, wrenching the chains from his mother, leaves the captor captive in place of her victim.

Eventually she shoots Romney Kent, but he is not so badly wounded that before his death he has time to repent (in the parson's bedroom, where all the characters meet, by some strange chance), and make everything clear. His wife, or, rather, widow, falls on the shoulder of her saviour, Rev. Philip Gordon, and an end satisfactory to the ordinary lover of melodrama is reached.

The players deserve great commendation for their loyal efforts to sustain the interest in the play. As Rev. Gordon Philip Mr. Rass Challis, the author, was excellent, his acting being natural, unforced, convincing, and dramatic; Miss Rose Moncrieff was effective throughout both as the distracted mother and as the Bugler Boy, her own son; Miss Gussie Everitt as Judith Puison played a most unenviable part admirably, and it would be difficult to imagine a better representation. The comic element was supplied by Mr. Fred Davis, whose songs and dances were much to the taste of the audience. The rest of the cast was satisfactory.

"MERCHANT OF VENICE."

Arranged in three scenes, and produced at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, on Monday, Sept. 21.

Portia .....MISS LILIAN HOLMES
Antonio .....MR. A. MAITLAND STAPLEY
Bassanio .....MR. WILFRED BLAIR
Gratiano .....MR. BEVAN
The Duke .....MR. BOOTH CONWAY

In this version of The Merchant of Venice Mr. Fred Storey has done remarkably well. He has arranged the story in a coherent manner, the full gist of the play being given within the limit of half an hour. He has painted some specially ornate scenery, which is quite Venetian in its style, and the audience on Monday followed the performance with great interest. Scene 1, a public place in Venice, is a full, rich setting, and here appears Shylock (Mr. Fred Storey), accompanied by Bassanio, negotiating for the three thousand ducats on behalf the merchant, his friend Antonio. They are joined anon by the latter, and the bargain is struck. Scene 2 introduces us to Portia's house, three months having elapsed. The bond is forfeit, and Portia sets out for the Court of Justice—scene the third and last. Miss Lilian Holmes as Portia was very effective, making a successful appeal with the "quality of mercy" speech, which got a round of applause. Altogether, her portrayal was creditable and charming. It is more by gesture and appearance than voice that Mr. Storey realises the "Jew that Shakespeare drew," though, to do him justice, he at times declaims his wrongs in sonorous tones that attain to deep tragedy. And no one could make a more effective picture than Mr. Storey does in the tableau of the first scene, when the merchant and his friend have barely departed. Standing on an eminence, he, with threatening mien and firelit eye, suggests all the bitterness of hate and the fierce hunger for revenge of the Jew. And in the Trial Scene the rapacity and fixedness of purpose of the usurer were forcibly conveyed. Mr. Storey, who had quite an ovation, was well supported. He had an excellent Bassanio in Mr. Wilfrid Blair; Antonio was represented with dignity by Mr. A. Maitland Stapley; the Duke had an adequate representative in Mr. Booth Conway; and the banter of Gratiano was delivered with much humour by Mr. Bevan.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR,—Your Abertillery correspondent states that the Spider in The Silver King was very ably personated by me. He is mistaken. The part was played by Mr. Chas. Freeman. I am still content to represent Daniel Jakes.—Yours faithfully, TOM PAULTON, J. Bannister Howard's Silver King Co., Tenby, Sept. 22.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM will reopen the New Theatre on or about Oct. 1 with Bellamy the Magnificent, a social extravaganza in five acts, by Roy Horniman. Sir Charles will appear in the title-rôle, and Lady Bellamy will be played by Miss Fortescue, who will thus make a too-long-delayed return to the West End. Two members of Paid in Full, which finishes at the Aldwych this evening, have found places in the cast, namely, Mr. Robert Loraine and Mr. Paul Arthur. Other welcome inclusions in the company are those of Miss Sarah Brooke, Miss Kate Cutler, Mr. Yorke Stephens, Miss Alice Beet, Miss Marguerite Leslie, Miss Gladys Mason, Mr. Vane Tempest, Mr. Edmund Waller, and Mr. Richard Lambert.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE, having set Faust upon a career which promises to extend well into the New Year, is directing his attention to Macbeth, which is to be his next Shakespearian production. Associated with Mr. Tree in the staging of the tragedy will be Mr. Gordon Craig, who, as is well known, has made a prolonged study of stage effects, the result of which was seen in his work at the Imperial some years ago for Miss Ellen Terry. Mr. Craig has since then added inestimably to his experience by travels in the Continental cities, and the knowledge thus gained in combination with Mr. Tree's artistic efforts render the contemplated production of Macbeth at His Majesty's of transcending interest.

MR. TREE has defended himself ingeniously against the reproach of having engaged ladies to represent Raphael, Gabriel, and Michael in Faust. The eminent actor needed only a few words to justify himself, and they were expressed in the simple but pertinent sentence: "I regard angels as sexless." It may be recalled that George Colman, the younger, when he was censor of plays, prohibited a stage-lover from addressing his sweetheart as an angel, his reason being that an angel "was a character in Scripture, and not to be profaned on the stage by being applied to a woman." That would scarcely suit the hero of melodrama nowadays!

MR. EDWARD TERRY'S tour of Fiander's Widow, which he started at Glasgow at the beginning of the month, has been nothing short of a triumphal progress, the eminent comedian being welcomed by crowded and enthusiastic houses at each performance. It is admitted on all hands that his portrayal of the shrewd but lovable Dorset farmer Isaac Sharpe is worthy to rank with his finest impersonations, and the play as a whole has won the unqualified praise of all. The success achieved at Glasgow has been repeated at Birmingham this week, and equal prosperity will no doubt attend Mr. Terry's travels to the dramatic centres included in his tour. Besides Fiander's Widow, the répertoire comprises Liberty Hall, The Magistrate, and Sweet Lavender.

MR. CHARLES CRUIKSHANKS has been appointed Professor of Elocution at the Guildhall School of Music. A better choice could not have been made. Mr. Cruikshanks' first appearance on the theatrical stage was as Melter Moss in an amateur performance of The Ticket-of-Leave Man at St. George's Hall in 1874. He has had all the advantages of the old stock company training, being one of the leading lights of the late Mr. George Conquest's company at the Surrey Theatre, where he had to play a different part each week. He has a fine physique, a strong and mellow voice, and a complete acquaintance with the art of acting. The Guildhall School of Music may be congratulated on securing a teacher who, besides instilling excellent elocution, is able to teach thoroughly the technique and practice of the stage.

MISS LENA ASHWELL has selected a one-act piece by yet another untried playwright with which to precede The Swayboat at the reopening of the Kingsway, on Friday, Oct. 9. The playlet is entitled The Treasure, and is the first dramatic work of Mrs. Elisabeth Kirby, wife of Mr. J. B. Fagan, the well-known novelist. The cast will include Miss Mary Barton, and Messrs. O. P. Heggie, T. A. Shannon, and W. Lemmon Warde.

MR. WILLARD has received by cable a tempting offer to tour the United States this season for twenty weeks on a very large guarantee, but is not likely to accept it, as he said "farewell" to all cities west of Washington. The eminent actor, moreover, desires to remain in London for some years to come.

MR MARTIN HARVEY has completed the cast of Stephen Phillips' adaptation of "The Bride of Lammermoor," entitled The Last Heir, which he will produce at the Adelphi on Oct. 5. Miss Mary Rorke will be seen in the part of Ailsie Gourlay, Mr. F. Cremlin will impersonate Caleb Balderstone, and Master Bobbie Andrews will play Henry, the younger brother of Lucy Ashton.

"A TRAGEDY OF TRUTH," by Rosamund Langbridge, is the one-act play which is to precede The Corsican Brothers at the Adelphi next week. Mr. Harvey will play Michael, the part originally sustained by Mr. Henry Ainley.

MISS DOLORES DRUMMOND, who completed her fiftieth year as an actress in 1906, is to be accorded a farewell matinée on Friday, Nov. 20. Mr. Cyril Maude has generously lent the Playhouse for the occasion, and has promised that both he and Miss Winifred Emery will appear. Miss Drummond began her remarkable career in Melbourne as the slave in Timour the Tartar in 1856, and first appeared in London in the November of 1874, when she played Hermione in A Winter's Tale at the Standard. In her time she has supported such distinguished players as G. V. Brooke, Barry Sullivan, Joseph Jefferson, Edwin Booth, and Henry Irving. Among her most recent parts is that of Lady Belstone in Peter's Mother, which she played both at Wyndham's and the Apollo in 1906, the year of her jubilee.

SIR JOHN HARE, who has been spending his holiday at his country residence at Overstrand, starts next week on his autumn "farewell" tour. Beginning on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Bournemouth, the eminent actor will afterwards visit various towns to which he has not yet definitely said "good-bye." These embrace Cardiff, Wolverhampton, Cheltenham, Plymouth, Hanley, Hull, and Sheffield. Flying matinées are also booked, or in contemplation, at Northampton, Reading, Croydon, Portsmouth, Hastings, and Folkestone. His répertoire includes A Pair of Spectacles, A Quiet Rubber, Caste, and The Gay Lord Quex. In the company will be found Mr. Charles Groves, Mr. Ivo Dawson, Mr. W. T. Lovell, Miss Mona K. Oram, and Miss Amy Brandon Thomas.

THE annual concert in aid of the Benevolent Fund of the Amalgamated Musicians' Union drew a huge audience to the Empire Theatre, Newcastle, on Sunday. A feature of the performance was an orchestra of a hundred players, who acquitted themselves admirably. The William Tell and Der Freischutz overtures were both superbly phrased, while excerpts from Martha and Maritana, and a Faust suite and The Flying Dutchman selection were quite enjoyable. The Newcastle Glee and Madrigal Society, Miss Mabel Manson, and Mr. Theo. Crozier (violinist) also added pleasing items, and earned warm applause. Mr. E. J. Rogers, whose sprightly March in E inaugurated the entertainment, conducted with complete efficiency.

MISS BATEMAN (Mrs. Crowe) reopens her dramatic school on Sept. 28. As our columns have often testified, pupils in Miss Bateman's school are taught, not to act—that is, as she is the first to admit, an impossibility—but how to act, how to move, how to walk, and, most important of all, how to speak. She believes that the first vital thing in a theatre is that the audience should hear what is said; otherwise boredom and discontent set in. Herself a wonderful elocutionist, she is untiring in her efforts that her pupils should speak with that clearness and variety which makes a three-page "tirade" by Coquelin a joy to hear.

IN Miss Bateman's rehearsal classes the pupils are taught many styles of acting—for instance, that the gesture of The School for Scandal is not suitable for classical tragedy, or that Pinero is not to be played in the same way as Elizabethan drama; and in her private lessons Miss Bateman strives to perfect her pupils in all the details of their art. Of late Miss Bateman has been giving some very successful matinées, and during the past year has given no less than three public performances in West-end theatres, thereby affording her students most unusual opportunities of being seen in public. Her most recent production was that of Romeo and Juliet at the Kingsway, on the afternoon of June 29 last, when Miss Leah Bateman-Hunter (Miss Bateman's granddaughter) made something of a sensational début as Juliet.

THE Scala Theatre is to be reopened on Wednesday, Oct. 7, for a season by Miss Ruth St. Denis, who was seen at the Aldwych two years ago, and created no little interest. Her present series will include dances interpreting Oriental religions and customs. India will be the first of the series. Miss St. Denis has her own native Indian company, and gives a scenic production in five acts, each having its own scenery and costumes. Much time and research have been given to make them accurate and atmospheric, and they serve as a setting to the dances which, having the character and movement of the Orient, express the meaning and the story of each act.

MISS ST. DENIS'S programme will include "The Purda," in which she will appear as the Spirit of Incense, and "The Street," with a dance entitled "The Cobras or Snake Charmer"; "The Palace," the principal figure in which is that of a Nautch Girl; "The Forest," with a "Yogi" dance; and "The Temple," in which "the mystic dance of the five senses" is executed. Miss St. Denis's company includes several Brahmins, whose chanting and playing on native instruments are an interesting feature of the entertainment.

THE Temple Dance in each series embodies the central teaching of the religion of the country, the other dances depicting customs and manners. In "Radha," the Hindu temple dance, the devout pilgrims bring their offerings of flowers, &c., and the temple priests with chants and ceremonies present them to the enshrined deity. During an Hindu Puja or worship, the spirit of Radha enters the image and descends from her lotus pedestal in response to the prayer for enlightenment. Radha's message of the renunciation of the five senses, and the casting off their bondage in order to attain peace, is the central point of all Hindu religions.

MR. LEWIS WALLER has secured a new play, entitled The Chief of Staff, by Ronald MacDonald. Mr. MacDonald is the second son of the late George MacDonald, LL.D., the well-known Scotch novelist. He was for some years a schoolmaster in the United States of America, and on his return to England commenced his literary career with the novel "The Sword of the King," which was dramatised and produced at Wyndham's in the spring of 1904.

"THE HON'BLE PHIL," written by Messrs. G. P. Huntley and Herbert Clayton, with music by Mr. Harold Samuel, is to be presented by Mr. Frohman at the Hicks Theatre on Oct. 3. The principal parts will be played by Mr. G. P. Huntley, Mr. Herbert Clayton, Mr. O. B. Clarence, Mr. Horace Mills, Mr. Charles Brown, Miss Denise Orme, Miss Eva Kelly, Miss Elsie Spain, Miss Barbara Huntley, and Miss Julia Sanderson.

THE O.P. Club, now converted into a limited liability company, have secured commodious and attractive quarters at the Criterion, Jermyn-street. Messrs. Carl Hentschel, Orton Roberts, and Algernon Collins are the first directors, and, with the aid of an influential committee, are arranging a strong programme for the coming season, which commences on Thursday next. Messrs. J. Davis-Smith and Stanley Greig are the joint hon. secretaries.

THE Council of the Actors' Association have adopted the resolution that the names of all members who have not paid their subscriptions on Sept. 30 will be excluded from the next issue of the Year Book. Such defaulters, moreover, will be at once posted in the new premises.

"FANNY AND THE SERVANT PROBLEM," the new play by Jerome K. Jerome, is to be produced at the Aldwych on Wednesday, Oct. 14. In the leading part Miss Fannie Ward will make her London reappearance, and it will be observed that the list of artists supporting her embraces some popular names that will be welcome back to the West End. The cast includes Mr. Charles Cartwright, Mr. Leslie Faber, Miss Kate Phillips, Miss Alma Murray, Mr. Benedict, Miss Mabel Garden, Miss Carlotta Addison, Miss Adela Measor, Miss Esme Beringer, Miss Vera Beringer, Miss Harkness, Miss Miner, Miss Flopp, Miss Markham, and Mr. John W. Dean.

MR. JEROME'S Passing of the Third Floor Back has, meanwhile, become an established success at the St. James's, where Mr. Forbes Robertson's impersonation of the central figure has won widespread eulogy. The piece, moreover, is already being translated into Dutch, Russian, German, and Spanish.

"IN THE GLOAMING," a play in four acts, by Loie Esmond, was produced for copyright purposes at the Theatre Royal, Goole, on Sept. 18. It may be interesting to add that the title was used for a comedietta by George Capel, produced at Bath on March 17, 1884,

THE Association of Theatre Managers of Greater New York passed the following resolution at a recent meeting:—"Resolved, that a committee be appointed to call upon the Board of Aldermen or such committee thereof as may be necessary and arrange a hearing for the purpose of abolishing sidewalk ticket speculation, which has grown to be a nuisance to both the theatres and the general public, and that this committee shall have power to call upon the association or any member thereof to render such assistance as may be necessary at the hearing for the purpose of abolishing sidewalk ticket speculation."

CERTAIN managers, our American correspondent comments, have been trying to drive the speculators out of business for years, but the difficulty is that they are licensed by the city authorities. Now the managers have decided that the only permanent remedy is to ask the Board of Aldermen to refuse to issue any more licences. A successful attraction at a New York theatre draws a horde of speculators that make it next to impossible for the passer-by to get through the crowd without being subjected to rough treatment. In the early days of The Merry Widow at the New Amsterdam Theatre they formed a picket line, and the pedestrian began to run the gauntlet about fifty yards from the entrance to the theatre.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN and Miss Beatrice Wilson have combined enjoyable social activities with their artistic work at Ryde. They were guests of the Rev. Montagu Fowler and Mrs. Fowler during their stay in the island. Both Mr. Norman and Miss Wilson received special messages of congratulation from Princess Henry of Battenberg after the production of The Adventure of Lady Ursula. On Sunday last Mr. Norman visited Osborne by special invitation, and inspected the Convalescent Ward. He was accompanied by Miss Wilson and the principal members of his company, who afterwards had tea with the head matron. On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Montagu Fowler gave a supper party at the Castle to the members of Mr. Norman's company.

THE orchestral department of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter—a department which, under the management of Mr. Leonard Bellamy, keeps the musical-directors of the leading theatres throughout Great Britain supplied with up-to-date novelties for their orchestras—is just now exceptionally busy arranging for the dispatch next week of the beautiful orchestral arrangement of Frank Lambert's "Insouciante" valse, one of the most admired compositions of this master.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on the 18th inst. a meeting was held of creditors of Arthur Hugh Hare, comedian. The statement of affairs showed liabilities £1,297, of which £897 was unsecured, and estimated assets £840. It was stated that the debtor for the last nine months had been proprietor and manager of touring companies, some of which had proved successful and others failures. His liabilities chiefly represented money advanced for touring and theatrical and personal requirements. The estate remained in the hands of the Official Receiver.

MESSRS. LIONEL GLENISTER AND J. W. WOOD-INGRAM commenced their autumn tour of Jack Straw with a very fine cast, including Miss Florence St. John, at the West Pier, Brighton, last week, and played to phenomenal business. One of the West Pier directors congratulated Mr. Wood-Ingram, and assured him that he had never seen the "house" so full as it was at the Wednesday matinée.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on Tuesday the public examination of Mr. Ellis Dagnall was concluded. Debtor applied to pass upon accounts showed unsecured liabilities £3,012, and no available assets. In March, 1907, he obtained a twenty-one years' lease of the Shaftesbury Theatre, which he sub-let for the same period to the New Shaftesbury, Ltd., formed by himself and two others. The company carried it on to July, 1907, when it was closed. He reopened it in December following, and carried it on to July last, when the lessors took possession, and he had been without occupation. In April, 1908, he and two others attempted unsuccessfully to float another company, "Dagnormoe, Ltd.," to take the lease of another theatre.

THE modiste in The Marriages of Mayfair at Drury Lane has ample scope for the exercise of her art, and a series of brilliant creations is the result. Miss Eva Moore as the heroine, Dorothy Gore, wears in the first scene at Rumpelmayer's a gown full of soft lines made in apricot ninon daintily trimmed with a ceinture made of cord in wheel design. The sash, in the same shade, is tied in Watteau mode at the back. An exquisite evening gown worn by Miss Moore is of ninon in a soft eucalyptus tone, revealing both grey and green notes. It has an under-robe of claire de lune metallic tissue, and is trimmed with opalesque embroidery on the bodice and down the left side. A flowing sash of the eucalyptus ninon falls from the sleeves.

MISS MOORE'S bridal robe is of softest satin in Directoire mode. The two sides of the bodice are laced with silver cord. An empiecement of silver embroidery is carried right down the side, and the same embroidery decorates the bottom of the skirt. The long Court train is made of double chiffon embroidered in high relief with silver roses, oak leaves, thistles, and bunches of acorns. Following the bride are six stately bridesmaids, gowned in pairs in three shades of wisteria blue, and wearing hats to match.

MRS. LANCASTER-WALLIS as Lady Margaret Villiers makes a striking figures in the scene at Rumpelmayer's. She wears a Saxe-blue Directoire dress, the whole beauty of which depends on its statuesque lines, which are emphasised by a deep fringe trimming in the same blue. In the third scene, the stately gardens of Deerminster Chase, Mrs. Lancaster-Wallis wears a costume of white crêpe de Chine. A jet trimming falls stole-wise from the corsage to the hem of the skirt. Tied loosely at the back is a sash of black Suzette net, and a large black picture hat trimmed with falling ribbons is a crowning detail.

MISS MARIE GEORGE as Bess Bissett has a remarkable costume. The skirt of purple over turquoise is worn with a quaint Directoire coat of rose du Barri woven with green stripes, and the bottom edged with deep, knotted fringe in the du Barri colour. Her hat of purple measures two yards round, and is trimmed with blue and violet plumes and a cluster of pink roses. Miss Marjorie Doré as Lady Fordyce appears in a gown in the new brilliant flamingo colour. Revealing the fine lines of the statuesque Directoire, it is richly embroidered with oxydised tissue and chenille, and the clear-cut corsage is simply finished with embroidery. Miss Muriel Langley as Mrs. Anstruther wears a deep Veronese green silk robe under a black net overdress richly trimmed with sequins and pendeloque fringe.

AS Lily de Mario Miss Marie Pera wears some most graceful toilettes, including an exquisitely modelled white gown with a deep tucked net chemisette and sleeves that closely cling to the arms to match, embellished with the Greek key pattern in white silk soutache, and on the chemisette with diamond buttons. The gown is gracefully finished with a purple chiffon scarf sash threaded through a diamond slide in front.

A SERIES of ten lectures on "Form in Music" will be delivered by Mr. Stewart Macpherson in the course of the Michaelmas term at the Royal Academy of Music, which began on Thursday. The lectures alluded to will be free to students of the Academy and to annual subscribers.

AN experience of mixed delights was enjoyed by Mr. George D. Day's Prodigal Son company at York last week. Despite the lateness of the year, the attractions of the river were not to be resisted, and so a picnic was arranged on the Friday when a happy crowd started off in boats for Poppleton, four and a half miles distant. Under a fine chestnut the party did justice to the good things provided, and later indulged in a baseball contest, to which the ladies added a great deal of amusement.

AT three o'clock the sky became so overcast that it was thought expedient to return. Barely five minutes had elapsed, however, when the rain came, and for an hour the Prodigals rowed and raced through a perfect deluge. Crowds of river men were waiting on the bank at landing, when cabs were commandeered and rushes made for the necessary hot baths. Though an unpleasant experience, it in no way damped the ardour of the members of the company, who played to the usual large and appreciative audience at night.

THE fourteenth season of Fancy Dress Balls at Covent Garden, under the direction of Mr. Frank Rendle, was announced to begin last evening. An artistic "background" on the stage has been painted by Mr. Harry Brooke of an entirely new character. The whole of the proscenium is filled in with a realistic representation of a Casino, in which the orchestra of 100 musicians, under Mr. Dan Godfrey, is seated. A panorama of over 200 feet, representing lake, mountain, and woodland scenery, is to be seen, the charm of which is further enhanced by special moonlight effects and festoons of Chinese lanterns.

THE stall area at Covent Garden has been completely set aside for the dancers, and forms one of the largest floors in Europe. The parquet has been carefully prepared, and, thanks to a specially made wax with which it is very thinly covered, it makes the best surface that is obtainable in this country. Seats to view the gay throng are once again provided in the amphitheatre. At each of the fortnightly balls throughout the season will be given valuable prizes for the best costumes worn by the dancers, and also for the best waltzers and the best two-step dancers.

MR. RICHARD GOLDEN, who has made such a hit in The Old Firm at the Queen's Theatre, has developed a strong attachment to this country, and, despite tempting inducements in the way of salary to return to America, remains firm in his desire to establish himself in England. "For the past fifteen years," says the talented comedian, "I have been coming to England every summer, and each time it has been harder to return to America. Now I have got here, and the English public have given me such a hearty welcome and have taken Daniel Hake into their hearts, I hope to spend the rest of my days here. In fact, I have just finished negotiations to sell my American country home with that idea in view."

MISS MILDRED BRYAN, who was the principal singer in The Prince of Pilsen No. 1 company, and afterwards prima-donna with the Moody-Manners Opera Company, scored last season in pantomime as principal girl with Messrs. Dottridge and Longden, and was re-engaged by them for next Christmas to play the Princess in Aladdin. Afterwards Miss Bryan, who is an accomplished vocalist, will go on the variety stage, and has appointed Mr. Dottridge as her sole agent.

MISS EDITH BLANDE concludes this evening five special weeks as Dora Grey in Her Second Time on Earth. This is Miss Blande's second association with the part, she having sustained it on a long tour five years ago.

THE second annual series of performances by the British Empire Shakespeare Society at the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, Stratford-upon-Avon, will begin on Wednesday afternoon next, when Twelfth Night, will be played by members of the society, under the direction of Mr. Acton Bond. Repetitions will be given on Thursday and Saturday evenings and Friday afternoon. There will be two separate casts, drawn from members of the society in all parts of the kingdom. Special arrangements for reduced fares are being made with railway companies.

THE visit of Mr. George Edwardes's company in the great musical play, The Merry Widow, to the Grand Opera House, Middlesbrough, next week, has aroused great enthusiasm amongst Tees-side playgoers. On Tuesday the performance will be under the patronage of the members of the Iron and Steel Institute, and on that evening only the pit, amphitheatre, and gallery will be available for the general public.

MR. ORLANDO BARNETT, who will be remembered for his performance of George Tesman in Hedda Gabler with Miss Elizabeth Robins in the days when she was first helping to introduce Ibsen into England, has been engaged to support Mr. H. V. Neilson as Jacob Engstrand in Ghosts next week at Leeds.

MISS VIOLET FULTON will shortly appear in her sketch, The Collaborators. She has acquired the rights in the recent success Kitty the Crook, a dramatic sketch by Leon M. Lion, the author of Filby the Fakir, now being performed as a curtain-raiser at Wyndham's.

MR. CECIL BERYL, who was for so many years the lessee of the Theatre Royal, Brighton, is to be presented with an illuminated address and a purse of £150.

ENGLISH music-lovers share keenly in the regret experienced at the loss of Pablo Sarasate, the great violinst, who died at his residence at Biarritz from acute bronchitis on Sunday. Sarasate, like Lady Hallé and Joachim, began his career as a child prodigy. Born at Pampeluna on March 10, 1844, he commenced his studies at the early age of 4½ years, and appeared at a concert at Corunna when only six. After studying in Madrid, the youth entered, on Jan. 1, 1856, the Paris Conservatoire, and in 1857 he gained the first prize of the violin class. He afterwards joined Reber's harmony class, but subsequently relinquished the study of composition in order to adopt the career of a concert-player. Leaving the Conservatoire in 1859, he quickly won fame in his native country, and subsequently appeared in nearly all the great cities of Europe as well as America.

SARASATE made his London début in 1861, the same year in which Mme. Adelina Patti was first heard at Covent Garden. His next visit was paid in 1874, when he played at one of the Philharmonic Society's concerts, and at the Musical Union. In 1877 he appeared at the Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts, and during the following year, when he received a second invitation from the Philharmonic Society. Sarasate has given many successful recitals and orchestral concerts here. During the last twenty years he had often visited England, and always received an enthusiastic welcome. He had written compositions for the violin which are much favoured by English students.

MANY honours and decorations were bestowed upon the great violinist in the course of his lengthy career. Queen Maria Christina personally invested him with the Grand Cross of Isabel la Catolica, which gave him the title of Excellency. Among other honours were those of Officer of the Legion of Honour, Red Eagle of Prussia (Third Class), Christ of Portugal, White Eagle of Weimar, and the Order of Dessau. Sarasate was an hon. member of many academies, and hon. professor at various conservatoires of music.

THE removal of the body of Sarasate to his native town took place on Thursday morning. Prayers were recited by the Abbé Cor, of St. Charles's Church, and a company of the 49th Infantry Regiment rendered military honours, as the deceased was an officer of the Legion of Honour. The hearse, which was covered with flowers, was followed to the station by several carriages, in which were the Mayors of Pampeluna and Saragossa, delegates of various Spanish associations, the Spanish Consul, the Mayor of Biarritz, and relatives and intimate friends of the deceased.

IN his will Sarasate bequeaths his piano, two violins by Stradivarius, and 25,000 francs to the Pampeluna Academy of Music, besides 30,000 francs to the poor of that town; one Stradivarius to the Paris Conservatoire, and 20,000 francs for endowing a prize; and 100,000 francs to the Madrid Conservatoire.

FOLLOWING on the brilliant success achieved by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in Brewster's Millions, played recently at Yarmouth, Miss Mabel Love appeared on Monday last at the Aquarium Theatre in this successful management's Lady Frederick company, and was welcomed by a packed house. Miss Love scored repeatedly in the name-part, being artistically supported by Mr. Robert Minster and a strong cast. Numerous calls were responded to at the fall of the curtain on each act, and finally Miss Love was presented with some beautiful flowers by enthusiastic admirers in the stalls. The Hutchison management have spared no pains or expense in presenting Lady Frederick on a par with the London production, which is still playing to huge business at the Haymarket.

THE audience at the Bradford Theatre Royal on the 18th inst. witnessed an unfortunate accident during the performance of A Chinese Honeymoon by Mr. Milton Bode's company. The mishap occurred towards the end of the second act, when Mr Will Harman, who played the part of Mr. Pineapple, had to enter with a jumping movement and spring into the arms of the Emperor (Mr. Rudolph Kloss). Mr. Harman, however, took a false step, and fell into the arms of Mr. Kloss, exclaiming, "Take me off, my leg is broken." He was carried to the wings, and the ambulance was summoned by telephone. After being conveyed to the Royal Infirmary it was found that his leg was broken just above the ankle. It has now been set, and the injured limb is progressing satisfactorily, but it will be some weeks before Mr. Harman can continue his tour. Meanwhile his part is being taken by Mr. Tom Burt.

MISS RUTH VINCENT will be the heroine of The Belle of Brittany, which will be brought out by Mr. Tom B. Davis at the Queen's on Saturday, Oct. 17. The comedy is the work of Mr. Leedham Bantock and Mr. P. J. Barrow, with lyrics by Mr. Percy Greenbank and music by Mr. Howard Talbot and Mme. Marie Horne. Favourite artists will also figure in other leading parts, the cast including Mr. George Graves, Mr. Walter Passmore, Mr. Lawrence Rea, Mr. George Miller, Mr. David Burnaby, Mr. Charles Maude, Miss Maudi Darrell, Miss Maud Boyd, and Miss Lily Iris.

"THE HYPOCRITES" South Company met with a remarkably enthusiastic reception at the Gaiety Theatre, Hastings, on Monday. Seldom, if ever, it was asserted, could be recalled such a burst of cheering as that which greeted the raising of the curtain after the third act. Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton, who is playing the curate, the Rev. Edgar Linnell, has scored a gratifying success in the leading part.

MISS ANNIE HUGHES is appearing in The Mollusc at the Kennington Theatre during next week. The opportunity of renewing acquaintance with such a clever artist in a part in which she is so thoroughly suited will, no doubt, be eagerly grasped.

MISS MARJORIE MURRAY, who leapt into prominence some six months since by her performance at the Hicks Theatre in the one-act play, The Agitator, has since been achieving great things on tour as Sunday in the piece of that name. Miss Murray has the youth and freshness that count for so much in parts of that description, and her undeniable talents, natural and acquired, have been used to admirable purpose. Honours have been showered upon her everywhere, and her career has begun with evidences of the brightest promise. Miss Murray concludes an eight weeks' engagement as Sunday with Mr. Louis Calvert's company at the Broadway, New Cross, this evening, when she is resigning the part.

AT the Royal Academy of Music the Henry Smart Scholarship (organ) has been awarded to Cuthbert Lionel Heel (a native of Folkestone). The adjudicators were Mr. Reginald Steggall, Dr. H. W. Richards, and Dr. W. Stevenson Hoyte. The Maud Mary Gooch Scholarship (organ) has been secured by Alec Rowley (a native of London), Patrick Kevin Buckley being highly commended. The adjudicators were the same as for the Henry Smart Scholarship.

THE Stainer Exhibition (organ) has been awarded to Patrick Kevin Buckley (a native of Beccles, Suffolk), Adelaide Parker being highly commended. The adjudicators were Mr. F. Corder and Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie. The John Thomas (Welsh) Scholarship (instrumentalists) has been gained by Edgar Jones (a native of Landore), Sydney Northcote being highly commended. The adjudicators were Messrs. Carlo Albanesi, F. Corder, and John Thomas.

AT the customary Wagner evening at the Promenade Concerts on Monday the vocalists will be Miss Susan Strong and Mr. Herbert Witherspoon. Tuesdays during this season are becoming popular as the "French evenings." M. Edouard Colonne will again conduct in the enforced absence of Mr. Henry J. Wood, and the programme will include the repetition of the Scherzo ("Queen Mab") from Berlioz's Romeo and Juliet, the Scherzo from L'Apprenti Sorcier of Dukas, the Serenade from Charpentier's "Impressions d'Italie," and the Suite from Bizet's incidental music to Daudet's play L'Arlesienne. The overture will be Beethoven's "Coriolanus," which is one of M. Colonne's finest interpretations. A new pianist, Miss Myrta Stubbs, will make a first appearance at these concerts in Saint-Saëns's G minor Concerto (No. 2).

ON Wednesday evening Miss Mathilde Verne will play Tschaikovsky's Pianoforte Concerto in B flat minor. The Symphony will be Beethoven's No. 5 in C minor, and the second part of the concert will open with Strauss's tone-poem, "Don Juan." A feature of interest of Thursday's programme is Mr. York Bowen's Overture in G minor. Mr. Heinrich Fiedler will be heard in Mozart's Concerto No. 3 in G for violin and orchestra, Mr. Albert Fransella contributes two flute solos, and Miss Mildred Jones sings for the first time at a promenade concert.

FOR Friday, Oct. 2—the "Beethoven night"—the programme is of remarkable interest. The Symphony is the ever-popular No. 7 in A. Mr. Herbert Witherspoon sings Bach's cantata for bass voice and orchestra, "Amore Traditore," one of the only two Italian texts set to music by the Leipzig cantor. On this occasion Mr. Jean Ten Have, a former pupil of Ysaye, will make his début at these concerts in Mendelssohn's violin concerto. Saturday's programme includes Cowen's orchestral poem, "A Phantasy of Life and Love," and Strauss's "Till Eulenspiegels Merry Pranks," besides a number of lighter and very popular items. There will be two first appearances on this evening: Mr. Alfred Heather, who sings "Love in her eyes sits playing," from Handel's Acis and Galatea, and Mr. John Powell, who will be heard in Liszt's Hungarian Fantasia for piano and orchestra

THE new modern miltary play, The Cheat, by Edward Ferris and B. P. Matthews, which met with an enthusiastic reception at the Grand, Wolverhampton, on its production there this week, will be presented to suburban audiences at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, on Monday, prior to its appearance in the West End. The cast, headed by Mr. Frank Cooper (which we gave in a previous issue) has an addition in the person of Mr. S. A. Cookson. Mr. Hubert Druce, whose production it is, has highly complimented his general-manager, Mr. George Unwin, on the way in which he has carried through all the business arrangements.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

A Safe Man.

MR. H. W. VARNA writes from far Australia to say that there has just passed away there a most remarkable theatrical identity in the person of one "Dan Barry," who for years toured the length and breadth of the Australian smalls, or "back-blocks," as they are there known. Among many admirable characteristics, he was known as the one manager in his peculiar rank with whom money was always safe," and local tradesfolk would do business with him where needed, while with a manager whose word in cities would stand good for any amount, should he dare venture into these smalls to fill in a date with his company en route from one town to another, lying perhaps hundreds of miles away, so slight the faith of the small town trader in theatrical folk, he could hardly get his work done at all.

THE famous "Dan" came to Australia, according to certain authorities, from Ireland before 1850, and was reputedly of good family there, though other Melbourne authority states that he was the son of a local equity barrister, and educated at the Church of England Grammar School in that city, from which he embarked in life on a journalistic career, being at times responsible for some startling press work. Another avers that his early years were distinguished by belonging to the paper-selling craft on Dublin's kerbstones. It is strange that he should ever have braved the ocean to reach Australian shores, for never would he be tempted to cross the water again from Australia to New Zealand, a country which offered much to the small manager; yet the fear of drowning was so strong, he would never venture on the water again. All the old-time gagging methods were his, and though reputedly the author of many of the plays he set before his public, it is on record that some were composed as the play went on. One of the company would enter his dressing-room at night—generally ornamented with a bottle of beer in the washing jug, and ask, "What are we going to do in the third act?" Dan: "You then have possession of the twenty thousand pounds. I'll knock you down, and find the missing will and the money in the desk. Tell the stage manager to have a desk—more action in that—speech, and exit." And so on. It is said that the only lines he was perfect in were those he addressed his audience with between the acts, for always was he a keen business man, and the tricks and dodges he resorted to were wonderful enough to make most interesting reading.

ONE of the most interesting was bringing Romeo and Juliet to the light as a modern play, entitled "The Pugilist's Pride, by Dan Barry, Esq. A phenomenal success in all Europe, and played before all the crowned heads on earth." A correspondent of the Bulletin newspaper records witnessing the performance, and quickly dropping to the device. Romeo was O'Romey, an Irish pugilist. The Montagues has become the Monaghans, the Capulets the Caseys. The street brawl between Romeo and Tybalt (named Tynan) was shown as a ten-round glove fight. In the balcony scene O'Romey was discovered on the Casey's verandah, and pursued as a burglar. The tomb scene became a prison cell, in which O'Romey and Julia Casey meet, Julia charged with bigamy, and O'Romey accused with poisoning Tynan at the ringside by introducing poison into his lemonade. The production in question was an immense success, and ran two consecutive nights to great business.

A Realistic Assault.

THE following story, says the Pelican, is not true, of course—it couldn't be, could it?—but it bears telling, nevertheless. The manager of a touring company which had been doing worse than badly for some time past, called his company around him, explained the situation, and asked for suggestions for booming the show. All sorts and conditions of ideas were proposed and vetoed in turn as obsolete, overdone, or impossible. At last one bright young walking gentleman came forward and said: "Look here, guv'nor, I've got a notion. Why shouldn't you be assaulted in the railway train?" "Why should I be, my dear boy?" queried the impresario in his turn. "I don't mean really assaulted, you know. After a furious struggle you best your assailant, who escapes. Police are called, things get into the paper, interviewers call in shoals, you work in something about The Pretty Princess, and there you are—crowded houses for weeks to come."

"GOOD enough," said Mr. Manager, brightening up, "but who's to assault me? It won't do for any of you to do it, of course. The thing might leak out, and then it would be all U.P." "Leave it to me," said the originator of the brilliant notion, "I'll fix it up for you. I know a decent young chap who'll do the trick for a trifle, and can be relied to keep his mouth shut. Leave it to me." Left to him it was accordingly, and in due course the player sought out his friend, who was a player likewise, very much down on his luck, and happy to turn his hand to anything to make a bit. All the details were arranged, and, so that there should be no chance of the affair leaking out, the parties were not introduced, but the assaulter was told to get into a certain carriage on a certain train at a certain station, and there he would find Mr. Manager.

HAVING made a scene, he would make his escape at the next station, and at the station following Mr. Manager would call the police. This would give the player time to make himself scarce. At the appointed hour the player entered the carriage and found the manager. One glance at him was sufficient to assure him that he was the gentleman who, under a different name, had some years back left him stranded in a south coast town, and had run away with his wife. With wrath at his heart and a stout stick in his hand he did set about his foe, and to such good purpose that Mr. Manager cried for mercy, and promised untold gold to be let off. But the player was in earnest, and he did not cease operating until the unfortunate manager was one mass of welts and bruises. Then he departed. When Mr. Manager crawled from the train, more dead than alive, and was asked by the members of the company cheerfully assembled, "Well, how did it go off?" his language was unfit for publication, even as a guarantee of good faith.

Theatrical Death Watches.

THE New York theatrical managers have been discussing the habitual "first-nighters," and saying some very hard things about them, according to a leading newspaper of that city which has been gathering their views and publishing them. The "theatrical death watch" is the odious descriptive title bestowed upon a certain clique that makes a practice of attending all the first performances and never by any chance finds anything good in them. "The society has flourished for many years, and it is time it went with the Black Hand and other similar organisations. The 'death watch' was started by a New York dramatic critic many years ago. He was a strange, morbid sort of a chap, who came from out West to write only funerals and executions, and the city editor, by error, sent him on his first assignment to a theatre. He was so disappointed at not being at a funeral that he showed it all through the play. He sat through one of the best musical comedies ever produced in New York with an immovable face, cold as a gambler's heart, and this face was reflected in his notice the next morning. This manner of sitting through a play and not smiling soon spread."

Mr. Cecil Raleigh and Mr. Henry Hamilton have so exactly taken the length of the foot of the patron of Drury Lane Theatre that the success of any of their dramas there is assured in advance. The Marriages of Mayfair is quite up to the standard they have fixed for themselves. It has an interesting and exciting story, a sufficient amount of honest sentiment, and all the necessary comic relief. We may take it for granted that the authors are correct in their law, and that a divorce obtained in Geneva is not valid in this country. Such a divorce was obtained by Lord Alaric Villiers from a dancer named Sylvia Thorne, in order that he might marry a Society beauty. Lord Alaric had a son named Nigel, who by the sudden death of a relative becomes Marquis of Deerminster. Nigel has incurred the enmity of a rascally bookmaker named Callender by getting him warned off the turf; and Callender induces an extravagant young man named Dudley Gore to forge Deerminster's name to a bill. Lord Adolphus Villiers, an elderly man about town, is "inveigled" into a marriage with a music-hall singer named Bess Bissett, who knows all about the Geneva divorce, and obtains evidence which enables her to turn Nigel and Lady Margaret out of the estates, Nigel being pronounced illegitimate. Callender now persuades Gore to steal a valuable diamond from the regalia in the Tower, and the young man is shot dead by the soldiers on guard just after he has thrown Callender the jewel. The bookmaker escapes in a boat and repairs to Switzerland, where, by an accident, he crosses a dangerous pass in company with Nigel, whom he still hates. Having drugged him, he leaves him to perish in the snow; but as Callender is going he is killed by an avalanche, and Nigel is rescued by his sweetheart, Dorothy Gore, and Lord Adolphus, who has come to Switzerland to obtain further evidence in connection with the divorce. He returns with sufficient to prove that Nigel is the rightful heir to the Deerminster estates; Nigel and Dorothy are married on Tower Green; and general happiness prevails.

The cast included thirty-two speaking personages, fourteen of whom were of prime importance. The success of the evening was achieved by Mr. Albert Chevalier, for whom the authors have provided a part which enabled him to employ all his best qualities. It combined humour with pathos, and absurdity with a certain amount of dignity and fine feeling. At first it seemed that Lord Adolphus Villiers was a mere senile fop, but as he became involved in the action we lost sight of his senile pretences in the pathos of his position. Mr. Chevalier made the most of the part in all its phases, whether depicting the quaint vanity of the old beau or describing his feelings in his painful and humiliating plight. His make-up was most artistic, and altogether he made a palpable hit. Mr. Lyn Harding's fine stature was well suited to the representation of the burly bookmaker, Jim Callender. The low-bred familiarity, the base cunning, and the brutal heartlessness of the man were portrayed with vivid effect; and Callender's nerve-shaken remorse in the third act was adroitly suggested. Mr. Basil Gill's personal beauty and manly and romantic bearing made him an ideal hero, and he played the part of Nigel Villiers with just the needed amount of poetry and elevation, being always at ease, and always impressive and interesting. The varying impulses of Dudley Gore were portrayed with passionate feeling by Mr. Vincent Clive, who expressed with skill and power the struggles of the victim in the toils of the tempter. A performance which was as entirely charming in style as it was sweet and sincere in sentiment was supplied by Miss Eva Moore, whose declaration of love in the second act held the house in breathless and sympathetic silence, so true was it in feeling and so strongly and deeply expressed. Miss Moore also showed real power in her delivery of the "second-sight" speeches of the character, and played it with an earnestness and emphasis which filled the vast theatre, and showed how much of late years she has increased in power and scope. Miss Marie George as Bess Bissett looked pretty enough to account for Lord Adolphus's infatuation, and acted with all the necessary plebeian pettishness and impulsive violence. She struck a note of truth and passion in the touching scene between Bess and Lady Margaret in the last act, and was the ungoverned, good-hearted child of nature to the life. The ripe and cultured art of Mrs. Lancaster-Wallis was well applied to the embodiment of Lady Margaret Villiers, whose intense pride was shown by Mrs. Wallis very graphically and with unmistakable effect. Miss Lucy Sibley proved herself a genuine comedienne by her quiet but really comical representation of Mrs. Bissett, and handled the part with a "'cuteness" and confidence which were admirable. Miss Marie Pera looked very pretty in becoming attire, and was an agreeable and intelligent exponent of the rôle of Lily de Mario, especially in its more moderate phases. Mr. Charles V. France's style and smartness made him an irreproachable Duke of Exmoor; and Mr. Oscar Adye did all that was required as Julian Merrowdale, and did it extremely well. Mr. Arthur Poole played Sir Anthony Gore with a light and firm touch and with just the needed quiet dignity; and Mr. Frank Bradley was natural and reposeful as Percy Hosfield. Mr. Fred Grove depicted Andrew McBroader with a resolute Scottishness which made the rôle remarkable, though there was not much in it for the actor to develop. Amongst the multitude of minor characters we may select for notice Mr. John Archer, who spoke his lines well as the archæological Yeoman Warder; Mr. Clarence Vincent, who bore himself with reverend dignity as Father Felix; Mr. Howard Russell, who played the poetic schoolmaster with sedate humour; Mr. Richard Norton, who was distinct and deliberate as the Rector; and Mr. Arthur Leigh, who represented the Policeman neatly. The remaining parts had excellent representatives.

The "big scene" of the piece was the Swiss pass with avalanche. The stage picture was a marvellously faithful reproduction of the locality, and the "snow-slip," in which man and horse appear to be destroyed, was managed with a cleverness that defied the sharpest investigation to explain. Mr. Harry Brooke has won great credit by this achievement, and his cloth representing a Swiss lake is a very beautiful picture. The Hospice is most realistically represented by the same artist, and is a set that must be remembered. Mr. Henry Emden has painted a very pretty garden scene for the first act and a charming autumnal woodland for the third, and has also supplied the designs from which Messrs. Hugo Baruch and Co. have built up a faithful reproduction of Rumpelmayer's restaurant. Mr. R. McCleery's Tower sets are most illusive examples of combined arts of scenic construction and lighting, and his arrangement of the jewel effect is excellent; and Mr. Bruce Smith has supplied a spacious interior, with many portraits, for the second scene of the fourth act. The mounting of The Marriages of Mayfair is stupendous.

Warm and special praise must be given to the way in which that able and experienced conductor Mr. J. M. Glover has composed the incidental music; and Mr. Henry Emden's new act-drop is pleasing, bright, and varied. To Mr. Ernest D'Auban's stage-management much of the smoothness of the performance was due, and his assistant, Mr. Edward Spiller, should share the credit of the marvellous production which has been prepared under the all-observant eye of Mr. Arthur Collins. Mr. Arthur Collins was called after the third act, and led on the horse which had taken part in the snowy-pass scene; and the lowering of the curtain with a message of thanks was substituted for the usual appearance of the authors and manager at the conclusion of the performance. The Marriages of Mayfair may safely be added to the list of Mr. Collins's triumphs at Drury Lane.

"IB" AT THE ADELPHI.

On Monday, Sept. 21, revival of the Picture in Three Panels, by Basil Hood, entitled "IB AND LITTLE CHRISTINA."

Ib	MR. MARTIN HARVEY
Ib's Father	MR. ALBERT E. RAYNOR
Little Ib	MASTER BOBBIE ANDREWS
Old Heinrik	MR. PHILIP HEWLAND
John	MR. GEORGE COOKE
The Gipsy Woman	MISS MARY RORKE
Christina	MISS COLERIDGE
Little Christina	MISS RITA LEGGIERO

It was on May 15, 1900, that Mr. Martin Harvey reopened the Prince of Wales's Theatre with a "triple bill," one item of which was Ib and Little Christina. In this, Miss Phyllis Dare appeared as Christina in the first period of the play, and as Little Christina in the third, Miss Mary Rorke enacting Ib's mother, and Miss Eva Moore representing the adult Christina of the second period. Hans Andersen's tale is familiar to all readers of his fairy tales, and the pervading melancholy of the story, with its suggestion that it is better to be under the black earth than on it, has a strange weird sweetness and attraction. Like all poetical pieces, however, it requires delicate handling, and Mr. Martin Harvey's style and personality are exactly suited to the representation of the hero. Both in appearance and acting he realises the character with refined feeling and exquisite appreciation, and his performance is redolent of the sad seriousness of Scandinavian poetry. Miss Mary Rorke repeats her excellent rendering of the rôle of the mysterious Gipsy Woman; Miss Coleridge hits off, with skill and zest, the characteristics of the shallow Christina; and Miss Rita Loggiero is a most delightful and promising exponent of the two little Christinas; Master Bobbie Andrews being intelligent and agreeably unaffected and distinct as Little Ib. Mr. Albert E. Raynor gives a sound and satisfactory performance as Ib's father; and Mr. Philip Hewland does excellent work as Old Heinrick, Mr. George Cooke playing John very capably. The piece is admirably mounted, and its revival in front of The Corsican Brothers is most acceptable and enjoyable.

"THE EMPEROR COMMANDS."

One-Act Comedy, with Music, by George Cornille-Pescud, Produced at the New Tower Pavilion, Portobello, on Wednesday, Sept. 16.

Napoleon Bonaparte	MR. MICHAEL KEMBLE
Comte de Chatillon	MR. HARRY MARVELLO
Talleyrand	MR. GEO. CORNILLE-PESCUD
Fouché	MR. HARRY GRIFFITHS
Marshal Macdonald	MR. SAM THOMSON
Josephine	MISS VICTORIA CARMEN
Eugenie	MISS ELLIE VERRIERE
Mme. Romolino Bonaparte	MISS JEANNE JEUNE
Mlle. St. Cyr	MISS ELAINE CLIFF

Mr. George Cornille-Pescud, who has been a valuable member of Mr. Marvello's summer company at Portobello, writing the words and music of many of the songs for his fellow-artists, has attempted higher flights in The Emperor Commands. The play is a pleasant, unpretentious work, which shows a certain aptness for literary expression, and is clever without being distinguished. The plot of Mr. Pescud's piece turns upon an episode at the Court of Napoleon I. The Comte de Chatillon, an emigré from England, returns to France, and offers his sword in the service of the Emperor. Chatillon is in love with one of the ladies of Napoleon's Court; but Fouché, who is infatuated with the girl, endeavours to put barriers in the way of their union. Josephine overhears Talleyrand persuading the Emperor to divorce her and marry Maria Louisa, and pleads with Napoleon for the young lovers. Fouché is dismissed, and the Emperor commands that Chatillon shall wed the lady of his choice.

The outstanding feature of the performance was the Napoleon of Mr. Michael Kemble, who acted with dignity and force; Mr. Marvello, admirably made-up, displayed his versatility by his easy acting as Chatillon; the Talleyrand of Mr. Pescud and the Fouché of Mr. Harry Griffiths were capital sketches; and Mr. Sam Thomson indicated that Marshal Macdonald had preserved the Scotch accent of his progenitors. Miss Victoria Carmen, an actress who has been principally seen in comedy parts, played Josephine with feeling and intelligence; and Miss Elaine Cliff comported herself with grace as Mlle. St. Cyr, and sang a tuneful solo for a contralto with much charm. Miss Ellie Verriere was a bright Eugenie; and Miss Jeune was a stately Mme. Bonaparte. Mr. Pescud has written, in addition to the pretty air for contralto, an effective duet, excellently rendered by Mr. Kemble and Miss Carmen, a solo for Marshal Macdonald, "The land you know"—which is too up-to-date for its surroundings—and a chorus for four male voices. The play was well mounted, and the actors were recalled at the fall of the curtain.

"THE WHIRLPOOL."

A Play, in Three Acts, by Herbert Swears, Founded on a Short Story by Cyrus Townsend Brady, and Produced for the First Time in London at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, on Monday, Sept. 21.

Elijah D. Tillottson	MR. KENDAL
Bertram Livingstone	MR. BASSETT ROE
Cunningham Cutter	MR. WELLESLEY DRAPER
Hon. Reginald Killiegrew	MR. T. HOLDING
Ephraim Johnstone	MR. EDMUND GURNEY
Chappin	MR. METCALFE WOOD
Parker	MR. W. M. RUTHERFURD
Elise	MISS SARA DE GROOT
Miss Gretchen de Kaater	MRS. A. B. TAPPING
Miss Gertrude Van Stuyler	MISS ETHEL DANE
Miss Constance Livingstone	MRS. KENDAL

In his depiction of the strenuousness and romance of business the English playwright gives pride of place to New York, and Mr. Herbert Swears, in the play he has so cleverly written round Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, lays the action in the Empire City, where, in the drawing-room of Miss Constance Livingstone — a lady who has reached that nebulous period of life known as middle age, and without any serious experience of love, though on account of her great wealth she has had as many suitors as Portia—we meet most of the characters. Of late she has been attracted by the unconventionality and transparent honesty of purpose and intention of Elijah D. Tillottson, a plain, honest mining engineer from Brazil. Having won the lady's consent during a very amusing love declaration, he sets out for the office of her brother, Bertram Livingstone, a stockbroker in the city, to ask his permission. The proposal is treated with scorn. In an angry scene between the two men Elijah draws his revolver, and Miss Livingstone's entrance only prevents the engineer shooting the man who so grossly insults him.

In Act 2 we find Tillottson established in an office apparently as a mining expert; in reality, however, he has gradually been manipulating the coffee market, and by means of private information he has of the coffee plantations in Brazil, he will have, by three o'clock on that day, "cornered" the market, and made the immense pile of dollars he thinks necessary to match Miss Livingstone's fortune and enable him to marry her. Tillottson has been helped towards the end of this gigantic deal by an old partner of his, by name Johnstone, who lends him two million dollars. He is now top dog, and Bertram Livingstone, the man who stigmatised him as an adventurer and fortune-hunter, has not only gone under, but in his reckless gamble to stem the tide of Tillottson's operations has lost both his sister's and his sweetheart's fortunes, which he has appropriated. Unless the corner in coffee is broken he will be a ruined man, and will be branded as a thief. In his dilemma he appeals to his sister to ask for help from Tillottson, who, impelled by his love for Constance, finally says he will not lend the money, but will himself actually break the corner. With the collapse of the corner he will be ruined; but he allows Constance to think he is leaving her because her brother is a thief.

Tillottson informs Johnstone, on his return, of the change in their plans, and explains the reason. Johnstone agrees with him, and will stand by him. They telephone for Cutter, the broker, and on his arrival instruct him to break the corner. It only wants a few minutes to three o'clock, and Cutter refuses the, to him, ridiculous order. Tillottson and Johnstone then draw revolvers, and "covering" the broker force him to telephone to his assistant on the Coffee Exchange to sell at once, and so break the corner. As three o'clock approaches an angry crowd of brokers break down the doors and rush into Tillottson's office, only to be met by the revolvers of Tillottson and Johnstone. As they are held back, three o'clock strikes.

In Act 3 Bertram Livingstone learns something of his sister's self-sacrifice. He has been saved at the expense of her happiness. Bertram leaves the story repentant, but happy with his fiancée. Johnstone then arrives on the scene with a message of farewell from his partner, and tells Constance the full story of how they broke the corner. Constance is overwhelmed with grief to think she has been the means of ruining her lover, and begs Johnstone to bring Tillottson to her. He does so, and then Constance tells Tillottson she knows all, and how generous and noble he has been. On her knees she begs him to take her, and the curtain falls on the prospect of a happy marriage.

Mrs. Kendal's gracious personality is never better fitted than in a part that enables her to display the delicacy of her comedy as well as to exhibit her power of compelling the tear. Her comedy in the first act simply enchants her admirers at Holloway, where she is a strong favourite. In the second act the appeal of Constance to her lover is full of that womanly tact and convincing force that the popular actress knows so well how to express. Mr. Kendal as the mining engineer, Tillottson, has a character to which he gives rare distinction and individuality. Not too American, but just American enough. We immediately cherish the unaffected, simple nature of the man, and take him to our hearts, and it is Mr. Kendal's breezy natural acting that compels us to do so. Mr. Edmund Gurney as Ephraim Johnstone supplies a gem of characterisation; and a real bit of drollery comes from Mr. Metcalfe Wood, who is splendidly made up as the shuffling old clerk, Chappin, who is teetotal until he can handle the whiskey bottle. Mr. Bassett Roe has the character that is the most difficult to play in the piece—that of Bertram Livingstone, who cuts rather a sorry figure in the final act, in spite of the author's heroic attempts to rehabilitate him in the good graces of the audience. The actor is excellent in his suggestion of blank desperation in the second act, where Mr. Wellesley Draper scores most unmistakably in the part of Cunningham Cutter. Mr. T. Holding is a reasonable and possible representative of the Hon. Reginald Killigrew, the son of a peer; and Mr. W. M. Rutherfurd imparts all the necessary individuality and eccentricity to the rôle of Parker. Mrs. A. B. Tapping does well in the part of Miss Gretchen de Kaater, the New York society lady; Miss Sara De Groot makes the most of her short scene as Elise the maid; and Miss Ethel Dane is a winsome and vivacious Gertrude Van Stuyler.

MISS FLORENCE RADCLIFFE, at a few hours' notice, played the name-part in Merely Mary Ann at the Opera House, Perth, on Monday night. The part is one particularly suited to Miss Radcliffe's personality, and she made a genuine success, obtaining never less than three curtains at the end of each act.

MR. H. F. MALTBY'S plays, The Youngest of Three, Sir George of Almack's and Fraud (the adventure of a lady typist), have been quite successful in the provinces, and doubtless one of them will soon be produced in London. At almost every town visited Mr. Maltby (who is now only twenty-eight years old) receives letters of congratulation from unknown admirers of his exceptionally clever work.

MR. BOURCHIER AT LIVERPOOL.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier, in replying to the toast of his health at a dinner given to him and Miss Violet Vanbrugh by the Liverpool Stage Club on Sunday, said:—An expert in the business side of our profession greatly interested me the other day by saying that five per cent. of the general public is the maximum figure representing what is known as the "theatrical public"; that is to say, those who take any real interest in the legitimate drama, and who closely follow the careers of actors, authors, and managers. The remaining ninety-five per cent., my friend says, "only go to theatres to be amused, some thinking the plays are written by the actors themselves, others that they are written by Shakespeare, and the rest don't think about it at all." So far as London is concerned, the recent growth of new theatres seems to have kept pace with that of the variety houses, although the profits recently made by the latter would, I fancy, be larger than those of the so-called "legitimate" theatres. In some towns in the provinces, however, a different tale is evidently to be told. In your own town, for instance, there are now only two first-class theatres and there used to be four, although at the present time the population is greater. I read the following statement last week in the Courier:—"Not many years ago two music halls sufficed for Liverpool; now we have at least a dozen palatial establishments all giving two performances a night, and generally crowded at both."

I am also assured by some of my provincial friends that the majority of music halls in the provinces are far better and far more comfortable than the theatres that run in opposition to them, and that the standard of entertainment offered at them is steadily improving. A great wit once said: "You may amuse, shock, or interest your audience, but you must never bore them." When the manager of a legitimate theatre is fortunate enough to produce a play which combines the amusement, the thrill, and the sustained interest, that theatre can hold its own against any programme that the combined variety houses in the United Kingdom can put into the field.

The difficulties of managing a legitimate are far greater than those of manager at variety theatres. If one turn fails to please the public the manager of a variety theatre may be quite certain that at least two out of every twenty will more than fill his house throughout the week; or, as in the case of Miss Maud Allan at the Palace Theatre in London, many months he is running these attractions. The lover of the purely intellectual drama must not be too hard on the apotheosis of the variety theatre. Let him remember that the drama, which began in prehistoric times, owes its origin to dancing. Early, very early, before his tongue had much speech or his hand much cunning, man wished to give formal expression to the feeling within him that he and the world about him were governed by a Deity, and he found this expression in dance. Soon the dancing became pantomime. Man, as yet without literature, gave a meaning to each of the actions in his dance, and expressed by gesture what he could not express by language, words being so few. Later, words came, literature, music, and last of all came painting.

Why is the percentage of legitimate playgoers so small in this country, and whose fault is it? Well, ladies and gentlemen, it may be that the whole trouble with the drama at the present moment is that the Puritans, in their mistaken zeal, drove it out of the hearts of the people, and that it has never really returned. But what, may I ask, will be the attitude of the public towards the drama when those pageants which have taken place in the provinces in the past two or three years—and we hope will be followed by many more—have revived the intimacy that at one time existed between the people and the art of acting? The theatre will then draw, I think, an educated public, such as the concert hall draws now. By an educated public I do not mean a public taken from what we call the educated classes, but a public which, though taken from all classes, really understands the play. For instance, a very intelligent and sympathetic audience might come from Hildenborough, where there is a band of village players. These, though not professionals, do know, by actual experience, something of the art of acting, and their presence in a theatre would certainly be an incentive to any conscientious actor. It is the knowledge that the drama is not understood that leads to slovenly, haphazard performances of indifferent plays, and the knowledge that music is understood has led to the improvement which the past ten years have seen in musical performances. That pageants will gradually spread throughout the country an understanding of the drama is a consummation devoutly to be wished, for so long as the public remains uncritical our drama is hardly likely to improve to any great extent.

There are probably many who question whether an improvement in the drama is of vital importance. "If the drama entertains, is not that enough?" Surely that is too poor a view to hold even of the Cinderella of arts. A very different view was held by the Greeks and by mediæval Churchmen. By them the drama was employed to teach history and to inspire the people with ideals. We still expect literature, painting, and music to do more than entertain; we expect these arts to instruct and inspire us; and we slight and insult the drama when we ask of it only entertainment. We have no good reason for rating the drama in this way below the other arts. The appeal to our senses may be slightly less in drama than in painting and music, but surely, ladies and gentlemen, the appeal to our intellect is greater.

It has been said that, as a nation, we are not, like the French, instinctly artistic. A friend of mine who holds this view was expatiating on this subject the other day, and in support of his theory told me this story. He was strolling through a loan exhibition of works of art in the East-End of London, and, coming upon a beautiful triptych representing "The Last Supper," he stopped a few minutes to examine and admire. Two French girls of the working class came by, and they too were arrested by its beauty. "Que c'est beau," said one; "Oui, c'est bien beau," said the other; and my friend will never forget the mingled admiration and reverence with which the words were spoken—admiration for the artist's work, reverence for his subject. A few minutes afterwards two English girls of the same class came up. Only one of them troubled to look at it, but she quickly nudged her companion. "Lor', Liza," she said, "they 'ad waiters even in those days."

The story is, I think, typical of the difference between the point of view with regard to art in this country and the point of view in France or Germany. To those French girls the picture needed no explanation, for they had unconsciously realised the significance of Goethe's cry, "Art still has truth; take refuge there." Their English sisters needed instruction to understand the subject of the picture; and, above all, some measure of reverence to appreciate it.

As another instance of unintelligence, may we quote Mr. Louis Parker's story of the lady who heard the name of Sherborne mentioned? "Sherborne," she said, wishing to show her knowledge, "of course, that's where they had the Warwick Pageant." That spirit of irreverence and flippant ignorance has wrecked many a good enterprise at the outset. The sneer of the man of fashion in the stalls is echoed by the titter of the boy up aloft, and a good scene, a fine piece of interpretation, go for nothing.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE SURREY.

Not the least attractive item on the current Surrey programme is a grand beauty competition for the ladies of Lambeth, with some handsome cash prizes. The judges, composed of many well-known local citizens, will find their task no easy one by the time they have to give their final decision on Friday evening. As the fair and dark competitors were paraded under the searching rays of the limelight on Monday, the outspoken criticisms of the Surrey lads created roars of merriment.

Miss Carlotta de Yonson, assisted by an excellent company, presents another of her thrilling dramaettes, entitled Crime and the Criminal, in which the author, Mr. C. Douglas Carlile, assumes the rôle of the hero, Harry Carlton, who rescues his fiancée, Muriel Belme, from the clutches of the villainous Dr. Croxton, who with the assistance of his accomplice, Paulo Macari, has her drugged and confined in his sanatorium. Miss Carlotta de Yonson as the dipsomaniac heroine has a very difficult character to portray, and in the scene wherein she thinks she has killed the Italian while under the influence of the drug her acting reaches a high level of excellence. Mr. C. Douglas Carlile invests the part of the hero with that cool confidence and sincerity that have made him a strong favourite. The murderous Dr. Croxton is capably delineated by Mr. Chas. A. Carlile; Mr. Lee Gilbert as the newsboy, Billy, is the saucy street gamin to the life; and as the Italian, Paulo Macari, and Inspector Scott Messrs. J. Langford and A. Crookes do well.

The Mayvilles (Harry and Elsie) are always acceptable in their clever imitations of variety artists. Gravetta and Parr, in a pot-pourri, "There's Going to be a Show," give a most interesting show indeed, commencing with a spoof ventriloquial act, where the lay figure of an old woman comes to life and reveals a very charming lady, who assists her male confrère in a series of life-like impersonations of Generals Kitchener, Roberts, and Buller, Sousa, Napoleon, and Queen Victoria and His Majesty King Edward VII. Browning and Wally, in their trapeze act, give a marvellous exhibition of skill; Carl Colyer, in his songs "I'm a champion" and "The Dancing Craze," indulges in some clever and original hat jugglery, merry patter, and eccentric dancing; Cissy Esdaile wins early honours with her coon song, "My Dusky Lou," with its quaint melody; Josh Dixon, a quaint little comedian, keeps his audience in a merry mood as a diminutive policeman, and afterwards as "Miss Hook of Holland" fairly brings down the house with his clever dancing; Daisy Stratton, a dainty comedienne, is a charming gipsy fortune-teller; Ruhart, in his burlesque jugglery and sharpshooting, is funny, and cloaks some neat and skilful balancing tricks under merry fooling. Raymond's picture, No Good for Anything, is most amusing. As an extra the pictures depicting the good work done daily in the London Hospital assist the appeal made by the ever-courteous manager, Mr. Roy Cochrane, from the stage.

ROYAL STANDARD.

Miss Kittee Rayburn is singing her special song this week at the Standard, "Won't you come to me in Canada?" and the chorus of it is being taken up with great gusto by the audience. The song was specially written for Miss Rayburn by Messrs. S. Fortescue-Harrison and John Neat, and its sentiment as well as its sense is of a kind which should surely act as an incentive to emigration to the Land of the Maple Leaf. It tells the story of a lad who has gone to Canada to make a home for himself and the lassie he has left behind, and how after a few years he writes to her in the words which form the title of the song. Miss Rayburn sings it very prettily and expressively; and her other ditty, "Hannah from Havana," though not so popular, is extremely well rendered. Gordon and Bell delight the audience with their duets and dances; and Miss Madge Beresford is an accomplished and quite charming comedienne. Phillips and Merritt are once more seen and heard to great advantage in their "Touch of Vaudeville"; and Mr. Cliff Ryland is hugely entertaining in his song "Somebody's mother," which he delivers in his extremely quaint manner. Mr. Austin Lenton and Miss Agnes Lane have a highly diverting turn, in which they indulge in humorous repartee and smart and rapid versification upon "unconsidered trifles of the day." Both sing nicely, and the little act finds great favour. Cull-Pitt, who styles himself the "droll deceptionist," submits several very clever feats of magic, that in which he makes an egg appear suddenly in an empty bag which he holds in his hands—his arms being held by two members of the audience—evokes rounds of applause. Altogether his doings are really marvellous to behold. Mr. Will Evans has never been in more comical mood than now. He is uproariously funny, whether it be as the singer of a chorus song, "A B C," or as the distressed but very voluble plaintiff in a breach of promise action, or as "Miss Maggie Alum, the pure art dancer." Few comedians possess such a sense of the ridiculous as he. Mr. Andy Burn furnishes some merry moments with his verses, "Everybody thinks I'm a millionaire"; and Miss Raie Walters amuses the house with her very effective rendering of two songs, in one of which she appears fondly grasping a huge magnet and tells the audience that it is intended to attract a member of the male species; and on her second appearance she displays a bird cage, open for any human animal to enter. Mr. Frank Elliston, Miss Nellie Stevens, and Mr. Richard Oliver present the charming romantic playlet My Lady Betty; and the Edisonograph shows half a dozen films of a diversified and interesting nature. Mr. Maurice Volny attends in his usual able manner to the requirements of the establishment, and Mr. Fredk. Allwood is still ably presiding over the efforts of the orchestra.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

Miss Marie Lloyd is here, and so is all Hammersmith, or, at least, as many as Mr. Lewis Vincent, the popular manager, can possibly pack into this comfortable house. Miss Lloyd, favourite as she is everywhere, seems to have an extra strong hold on the affections of Hammersmithians. On Monday, having sung in her inimitable manner "Don't grumble at the women," "Tiddley-om-pom," and the renowned "The directoire girl," so enthusiastic was the applause that Miss Lloyd gave "I can't make my eyes be good." This song gives an excellent opportunity for "acting," as well as singing, and the interpretation it receives could not be excelled. Miss Lloyd's many costumes are charming.

Mr. Harry Russon is a comedian who will undoubtedly become a "top-o'-the-bill" artist in due course. He was loudly applauded for his character song "I'm only the stage door keeper," and the other two songs, "After you with the girl," and "He's thoroughbred," were cleverly rendered, and received with marked approbation. Mr. Ernest Shand's extremely funny arguments on the proposed Licensing Bill, and the "Oh, what would the vicar say" song were much appreciated and enjoyed. The Two Anartos, with their songs, musical items, and humorous patter, make a popular turn; Mooney and Holbein provide some mirth-provoking business; Miss Flo. Cecil has a catchy song, entitled "Matilda," and afterwards sings, "I do like to be where the money is," concluding with a lively dance; Frank Elliston and company do particularly well in the sketch, My Lady Betty; Tom Watts and company's scena, The Black Eagle, gives an interesting picture of North American Indians' life; the Arthur Gallimore Trio presented an enjoyable mixture of song, fun, and dancing, and were well received by the audience; Gicardo, a young juggler, was entertaining, showing some clever tricks with bottles, plates, hats, umbrella, and billiard balls. Miss Ethel Arundell is a young lady who will no doubt "come on" considerably in the near future. Her songs, "My English Rose," and "I love to see the ocean" were neatly sung. Maxwell and Francis and Slidder and Dunbar also appear on the programme to advantage. The orchestra's selections, under Mr. J. H. Cleve's able guidance, were much appreciated. The Edisonograph, with its up-to-date films, still maintains its firm hold on a large section of the music-hall visiting public.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

Remarkable audiences are being attracted to the old-established hall in the London-road, where Mr. William Payne officiates so ably as manager, and neither for love nor money has it been possible to obtain a seat after the starting of the second house. Chief of this week's attractions is unmistakably Mr. Joe Elvin, who has revived the droll Deaf sketch to admirable purpose. As an outlet for the popular comedian's individual humour his part of the boy-in-buttons is unexcelled, and by means of comic actions and still more comic expressions Mr. Elvin maintains the fun at high pressure. Laughter resounds continuously throughout the house, and at the close the favourite Cockney impersonator is the object of an ovation. Mr. Elvin is loyally supported by the members of his company, who have done him long service.

A source of attraction is also found in a singing competition, with money prizes, for the best imitation of Mr. Fred Earle in any of his songs. That quaint comedian shows the way in a couple of characteristic lyrics, one of which has the affecting chorus "There's another little one a-coming out." The other effusion boasts the taking refrain of "Whack-fol-de-diddle-oh!" which Mr. Earle embellishes with a curious crooning which excites much laughter whenever repeated. Mr. Earle announced the terms of the competition in humorous fashion, asking for "fair play and no favour" on behalf of the aspirants. The first competitor on the night of our visit was a boy who sang "Seaweed" in a tremulous soprano with occasional lapses into a deep baritone. Several other competitors took part, but the choice, which is decided by the acclamation of the audience, fell upon a youth who sported a red wig and gave a very creditable rendering of "Whack-fol-de-diddle-oh!" The finals were announced for last (Friday) evening.

Among the great favourites of the evening is Miss Daisy Dormer, whose melodious coon songs are followed by a dainty dance which captivates the house and results in many recalls. No small share of success is obtained by Lennie and Hast, who crack many a piquant joke and supply some effective singing in their fantasy of A Sea Nymph. Miss Cressie Leonard makes a fair and fascinating appearance as a principal boy and sings with agreeable archness and spirit. Miss Ella Lane also finds unbounded admiration for her singing; and Robb Gilmore is particularly entertaining with his clever corkscrew dance. An acceptable interlude is provided by Mr. Randolph King, a protean actor of much skill; and the efforts of Gicardo, a young juggler, are much appreciated. Ruffell's Bioscope has a series of pictures from which both amusement and sensation is derived; and the efforts of the orchestra, capably controlled by Mr. Chas. E. Howells, contribute to the harmony of the proceedings.

SADLER'S WELLS.

There is a beauty competition here which is exciting immense interest in the homes of Clerkenwell and Islington. No doubt there will be heart-breakings before it is concluded, for, judging by the personal appearance of some of the young ladies we saw on Wednesday evening, it was evident there were some whose physical attractiveness existed only in their own imaginations. The great occasion of final selection was announced for last night's second house, when the prizes were to be given away. The beauty show has certainly provoked endless merriment.

The Sisters Brooks are smart dancers and engaging comediennes; and Millicent Freres presents many interesting and daring feats on the trapeze. Lambert and Hans appear in a vocal scena, which is highly diverting, their song, "Isn't it nice to have somebody to love you?" and their conversation being much relished by the audience. Baker and De Sales engage very successfully in an American eccentric comedy act; and Miss Lily Arthur, comedienne, is fortunate in the possession of a pleasing voice, an agreeable manner, and a charming personality.

Mr. Leslie Clare and company present the sketch Wanted, a Wife. In it Mr. Clare enacts the rôle of the young spendthrift, Charles Summers, who, desiring to secure his uncle's sympathy and some of his money, tells the old man that he is married to an extravagant woman, though in reality he has not changed his state of celibacy. Hearing that his uncle is coming to see him, he induces his landlady's servant to say that she is Mrs. Charles Summers, and she occasions no small hilarity by her language and behaviour when the uncle arrives. Mr. Clare acts with a fine sense of the humorous possibilities of his part, and so does Miss Alice Cheshire as the slavey; while Mr. Rosney as the uncle and Miss Violet Bancroft as the landlady also submit appropriate impersonations.

Elroy, the armless wonder, astonishes everybody by the facility with which he employs his feet in place of the hands that are missing. With his pedal extremities he performs "Home, sweet home" on a Japanese fiddle, and by the same means gives "Killarney" as a cornet solo, the instrumentation being most commendable. Stidder and Dunbar have a delightful vocal and instrumental act, "Eileen Alannah" and "The Lost Chord" (piano representation of an organ) evoking loud applause. The Irish dances engaged in by the couple are of quite an exhilarating character. The Gallimore Trio also offer their attractive and amusing comedy act; and Miss Lily Black delights the house with her rendering of "Sweet Rose of Killarney" and "You're not the only one." The petite drama, Treachery, is presented by Mr. Bernard Mervyn's able company, Mr. Mervyn himself enacting with great success the rôle of the hero, and Miss Mamie Rendle playing with great charm in that of the heroine. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux give The Wedding that did not Come Off.

Mr. Reuben More and his concert party, "The Artists and Models," conclude a most successful twenty-four weeks' Pier tour on Oct. 3. So popular have they become this and last week on the pier, Bournemouth, that Mr. Dan Godfrey has prolonged their engagement for another week, with a re-engagement for three weeks next season. A special feature of the entertainments is the impromptu ventriloquial sketches given by Mr. More.

Mr. Drew Bayley, the English variety agent in Glasgow, has booked with Mr. Oswald Stoll five complete tours for his client, George Rae, a quaint young Scotch comedian, who is just finishing his first tour of the "Moss" Empires.

The Alhambra Company applied in the Vacation Court on Wednesday for an injunction to restrain Miss Cissie Loftus from appearing at the Coliseum or elsewhere in London until she had fulfilled a contract with them; but to enable fresh evidence to be obtained the case was adjourned for a week.

Miss Cissie Thompson has made quite a success on her recent provincial tour, and will shortly be seen in London.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee Mr. R. Nightingale.—There is a great attraction at this popular house this week, Mr. C. Watson Mill, supported by Miss Rosalind Tate, appearing with his London company in the romantic and picturesque play For Love and the King, and some capital audiences have thoroughly enjoyed the fare during the week. Mr. G. Watson Mill is a striking figure as Jarval, the young English soldier of fortune; and as Princess Athene Miss Rosalind Tate is both charming and captivating. They are supported by a company of much excellence, Mr. John Burton making a fine Michael Obrenovic, a miser. Mr. Frank Lisdon is an ideal King Kara Dragomir; Miss Joan Ellis is very sweet as Natila, the beggar maid; and Miss Marie Ault as Grazia Obrenovic introduces some humour into the play, which, by the way, is beautifully mounted, and the dresses are remarkably good.

New Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—Baines and Reed, in their speciality act Humsti Bumpsti, deserve all the applause they get; the acrobatic performances of the Cattaneo Troupe are remarkably clever; May Lilian Levey is a striking character comedienne; Jack Binns is a versatile and entertaining comedian; the Brothers Lavelle give a smart acrobatic turn; Nell Ray sings some taking songs; and the Two Keiths provide an enjoyable turn. There is also a very fine military sketch, Mutiny, an episode from the Indian campaign of 1857, by Frank E. Burdett's company, in which Miss Agnes Burdett, Mr. George Daiper, Mr. Villiers Stanley, and Mr. Michael Madden appear to great advantage.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—The visit of Mr. Fredk. Melville's company this week in Her Road to Ruin appeals strongly to the popular parts of the house. Mr. Henry Wolston is a capable representative of Frank Temple; Mr. Dane Clarke is realistic in the rôle of the Bishop; much power is displayed by Mr. Alex Bradley and Philip Hardy; Mr. Heaton Grey is good in his portrayal of Tom Wells; Jess Willoughby is capitally played by Miss Beatrice Edwards; and Miss Nellie Bonser's acting in the rôle of Mary Dawson is impressive.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Hayes and Merritt, the bounding trampolinists, submit a most astounding exhibition here; Field and Lewis, in burlesque, provoke hearty laughter; the Five Broadway Girls are smart dancers; the sensational hand-balancing and equilibrism by Alfonso Silvano is clever; the exhibition of horn-blowing by Chas. Tuppen is capital; and Harry Milton, Dutch comedian, creates a favourable impression. Munroe's Black and White Comedy Team is well received. Edie Endon is also in the bill.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company was here for the first three nights of the week, in the new version of The Christian, and was most cordially received. As the heroic John Storm, Mr. P. Gedge Twyman showed much dramatic ability; Mr. G. Montague Lane is a most capable actor, and his Lord Robert Ure was a thoroughly artistic impersonation; Mr. Edward Ouston's Horatio Drake was meritorious; and one of the best acted characters was Mr. John Hastings Batson's Father Lamplugh. Mr. William Mallalieu showed his customary talent as Archdeacon Wealthy, as did Mr. Max Wakeman as Paul. Mr. F. Russell Kirkley made an excellent Lord Storm; Miss Margery Fane possesses a charming stage presence, which stood her in good stead as Glory Quayle. It would be impossible to speak too highly of Miss Gladys Vernon's Polly Love; and Miss Alice Maude was thoroughly artistic as Mrs. Callender. Miss Ida Dawson (Rosa Ray), Miss Nellie Andrews (Betty Belmont), Miss May Dean (Lily Belmont), and Miss Kate Lee, as Liza, were all good in their respective characters. Mr. Brandon Thomas' Charley's Aunt company is billed for the last three nights of the week.

Grand Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. John H. Stevenson.—The So and So's are delighting the audiences here this week. Mr. Stuart Alexander gave a fine rendering of the ballad, "Western Land"; Mr. H. Quiningborough's humorous monologue was especially good; Mr. George Sharratt showed much humour in his song, "Club"; Miss Maud Phillips's excellent voice was heard to advantage in "Summer Night"; the star turn was indubitably Miss Lilian Leoffeler, whose terpsichorean efforts were rapturously received. Fine pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

Victoria Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. M. W. Stanley; Manager, Mr. Flude.—Miss Harriet Greet's The Sign of the Cross company opened here on Monday. Mr. Wallace G. Court gave a manly interpretation of Marcus Superbus; Mr. G. Osmond Tearle showed much talent as Tigellinus; Mr. W. Burton's Favius was a sound piece of acting; Nero found an able exponent in Mr. B. W. Naldwyn; Mr. Rupert Carlton made a praiseworthy Licinius; as the imbibing Glabrio Mr. Donald McAdam was humorous; Mr. W. Montaigne did good work as Philodemus; Mr. Alex. Taylor was most meritorious as Servillius; and Mr. Francis Leslie was all that could be desired as Strabo. Mr. Edward Clowes's Titus was deserving of commendation; Miss Vera Crichton as Mercia brought out all the good points of the character; Miss Effie Dane's Stephanus was an impersonation worthy of the highest encomiums; Miss Nora Craigie made a charming Berenis; and Miss Dorothy Lambert was very pleasing as Dacia. Miss Florence Mater sang and acted well as Ancaria; and Miss May Romney's Daones must be eulogised especially for her dancing.

WEST STANLEY.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. M. H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is here, presenting The Village Blacksmith, with the well-known actor, Mr. Sam Livesey, in the title-part, of which he gives a powerful representation. Miss Maggie Edwards is excellent as the blacksmith's wife; and Miss Lily Leicester gives a pleasing portrayal of their boy, Harry. Mr. Albert Sinclair as Captain Leo makes an effective villain; while his accomplice is Mr. Edwin Maydew. The other parts are all in capable hands. A full and appreciative audience witnessed the effective drama on Monday.

Victoria Theatre. — Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Stage-Manager, Mr. George W. Montrose.—Topping the bill here are Atlas and Vulcana, in feats of strength, supported by the Sisters Atlas; Vulcana also does some classical poses, which obtain great applause; J. Greener, the singing pit lad, is very good; Marie Colmore, the lively comedienne, La Belle Tosca, in her unique tight rope act, Mlle. Vanda, on the rolling globe, assisted by Will Vint, McDonald and Huntingdon, American entertainers, and the Vicoscope complete a capital programme.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—This week we have Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company here, in The Female Swindler. Miss Violet Ellicott is fine in the title-part; Mr. Gerald Heather does capital work as Jack Coulson; Mr. Fred Rignold makes the most of the part of Abraham Mikestein; Mr. John Hitchens is extremely funny as Billy Binks; Mr. A. Kenyon Gray as James Oliver acts with ability; Miss Bella Moody is a vivacious Mary Ann; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe earns the customary execrations by his realistic acting as Geoffrey Warden; and Mr. Guy P. Ellis acts with dash and sincerity as Harold Travers; Miss Elsie Franks is a charming May Andrews.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Sherlock Holmes is being accorded a great reception here on the occasion of a return visit. Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart is deserving of special praise for an exceptionally clever portrayal of the title-rôle; Mr. Robert Gilbert's representation of Moriarty is capital; Larrabee is cleverly impersonated by Mr. Mark D. Draper; and Mr. A. Shelton deserves special praise as Dr. Watson. Miss Betty Fairfax renders excellent assistance as Alice Faulkner; and Miss Edith Vogne portrays the part of Madge Larrabee in pleasing style

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—A sensational shooting performance is given by Colonel Bordeverry, the exhibition being an exceptionally clever one. Wood, Wells, and Wilkins are vocalists of considerable ability; the Stein Orreto Troupe of hand-acrobats are clever and daring; Willman, an Australian instrumentalist, contributes some fine selections; Melia and Mozarabar introduce cleverly-trained birds; and Curwen and Belle appear successfully in an amusing sketch. J. G. Aitken (comedian), Irene and Morton, and the Brothers Obo complete an interesting programme.

The Empire.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—An excellent series of pictures include The Nihilists, Taming the Lion Tamer, A Magnetic Removal, The Music-Teacher, Animated Snowballs, &c. Admirable variety turns are furnished by Eddie Clay, comedy instrumentalist; the Mays, smart duettists and dancers, who are an exceptionally clever turn; James Huntley, comedian, who is well received; and Percy Victor's canine orchestra, a wonderfully well-trained troupe of dogs, who draw forth unstinted admiration.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—Mr. Frank Lindo's capable company, in the domestic drama Home, Sweet Home, had a good reception here on Monday. Mr. Frank Lindo proves himself an actor of sterling merit in his excellent portrayal of the part of Steven Armitage; Mr. Archer Brown presents a capital study of the Duke of Ancaster; Mr. Helsby Wright as Lucas Lyle makes a good villain; Mr. Norton Shields creates plenty of amusement as the Hon. Percy; Mr. R. Walsh as Dick Redmayne, although the part is not a big one, displays ability; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle gives an effective rendering of David Armitage; Mr. W. Gregory as Gaffer makes a capital old countryman; whilst Mr. Tom E. Lewis as Solomon Keary and Mr. G. Rogers as Lord Silvermore are both good. Miss Marion Wakeford as the heroine, Joan, works hard and with much success; Miss Maud Leslie-Cudd infuses plenty of life and go into the part of Sybil Fay; and Miss Dolly Webb is delightfully natural as Dora. On Friday Mr. Frank Lindo had a benefit performance, when David Garrick was played.

Empire Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Mr. John Lawson, in a répertoire of sketches, is the chief attraction at this popular house. On Monday The Monkey's Paw was presented, The King's Minister and Humanity being billed for other nights during the week. Mr. Lawson's acting leaves nothing to be desired, and he is supported by a good all-round company. Mersano, a comedy coin manipulator, performs clever tricks, his patter also being smart; the Austral Trio submit a pleasing musical mélange, which is a curious combination of the sublime and ridiculous; Mr. Dan Conroy is a quaint comedian, his parody of "The dear old land" being a big hit; the Tintos, in African gambols, perform some ingenious acrobatic tricks; Miss Millie Howell, comedienne, gains applause for her songs; and Mr. Fred Hallam is a good eccentric comedian.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—There is a return to variety entertainment this week, and Mr. Carlton has provided a specially attractive programme. Miss Helen Roberts is the bright particular star, and her dancing is artistically weird; the Pichel Troupe are clever acrobats; and the Musical Twelve give a talented performance. Will McIvor is a popular vocalist; and the barrel-jumping marvels of Clack and Clack are most entertaining. Miss Georgie Beaufort and Mr. Frank Coyle contribute some very acceptable vocal items. On Wednesday the cinematograph pictures included the unveiling of the City and County War Memorial, unveiled earlier in the day, and the veterans who took part in the ceremony were present.

WORTHING.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Lewis Waller's principal company was here the early part of the week in Robin Hood. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards gave a very fine impersonation of Robin Hood; Mr. J. G. Briant ably enacted the character of King Richard; Mr. H. Elliott Ball put in capital work as Prince John; Mr. Ernest Gray was convincing as Fitz-Alwynne; and Messrs. Lawrence Tessier, Spencer Lloyd, J. Herdman, B. Malvern, G. Reef, and F. Billulph as Robin's men did well. The fine acting of Miss Lilian Stennis as Lady Mario de Faux was greatly admired. For the remainder of the week Mr. James Welch's company in When Knights were Bold was underlined

Winter Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. M. W. Shanley.—The pictures this week are again giving unstinted satisfaction. Among the best films may be mentioned the following:—Secret Service, Lost: Pretty Little Dog, Day in the Country, Love's Duty, I'll Fetch the Bread, Customs Officer's Revenge, and Billy Bones

WREXHAM.—Empire Music Hall.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. J. Scott.—A domestic vocal scena, entitled The Prodigal's Return, was produced on Monday, the characters being sustained by Ernest A. Foster, Theodore Jones, and Estella Foster. Radnor and Kerry, with song, harp, and violin, gave a most pleasing entertainment; and Capner and Steele, character duettists, were well received. On the four following evenings Mr. Scott generously handed over the hall to a number of local amateurs, who performed a burlesque pantomime, in connection with the annual cycle carnival in aid of the funds of the local infirmary.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lesses, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. S. Dacre.—The utmost enthusiasm has been displayed here this week, the theatre being crowded nightly by fashionable audiences, by whom The Merry Widow has been heartily enjoyed. Mr. Geo. Edwardes' company is one of all-round excellence, attention having been paid to the smallest detail. The dresses are a delightful mixture of colour, and have been greatly admired. In the title-rôle Miss Clara Evelyn scored little short of a triumph, her admirable voice, clear enunciation, and charming stage presence combining to make the impersonation a delightful one. As Natalie Miss Mary Grey was a distinct success, her rendition being marked by much grace, whilst as a vocalist she was particularly acceptable. Mr. Haigh Jackson used his strong tenor to great advantage, the numbers allotted to the rôle of Viscomte de Jolidon being heartily enjoyed and applauded. Mr. Tom Redmond was quaintly amusing as Nisch, Mr. Albert Kavanagh wonderfully funny as Marquis de Cascada; and Mr. Basil S. Foster as Prince Danlo was popular throughout. Mr. Lionel Victor as Baron Popoff gave a performance brimful of humour. The play was mounted in lavish style.

Opera House and Empire. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Gipsy Wolff heads the bill this week, and presents a charming scena which is well received; the Brothers Miller are acrobats of more than average merit; Henri Bekker is an expert conjurer; Johnny Dwyer is one of the quaintest of comedians, and scores repeatedly; Dancit is a clever terpsichorean artist; and Gladys Huxley is a sweet singer. Harry Conlin, Florence Esdaile, the Royal Temples, and the Bioscope add to a very attractive company.

RICHMOND HIPPODROME.

With no niggard hand does Mr. George Dance here cater for the public. The bill this week is quite up to the average, many of the items being of exceptional merit. Ronald George opens fire with his clever musical act, and manages to extract quite a lot of tuneful ditties from a wonderful collection of instruments. Memora follows in the footsteps of Datas. He possesses a singularly retentive memory, and, despite the efforts of the audience, he manages successfully to reply to the volley of questions hurled at him with a composure that proves remarkable. In Possession is the title of Blake and Granby's sketch. The fun becomes furious when the man in possession is mistaken for a millionaire. Roars of merriment greet the efforts of the performers, who are altogether successful. The interval is admirably filled by a capital selection, Iolanthe, under the able bâton of Mr. C. E. Linaker, after which Clotilde and Musto introduce their singularly intelligent cockatoos.

At first blush it may be averred that one cannot get much common sense out of the cockatoo; but Mme. Clotilde quite gives the assertion its refutation. The show is a wonderful one, for these pretty feathered artists go through an astounding number of tricks, and easily establish themselves first favourites. An aerial flight round the house mounted on cycles and carrying a companion proves how well they are trained. The Sisters Sprightly, attired in Dutch costume, poke an amount of innocent fun at the favourite songs of the public. The secret of the whole business is that "You must sing a song about Amsterdam." "Golf" forms the topic of the Sisters Sprightly's second contribution. It is very hard on golf. Knockabout business of the approved type is exemplified by the Van Host Trio, who are applauded to the echo. The Pawnbroker has now been before the public sufficiently long to establish itself a firm favourite, and its reputation here appears to have preceded it, for it meets with an excellent reception. Ruffell's Bioscope transports one to the lovely Savoy district. Mr. H. J. Brett is the new business-manager, and does his work admirably.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We cannot undertake to answer the inquiries of correspondents by post. In all letters names and addresses must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the replies if so desired.]

G. ISSLEY.—Mrs. Poole, the late proprietress of the South London, has been dead for several years.

PANTO.—Your questions arrived too late for attention this week. Repeat them early next week.

HARPIST.—Mr. J. B. Williams, 96, Long Acre, W.C.

J. BAKER (West Hartlepool).—You might get some hints from a book on juggling and conjuring, which, we believe, is issued by Gamage's, Holborn, London, W.C. Write to them mentioning this paper.

PIPSQUEAK (Liverpool).—Faust was produced by Henry Irving on Dec. 19, 1885. The adaptation of the first part of Goethe's tragedy was by W. G. Wills, and was played by the following cast:—Faust, Mr. H. B. Conway; Valentine, Mr. George Alexander; Frosch, Mr. Harbury; Altmayer, Mr. William Haviland; Brander, Mr. F. Tyars; Siebel, Mr. Johnson; Student, Mr. Norman Forbes; Burgomaster, Mr. Henry Howe; Citizens, Mr. Helmsley and Mr. Hal Louther; Soldier, Mr. Martin Harvey; Martha, Mrs. Stirling; Bessie, Miss L. Payne; Ida, Miss Barnett; Alice, Miss Coleridge; Catherine, Miss Mills; Margaret, Miss Ellen Terry; Mephistopheles, Mr. Henry Irving; Witches, Mr. Tom Mead, Mr. Carter, Mr. Archer, and Mr. Clifford.

THE FORESTERS.

A beauty competition, in which the ladies of the district were invited to compete for several remunerative money prizes, was a feature of this week's bill. On the evening of our visit eight damsels proffered their faces in search of fortune, but only one was selected to compete in the final. Much amusement was caused by the competitors, many jocular observations being heard in the auditorium. Mr. Harry Zether sang a singularly appropriate song about a "nose," and concluded with an extremely clever dance, his striped fleshings giving a good effect to the elasticity of his legs. The Floradora Girls, three bright young ladies, rendered a "Fishing song," in which good fun was obtained by netting various articles among their audience. Their second item was "Two's company, three's none," which has a pretty setting, and is worked in novel fashion, the services of a pretended stage-hand being requisitioned with effect. Mr. Cyrus Dare, entertainer at the piano, gives many interesting stories of little children, portraying the youngsters, in mannerism and voice, to perfection.

The Gascoynes, lady and juggling comedian, are very clever, the gentleman executing many skilful feats in haphazard style, the principal task being that of balancing a dozen chairs on his forehead, and, for an encore, placing his partner in the same position. The Four Kellys, acrobats, perform many daring acts, for which they receive much applause; and the Sisters Varley, duettists, sing tunefully "Nellie Dean" and "Love me and the world is mine," their voices blending nicely. Mr. Harry Bent gives impersonations of Gus Elen, Harry Lauder, Harry Champion, and Chirgwin, the last-mentioned being particularly good, and as an encore he gave the Curate, the Coster, and cool, collected Jew with much cleverness. Miss Jessica Brooke, a chic little lady, sang "An old sedan chair," finishing with a neat quick-time step-dance; Miss Rose Pink gave "Chase me, Georgie," and danced particularly well; another good serio was found in Miss Lottie Lunn; and the Sanpietros, jugglers and balancers, juggled themselves into favour.

Mr. George Marriott and company, which includes Miss Edith Finlay, are playing Oliver Twist, and right well is the story carried through, each character being ably represented. Mr. Marriot gives a skilful study of Fagin, never for a second overdoing the wily old Jew, but always acting naturally. Miss Finlay as Nancy and Mr. Fred Conyers, an ideal Bill Sykes, play well together, the scene in which the former is killed being admirably acted. The other characters are well portrayed by a capable company. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux presents a good film in The Chelsea Pensioner. Mr. Carl Hamlin leads the orchestra ably, and the genial manager, Mr. Craig, looks well after the comforts of his patrons.

TRICK AND TRIXIE, musical and comedy artists, have made a big success with the Rentz-Santley company. They opened at the Enson's Theatre, Chicago, on Aug. 29 for one week, and were at Milwaukee on Sept. 6, the houses being packed at both places. They returned to the Gaiety Theatre, Chicago, on the 14th. Trixie (Beattie Evans) is the hit of the company, whose good fellowship makes the engagement both happy and comfortable.

NOTICE.

BASKERVILLE PRINTING WORKS, CAMBRIDGE-ST., BIRMINGHAM.

We have to announce with deep regret the death of Mr. William Albert Upton on Sept. 5, 1908.

Messrs. Arthur Heaton, of Shadwell-street, Birmingham, and James Baskerville Upton, the Son of the late Mr. Upton, have been appointed Directors of the Company, and Mr. Heaton has been elected Chairman.

It is intended to constitute as Departmental Directors, Messrs. C. H. Tebbutt, J. E. Penzer, T. Boyard, and T. R. Barr, who have for so many years conducted with conspicuous ability the departments with which they have been associated. In this way it is thought that the serious loss which the firm has sustained will be best met, and a Staff created which will use their utmost endeavours to continue the Company's business with the efficiency and success which have distinguished it in the past.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1908.

MR. BOURCHIER ON FRIVOLITY.

Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER made a capital speech in answer to the proposal of his health at the dinner given by the Liverpool Stage Club, at which he and Miss VIOLET VANBRUGH were honoured guests on Sunday last; and his remarks call for admiration rather than criticism. His observations were so much to the point that it is only possible to differ from them mildly and moderately. The one topic on which a theatrical manager is certain to touch in a public speech at the present day is the rise in importance of the music hall, and this elevation is often associated with a sense of injury. Many of us are so much under the influence of the prevailing spirit of materialism that we pretend to be more mercenary than we really are in order to go with the times. We were glad to find that Mr. BOURCHIER was neither bitter nor unreasonable on the question of variety competition with theatres. He is intensely and sensitively artistic, and he has been wise enough to follow his instincts where they have lead him. His experiments have always been interesting; and he may claim to have gratified his best inclinations thoroughly. Yet this line of action does not seem to have resulted in bankruptcy or unpopularity.

It seems to us, sometimes, that our actor-managers demand too much of life. In no art is it possible to combine the greatest freedom of choice in art productions and the greatest pecuniary profit. The man who has the exquisite enjoyment of following his instincts and gratifying his propensities in the higher walks of Art must not expect to make large sums of money. It should be sufficient for him if he can live, if pecuniary worries and petty cares do not impair his efficiency as an artist. The modern actor-manager is, indeed, a fortunate person. He achieves the almost impossible feat of making the best of two worlds. For years shrewd men of business have been shaking their heads and prophesying bankruptcy for Mr. BEERBOHM TREE, the most wilful and fanciful of experimentalists; over Mr. GEORGE ALEXANDER, who has never "played down" to his public in any way; and over Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER, who is sturdy independence personified. In order to account for the prosperity of these gentlemen the fiction of the benevolent "backer" with the long purse was invented by outsiders. But what "backer" is so disinterested and devoted as to pour large sums of money year after year into the quicksand of theatrical failure? There are more millionaires than there used to be, but they are less than ever inclined to subsidise unprofitable art. The theatrical failures are most numerous amongst those who have tried to play down to the public, to give them what they want, instead, as Mr. TREE says, of giving them what you think good for them.

Mr. BOURCHIER thinks that the difficulties of managing a theatre are greater than those of managing a music hall. "If one turn fails to please the public," he says, "the manager of a variety theatre may be quite certain that at least two out of the twenty will more than fill his house throughout the week." It all depends on what one calls difficulty. What is easy to one man is hard to another, and vice versâ. The manager of a theatre who is also an actor-manager has first of all to find a play suited to his requirements. This is an anxious and harassing task, but it must be a labour of love when the joy of securing a congenial part for oneself is considered. The manager of a music hall has no such consolation. It is true that his receipts do not rise or fall on the merit of a single turn, as a manager's do on that of a new production; but he is bound, if he wishes to maintain the popularity of his variety theatre, to keep up the attractiveness of the entertainment as a whole. He must always be on the alert for novelty and sensation; he must be a discoverer of persons as the theatrical manager is a discoverer of plays. Managing a music hall is hard, downright business, unmitigated by the pleasure of personal appearance before the public. It is only fair that much money should be the reward of such labour.

We do not exactly agree with Mr BOURCHIER in thinking that people work so hard nowadays that they come to the play exhausted. As a matter of fact hours of business are shorter than they were formerly, and people, on the whole play more and work less. The modern theatre, with its half-guinea stalls, lives by the support of the well-to-do man of business from the suburbs. It is on him, and not from the aristocracy or the people, that the prosperity of a playhouse depends. The defect of the British playgoer is not exactly "frivolity." What it is was rather well defined by Dr. MARIO BORSA in "The English Stage of To-day," when he wrote:

It is maintained by some that the Briton leads a strenuous life, and after a fatiguing day in the City his mind finds its natural and necessary recreation in the lightest and most frivolous types of entertainment. This contention may contain a certain amount of abstract truth, but I must be allowed to question its applicability to the case of the British playgoer. If the strenuous life implies the negation of every artistic sense, of any spirit of reflection, how can the contemporary German drama be explained? The German nation leads a no less strenuous life than the British; in fact, in workshops, banks, and in all other branches of trade and industry its activity is far more concentrated, more intense, and more silent than that displayed in England. And yet the drama which rouses Londoners to such a frantic pitch of enthusiasm is incomparably less serious, less consistent, and less artistic than that which holds the modern German stage—even in the theatres patronised by the masses. Thus it is not a question of a greater or less degree of strenuous application; rather is it a question of the general atmosphere in which the middle-class Briton has chosen to envelop himself.

But what can you expect? His habits are so mechanical, his life so easy, his mental processes so elementary and indolent, his critical faculties so obtuse, his morality so orthodox, and his spirit so egotistical, that he is devoid of all intellectual equipment for the comprehension of serious drama; he takes no interest in the reproduction of psychological difficulties which have never disturbed his own peace of mind; he is entirely without curiosity on the subject of social problems which have never preoccupied his own thoughts; he has no desire to understand and to penetrate the essential nature of the men and the things in the midst of which he moves as automatically, as unconsciously, as the wheel of a machine.

The trouble with the British playgoers, as with the British people generally, is that they cannot be made to think. But there are other good things besides Reflection; and it is on these that we rely both in our Art and our Politics.

THE Monckton-Hoffe Comedy Company is making its first visit with Irene Wycherley to the suburbs next week, during which it will form the attraction at the Brixton Theatre. So far the company has been playing to gratifying business everywhere.

AT the South Parade Pier, Southsea, last Sunday evening, Master Reginald Leyland, the boy soprano with a register of over two octaves, received a great ovation after singing "The Chorister," being recalled no less than six times. The rules for not granting encores had to be broken. For his encore song he gave "A Place called Calvary," and at the finish had again to respond to three recalls. At the concerts given daily at this, the finest pier in England, he has delighted large and appreciative audiences. The London Vaudeville Concert Party, of which Mr. Reginald Leyland is the pioneer, are also included in the powerful bill here this week.

Mr. Stephen Pritt, the manager of the Theatre Royal, Preston, has succeeded in writing a drama that, judging from the reception it had on Monday night, should augur well for its future success. The dialogue contains some really excellent passages both in the humorous and serious parts. The plot is not a complicated one, and is intensely interesting, whilst all the characters possess strong individuality.

In the first act Merivale is discovered poring over documents which appear to be letters from creditors and threatening ones from others who have been concerned with him in various shady transactions. He is badly in want of cash, and his next move is to obtain it. There is a stormy interview with his wife, whom he bullies, and taunts with having married her for her small fortune, which he has already dissipated at Monte Carlo. Tommy Oglethorpe, an old college chum, an easy-going, happy-go-lucky young man of the world, who has his money invested in the Lucky Dog Gold Mine, calls on him, and in the course of conversation mentions the fact that a certain heiress (Miss Marion Jeffries) is engaged to another old college chum, Harold Medworth, a young man studying medicine and very hard up. Merivale immediately conceives a plot, which is to get Harold Medworth out of the way and marry Marion himself, after discarding his own wife, whom he describes to his friends as only his housekeeper. He eventually offers to lend Medworth £100 in order that he may pursue his studies, but the cheque he sends him he has made out by one French (an old lawyer's clerk, whom he has in his power), and which he (Trench) signs with Merivale's name.

Medworth receives the cheque, and cashes same, and it is afterwards proved to be a forgery, of which Medworth is accused, tried, and convicted, and serves a term of imprisonment. During the time he is incarcerated Merivale, by the aid of another of his "tools," has a forged document prepared, with the prison governor's signature attached, stating that Harold Medworth is dead. This, of course, is not the case, and Harold leaves the gaol and is taken in hand by the prison gate missioner. In the meantime, Mrs. Merivale has left her husband's roof, together with the old man French, and both are in hiding. Trench, being on his deathbed, is anxious to confess the hand he had in the forgery which condemned Medworth, and in his semi-delirium is clamouring for a clergyman. Mrs. Merivale goes to seek one, and eventually P.C. Flanagan conducts the Rev. Frank Willacy (a friend of Medworth) to the side of the dying man, and succeeds in obtaining his signature to his confession in the presence of the constable (though, as a matter of fact, the hand he guides is that of a dead man) before leaving. Merivale enters, and finds Trench dead, and also discovers the clergyman, who, being a muscular Christian, gives him a sound thrashing and locks him in with the dead man. Merivale is eventually released from the room by the entry of his wife, and, all unconscious that any confession has been made, or that Harold is free, goes to Walmerston to plead his suit with Marion Jeffries. Harold Medworth travels down to Walmerston just to see the old place again, and wanders into the churchyard, where service is being held, and discovering a wreath on a newly-made grave, looks and reads the name of Marion Jeffries (really Marion's mother), but which he mistakes for Marion, and falls in a faint, calling Marion's name as he falls. Marion, who is coming out of the church, discovers him. In the last act, which takes place at the Manor House, Walmerston, Merivale comes for the answer to his proposal, which Marion has promised to give him on that day, when he is confronted with his discarded wife and Harold Medworth. As he is being handed over to a Scotland Yard officer Merivale shoots himself, and his wife, kneeling, declares, "I am his wife no longer," as the curtain falls.

Of the actors, Mr. Clavering Craig, as Anthony Merivale, was most successful, and gave a most powerful rendition of the unscrupulous scoundrel, who pursued his career of crime without thought for God or mankind, and who, to show his callousness, dies with a gibe upon his lies. Equally successful was Miss Rosa Mervyn, who, as Mrs. Merivale, displayed much pathos, and won the unstinted sympathy of the audience, her denunciation of her husband, when he made a certain suggestion to her in the first act being most impassioned. Mr. E. Paul Neville, as Harold Medworth, is thoroughly suited with the part, and acts with a frank and easy manner. Mr. C. Wordley Hulse, as the Rev. Frank Willacy, is a typical parson of the muscular Christian type. Mr. David Donaldson, as Daniel Trench, presents a very careful character-study of the poor old man, who, owing to one false step in life has got into the power of Merivale. Mr. C. Vivian Charles, as Tommy Oglethorpe, is responsible for much of the humour of the play. His humour is quite contagious. Mr. David McFarlane, as P.C. Michael Flanagan, also contributes to the comedy element; and Mr. Norman Clifton, as Warder Cunningham, is also good. Mr. J. E. Baines, as Chambers, and Mr. Douglas Bute, as the Detective, give evidence of careful study. Mr. T. Wheeler, as the Prison Gate Missioner, is also a small part, but, as in the case of the others, is well thought out and well acted; Miss Louie Peebles as Marion Jeffries, the heiress, is excellent, and carries her audience with her. Miss Nellie Lawson as Lucy Hooper, the large-hearted American girl, is to be congratulated upon her excellent rendition of the character. The scenery and the setting are admirable, and in this respect great credit is due to Mr. Tom Beck and Mr. J. Featherstone.

OWING to the indisposition of Miss Rose Helene Miss May Saker has been suddenly called upon to take up her old part of Minnie Templar in A Message from Mars.

MISS SIDNEY CROWE has resigned her engagement as Francis Vere, The Worst Woman in London, with Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company, in order to take up her old part of Adela in The Way of the World.

AMONGST the many remarkable sights to be witnessed annually at the Crystal Palace perhaps the National Brass Band Festival takes the lead. London's great palace of amusements will to-day be packed with enthusiastic musicians from all parts of the country. There are people who say that this is not a musical nation. Let them visit the Palace and find out for themselves. They will find working men from Yorkshire, Lancashire, Cheshire, Wales, Scotland, and indeed from all directions, playing instruments in a masterly manner, while during the competition the visitors from afar will carefully follow the score and in an instant detect the slightest error made by one of the bandsmen. The great feature of the gathering will be a concert of 150 bands in the Centre Transept.

DEATH OF MRS. MACREADY.

The death of Mrs. Cecile Louise Frederica Macready, which occurred at Weston-super-Mare on Saturday, at the age of eighty-one, revives the memory of a great and intellectual actor, who shed lustre on the English stage. Macready's marriage with this lady took place in 1860, when he was sixty-seven, and was celebrated at St. John's Church, Redland, Clifton, on April 3, in that year. Mrs. Macready was the fifth daughter of Mr. Henry Spencer, and a granddaughter of Sir William Beechey, R.A., painter to George the Third and Queen Charlotte. His residence for the remainder of his days was fixed at Cheltenham, where a house in Wellington-square received him and his family, and where his life was from henceforth one of complete retirement. Macready's youngest son, Cecil Frederick Nevil, the only child by the lady now deceased, was born May 7, 1862, and Macready's friend and executor, Sir Frederick Pollock, stood godfather for him.

In writing of his second marriage to Mrs. (afterwards Lady Frederick) Pollock, Macready, who dates his letter Dunster, Somerset, April 8, 1860, says:—"I am quite aware that the change I have made in my home may subject me to varieties of opinion; but I have, in deliberating upon it, satisfied myself that a judgment formed without knowledge of the conditions under which such a change has been decided on cannot be worth attention. You have seen my home; but visitors cannot know the wants in a house where only plenty appears to them. You will live to find that your children, dear and intimate as they may be, still are not companions; and I hope in God you will never experience the loneliness of a widowed home.

"My wife is dear Katie's most intimate friend, and both she and the other two children have been most anxious for the engagement that has been formed.

"On the merits of her who has blessed me with her affection I would not dilate; it is enough to be grateful for the possession of them, and for the belief that my home will be much more cheerful, much better conducted, and in all respects much happier when she has the conduct of it. Of this I hope you will be a witness. There are, I know, as all the world does, imprudences in marriages where the ages are disproportionate. From the many motives that have led on to this, in addition to the primary one of sober affection, I believe this will be found an exception to a general rule. I need scarcely say I have but one companion here, who reciprocates very cordially your good wishes."

An interesting comment on the birth of his son is found in another letter to Mrs. Pollock:—"Many, many thanks to you for your kind congratulations. I do not know how far, at my advanced time of life, such an arrival may be really a subject greatly to rejoice in, but I am in principle an optimist, and am firm in the belief that the Disposer of all, knowing best what is best for us, so dispenses His gifts to us. Thank God, my wife and her baby are doing as well as my most sanguine wishes could desire, and I need scarcely add that she is delighted with her little son."

This son, then only eleven years of age, followed his father's remains with his half-brother, Jonathan Forster Macready, and two of the deceased lady's brothers, the Rev. Edward Spencer and Mr. William Spencer. To the actor and to the loving companion of his later years the death of his daughter Catherine in 1869 was a great shock. "The ties of domestic affection between father and daughter," writes Sir Frederick in his Reminiscences, "had been strengthened by much sympathy in temperament and in their tastes; and they had in no degree been loosened by Macready's second marriage, which added much to the happiness and comfort of his family, as well as to his own.

"In the month of March of this year he went from Cheltenham to Plymouth with his wife to receive his daughter upon her return from Madeira, where she had been passing the winter for the benefit of her health. After twelve days of anxious waiting the vessel arrived by which she was expected to come home; but only to bring the story of her death on the voyage, and of the committal of her remains to the sea.

"From this time he would frequently lament his inability to guide his pen, and to write his own letters—a task from which he had never formerly retreated, even in the days of his busiest occupation."

Macready's first wife was Miss Catherine Frances Aikins, whom he married at St. Pancras Church in 1823. This lady died in September, 1852. In announcing his severe bereavement the actor writes to his friend Pollock from Plymouth:—"The event so long dreaded has come to pass. It is God's will, and to this thought, and to the faith that there is mercy and good in all He purposes, I turn for support in an affliction and under a bereavement that takes the sunshine from my remaining life. I have neither heart nor words to dwell upon this subject."

The funeral of the deceased lady took place on Wednesday afternoon at Redland Green Church. The service was of the simplest character, and was very quietly carried out, few besides the relatives and personal friends of the deceased lady being present. The chief mourners were:—Colonel Macready, C.B., London (son); Mr. Gordon Macready, Cheltenham (grandson); Miss Macready, Weston-super-Mare (daughter); Mrs. Morony (niece), Miss J. Macready, Weston-super-Mare (granddaughter); Mr. W. Macready, Weston-super-Mare, and Mr. J. Macready (grandsons); Mrs. Winterbottom and Mr. R. Winterbottom, Cheltenham; Colonel Bird, London (nephew); Miss J. Spencer, Tavistock, and Mrs. Semple, Budleigh Salterton (nieces); Mrs. Downes; and Miss Stevens (the deceased lady's maid). The wreaths were few in number, and were mostly sent by members of the family.

The first part of the service was taken in the church, and as the cortège entered, the organist (Mr. A. J. House) played Mendelssohn's "O rest in the Lord." During the service the hymns "Rejoice, the Lord is King" and "The sands of time are sinking fast" were sung, and at the close the organist feelingly rendered the Dead March in "Saul." The Rev. F. Glenville (Vicar of St. Matthew's, Cotham) officiated.

Deceased was interred in the churchyard in the same grave where her mother, who died in 1883, lies buried. The coffin, which was of polished oak, bore the following inscription: "Cecile Louise Frederica Macready, fell asleep, 19th Sept., 1908. Aged 81 years."

"TITLES AND COINCIDENCE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I see the title of Mr. Fisher Unwin's £100 prize novel is "The Woman and the Sword." By the enclosed circular you will see it is the title of a dramatic playlet written by me for Mr. Bentley, and to be produced shortly. It is hardly commonplace, but there is no suggestion of plagiarism—pure coincidence.—Yours faithfully,

Bath, Sept. 24. CHARLES CROZIER.

ONE of the members of the Married to the Wrong Man company, which was appearing at the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, last week, was taken ill suddenly, and Mr. Laidler, the proprietor of the theatre, at once wired to Mr. Frederick Melville, the author of the play, acquainting him of the fact. Mr. Melville was equal to the occasion, and setting out for Bradford by the first train, took the vacant part himself the same evening.

MASONS AT WORK.

The regular meeting of the Chelsea Lodge, No. 3,098, was held on Friday last at the Town Hall, Chelsea, the Lodge being consituted by several acting officers, with Mr. James W. Mathews as W.M., Mr. Herbert Chenery, I.P.M., Mr. W. H. Hitch, S.W., Mr. Harry Bawn, J.W., Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon (treasurer), Mr. C. J. Doughty (secretary), Mr. W. F. K. Walton, S.D., Mr. Fred Neiman, J.D., Mr. Douglas White, I.G., Mr. Angelo A. Asher (organist), Mr. E. T. R. Lester (steward), and Mr. J. H. McNaughton (tyler). The W.M. advanced Messrs. Ernie Mayne, Sydney Chaplain, and Erne Warsaw, and completed the ceremony with Messrs. Harry Bancroft and Paul Murray. The brethren present included Messrs. Dan Lipton, J. Grant, J. B. Helm, C. H. Burton, Frank Hardie, R. W. Duce, Fred Clay, &c.; and as visitors Messrs. Geo. Brown, William Preston, Chas. G. Cautley, Gilbert Girard, &c. Letters and telegrams expressing regret at being prevented attending were read from members of the Lodge who were scattered all over Great Britain; while two members, Messrs. Ernie Mayne and Harry Bancroft, had travelled many miles to be present, the former coming from Leicester and the latter from Portsmouth, both having to return in time for their business.

The Kensington Lodge, No. 1,767, held its installation meeting on Saturday, the 19th inst., at the Royal Palace Hotel, in the royal borough, when Mr. J. A. Battersby installed Mr. Albert J. Taylor as W.M. for the ensuing year, who appointed the following gentlemen to assist him in the governing of the Lodge:—Mr. Maurice Moss, I.P.M., to whom a handsome jewel was presented in recognition of his services as Master during the year just terminated; Mr. G. M. Pettitt, S.W.; Mr. S. M. Jones, S.W.; Mr. G. G. Hatt, P.M., P.A.G.P., P.P.G.D.C., Middlesex Chaplain; Mr. A. G. Turner, P.M., treasurer; Mr. R. H. Meyer, P.M., secretary; Mr. J. M. Hockey, S.D.; Mr. A. H. Proctor, J.D.; Mr. R. H. Williams, P.M., P.P.J.D., Middlesex D.C.; Mr. J. J. Oliver, P.P.G., organist, Middlesex organist; Mr. R. McIvor, I.G., Mr. A. G. Clark, A.D.C., Mr. Arthur J. Taylor, and Mr. F. Cave, P.M., stewards; and Mr. J. H. McNaughton, P.M. (tyler). Amongst the visitors present were four Past-Masters, all of whom had received their masonic tuition from the twin clubs of instruction so well known to the members of the dramatic and musical professions, the Logic and Genesius showing that the preceptors had not worked in vain. After the subsequent banquet a very enjoyable programme of music was contributed to by Mme. Edith Payne, Messrs. Jack Millard, Harry Green, and Arthur Foxon.

The new Masonic honour of "London Rank" played an important part in connection with the regular meetings of the Jubilee Masters' Lodge, No. 2,712, held at the Hotel Cecil on Tuesday under the presidency of its Worshipful Master, Mr. Alfred J. Thomas, P.A.G.D.C., who was supported by his predecessor in the chair, Mr. Henry Neville, P.A.G.D.C. Mr. R. Clay Sudlow, P.M., P.A.G.D.C., acted as Senior Warden, other principal offices being filled by Mr. G. J. V. Rankin, Junior Warden; Mr. Tom Fraser, P.M., P.G.T., Treasurer; Mr. J. D. Langton, P.M., P.G.D., Secretary; Mr. W. Miles and Mr. H. H. Bagnall, Deacons, &c.; while among other Grand Officers who attended were Mr. F. H. C. Boutell, District Grand Master of the Argentine Republic; Mr. Frank Richardson, P.D.G.R., G. Dir. of Cers.; Sir Walter Vaughan Morgan, Bt., P.M., P.G.W.; Mr. R. Newton Crane, G.D.; Sir J. W. Szlumper and Mr. A. F. Robbins, P.G.D.'s; Mr. Henry Times and Mr. Albert Neville, P.D.G.D.C.; Mr. C. W. Cole, A.G.D.C.; Mr. F. C. Van Duzer, P.M., and Mr. C. J. Drummond, P.A.G.D.C.; Major Henry Wright and Colonel Drage, P.G. Sword Bearers; Major H. Vane Stow, P.D.G.S.B.; Mr. J. F. Roberts, Mr. J. Percy Fitzgerald, and Mr. Harry Nicholls, P.M., P.G. Standard Bearers; Mr. E. J. Gittens, and Mr. C. Butcher, P.A.G.P.; and Dr. Martindale Ward, Mr. G. E. J. H. Barlow, and Mr. J. H. Jenks, P.G. Stewards. The Worshipful Master proposed: "That the hearty congratulations of the Lodge be offered to those of its members who have received the honour of London Rank in this the first year of its institution." Eighteen of the members of the Jubilee Masters' Lodge had received the honour, and their names would appear permanently on the minutes as first recipients of the new dignity. The chief toast of the dinner which followed was that of the London Rank representatives, of whom the following were present: Sir Walter Johnson, Colonel S. Wishart, Messrs. H. Potter, J. A. Witthaus, A. W. Letts, J. T. Sweet, S. J. Byng, John Coote, T. J. Bolton, W. C. Smith, R. C. Bayne, W. M. Duckworth, W. S. Hooper, Flory, F. W. Gobby, C. A. Sanders, Robert Manuel, C. T. Coggin, E. W. Roach, J. J. Bridgewater, W. J. Keen, P. Groner, Harry Warren, R. L. Franks, A. H. Hickman, and W. E. Barrow. Messrs. W. Briggs, Grand Treasurer; Frank Richardson, Grand Director of Ceremonies; and F. H. C. Boutell, District Grand Master of Argentine Republic, replied for the Grand Officers. The W.M. prposed the toast of the brethren appointed to London Rank during this the first year of its creation, to which Sir Walter Johnson replied for the visiting brethren; and Mr. W. S. Hooper, late Treasurer of the lodge, for the members who had received the honour. The toast of the visitors was proposed by Mr. A. F. Robbins, P.G.D., and acknowledged by Mr. Gerald Maxwell. The health of the Worshipful Master was given by the I.P.M., Mr. Henry Neville, P.A.G.D.C. A capital musical programme was supplied under the direction of Mr. James Kift, by Miss Hope Jackson, Miss Maud Horne, Miss Helen Mar, Miss Ray Wallace, and Mr. Harry Dearth.

AT the Clydebank New Gaiety Theatre, on Monday, the first house was set apart for the Burgh Unemployed Distress Fund, under the patronage of the Provost, magistrates, and councillors. The house was packed, and the programme submitted was thoroughly appreciated. Harvey and Holt, comedy speciality artists, met with a hearty reception, as also did Miss Kitty Lavigne, a smart comedienne and dancer. Fields and Acres, as "keepers of the park," gained much applause; Miss Maud Clifton sang herself into favour; W. H. Smart proved himself a capital Irish comedian; and the Bioscope was excellent.

BEFORE the last turn Mr. Pickard appeared on the stage to publicly thank the Provost, magistrates, and councillors for honouring his theatre with their presence, and intimated that over and above the takings he would subscribe £10 towards the fund, a remark that brought forth much applause. Provost Taylor, on behalf of the distress committee, returned thanks, paying a high tribute to Mr. Pickard for his generosity, and hoped his stay in Clydebank would meet with much success. A special collection was also made, which realised £4 10s.

ONE of the most enjoyable turns of the evening at the Tivoli is that of Miss Madge Temple, whose rendering of a song about a "kiss" is indeed a delightful performance. This lady is not only the possessor of a beautiful soprano voice, but acts the song cleverly.

THE public examination was concluded at the London Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday of Theodore Broxane, who with another had been performing on the music-hall stage as "The Creo Brothers," acrobats. He attributed his present position to the cancellation of his contracts. The debts were £316, and assets nil.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Messrs. John P. Harrington and Tom McNaughton have this week acquired all their remaining partners' share and interest in the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., and this enterprising young firm will in future be run with Mr. John P. Harrington as the managing partner in England, assisted by Mr. Orlando Powell, a veritable tower of strength and musical adviser and editor to the concern.

Mr. Tom McNaughton will actively represent the interests of the firm in America, where he is under a forty-two weeks' contract with Klaw and Erlanger, to play in Florenz Ziegfeld's Bonnie Belles of Scotland, supporting the star, his wife, Miss Alice Lloyd. While Mr. Harrington is busy "plugging" this side of the Atlantic, Mr. McNaughton may be relied upon to be correspondingly active on this side of the "pond."

Miss Claire Romaine, the popular burlesque actress, who is now en route, with her husband, Edgar Romaine, for New York, is booked to appear there at a large salary by Mr. Percy G. Williams. Amongst those present at Euston station to bid her farewell were Marie Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Elen, Annie Wood and Mr. Wood, Mrs. Keddie, Maud Bell, Harry Tate, Maggie Schofield, and Bennett Scott.

Miss Evie Greene, who was the original Consuelo in the production of Havana at the Gaiety, and also completely realised the dark beauty of Dolores in Mr. Leslie Stuart's even more famous Florodora, has signed a contract with Mr. Oswald Stoll to appear at several of the Moss and Stoll houses in the provinces and for a five weeks' engagement at the Coliseum. Miss Greene made her variety début at the Palace Theatre earlier in the year.

Mr. Harry Relph, professionally known as "Little Tich," applied, ex parte, on Wednesday, for an interim injunction to restrain Barry Gilmore and James Bainbridge, from representing that plaintiff was appearing and acting for them at the Waterloo Theatre, at Whitby. He also asked leave to serve notice of motion for an injunction for next Wednesday.

Mr. J. F. W. Galbraith, for plaintiff, described the action of the defendants as "an impudent fraud." Posters and handbills were being circulated in large numbers at Whitby containing the words, "Don't fail to see and hear Little Tich." Plaintiff was under no contract to appear for defendants at Whitby or elsewhere, and the unauthorised use of his name was calculated to do great damage to his professional reputation and his popularity with the public. His Lordship gave leave to serve the notice of motion, and granted an interim injunction over next Wednesday.

The "R. B." Syndicate (Limited), Mr. T. G. Richards, manager, the registered offices of which are at the London Music Hall, Shoreditch, was summoned, on Wednesday, by the Metropolitan Water Board for non-payment of £29 11s. for water supplied to the Cambridge Music Hall, Commercial-street, for three quarters ending Sept. 30, 1908. It was said for the syndicate that there was no defence. The money was due and owing, but the hall was shut up, and there were no assets. An order for payment recoverable by distress was made.

A cablegram received on Tuesday brought the joyful news that Miss Daisy Wood, who made her first bow to an American audience on Monday, was an instantaneous success. Her first appearance created a favourable impression, and as she warmed to her work the enthusiasm of the audience became more and more pronounced.

The little lady's hits are the numbers specially written for her by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, and entitled "Oh! George, tell them to stop the Flip-Flap," "Beware of the man with the automobile," and "Won't you come and paddle?" They will be issued by the Day and Harms firm, by arrangement with the Star Music Co., of 9, Charing Cross-road.

Mr. Ernest Shand is, at the Tivoli, nightly pouring wholesome ridicule on the Licensing Bill, the opposition to which will culminate in a meeting to-morrow in Hyde Park that will be epoch-making in its importance. Though audiences laugh heartily all the time Mr. Shand is uttering his amusing funniments concerning "The last pub," beneath the surface there is some scathing satire which directly bears on the grandmotherly interference with the liberty of the subject and the property of the publican by the temperance cranks. Another laughter-compelling contribution of Ernest's is "What would the congregation say?" They would be much too inclined to laugh to say anything at all!

Mr. J. W. Winton, the ventriloquist, has by doctor's advice postponed his English and American engagements, and returns to Australia for a few months' rest. He formed one of Mr. Harry Rickards' party, voyaging on board the P. and O. ss. Moldavia, which left London on Friday. He hopes to return to England next summer to fulfil his present engagements.

Mr. J. P. MacNally, the last of the original Two Macs (MacCabe and MacNally), passed away last Sunday, 20th inst., at 33, Bradford-street, High Town, Hednesford, Staffs., after a long and painful illness. He was forty-nine. Joe Mac, his partner, who was the husband of Alice Maydue, died on Jan. 11, 1893. It was a celebrated partnership, and its rise to popularity was meteoric. The Two Macs appeared at the old Gaiety when they were the rage of London.

Mr. John F. Preston's latest production, A Ride to Win, in which his three thoroughbred racehorses jump a regulation hurdle, on its initial performance at Croydon met with immediate success, fourteen London halls being booked during its first week, commencing with Olympia, Shoreditch, on Monday next. This carries Mr. Preston's bookings in town into the new year, when he starts the Stoll tour again with Rogues of the Turf. The latter is booked for the Coliseum, London, on Oct. 12, the only time it will be seen till next year.

Rehearsals of Paris, the new Empire Theatre ballet, are progressing so satisfactorily that the production may now be confidently expected early in October. Mlle. Lydia Kyaksht, who succeeeds to the position of première danseuse at the Empire, and who has a striking rôle in the new production, has already won golden opinions from both Press and public as a dancer of distinction and superb technique. As one of our foremost critics observes: "Mlle. Kyaksht suffers little by comparison with her great predecessor. She comes to us in all the freshness of her beauty, youth, and talent."

The unhappy career of Mabel, Countess Russell, was terminated by death on Tuesday morning, at her residence, Bray Lawn, near Maidenhead. For some months the deceased lady had been suffering from consumption, and her mother, Lady Selina Scott, and other relatives were with her when she died. She was about thirty-six years of age, and was the daughter of the late Sir Claude Scott. In 1899, after much litigation with her husband, Earl Russell, the Countess appeared as Winifred Grey, in The Runaway Girl, and afterwards made her début on the variety stage, at the Tivoli and other London halls. Since her last unfortunate marriage with an adventurer named Brown, who passed himself off as a prince, she had occupied her time with poultry-farming.

The application to the magistrates for a music and singing licence for the Gem, Great Yarmouth, has been before the local magistrates this week. It has been decided to adjourn the matter for a week.

At a meeting of the Portsmouth Watch Committee on Tuesday an application was made for a theatrical licence for the Hippodrome, and after some consideration it was granted with the condition that no intoxicating drink shall be sold in the building.

Mr. Thomas Barrasford has arranged to open his new house at Nottingham, the Royal Hippodrome, on Monday next, when an excellent company of artists will appear. Mr. A. V. Carnell, who for five years had charge of the Hippodrome at St. Helens, has been transferred to Nottingham, and it says much for his unflagging energy and zeal that the work is in a very forward condition.

The Grand Theatre, Glasgow, having recently been acquired by the Moss' Empires, Limited, has been closed for some months for the purpose of alterations, decorations, and furnishing. The house is to open on Oct. 6 with a grand revival of Dorothy.

The directors of the Victoria Theatre, Burnley, of which Mr. W. C. Horner is managing director, have decided to rebuild and provide a new "twice nightly" variety house, and have placed the designing of the new building with Mr. Bertie Crewe, whose plans are now well in hand and will shortly be submitted to the local authorities. The new building will seat about 2,300 people, and hold when full about 3,000.

We greatly regret to learn that Mr. Stanley Hope, the popular acting-manager for Mr. Edward Marris at the Jersey Opera House, was seriously assaulted when leaving that building shortly after midnight on Friday, 18th. Mr. Hope, who was savagely kicked about the face and body, is in a very critical condition, and two doctors are in attendance. Had not Mrs. Hope, who was with her husband at the time, managed to obtain assistance the result might have been even more serious.

The Tynemouth Palace, after several vicissitudes, comes under the auctioneer's hammer on the 30th inst. Originally costing about £80,000, it came into the possession of its present owner for about £7,000, and should now easily be a paying property in the hands of a smart entrepreneur. The main interior could, at a comparatively small cost, be reconstructed to meet the demands and requirements of an up-to-date house of entertainment. It enjoys a full six days' licence, and on Sundays a refreshment licence.

Mr. A. E. Pickard, of the New Gaiety, Clydebank, and several Glasgow ventures, on Monday devoted the entire drawings at his Clydebank Theatre to the local unemployed fund. The occasion was graced by the presence of the Provost and magistrates, and a handsome sum was realised, in addition to which Mr. Pickard gave a donation of £10.

The prevailing distress in Glasgow, due to unemployment, has awakened the sympathies of all classes, and two performances were given in aid of the relief fund. On Saturday the entire proceeds of the matinée at the Pavilion were given, and a strong company offered their services for the occasion. On Sunday a sacred concert was given in the Zoo-Hippodrome, the programme being sustained mostly by local artists, and Councillor Bostock was able to hand over the sum of £52 as a result.

The complimentary benefit, on Thursday, Sept. 17, at the Halifax Palace, to Mr. Reginald H. Foster, the manager of that popular place of amusement, was in every way a success. There was a large house at the matinée, and two large houses at night. During the second house at night Mr. Foster came to the footlights. Thanks to Mr. Macnaghten, he had enjoyed a very fine benefit. He wished to thank the artists for their assistance, and the stage hands and staff generally who had helped him. As Mr. Foster was retiring from the stage, amid rounds of cheering, Mr. C. Bedford, of King Cross-street, emerged from the wings, and asked the manager's acceptance, on behalf of a few friends and admirers, of a cheque.

Before Mr. Foster could respond, Mr. G. B. Mozley, the stage-manager, presented to him a silver-mounted stick and comb and brushes from his working staff at the Palace. Mr. Foster humorously observed:—"This is what I did not expect. I knew I was having a 'benefit,' but I did not expect these 'extras.' I am most delighted to receive them, however." He then thanked the subscribers and his excellent working staff, and retired whilst the band again played "For he's a jolly good fellow."

It is with great regret we announce the death of Mr. A. D. Norman, the secretary and entertainment manager of the Brighton West Pier company, which occurred on Sunday evening last at his residence, 18, Lancaster-road, Brighton. Mr. Norman had been associated with the pier for eleven years, during seven of which he was secretary and entertainment manager, winning the esteem and goodwill of the chairman (Mr. W. H. Gibson) and the directors of the pier company. His kind and genial manner endeared him to all who came in contact with him. About a year ago he had a serious nervous breakdown, to which he eventually succumbed.

The Liverpool Tivoli, Paddington Palace, and Park Palace were, on Thursday, offered for sale by auction at the Liverpool Law Association Rooms, when there was an attendance of about 120, including Mr. James Kiernan, the principal debenture holder of the premises. The proceedings were by order of the Chancery Court. The auctioneer dwelt in detail upon the value of the respective properties, which, he said, had to be sold together, and mentioned that the reserve price fixed by the Judge could not be revealed. He, however, declared that it was less than the low amount he himself had anticipated, and there was now a chance to secure valuable properties at a very reasonable figure.

After the auctioneer had spoken thirty-five minutes, a Mr. Gibson offered £20,000, which amount was quickly advanced by single thousands and two five hundreds until one gentleman called £30,000. The auctioneer declared that the reserve had not been reached, and consequently withdrew the property. Before dissolving the meeting, the auctioneer stated, in reply to a question, that the buildings could not be sold separately in consequence of the order of the Judge, but should anybody feel desirous of offering terms for any one of the three premises an application could be made to the Chancery Court, when probably the judicial order might be altered.

Professor Alec Payne, the well-known skater and pioneer of the present craze for roller-skating, has arranged for his marriage to take place at the Skating Rink, the White City, Old Trafford, on Thursday, Oct. 11. The popularity of this rink is shown by the great number of people who find a ready teacher in the professor, who can quickly make good skaters out of the most awkward people. He is arranging a sensation in the form of a skating pantomime dance by himself and four ladies to be performed at Christmas at Drury Lane. He has called the act "Les Petites Patineuses."

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bawn sail for America on Wednesday next per s.s. Majestic, on business and pleasure bent. Mrs. Bawn, who is a native of St. Louis, will renew many pleasant reminiscences.

Miss Vesta Victoria has entrusted her business arrangements to Messrs. Beecham and Wheeler, who have booked that clever artist at an enormous salary with Mr. Walter Gibbons to open exclusively at the Holborn Empire on Oct. 26.

Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, in writing to Mr. T. Harris, manager of the Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Company, of 6, Argyll-street, Regent-street, W., says:—"You have done my cleaning for many years now, and when my white eye needs cleaning I shall have no hesitation in sending it to you, as I know it will come back practically new, without an eyelash missing."

Miss Frances Letty, coon chorus singer, intimates that she produced the sequel to Moving Day at the Coliseum, Glasgow, in June, 1907, and afterwards played the same at the Empress, Brixton, using the same setting and business as another artist is doing in London, and on the Stoll tour. Miss Letty only desires that she should be known as the originator of the sequel, which she is still playing.

"The Little Captain," a playlet written round Captain Kettle, which is noticed in another column, is being rapidly booked. As the hero invented by the famous novelist, Mr. Cutcliffe Hyne, Mr. Leonard Mortimer is absolutely lifelike, the make-up and business showing an exact appreciation of the idiosyncrasies of the wonderful little adventurer.

For the first time in the history of the Tivoli, animated pictures of the most up-to-date events are to be depicted on Monday by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. It is interesting to note that a special cinematographic exhibiting chamber has been erected, according to the requirements of the London County Council, and it is of the very latest pattern.

Arthur Jefferson's farcical comedy sketch, Home From the Honeymoon, is due at the Manchester Hippodrome on Monday. The sketch has proved a "winner," both at Mr. Stoll's suburban and provincial halls, and the cast includes such well known names as Wilfrid Compton, Geo. Elliston, Fowler Thatcher, and Miss Miriam Holt, in addition to other capable artists, whilst the staging is much above the average.

The Water Rats anthem, about which there has been a good deal of controversy during the week, was composed in the early days of the fraternity by Joe Elvin and Harry Freeman. It is now sung at the installation ceremony of each new King Rat and at farewells to artists going on long tours abroad.

When the new King Rat is installed he turns to the banner of the Order, and the company sing the anthem:—

This is the emblem of our Society,
Each member acts with the greatest propriety.
Jolly old sports, to us they raise their hats,
A jolly lot of fellows are the Water Rats.

The first Water Rat was a pony by that name belonging to Jack Lotto, who now controls a well-known hostelry at 119, Charing Cross-road. The social meetings after trotting matches resulted in the foundation of the Order.

The charm, beauty, and sparkle of Mr. George Dance's sketches are being amusingly advertised by a clever parody of "Where are you going to, my pretty maid?" The last verse runs as follows:—

"Are you successful, my pretty maid?"
"Ask all the managers, sir," she said.
"When's your vacation, my pretty maid?"
"We don't never have any, sir," she said.

Mr. Chris Van Bern, after his conspicuous success at the Oxford this week, is not likely to look back, and may prepare at once to book a crop of re-engagements. He is a perfect stranger to the house, and the interest of the vast audience is manifest from the first. Mr. Van Bern deals in the unexpected. He puts his gloves in his hat and they immediately disappear; he changes the colour of his pocket-handkerchief on sight; he manufactures a table from an innocent-looking suit case; and more than all, he volleys out smart patter all the time. He is certain to become a London entertainer of the first water. So original is he that he is scarcely to be classified as "a line," though he will be a "top-liner."

Miss Elsie Kerry, having completed a most successful provincial tour, and fulfilled her subsequent engagements in the London and suburban halls proceeds next week to her native country, where she opens at the Empire, Belfast, appearing at the sister hall in her native city of Dublin on the following week. Miss Kerry, though only a few years associated with the variety stage, has firmly established herself in public favour. This is her return visit to Ireland's two chief cities, where she is certain to receive a cade mille failte.

The triumphant salving of the Gladiator off Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, which Urban's have kinematographed by special and exclusive permission of the Lords of the Admiralty, is to be shown on the screen at the Palace Theatre on Monday. In the first picture the wreck is seen as on the morning after the disaster (April 26). Then to his great task comes Captain Young, of the Liverpool Salvage Corps. Divers begin the work by attaching wire hawsers to the mighty hull, the huge cammells (or airtight caissons) are sunk, tripods and shore-cables are placed in position, and ultimately the strenuous labours of five long months are crowned by the bringing of the cruiser to an even keel—a wonderful spectacle.

One is not surprised to hear of the complete success of Mr. Austin Boyd and Miss Trixie Gilfain in their diverting operetta Sunny Spain, which is now on the Stoll tour. The vim and sparkle of the sketch and the clever and funny way in which it is presented easily account for the absorbing interest it always creates. If all bagpipers were like Miss Gilfain we should be more tolerant of the "skirl of the pibroch."

To attempt to give even an approximate list of the distinguished people present at Mlle. Genée's farewell on Tuesday would take up a column of our space. In an exquisite Empire gown, she made her first entrance to a volley of cheering, carrying everyone away by the grace and charm of her well-known dance from The Little Michus. Later came Miss Dora Bright's pastoral fantasy, The Dryad, of which the beauty and pathos were once again emphasised by the incomparable dancer.

When at last the curtain finally fell the outburst of applause was of so decisive and prolonged a character that again and again Mlle. Genée, hand-in-hand with Mr. H. J. Hitchins, had to appear before the curtain, expressing her feelings by eloquent gesture. But her inveterate admirers remained unsatisfied, and loud cries for "Speech, speech," drew from Mlle. Genée the farewell words: "Thank you very much—I shall be back very soon." In the centre of the stage stood a huge tribute, in the shape of a floral horseshoe, presented by the directors of the Empire as a slight testimony of the esteem and affection in which Mlle. Genée is held.

Mr. R. G. Knowles starts a farewell tour, arranged by Tom Pacey, at the New Hippodrome, Nottingham, on Monday next.

Miss Ray Wallace, the lady mimic at the piano, who is now fulfilling a most successful engagement at the Empire, has by consent postponed her American engagement until next year, and is therefore at liberty for pantomime as principal girl.

Beecham and Wheeler are bringing to London a novelty consisting of a vocal and athletic scena, entitled "Kennedy's Kiddies in Ju-jitsu Dance." This novelty has been immediately booked by Mr. Will Collins, of the Syndicate Halls, to appear at the Canterbury on Monday at 9.40.

Miss Cissie Lawson is presenting at the Canterbury on Monday the thrilling episode entitled A Bride for a Living, in which she has made her mark as an emotional actress.

Mr. Charles P. Loller, the conductor of the Sunderland Empire, died at his residence in Maud-street, Fulwell, on Saturday afternoon, the cause of death being consumption. Deceased, who was only twenty-eight years of age, was a brilliant violinist. He had been in the service of Mr. Dick Thornton for about fourteen years. A widow and one child mourn his loss.

The entente cordiale will receive fresh significance nightly next week at the Empire Palace, Sheffield, by the complete understanding between Mr. J. A. Wilson and his well-trained, intelligent, and delightful French poodle, Private Towser, who in his way is quite an artist. It is a pleasure to watch this handsome canine in his gleeful desire to support his master in an altogether interesting and clever act.

Dr. Walford Bodie broke all records last week at the Palace, Kilmarnock. This week he is doing the same at the King's Theatre and Hippodrome, Kirkcaldy. Though the prices have been raised the advance booking has been phenomenal, and never since the theatre has been built has such enormous business been done. So great a hit has Dr. Bodie made that the management offered him a guarantee of £300 for himself to remain another week, but he is booked at the New Theatre, Ayr.

Dr. Bodie has just published the fourteenth edition of "The Bodie Book," which has had a record sale. His latest volume, "Stage Stories," is selling by hundreds weekly. He has been approached by a big London firm to contribute essays and stories for some leading magazines, and the Doctor is seriously thinking of leaving the stage and devoting his whole time to literature. In his spare moments he is writing two other startling books.

Miss Ethel Whiteside, who is now touring England with three little negro piccaninnies, has just completed a tour of the Continent, where she has met with the best of success. She has also created a sensation throughout Australia, on the Harry Rickards' circuit. Dainty and petite, with a good voice and good looks, she makes her negro lullabies very effective, and the antics of the little "Picks" are funny in the extreme. Before leaving for America, Miss Whiteside intends bestowing one of her black boys on that person who can provide him with the best home. She has been booked by the Moss-Stoll circuit for three tours.

Mr. Lester Reekie, a prominent member of the troupe of Brighton entertainers known as The Highwaymen, anticipated last Christmas, in a song then sold to Mr. George Brooks, Mark Twain's recent joke to the burglar, "Please close the door." Mr. Reekie's first chorus ran as follows:—

"I don't mind you blowing my brains out,
For on them I don't place any store;
But you might wake the p'liceman asleep on his beat,
And—would you mind closing the door!"

Mr. Brooks is putting the song on immediately. But for this explanation Mr. Reekie feared that he might be accused of plagiarism.

Mr. Leo Dryden, who has been winning golden opinions on his present tour with The Sins of Society, by the same author, has accepted of Mr. Cayley Calvert, a new and original scena, founded on an incident in The Corsican Brothers, which he intends to produce in town in November.

The well-known firm of Messrs. Vaughan and Cook, Ltd., of Goswell-road, metal craftsmen, made and fixed the fireproof curtain, installed the hydrants, gas lighting and heating, the hot water services for dressing-rooms, and the outside canopy with its attendant illuminations, for the new Devonport Hippodrome. These facts did not appear in our report.

Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock, acting-manager of the Paisley Hippodrome, was on Monday evening, on the occasion of his departure from Paisley to take charge of the Ipswich Hippodrome, presented with a handsome illuminated address, subscribed for by the staff and several of his friends and well-wishers. The social function took place on the stage after the second performance. Mr. Fred Coutts, manager of the Paisley and District Tramways Co., Ltd., made the presentation, and in doing so dwelt on the many good qualities possessed by Mr. Bostock. Mr Bostock thanked one and all very sincerely for the address. He had made many friends since he came to Paisley, and he deeply regretted this parting.

Councillor E. H. Bostock, proprietor of the Hippodromes already mentioned, added a few remarks on being called upon. He explained that his son was being removed from Paisley to Ipswich merely to look after a charge farthest away from head quarters, whilst the manager in Ipswich was being transferred to Paisley. He trusted his son would look after Ipswich as well as he had Paisley. Addresses were also given in praise of the young and capable manager by Mr. D. C. Gribben, Mr. Sam Young, and Mr. Dalgleish.

The address, beautifully illuminated and including the photograph of Mr. Bostock, was as follows:—"Dear Sir,—We, the undersigned, as representing your friends and employees in the Paisley Hippodrome, desire, on this the occasion of your departure from Paisley to take over the control of the Ipswich Hippodrome, to place on record our appreciation of your character through the medium of this address. We gladly recognise your high personal character and moral worth, and we are delighted to have this opportunity of bearing testimony to the esteem in which you are held by your friends and employees and by the community generally

"During the time you have managed the Paisley Hippodrome nothing but the most kindly feelings have prevailed between yourself and the staff, whilst your untiring courtesy and geniality of manner have secured you many friends.

"While recognising the exigencies of business, we still regret your departure from amongst us, and, therefore, welcome this opportunity of placing on record our sentiment towards you and in conveying to you our best wishes for your continued prosperity, and trust you may be long spared to enjoy every comfort and blessing in the years to come.—(Signed), Archie Nicol, John Soar, Wm. Mitchell, Robert Hendry, Fred. Coutts, Sam Young, D. C. Gribben, James Young. Paisley, Sept. 21, 1908."

The directors of the Camberwell Palace have given notice of their intention to terminate their booking arrangements with Moss' Empires, Ltd.

The many friends of Mr. E. W. Mackney will be glad to hear that his mishap, which we reported last week in our "Gossip" columns, has had no serious results.

Mr. Harry Liston and Miss Lord Lumley, after many years' absence from Scotland, made their début at Dundee last Monday, and made an instantaneous hit with a comedy sketch. Mr. Liston's songs and mimicry were highly relished.

Miss Violet Fulton, who recently finished a season at the Théâtre des Capucines, and more recently in her sketch The Collaborators at the London Pavilion, is shortly to start a tour on the Syndicate Halls with that bright and cleverly acted playlet.

Mr. J. Fisher White's sketch, A Royal Heart (by A. Scott Craven and J. D. Beresford) starts on an autumn tour under Mr. Oswald Stoll's management, on Monday next, at the Hackney Empire. The cast is as follows:—Michael Petrovitch, Mr. Chris Walker; Simon Michaelovitch, Mr. Fredk. James; Marya Paulovna, first house, Miss Margaret Omar, second house, Mrs. Fisher White; Nikita Antonyitch, Mr. A. Corney Grain; and Vassili, Grand Duke, Mr. Scott Craven. Mr. Scott Craven, who is playing the leading part, is one of the authors of the little play, and has published two books of poetry. As at present arranged, the tour extends up to the first week in December.

"A Royal Heart" will be produced with absolute truth of detail—the flat-topped Russian stove, built of brick, common among the very poor; the low cobbler's bench; the Ikon hanging on the wall facing the entrance-door, with its little lamp, lighted always at times of special trouble or rejoicing; the shutters, which, by order of the Government, must be fastened only from the outside, so that the police may open them at any time and pry upon the peasants' life within; and the Russian samovar, used for making tea. These are some of the details, the correctness of which has been verified from Russian sources.

Mr. George Gilbey is featured in the Hackney Empire bill for next week. A few years ago he was a valued member of Mr. George Ginnett's circus company, performing as a clown under the name of Little Frisco; but years before that he had frequently appeared in the circus ring. Keeping a shrewd eye upon the signs of the times, he concluded that the circus entertainment was not likely to provide him with his bread and butter much longer, and as he had faith in his ability to amuse an audience as a "single-handed" comedian, he boldly made the plunge into variety. Gilbey recalls how, after his trial trip to the variety theatre, his friends all met him with chaff, which the recipient bore meekly, serene in the knowledge that as a matter of fact he had been accorded a highly encouraging reception.

Passengers by the Cunard liner Mauretania, which arrived at New York on Saturday with one propeller out of action and twenty-seven hours late, had some exciting experiences during a storm. She was about 360 miles east of Sandy Hook, in a West Indian hurricane, when suddenly one of the blades of her starboard propeller snapped. The engines were at once stopped and the vessel swung broadside on to the seas, which washed over her. The deck became crowded with alarmed passengers, but Captain Pritchard ordered them back to the café, telling them not to be alarmed. Several women fainted, but there was never anything approaching a panic

Not a little of the credit of this was due to Miss Alice Lloyd. In the café crowded with frightened women she stood up and sang for over an hour, till confidence was entirely restored. After the excitement was over Miss Constance Collier, who was travelling with her husband, Mr. Julian L'Estrange, kissed Miss Lloyd, and the captain warmly thanked her for what she had done.

Mr. Herbert Cottesmore, producer of The Belle of Mayfair, at the Vaudeville Theatre, Lady Tatters, at the Shaftesbury, &c., has entered into sketch management. He has already one pronounced success on the road, Her Princely Betrayer, written by Robert Wilford, a thrilling Sicilian drama, in tabloid form, which is being rebooked wherever played. His next production is The Espada, written by Robert Wilford, a dramatic sketch with a Spanish setting, which opens on Oct. 5 at the Metropolitan, and on Oct. 12 he produces The Old Willow Plate, also written by Robert Wilford, and composed by Mark Strong. This is an operatic phantasy, with a novel setting and elaborate mechanical effects.

In place of the old, inconvenient, and uncomfortable ampitheatre and gallery at the Palace Theatre, the architect, Mr. J. Emblin Walker, has had reconstructed a new and commodious ampitheatre, open from wall to wall, filled with "specially made" mahogany, stuffed armchairs, from every one of which a good view of the whole stage is obtainable. This transformation has been made in the record time of six weeks without stopping or curtailing any one of the eight performances per week. At the same time, considerable alterations and improvements have also been carried out in the first circle. Messrs. Hy. Lovatt, Ltd., of Wolverhampton, and Messrs. Moreland, Ltd., engineers, of London, have together most satisfactorily carried out this hurried programme. Messrs. Shoolbred have provided the seats.

Mr. Bert Levi, a black-and-white artist of Jewish descent and of Australian birth, is paying his first visit to England, and has been secured by Mr. Alfred Butt for the Palace Theatre, where he made his début on Monday. He worked on the Sydney Bulletin with the late Phil May, and has made a reputation in America by sketching on the stage. He has a patent whereby he sketches to one side of the stage, his drawings being magnified and reproduced on a big screen at the same time.

Before Mr. Registrar Brougham, a sitting was held on Tuesday for the public examination of Geo. Abel, music-hall artist, who presented his own petition, describing himself as of Greycoat-gardens, Westminster. The accounts showed unsecured debts £2,690 17s. 8d., and assets nil. It appeared from the official receiver's observations and the debtor's statements that in February, 1901, after having incurred a loss in connection with a theatrical speculation, he was adjudged bankrupt in the Cheltenham Court, and obtained his discharge subject to a suspension of three years. He afterwards managed the Opera House, Cheltenham, and from July, 1901, until December, 1903, performed on the music-hall stage with his wife, whose stage name was "Ethel Arden."

In April, 1905, a company called "Ethel Arden and George Abel (Limited)" was registered, to which they sold the right of production of certain sketches for a consideration, payable in shares. The debtor afterwards assisted his wife in the production of a music-hall sketch in the United States, and promoted the George Abel Motor Transfer Company, of which he was the president, but it had recently discontinued business. He attributed his insolvency to cancellation of contracts for the production of a musical sketch in consequence of proceedings successfully instituted by the Theatrical Managers' Association. The examination was closed.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

A MOST amusing song, about to be issued by Messrs. Francis and Day, is "Little Willie's Woodbines," sung by Mr. Billy Williams, and written by Barnes and Weston.

"SHADOWLAND," a charming ballad by Percy Edgar, has been set to music by Henry E. Pether, and will be issued immediately by Messrs. Francis and Day, who have also secured a number of the greatest promise, entitled "John Jasper's lady love," sung by Pop Dearly, and written and composed by Hugh E. Wright and Wolseley Charles.

THE news of the advent of Messrs. Francis and Day's Pantomime BOOKS for the season 1908-9 will be hailed with feelings of the deepest satisfaction by the countless artists and managers who require the very cream of the song market for the productions with which they are concerned. The volumes, which this year are bulkier than ever, are four in number, viz., "Principal Boy," "Principal Girl," "Low Comedian and Dame," and Book of Free Songs (suitable for all lines), and, as heretofore, will be supplied to bona-fide producers, managers, and artists stating their line of business and enclosing the sum of sixpence for each volume required, to cover the cost of despatch.

MISS FLORRY COOPER is making a great success with a new number, entitled "Always Smile," by J. Brownson. Miss Fanny Robina is making a hit with another song, "The Land of Promise," written by Billie Bint and composed by Florry Cooper. Both these numbers have been secured by Mr. David Day, and will be published shortly

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Co. possess a strong list of songs for pantomime this year, numbering, among others in their constantly-increasing catalogue, such tried and proven music hall successes as "The Directoire Girl" (Miss Marie Lloyd), "Lovelight," "Poverty Street" (Miss Kate Carney), "Leaving Monte Carlo" (Miss Dora Lyric), and "I want to be among the boys" (Miss Lena Verdi). Pantomime producers, as well as principal boys and girls, will be well advised to make early application for permission to sing these pantomime certainties.

BOTH Miss Alexandra Dagmar and Talbot and Pearce are producing the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s delightful vocal waltz song, "Ever thine," in the provinces at all their engagements, while Mirzka Gynt, the "boy busker," will specially produce it at the William Morris vaudeville houses in America. Miss José Collins will also produce "Ever thine" during her second week at the London Pavilion, and a week later at the Oxford. This is an ideal song for fairy queens in pantomime, providing they possess voices out of the ordinary.

READERS of Lewis Carroll will remember the "Jabberwock," with its eccentric language. Mr. Joseph Williams, of Great Portland-street, has published a series of recitations with music, and the "Jabberwock" is one of the most effective. Sir A. C. Mackenzie has written the music, which is admirably suited to increase the effect of the recitation. The passage where the hero kills the "Jabberwock" and "goes galumphing back" is particularly good. The management of the chromatic runs shows what a gifted musician Sir A. C. Mackenzie is, and the sudden silence while the hero stands lost in thought by the tumtum tree is also a most happy inspiration. The music, though striking, fanciful, and grotesque, does not in a single instance offend the ear. Another splendid musical accompaniment is that to Hood's "Dream of Eugene Aram," in which the descriptive power of the composer calls for the utmost commendation. Sir A. C. Mackenzie also displays no little skill in "The Confession," by Ingoldsby, and in other pieces by Hood. Florian Pascal is another composer who distinguishes himself, and Frederick Dale is gaily successful in lighter pieces not requiring dramatic force. Hood's "Queen Mab" also supplies Sir A. C. Mackenzie with charming musical ideas, expressed mainly in the key of A, but with clever modulations. Another successful recitation is "Ghosts," by Worral, composed by Frederick Dale. The author describes in lively manner the various ghosts that perplex humanity. Hood's "Faithless Nelly Gray" is treated with no little humour by Sir A. C. Mackenzie. He has caught the droll spirit of Hood's poem. We can cordially recommend these recitations with music, as they are superior to any we have seen.

MR. JOSEPH WILLIAMS also publishes the following:—"The Song of the Gargoyle," a quaint fancy written by Lewis Campion and composed by Sidney Ellen. This would prove a success for bass or baritone, being vigorous and original. It is in the key of E flat, and the composer has done full justice to the subject. "To crown my love," words by May Byron, music by Sir A. C. Mackenzie, is a love-song of merit. Two pieces, a Serenade for viola by Gabriel Pierne and "Abendstern" for piano by Sidney Powell, are both well written and fairly original.

MR. JOSEPH WILLIAMS, of 32, Great Portland-street, W., has issued the répertoire of the "Follies," the celebrated company who have met with success everywhere. The composer, Mr. H. G. Pélissier, has greatly contributed to this success by his clever music. Among the various songs, one in particular has puzzled many. That is "Ypsilanti." The verse quoted may give some idea of the subject and treatment:

De sun am settin'
And here I'm frettin'
For de only place on earth there's no forgettin'!
Here in de gloamin',
Like bees a-homin',
My thoughts towards Ypsilanti town are roamin'.
Away dere in de States
For me a lady waits.
REFRAIN:
She's my Amante,
In Ypsilanti,
And in that town we'll settle down
And build a shanty;
But money's scanty,
I'm dilettante,
And so Amante has to wait
In Ypsilanti!

PROFESSIONAL copies of the songs by the "Follies" are sent free by the publisher, providing 6d. and professional card are given. The sprightly character of some of the songs, and the pathos of others, need no recommendation.

"THUMB-NAIL PLOTS" of operettas, cantatas, &c., give not only the characters but the compass required for the principal voices. They include some extremely bright ideas, and are calculated to assist the amateur in the choice of a subject. Full particulars can be obtained of the publishers respecting fees, hire of band parts, &c. The plots of many of these show how well they are adapted to please audiences. Children's operettas are also included.

PART 2 of "Thumb-nail Plots" is devoted to plays, sketches, duologues, without music. These little pieces are full of character, and are contributed by famous authors, one of them being MR. E. L. Blanchard, for twenty-two years the writer of Drury Lane pantomimes. Mr. Burnand also contributes a comedietta, One too Many, composed by Mr. Cowen. Several others deserve hearty commendation.

VARIETY ARTISTS' FEDERATION.

THE AGENT QUESTION.

A mass meeting of members of the Variety Artists' Federation was held, under the chairmanship of Mr. Joe O'Gorman, at the Bedford Head Hotel, yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of further considering the position of affairs which had arisen consequent upon the refusal of the agents to accept the terms offered by the Federation in respect of the commission note prepared by the Federation, and to consider certain resolutions in connection therewith. The meeting was characterised by the numbers and enthusiasm of its members.

The CHAIRMAN, in his opening address, said that it was with the greatest sense of responsibility that he addressed them that afternoon. Not even during the late strike had they a more representative gathering than they had to-day. The agents had made an attempt to bluff them; they had wilfully insulted the artists, and the former would now have to understand that the artists would not tolerate any insults. The time was past for them to consider people who went out of their way to insult the representatives of 4,000 loyal workers of the music hall profession. Their business now had grown to big dimensions, big salaries were earned, and much capital was sunk in music hall enterprises. Yet even Mr. Arthur Collins, of Drury Lane, had tried to hold them up to the obloquy of the public. But Mr. Collins, Mr. Cecil Raleigh, and the others had reckoned without their host. The artists had threatened to demonstrate in Drury Lane Theatre night after night until the scene complained of was withdrawn. They were all depicted as a lot of drunken, brawling idiots. There might, unfortunately, be a few people in the business who "tippled," but he could defy Mr. Collins or Mr. Raleigh to say that there was any profession more honourable than the music hall profession. Reverting to the question of the trouble with the agents, the Chairman read the correspondence which had passed between the Federation and the agents. The latter had invited the executive committee of the Federation to agree to arbitration, failing which the agents stated that they would take such steps as they might be advised. Mr. Monte Bayly wrote back on his instructions to say that the Federation would not, under any circumstances, accept arbitration in any form, and the agents were now at liberty to take any steps they might consider necessary. Some twenty-one of the "younger bloods" among the agents had agreed to accept the V.A.F. office copy, and nineteen of the "fogies" had refused to accept it. It was understood that pressure had been put on some of the agents by a certain great manager. It had been rumoured that this manager had informed the agents that any of them who accepted the Federation terms would never have any bookings with him. The artist cared nothing for the manager who said such a thing as that. This was a fight with the agents, and if the managers wanted any fight with the artists they could have it. If they found that the manager referred to had made this statement they would instantly consider him as a belligerent and a party to the fight. The time had now arrived when they would stand no more domineering or dictation from any quarter whatsoever. They had tried to avoid trouble with the agents, and no half measures were now possible. The leading artists in the profession only paid 5 per cent. commission, but then they had big income taxes to meet. The poorer artists were compelled to pay ten per cent. Then, where the manager stopped 2½ per cent., the agent in the majority of cases demanded and got his 10 per cent. Then, why did they want the same commission on a re-engagement? Mr. Granville stated that when he had made an engagement or a re-engagement he considered that he had earned 20 per cent. There was a clause in their contract which said that they must not assign any portion of their salary to anybody. Therefore, when they signed the agent's office copy they could not assign any portion of their salaries to the managers.

Mr. BEN TILLETT recommended the meeting to leave open every avenue to reason, conciliation, and settlement, so that no complaint could be afterwards levelled against them. The artists had been so long associated with the organised Labour movement that he would advise any manager to be very careful before he took drastic steps in the treatment of the most humble artist they had in their ranks.

The CHAIRMAN said that they had given the agents until twelve o'clock that day to accept their office copy, and those agents who had agreed before noon to accept it would be entitled to the 10 per cent. commission. Mr. Harry Day had been intimidated by some of the managers and the agents, and it was said that they had captured him again. But he (the Chairman) cared nought for that. They were better without him.

The following agency people had accepted the Federation commission note:—Messrs. Tom Pacey, Jack Lotto, Fred Neiman, Papa Brown, Will Dalton, Jess Verno, Henri Cazman, David Hyman, Alf. Auckland, Albemarle Syndicate, J. Brown and Co., Fred Durham, Frank Lynne, E. K. Smith (Advanced Vaudeville Bureau), Alf. Selwyn, George Pearson, Tom Gannon's Agency, Edwin W. Smith, Leslie's Variety Agency, Chevalier Cliquot, Fred Darrell and Co., Northern Counties Variety Agency, Arthur Hample, Dietrich's Agency, J. Tysoe Smith, Sam Hart, Alfred Saker, and Sam Bury. The great ones among the agents had not come in, although, without a single exception, they had stated that they would take a commission not to exceed ten per cent., and would accept the V.A.F. office copy.

Mr. W. H. CLEMART, speaking on the subject of suspending payment of commission to agents, said that as from Sept. 21 the artists were not to pay anything that might be owing to the agents until the latter had accepted the office copy, and such agents were now on 5 per cent. instead of 10 per cent. There was a point on which he would like to issue a warning to the managers. If the latter were going to interfere with their trouble with the agents, the artists would regard the managers as fighting against them. If for that purpose the managers stopped the commission out of the artist's salary, then the Federation would reopen the question as to whether the managers had any right to cut up the commission with the agents. The artists would then insist upon the commission being paid to the agents only, and the agents would probably then be glad enough to accept 5 per cent. The manager to whom reference had been made as having interfered in the struggle between the artists and the agents was Mr. Oswald Stoll. That, however, was only a rumour, and he could scarcely believe that Mr. Stoll would be so foolish. But if Mr. Stoll stated officially on the following night that he would back up the agents, he (Mr. Clemart) would be the first one to say "strike" the Stoll tour on Monday evening. A new Federation office copy was in the hands of the printers, which limited the commission to 5 per cent. and deleted the clause as to the manager having the right to deduct the commission. The artists would employ that in the case of agents who had refused to agree to the Federation's terms, and the 10 per cent. office copy could be used for the agents who had consented to accept the V.A.F. form.

Mr. WAL PINK read some of the correspondence from the Agents' Association to its members advising the latter to request managers and proprietors to deduct commission from salaries. The executive of the Federation had given instructions to their solicitor to write to the proprietors and managers stating that no commission must be stopped from the artists' salaries, or the managers would be sued for the amounts. The agents had also drawn up a commission note which provided that in the event of any engagements procured by the agent not being fulfilled, the commission was, notwithstanding, to be payable, illness alone excepted. He thought that that alone should make the artists all stand together.

Mr. JOE ELVIN expressed the opinion that the artists were the masters of the situation, and the agents were the servants, and whatever the artists ordered the agents had got to do. He felt sure that the executive committee would look after the interests of the whole body of artists, and that the artists would support the committee.

Mr. EUGENE STRATTON, Mr. WILKIE BARD, Mr. R. A. ROBERTS, and Mr. FRED. RUSSELL also spoke on the same subject.

Mr. R. G. KNOWLES then proposed the resolution before the meeting, as follows:—

"That in the case of all agents who have not accepted the form of commission note issued by the Federation, the commission be forthwith reduced to 5 per cent., and the clause authorising the managers to deduct the commission for the agents be deleted."

Mr. BRANSBY WILLIAMS, in seconding, said that he hoped that what had been said as to the action of a certain manager was nothing more than a rumour.

The resolution was then put to the meeting, and carried unanimously, amid great enthusiasm.

Miss VICTORIA MONKS proposed, and Miss LAMBERT (of Terry and Lambert) seconded, the following motion:—"That this meeting expresses its confidence in the Executive Committee in its action with regard to the agents, and pledges the members of the Federation to support to the uttermost any action the Executive may deem it necessary to take."

This was also carried unanimously.

A third resolution, proposed by Mr. W. H. CLEMART, and seconded by Mr. R. G. KNOWLES, read:—"That, if by Friday, October 2, next, at twelve noon, any agent has not accepted the amended commission note, he shall not be allowed to come to terms with the V.A.F. unless he consents in writing to the abolition of the re-engagement clause in past as well as in future contracts." Carried unanimously.

During the meeting letters and telegrams were received from sixty-six meetings throughout the country, expressing confidence in the Executive, and wishing success.

MR. ROWLAND HILL has produced an original Dame song from the pen of Tom B. Newsome, entitled "Dear John; or my week-end husband." This will be a winner for pantomime dames.

AT the Canterbury Miss Madge Temple is scoring a great success with "Esau, take me on the see-saw" and the popular "Pansy," both of which are taken up with great vigour by the audience.

V.A.F. AND THE AGENTS.

In our issue of the 19th inst. we printed the two resolutions passed by the V.A.F. at their meeting on the 18th and the Model Office Copy of Commission Note. Later in the same afternoon the following letter was despatched to every member of the Federation:—

Dear Sir,—The agents are trying to obtain the assistance of the managers in their fight, and have instructed them to deduct commission from artists to-night and onwards. The Committe instruct you most emphatically to object to this proceeding, except in cases where it is distinctly written in the confirmation received by you from the management. We suggest concerted action here—no individual protesting, but the protest of the whole company.—Yours faithfully,

MONTE BAYLY,
General Secretary.

On Friday, the 18th, the variety agents held a well-attended meeting at the Queen's Hotel, Leicester-square, when the letter from the V.A.F., printed in our Variety Gossip columns of the 19th, was under consideration. The meeting was private, and no communication was made to the Press.

Another meeting of agents was held at the same place on Tuesday to consider the V.A.F.'s ultimatum, but no decision was communicated to the Press. On Wednesday the V.A.F. announced in the papers that a letter had been received by the Executive of the V.A.F. at their meeting on Tuesday from Mr. Harry Day, the well-known agent, agreeing to accept the Model Office Copy of Commission Note.

The following resolution of the Executive of the V.A.F. was adopted at their meeting on Tuesday:

That all agents who intimate to the head office of the Federation in writing their acceptance of the Federation Office Copy before 12 o'clock noon on Friday, September 25, will be entitled to the conditions contained therein, notwithstanding any action the Executive Committee may deem it advisable to take in the case of agents who have not so complied at that time.

The following letter from the Agents' Association was sent to the Federation on Tuesday:—

Dear Sir,—At the meeting of agents this day, which was very largely attended, it was unanimously resolved that the Executive Committee of the V.A.F. be asked to receive a small deputation to consider the matters in dispute, with a view to a pacific solution.

I shall, therefore, be glad to be informed if your Executive Committee are agreeable to meet this deputation, and, if so, will you kindly suggest a date and hour for the meeting.—Yours truly,

SYDNEY M. HYMAN,
Secretary (pro tem.).

General Secretary, Variety Artists' Federation, September 22.

In reply to this communication the following reply was sent on behalf of the V.A.F. Executive:

Dear Sir,—Having received at your hands, on two prior occasions, an insult, we do not purpose courting another; therefore we cannot receive your deputation.

If, however, your members should agree to accept our terms, the offer is still open until noon on Friday next, 25th inst.—Yours faithfully,

MONTE BAYLY,
General Secretary.

September 23, 1908.
Sydney Hyman, Esq.,
Secretary (pro tem.), Agents' Association,
29, Leicester-square, W.C.

Late on Wednesday evening a communication was received from Mr. Sydney Hyman, on behalf of certain of the agents, inviting the Federation Committee to agree to submit the settlement of the present dispute in respect to the re-engagement clause of the "office copy" "to the arbitration of some independent person" The Federation considers that this point has already been covered by the vote of a general meeting and ballot of the members, which resulted in an instruction to the Executive Committee to accept nothing less than the total abolition of the re-engagement clause. A letter has therefore been forwarded to Mr. Hyman rejecting the suggestion of arbitration in any shape or form.

THE dispute reached a crisis on Thursday, when at a large and influential gathering of agents at the Queen's Hotel, Leicester-square, it was proposed by Mr. Richard Warner and seconded by Mr. Tom Shaw:—

This resolution was carried unanimously and signed by the following gentlemen, being all the agents who attended the meeting:—Tom Shaw, Harry Goodson, J. Laurie Graydon, William Edelsten, George Barclay, Leo Fritz, Leon Zeitlin, Tom Holmes, Reeves' Agency, Geo. Aytoun, Harry Bawn, Geo. Foster, p.p. William Morris (Paul Murray), H. W. Wieland, Tom Claxton, Fred Higham, Ernest Cadle, Capt. Claremont (for Clarefield's Agency), David Bliss, Jack Goodson, H. B. Marinelli, Ltd. (E. Wollheim), Hartley Milburn, Walter Bentley, David Cohen, Felice Napoli, Geo. H. Brooks, Carl F. Hooper, Allan Fitzroy Maclean, George Peel, Fred Neiman, p.p. Ashton and Mitchell, Ltd. (W. S. Adacker), P. Anger, Ernest de Vere, Arthur Day, Hugh J. Didcott, Ben Nathan (Day's Agency), Will Sley, Harry Day (pp. H. G.), Emanuel Warner, J. W. Johnson, Ernest Edelsten, Fortune and Granville, p.p. Paul Schultze (Bert Howell), Sherek and Braff, John Halpin, H. Hart, Jack Somers, C. G. Cautley, Richard Warner, G. Bauer, Will Oliver, Sidney M. Hyman.

At a meeting held on Sunday evening of the Water-Rats, a proposal was considered for establishing an official central agency, the object of which would be to arrange engagements for all artists who were members of the Water-Rats or the Variety Artists' Federation. The opinions expressed were that with a limited charge of 2½ per cent. for booking engagements, the agency would not merely be self-supporting, but it would be possible to show a very fair margin of profit on the business which would be negotiated. A special meeting of the Water-Rats is called for Sunday next, when the matter will be further gone into.

As various inaccuracies and misstatements have crept into the columns of the daily Press concerning Mr. Harry Day and his attitude towards the Federation, we insert the following letter to us on the matter from Mr. Day:—

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—A statement appeared in the Daily Telegraph of the 24th inst. to the effect that I had agreed to accept the office copy issued by the Variety Artists' Federation.

It is perfectly true that I told the secretary of the Federation over the telephone that I would adopt it. I did so in the interests of peace, and with a sincere endeavour to terminate a dispute that can only bear disastrous results for the artists themselves.

Since then, it is with sincere regret I read in the official organ of the Federation—the Performer—the aspersions cast upon the agents as a body, and the threats of annihilation uttered by the Executive Committee of the Federation if the agents do not accede to their unjust demands; also the notice they have issued to all artists of the Federation, not to pay any commission (justly owing) until the agents agree to their terms.

The agents asked that the matter in dispute should be referred to arbitration; a request that has been indignantly refused by the Federation.

Under these circumstances, the agents have no alternative but to reject the office copy put before them for adoption, and any offer I made to adopt such copy I withdraw, and shall rely, together with my brother agents, on those artists we have served faithfully and well, regarding the matter in a fair spirit, and allowing the matter in dispute to be referred to an impartial arbitrator.

THE Committee of the Music Hall Home desires to thank Mr. Rosslyn Stuart, Burton House, Brixton-road, for box collection of 13s. 6d.; also for present of parcel of useful men's clothes from Ernest Cadle, of Cadle's Agency, 105, Strand. Thanks are also due to Bob Graham, Electric-avenue, Brixton, who has taken a box for the M. H. Home. The next committee meeting will be held at the Palace, Camberwell, on Thursday next at 12 noon.

AT the 577th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A., held at the offices on Wednesday, there were present Messrs. Fred Herbert (in the chair), Harold Finden, Sid Bandon, Arthur Gallimore, Billy Brown, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Mr. Thos. T. Hall, of the Blue Cow Hotel, Grantham, was appointed agent in that town. The weekly statement, showing forty-nine new members and a cash total of £52 15s. 6d., was passed.

THE committee of the Music Hall Home desires to thank Mr. Ernest Cadle, of Cadle's Agency, for a parcel of useful men's clothes, also Mr. E. H. Giles for collection of £2 0s. 6d. at the laying of the foundation stone of the New Empire, Edmonton. Messrs. Leon Bassett, W. S. Bassett, and G. P. R. Burgess have been added to the list of vice-presidents of the charity, and Messrs. E. C. Webb and H. Thacker have been elected on the committee. The next committee meeting will be held at the Palace, Camberwell, on Thursday next, at 12 noon.

MISS MELINDA MAY, secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., tenders her thanks to Miss Lil Hawthorne for her kind gift of a guinea; also Dr. Robertson, 10s.; Mrs. Herbert, for children's velvet dresses; and Mrs. Ernest Collins for useful parcel of ladies' clothing. Miss May would be grateful for gentlemen's as well as ladies' wearing apparel. Through making a presentable appearance many of the unemployed have been able to obtain engagements. Friends of the charity are heartily welcomed to the receptions held every Wednesday, 3 to 5 o'clock.

MANY people are inquiring about Billie Bint and his concerts at the old St. James's Hall. The irrepressible Billie, who used to tell Cockneys that his "father was a marquis," has been going extra strong for eight weeks on the Broadhead tour. He would be pleased to hear from any old friends. A letter will always find him, c/o The Era.

THE Empire Theatre made elaborate arrangements for a complete Bioscope record of the great "four-inch" motor race in the Isle of Man on Thursday. Operators were placed throughout the twenty-one sections of the thirty-eight mile course, and at all points where difficulties were likely to ensue.

MESSRS. WITMARK have in the press a smart humorous song, written and composed by Dave Reed, and entitled "Everybody knows it's there." Mr. Charles Warren has had a number of additional verses written by Edgar Bateman.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT'S song, "Sue, Sue, Sue," from the pens of Messrs. Lester Barrett and Hermann E. Darewski, jun., shows excellent indications of becoming one of the songs of the year, as does Mr. R. G. Knowles' new furore "£ s. d.," by Charles Wilmott and Hermann E. Darewski.

ANGLING from the Palace Pier at Brighton last Saturday, Mr. Bedford, of the Hippodrome orchestra, had his bait taken by a 10lb. octopus. With the help of walking sticks and a landing-net the creature, fighting hard with beak and tentacles, was carried to the Aquarium, where is has since attracted numberless visitors, it having been placed in one of the tanks.

A PARTICULAR attraction in the way of new turns at the Tivoli on Monday is Miss Madge Temple, who makes a reappearance in a whole budget of new songs by Hermann E. Darewski, jun. Another new turn is W. W. Jacobs and Charles Rock's popular sketch The Ghost of Jerry Bundler.

MESSRS. JOHN P. HARRINGTON AND ORLANDO POWELL have this week supplied Miss Lily Langtry ith an entirely new and original character comedy number, entitled "I couldn't keep still for laughing," which should certainly (if titles go for anything) suit this volatile artist down to the ground. The same author and composer's big song, "Oh, the Exhibition!" sung by the same artist, still continues to be the most popular in Miss Langtry's present répertoire at the suburban Stoll halls.

THE success of Messrs. Harrington and Powell's "Directoire" song, specially written for Miss Marie Lloyd, has been speedily duplicated by the same popular writers' "I can't make my eyes be good," and the fair Marie has commissioned the "old firm" to supply her with yet another couple of comedy numbers, specially written to suit her inimitable style, which may be tentatively entitled "If you want to marry a ——" and "I'll live in hopes." Both of these new songs will be exploited at Miss Lloyd's West End engagements at an early date.

"RATS" AND THE LANE DRAMA.

In connection with the production at Drury-lane of The Marriages of Mayfair, objection is taken quite naturally by music hall artists to the scene in the play in which a party of variety actors and actresses appear at a shooting party and behave, at the open-air luncheon, in a way that impugns the character of the variety profession. It is not a question of hypersensitiveness on the part of the profession, as a direct reference is made to the Water Rats, and the personal nature of the imputation is also emphasised by the singing of the Rats' anthem. As a consequence, the following correspondence has passed between Mr. W. H. Clemart, King of the Grand Order of Water Rats, Mr. Joe O'Gorman, a past King Rat, and president of the executive committee of the Variety Artists' Federation, and Mr. Arthur Collins, manager of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane:—

Monday Morning.

Dear Mr. Collins,—We understand that in your production of Marriages of Mayfair it is intended to introduce a scene which is calculated to cast discredit on the Grand Order of Water Rats, and I am empowered by the Order to protest very strongly, and request that all references to our Society be deleted, and in particular our anthem, which is our property.—Yours, &c.,

W. H. CLEMART, King Rat.

On the same day a telegram was sent by Mr. Collins as follows:—

Clemart, Vaudeville Club, London.—Yours received. No time to write. There is nothing in Marriages of Mayfair which can reasonably give the smallest offence to any of my music-hall friends. I should never permit it, and my authors do not wish it.

ARTHUR COLLINS.

At midnight the following letter was sent by Mr. Clemart:—

Dear Mr. Collins,—I pointed out to you in my last letter that our anthem was our personal property, and must not be used in your production. Two of our officers were present this evening, and have reported that the manner in which you have allowed it to be introduced is an insult to this Order. I am now to give you notice that unless it is deleted to-morrow evening legal proceedings will be taken against you.

W. H. CLEMART, King Rat.

With reference to the foregoing it was decided at Tuesday afternoon's meeting of the Executive Committee of the Variety Artists' Federation to forward the following letter to Mr. Arthur Collins:—

Sir,—According to the reports we have received from our members who were present last evening at the first performance of Marriages of Mayfair, we understand you have permitted a scene which holds up to ridicule and contempt the profession which this Federation has the honour to represent. We now give you notice that it will be to the interest of your shareholders and of the capital sunk in the production if you expunge without the slightest delay such objectionable matter.—Yours, &c.,

JOE O'GORMAN (Chairman).

Mr. W. H. Clemart, "King Rat," on Tuesday received the following letter from Mr. Arthur Collins:—

Dear Mr. Clemart,—In reply to your letter of the 21st inst., I beg to say that, since you take exception to what you call the Water Rats' Anthem in the Marriages of Mayfair, I should be glad to know when it was published and copyrighted.

Would you be good enough to tell me whether we may not sing "Please to remember the fifth of November" without the permission of Guy Fawkes, or the Eton boat song without the permission of the College authorities, or "Dulce Domum" without the sanction of the authorities of Winchester School?

So far as I am personally concerned, I don't wish to offend the susceptibilities of the Water Rats or any other well-meaning institution, but I must refer you to the authors of the play, with whom I am under contract which I cannot break.—Yours, &c.,

ARTHUR COLLINS.

Mr. W. H. Clemart and Mr. Joe O'Gorman, with Mr. Fred Russell, the ventriloquist, and Little Tich, were all at the Eccentric Club on Tuesday, when Mr. Arthur Collins came in, and they had a little informal round-table conference. They were able to show Mr. Collins that they regarded the matter more seriously, and attached more importance to it than he had supposed, and they also reminded him how such well-known members of the Order of "Water-Rats" as Mr. Dan Leno, Mr. Harry Randall, Mr. Neil Kenyon, and others had helped Drury Lane. Mr. Collins, recognising that they were treating the matter very seriously, assured them that he had no desire whatever to wound their susceptibilities, and said he would with pleasure delete the reference to the "Water-Rats" and the anthem.

They also pointed out to him, on behalf of the music-hall profession generally, that the particular scene in the drama depicted a state of affairs that might have existed, if at all, five-and-twenty years ago, and that nowadays music-hall artists behaved themselves just as well as any other body of persons. Mr. Collins said he thought they were too sensitive, and pointed out that all classes of people were occasionally held up in the drama to a little mild ridicule, and although on the general question he was not able to make anything like so definite a promise as he gave with regard to the "Water-Rats," he said he would do all that was possible, without jeopardising the story, not to show the members of the music-hall profession in an undesirable light.

PORTSMOUTH HIPPODROME LICENCE.

A special meeting of the Watch Committee of the Portsmouth Town Council on Tuesday morning had before them an important application from Mr. George Harris, the resident manager of the Hippodrome for a licence authorising the performance of stage plays at that place of amusement.

Mr. G. H. King (instructed by Mr. Walter de Frece, managing-director of the Hippodrome, Ltd.) appeared in support of the application; and Mr. E. Hobbs opposed the licence in the interests of licence-holders in the vicinity, and Mr. Cromwell Prior opposed on behalf of the Citizens' Union. Mr. H. T. Goddard, the President of the Portsmouth and District Free Church Council, joined the opposition in the interests of that body.

Mr. King pointed out that the Hippodrome, Ltd., in May, 1907, applied to the magistrates for a music, singing, and dancing licence, which was granted with the restriction imposed that no intoxicating liquors should be sold on the premises. In October it was necessary for the company to apply for a renewal, which was granted, with the same restriction that they were not to sell intoxicating liquors on the premises. The directors after mature consideration, decided to apply for a dramatic licence, with a view to having down London companies for flying matinées, and so that at Christmas, when it was most difficult to get good high-class musical turns, they might run a pantomime. That, at present, was their only reason for the application. They, of course, knew that the licence carried with it the authority to sell liquor, but he (Mr. King) had been instructed to say that no intoxicating liquor should be sold.

In view of this statement, the opposition was withdrawn, and the committee, after visiting the building and considering the application in private, announced that they had agreed to recommend that the licence be granted, with the condition that no excisеable liquors be sold or consumed on the premises, and also that the licensee give an undertaking not to make an application for an excise licence.

MR. FRED MILLER'S TESTIMONIAL.

The excellent qualities of Mr. Fred Miller, as a man, as a sportsman, and as a manager, are generally recognised by all branches of the profession, and no artist or proprietor who has ever come into contact with him has failed to recognise his sterling honesty of purpose, or to be impressed by his unobtrusive courtesy and consideration to everyone working with him. For fifteen years Mr. Miller has been associated with the halls, and though the sphere of his activity for most of that time has been restricted to the South and East of London, his connection with the Syndicate has brought him much popularity up West. Several of his friends, taking into consideration his long and honourable career, feel that the present time is very opportune for presenting him with a testimonial, which it is intended shall take the shape of a purse of gold. Mr. W. H. Armstrong, the well-known professional solicitor, of 1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, is interesting himself in the project, and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, manager of The Era, who has consented to become the hon. treasurer of the fund, will be pleased to receive subscriptions. A strong and influential committee is being formed.

It was at Lechlade, Gloucestershire, that Mr. Fred Miller first saw the light. His father, an influential grazing farmer, was an enthusiastic rider to hounds, and from the age of twelve young Fred followed his father in the field, and in many an eventful run was in the first flight. At the age of seventeen he accepted an offer from an uncle in the cattle trade, and settled down with him at Wormholt Farm, Shepherd's Bush, where he gained considerable experience and became a good business man. The death of his uncle brought about a change in his fortunes, and he accepted a situation as travelling secretary with Captain Macdonald. Again his employer died, and he had to try fresh fields and pastures new. Through the instrumentality of the late Mr. Harry Lundy, distantly related to him through marriage, Mr. Miller was introduced to Mr. George Adney Payne, who gave him the position of secretary to Mr. Arthur Tressidder, then manager of the Paragon. On Mr. Tressidder's departure on a voyage in search of health Mr. Miller was transferred to Mr. Will Lennon, the successor of Mr. Tressidder at the Paragon. At his death Mr. G. A. Payne chose Mr. Miller for the managership of the house in the Mile End-road, and on the resignation of Mr. Fred Holden of his position at the Canterbury Mr. Miller was installed as manager of both the Canterbury and the Paragon.

The jubilee of the Canterbury in November, 1902, when Charles Morton paid his last visit to a house that was indelibly associated with his career, owed its interest and its success to the organising powers of Mr. Miller, who placed before the patrons of the historic house a novel realisation of the present and past in music-hall entertainment. The portraits of favourites of the 'sixties, the 'seventies, and the 'eighties were thrown upon a screen, and many of the famous old songs were sung by new favourites. It was a great night. Though Mr. Miller has severed his connection with the Canterbury, it is to be hoped that he will be placed in a position commensurate with his abilities and experience at another hall. His many friends anticipate that it will be in London.

Mr. Kendall Robinson, a staunch friend of Mr. Fred Miller, in sending a contribution to this Fund, testifies as follows:—"I have much pleasure in enclosing cheque for one guinea for the Miller Testimonial. I have known Mr. Miller for many years. Uniformly warm-hearted and open-handed, his kindnesses and 'good turns' to large numbers of those who were brought in contact with him at the Paragon and Canterbury can only have been limited by his physical capacity for doing them."

A PICKPOCKET was cleverly captured at a Montmartre music hall on Monday evening. Becoming suspicious of the movements of a man in the audience, the manager decided to have him arrested, and this was accomplished in the following ingenious fashion. A palmist being sent for and instructed what to do, the manager announced that the next item on the programme would be an extra turn by a fortune-teller. The first person called on the stage from among the audience was the suspected thief. The palmist said: "I see by the lines on your hand that you are an expert pickpocket, and have been operating in this hall. I am therefore obliged to give you in charge." The man protested energetically, but the palmist, addressing the spectators, said: "Will those whose watch, purse, or pocketbook is missing kindly stand up?" One after another a dozen persons rose, declaring that they had been robbed. It was then impossible for the pickpocket to deny his guilt, and he was immediately handed over to the police.

"THE LITTLE NEW ZEALANDER."

This is the title adopted by Miss Henriquette Maude, who, after much wandering in America and the Australian Commonwealth, has established herself in the Motherland as a variety artist. She started from her home in the spring of 1904, and, after booking a passage to Sydney, she was left with only £2 to face the world alone. She has since travelled over 50,000 miles, 14,000 of them on foot. From Sydney the intrepid girl proceeded to Melbourne, where she arrived just at the time of a great racing scandal. This was caused by the death of a jockey while riding in the Melbourne Cup race. He was left uncared for on the course while his horse was attended to. Miss Maude took the incident up, and recited at various halls in the town on the jockey's behalf, with the result that a number of societies were formed for the protection of the Australian boys.

Among other regions the young traveller has visited are Honolulu, Vancouver, Canada, and the United States. At Portland, Oregon, she arrived when the great American Fair was being held, and there arranged a side show in a tent and gave dramatic recitals. She then went to San Francisco, and entered a theatrical competition, securing, out of five hundred competitors, the first prize—a gold medal—which was presented to her by President Roosevelt.

This retrospect of her adventures is affording considerable interest to audiences at the Euston this week, where Miss Maude, dressed in the picturesque costume of the Texan cowboy, adds to the excellence of her highly original entertainment by reciting Mr. Frank Desprez's cleverly-written and thrilling poem "Lasca," for which an extended popularity is assured. Miss Maude's receptions are particularly gratifying, and her remarkable personality should speed her in the good graces of Londoners, who appreciate to the full grit, pluck, and initiative.

The star comedian of the programme is Little Tich, whose mirthful methods and quaint dancing make him an immense favourite—a fact to be discovered in the packed houses during the week. Lift 'Ems, Limited, Mr. Chris Davis's latest concoction, has been recently noticed in these columns. As a vehicle for the uproarious fun and clever antics of the Brothers Luck it is quite ingenious, and we anticipate for it a most successful career. It gains in briskness and sparkle with every performance, and evokes the heartiest laughter. A clever and smartly-written comedietta is that presented by Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene. It is entitled My Lady's Chamber. An adventuress of the "upper suckles" has secured a compromising letter of a highly-placed Lothario, and threatens blackmail. By obtaining admission to her boudoir and locking the door upon her, he brings my lady not only to reason, but compels her to write him a love-letter. The dialogue is particularly smart, and there is not a dull moment in the playlet, which is admirably acted. Mr. Bert Danson, comedian, is advancing rapidly, and has already made himself a hot favourite with the Eustonians, who appreciate his patter to the full. Miss Daisy Jerome's introduction of a reference to the Druce case dragged into her song "A little pat of butter on the floor" sounds just a little antiquated, but her reference to Joe Chamberlain in the same number brings down the house. Miss Ethel Newman shows the power and charm of a practised and gifted comedienne in her monologue; Wm. Lee and Helen Bentley add to the strength of the bill by their acting of the little sketch, The King's Counsel; the Jees present with their customary success their Musical Smithy sketch; and nothing more choice in the way of musical accomplishment could be found than the turn of Roma and Romani, whose act creates a furore. Mr. Will Driscoll, swell comedian, opens the programme, of which an attractive item is Ruffell's Bioscope, with a most interesting series of films. Mr. Fred M'Avoy is the courteous and genial manager here.

"A SCOTTISH EXILE'S DREAM."

The comic characteristics of the Scotsman have been freely presented of late on the variety stage, and it has been left for Mr. John Donald, a talented representative of the race, to depict his sentimental side. He does so very effectively in his song-scena A Scottish Exile's Dream, which is an item of the programme at the Camberwell Palace this week. The scene represents the interiod of a barely-furnished apartment. Seated at a table is a brawny Scot in tartan and plaid, who laments his separation from his native land, and, to drown his cares, had taken part in a jolly dinner-party the night before. Over the fireplace in an illuminated frame is a facsimile of the bill of fare, in which a prominent part is played by "a wee drap o' Scotch," that item occupying no less than three places on the menu. An honoured position is also given to the "haggis," which is alluded to as "king of the pudding race."

The Scotsman sinks to slumber, when upon the screen there appears a portrait of Bobbie Burns, to which the exile pays tribute, also making homage to a picture of Scott. He recalls, in well-spoken rhyme, the songs of his native land, and the natural outcome is the rendering of a specimen which takes the form of "Mary of Argyle," sung with admirable expression. "John Anderson, my Jo," "The moon is on the lake," and "The bonnie banks of Loch Lomond" follow in pleasing sequence, each air being introduced by an effective recitation, while a fitting finale is reached in "Auld lang syne." Mr. Donald makes a commanding appearance in his picturesque array, and renders his songs with much feeling. He has a fine baritone voice, which tells effectively throughout, and rings clear as a bell in some high notes. His success on the occasion of our visit was complete.

WILL OLIVER'S MARRIAGE.

The marriage by special licence of Will Oliver to Mrs. K. Theurer took place on Saturday last at the Registrar's office, Brixton-road, immediately opposite Spot Lodge. Although the announcement was not made in any journal until it appeared in The Era on the day fixed for the ceremony, there was a tremendous crowd of professional and private friends waiting to give the happy couple a hearty greeting as they walked from the office to their carriage in waiting. Several of the boys held the doors, and the happy couple were kept waiting until "My father's face" and "He's a jolly good fellow" had been sung. The marriage was witnessed by Tom Holmes (who came from Dundee), Miss Brown (the bride's aunt), Roma and Romani, and Mrs. and Miss Godwin, personal friends of both the contracting parties. Before leaving, Will and his bride paid a visit to Ye Old White Horse, where Mr. and Mrs. Bogie Green had placed their large room at their disposal for a display of the presents. The room was crowded. The cake was cut, and congratulations on all sides were to be heard. In a neat speech Tom Holmes, as Will's partner for nearly twenty years, said: "His business capabilities you all know. For myself, I say he is one of the most honest and straightforward men alive." The speaker emphasised the fact that Will's generosity was well known to all, but he assured them they heard of but very few of his countless acts of kindness. He had known the bride quite a long time. She was a smart business woman. She had been a good wife and was a good mother. She had been a pal to Will, and he felt sure she would make him an excellent wife."

As the happy couple left for Victoria there was a great send-off, and their carriages were followed by several taxi's full of well-wishers to give them a parting cheer and to smother them with confetti. On their arrival at Brighton they proceeded to the York Hotel. Writing from there, Will, in a letter to us, says: "We have had a royal time. Harry Preston, the boss here, has done us well. We shall be home before your paper appears. I ask you to thank everybody who so kindly remembered us for their handsome presents." The presents included the following:—

T. E. Dunville, silver tantalus; Roma and Romani, silver cake dish; the Walcotts and Mrs. Easton, silver tea and coffee service; Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, table cloths and serviettes; Miss Brown, silver brushes, mirror, and jewel stand; the little Theurers, silver button and glove hook and shoe horn; Mr. and Mrs. McIvor, case of cutlery and silver cruet; Carrie Joy and Sid Gurling, salad bowl; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Couch, gong; Mrs. Green, handsome dressing-gown; Miss Mayme Cannon, sovereign mounted for bangle; Miss Amy Marsden and Harry Wright, silver chain for keys, with coins and silver stamp-case; Miss Carrie Laurie, handsome bedspread, &c.; Miss Crissie Cross, silver purse; Miss Wilcox and Miss

MR. AND MRS. WILL OLIVER.

Stephens, specimen glasses; Mr. and Mrs. Shirley (Shirley and Ransome), silver and pearl fish knives; Miss May Loftus, silver salt cellars; Mr. and Mrs. Delome, case of fish, poultry and joint carvers, and silver knife-rests; Miss Sadie Simpson and Mrs. Simpson, gold-mounted umbrella; Miss Maude Mortimer, gold and turquoise bangle and silver tankard; Miss Selina Seaforth, gold brooch; Miss Millie Tempest, set of handsome antique jugs; Sister Simms, silver letter-weights; Tommy (White Horse), cucumber dish; Mrs. Fred Karno, embroidered tray cloth; Miss Eva Lester, silk blouse and Australian bangle; Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin, biscuit box; Pat Rafferty, diamond ring; Ted E. Box, silver rose bowl; Kitts and Windrum, silver toast-rack; Mr. George Sinclair, set of three oak trays, mounted; Mrs. Pattison (Twickenham), pair of handsome bronze figures; Mr. Gus Healey, Wedgwood china jug; Miss Ray Maskell, pair of bronze photo frames; Rosa and Kitty Simms, golliwog; bridegroom to bride gold watch and chain and cheque; bride to bridegroom, dressing-case.

The following list of telegrams sent to Spot Lodge is an eloquent proof of the popularity of bride and bridegroom:—

"THE LITTLE CAPTAIN."

Comedy-Dramatic Sketch, revived at the Bedford, Monday, Sept. 21.

Captain Kettle .....MR. LEONARD MORTIMER
Lord Esmond Slade .....MR. E. S. HOWARD
Randall Vyner .....MR. WALNER GREGORY
General Caranger.....MR. HAL BROUGH
Donna Inez Thelestina .....MISS EDITH LEWIS
Lady Edna .....MISS IDA CLIFFORD

Mr. Leonard Mortimer produced this sketch on Monday last and scored an instantaneous success with it. The story is woven round that well-known hero in fiction, Captain Kettle, and we see the gallant Captain in his most energetic mood, and getting out of tight corners with a breezy manner which is positively invigorating. Randall Vyner, who has eloped with Lord Slade's daughter, Lady Edna, is plotting with Donna Inez and General Caranger, President of a Chilian State, and they are endeavouring to get arms into the country. They meet with Kettle in the Hotel Monica, where they endeavour to get him to sail Lord Slade's yacht for them. They have managed, unawares to the owner, to get the arms on to the yacht. Kettle suspects treachery and refuses, and warns Lady Edna against Vyner, in time to prevent their marriage. The last scene is on the yacht, and it is off the Chilian coast. The President and Vyner come on the yacht. Vyner is disguised as an officer, and they pretend they have come to give an official welcome to Lord Slade, who is a well-known diplomatist. Kettle sees through their game, and acts accordingly, and summons a British gunboat he knows is at hand. Vyner discloses his identity, and calls on the yacht owner to deliver up the vessel and all its contents, threatening to shoot all on board unless it is done. But the British sailors arrive just in time, and help Kettle to finish the work he had begun of polishing off Vyner and his gang. It is a very briskly played sketch, and worked up to a high pitch of excitement. Mr. Mortimer is excellent as Kettle, whom he depicts capitally; Mr. Walner Gregory gives a finished rendering of Vyner, and Mr. Hal Brough was particularly good as the General. Miss Edith Lewis plays Donna Inez with skill, and Miss Ida Clifford is good as Lady Edna. The yacht scene is a very fine set indeed.

"COWARD OR HERO."

General Ralph Illington ..MR. CHARLES WHITLEY
Lieut. Bertram Illington
MR. CAMERON MATTHEWS
Capt. Despard Bastin ....MR. ARTHUR STRATTON
Lieut. Hugh Copley .....MR. R. ARTHUR
Sergt. Macleod .....MR. C. HENNESSY
Katie .....MISS B. DOYLE

Well written, admirably acted, and effectively mounted, this thrilling episode of the Civil War of 1643 is a decided acquisition to the variety stage. The stirring incidents of the story begin at an old English baronial hall, where a regiment of Royalists are quartered under the command of General Ralph Illington, whose only son, Bertram, is a lieutenant in the same regiment. The troopers are carousing and toasting the health of their fair hostess, sweet Mistress Katie, when Captain Despard Bastin and Lieut. Hugh Copley enter discussing the cowardice of the General's son. The Captain insults Katie, and young Illington, learning the cause of her distress, insists on the Captain apologising. Bastin only laughs at the youngster, but an encounter takes place, and Bertram makes his opponent retract. The Captain swears to be revenged, and to demonstrate to Lieut. Copley the cowardice of Illington discharges a pistol. This so startles Illington that Katie questions him, and he tells her that his mother, terrified by a violent thunderstorm, died in giving him birth. Ever since, when he hears a sudden loud noise, he has to rush away and hide, and he prays that the first shot in the forthcoming battle will rid him of this awful responsibility. News is brought of the approach of the Roundheads, and the General calls his son to take his place at the head of his troop. Captain Bastin and Lieutenant Copley plot to sell some despatches to Cromwell. At this moment the din of battle is heard, and young Illington comes flying in in terror, and tells Katie he is for ever disgraced. She shows him the despatches, and tells him he must defend them. Lieut. Copley returns with three of his men to get the documents, but is mortally wounded by Illington, who also puts the three troopers to flight. The General returns full of bitter feelings against his son, and threatens to have him shot as a coward; but Katie declares that having heard the despatches were in danger Illington had returned for them, and not from motives of cowardice. Katie produces the Captain's letter to Cromwell, and the General recognises the Captain's signature, and orders him to be shot. Illington is found to be severely wounded, and as he dies in his sweetheart's arms she assures him that he has proved that he is not a coward, but a hero.

As Katie Miss B. Doyle acted with sweetness and womanly sympathy; Mr. Cameron Matthews assumed the rôle of Lieut. Illington artistically; as the villainous Captain Bastin Mr. Arthur Stratton played with forcefulness and sincerity; Mr. R. Arthur's Lieut. Copley was an admirable performance; and as the General Mr. Chas. Whitley was the soldier to the life. Mr. C. Hennessy as the jovial Sergeant Macleod gave full effect to the rollicking drinking song in the opening scene.

THE Eighth Annual Eisteddfod at the New Brighton Tower last Saturday attracted contestants and visitors from all sections of Wales and the North of England, and as usual was a most successful tournament of song. The prizes offered by the New Brighton Tower Company in the individual contests are larger even than those offered by the National Eisteddfod, while those for choral singing are as valuable. The contests in every department were keen.

THE season at New Brighton Tower, which closes to-day, has been the most successful of the twelve years that this place of resort has been open to the public. This was due to the increased number of attractions that have been placed in the park by the new manager, Mr. J. Calvin Brown, and also to the active work and constant publicity organised and carried out by the resident-manager, Mr. Arthur Ellis. The presence of the Cummins' Wild West and the erection of the scenic railway, and Figure 8 gravity ride, as well as other numerous amusement devices, serve not only to create an interest, but keep it sustained until the very last. An agent is now in America considering a number of new shows next season for this park, which will open at Easter time.

Barnstaple Fair.

We briefly referred to, in last Saturday's issue of The Era, Barnstaple's ancient fair. This fair still retains all its old-time ceremonial and civic display. The Mayor and Corporation open the fair according to ancient custom, and dispense hospitality to a large number of invited guests, as well as to the Corporation. Amongst the invited guests, the local member, Mr. E. J. Soares, was the principal speaker. At the conclusion of the ceremony the Mayor, Alderman A. J. Revell, accompanied by the Town Crier, the Mace Bearers, the Town Clerk, and members of the Corporation, proceeded to the various customary points in the town, and at each halting place the Town Clerk read the ancient proclamation, and declared the fair open for its three days' course.

The Pleasure Fair.

Barnstaple is another example of the better wisdom of Corporations in maintaining their valuable charter rights, and adapting the liberty of the charter to modern circumstances. This is shown in the separation of the sheep and cattle fair from the pleasure fair, with the result that the pleasure fair is a source of increasing income to the town, the receipts for tolls from sites let to exhibitions, roundabouts, &c., in 1907, reached over £206, and this year we understand that several applications for ground were refused for lack of space.

Barnstaple serves a very wide district, both as a mart for trade and as a pleasure fair. Train loads of visitors, many from considerable distances, invade the town, and the tradespeople reap a rich harvest.

The Shows and Roundabouts.

The old-established West of England firm, W. C. and S. Hancock, exhibited a large selection of their popular concerns, including the cinematograph theatre, with a fine range of up-to-date pictures and varieties, the fine set of galloping horses, and the helter-skelter tower. Messrs. Anderton and Rowland exhibited their classical theatre of animated photography and Empire of Varieties, and their fine set of motor-cars. The other shows included John Jones's electric cinematograph and variety theatre, Prince Samouda in occult mysteries, Professor Ruby with X-Ray demonstrations, C. Birch's two novelty shows, Professor Leon and Alf Wright's boxing booths, Marshall Hill's motor cars, Brewer's galloping horses, Chapman's big boats, and park swings by Messrs. Smith and Tucker.

Variety Stalls and Novelties.

These included shooting galleries, houp là circles, variety frames, coker sheets, gem swings, and, in fact, all the fun of the fair. The side shows and novelties were provided by Messrs. Rowland, Gratton, Herford, J. Jones, F. Oldridge, J. Herbert, and local caterers.

Barry, Lancashire.

The September fair attracted a considerable number of high-class concerns. These included Kemp's cinematograph theatre, Mander's menagerie, the Westwood giant children, J. Green's motor-cars, galloping horse sets by Mitchell, Makin, and East, racing birds by Holden and J. Green, steam yachts by Mitchell, bicycles by Heim, and aeroplanes by Slater, Cornwell, Makin, and Holland; Winchester ranges and shooting saloons by Cornwell, Jewell, Holland, Cottam, Starkie, and Mrs. John Cornwell; bottle batteries, variety stalls, and throwing games by Messrs. Forshaw, Whatmore, Deeks, Horton, Holland, Middlebrook, B. Horton, Starkie, Slater, Cottam, Ingham, Manders, Harrison, Clark, Redfern, and Vale; football frames by Messrs. Forshaw, Stanfield, Evans, Buckley, Cottam, Whatmore, Bullas, and Horton.

Northampton Fair.

This thriving town has many links with the glorious past, and under many charters enjoys both hiring, trading, and pleasure fairs. One of the most important is the September fair, commencing on the 19th of the month and lasting several days. This fair is visited, amongst other concerns, by Wombwell's menagerie, Fossett's circus, and the cinematograph theatres of Messrs. Thurston, W. Payne, and A. Twigdon. Shows and novelty booths include the first-class concerns of Messrs. Hastings, Powell, Houldsworth, Ball, and Hardy. The machine novelties include switchback sets by Thurston and Twigdon; galloping horses by Thurston, Shepherd, Strudwick, and Billing; racing birds by Collins and Thurston; big boats by Harris, Barnard, Lowe, and Billing.

Shooting saloons, throwing games, coker sheets, and varieties by Messrs. Harris, Shaw, Powell, Lowe, Barnard, Nilling, Essam, Wood, Houldsworth, the Harris family, Johnson, and Holmes.

A New Departure at Ludlow.

The Guild secretary is in receipt of the following letter, which we readily publish for the information of our showman readers:—

"Town Clerk's Office,
"Guildhall, Ludlow,
"Sept. 17, 1908.

"MAY PLEASURE FAIR.

"Dear Sir,—From an advertisement in The Era of Sept. 12, you will see the Corporation is throwing open to tender the standings for the shows at this fair. For some years a space at the one end of the Market Hall in Castle-square has been occupied by a large show and a roundabout, and the space at the other end of the Market Hall has been occupied by another roundabout, and a third show has occupied a space in this street. In addition to these there has been the usual swing boats, shooting galleries, photographic studios, cocoanut standings, gingerbread stalls, and such like.

"The public has, of course, a right of passage through the streets, so care has to be taken that room is left for vehicles to get through.

"The Corporation has a strict rule that no living vans be allowed in the streets, and as there is a space of ground in the town purchased for a cattle market where they can be put, there is no inconvenience over this.

"I am writing to you, as I thought perhaps, as this is a new departure for the Corporation, you might bring the matter before the persons who are interested, and if there is any further information I can give you I shall be pleased to do so.

"I am, yours truly,
"JOHN H. WILLIAMS,
"Town Clerk.

"The Secretary, The Showmen's Guild,
"C/o The Era,
"5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London."

The Guild Secretary's Reply.

Re May Pleasure Fair.

Dear Sir,—I thank you for the courtesy of your letter, which I have submitted to the Executive Committee of the Guild for observation. I am instructed to point out to the Corporation the great inconvenience of separating the living vans that are necessary for the work of the show from the actual fairground. To an extent that is scarcely understood by the general public the living-van is part of the necessary working plant of the show, and in many instances where it is not actually necessary for the building up of the concern it is of the utmost importance and value that the home of the showman shall be alongside his show. We therefore beg the Corporation not to strictly enforce their rule with regard to living-vans, but to permit, where such vans are a necessity of the exhibition, that they be allowed to serve their full purpose as part and parcel of the equipment of the show.

I am also requested to draw your attention to the fact that the fairground business is always handicapped by weather conditions, and that unless your form of tender includes the provision that a greatly reduced rent will be accepted in the event of bad weather, tendering for sites is not a fair arrangement. This Society strongly objects to the system of competitive tenders for sites, and prefers that a fixed rent should be charged that would be a reasonable toll even when weather conditions are unfavourable.

I shall, of course, bring the subject of your letter before the showmen who travel your part of the country, and again I express my warm appreciation of the courtesy you have shown in the matter.—Very faithfully yours,

The Guild Secretary.

Tendering for Sites. The Fixed Rents.

It has come to our knowledge within the past eighteen months that there has been a good deal of competition amongst lessees for corporation fairgrounds. We are given to understand that in some instances showmen have been unwise enough to suggest to corporations that they should give up their old scale of fixed tolls and throw open either the whole of the ground space or the best pitches for competition. The most glaring example of this cut-throat competition was that afforded by York November Fair last year. We were informed that none of the big shows, owing to the bad weather, took their ground rent. The loss incurred was entirely owing to the fact that rival interests had been at work, and that the corporation had been induced to throw open their best sites to competition. We wish to suggest that such competitive rivalry is not only destructive of the show business as a commercial enterprise, but that it is also destroying that wonderful bond of fellowship and mutual helpfulness which has hitherto distinguished the showman world.

We are strongly of opinion that some means should be taken during the coming winter to bring about a reconciliation of rival interests and a consolidation of the best elements in the show business so that it shall be no longer possible for corporations or private individuals to exploit the showmen for their own greed or selfish interests. It is high time that action be taken to safeguard the best interests of the fairground business when small towns like Ludlow begin to adopt the vicious system of competitive tendering.

Midland Notes.

Sedgwick's menagerie has paid a most successful visit to Redditch; from there the show went to Alcester and joined forces with Strickland's motor-cars and steam galloping horses, to the great delight of the people of the ancient town. At Astwood Bank the Star Animated Picture and Variety Co. continue their successful season.

Reading September Fair.

Held on Monday and Tuesday last, this fair was attended by a good number of shows, roundabouts, &c., and was in every way a big success. Jacob Studt, with his big show and machine, had a week's private business prior to the fair, and drew large crowds of spectators.

The new bye-law with regard to organ-music at other times than the fair has just come into force. We have reason to believe that the Reading Corporation will not use their powers to interfere with legitimate show business.

The principal shows were Purchase's menagerie, Ball and Son's New Lyceum, Buckley's exhibition, and side shows by Messrs. Murch, Gilliam, and Searle. The machines were by Messrs. J. Thomas and J. Searle, swings, shooters, and varieties by Messrs. Gilliam, Matthews, J. Bunce, and Owen Smith.

Stevenage Fair.

The amusements here were Messrs. Thurston and Sons, Biddall, Elliott, Harris, Brinkley, and others.

Uttoxeter Fair.

The principal shows, roundabouts and amusements were provided by Messrs. Collins, jun., and Charles Farrell. Collins's No. 2 Wonderland Theatre, the Palace of Orpheus, was the star attraction.

Wombwell Feast.

The big shows at this Yorkshire feast were Tuby's, Farrar's and Crighton's cinematograph theatres; the side shows were those of Piper and Patteson, and the other concerns, including shooters, swings, variety stalls, and throwing games, were provided by Messrs. Corrigan, Calver, Pullan, Fisher, Campfield, Evans, Hargreaves, Middlebrook, Monks, Silsden, Broadhurst, Shaw, Percival, and others.

Polesworth Wakes.

Amongst the many attractions at this highly successful fair were Bliss's cinematograph theatre; Shepherd's racing motors, shooters, juvenile motors, and park swings; Mrs. Turner's Winchester range and shooting gallery; and stalls, varieties, and throwing games by Messrs. Turner, Cartwright, Shepherd, Ford, Dobson, Dingley, Humphreys, and Cullen.

Notes from Wales.

Sid White's aggregation of fairground novelties is paying a visit this week to Pentre Bach, Merthyr. Mr. White co-operated in the gala benefit performances for the funds of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his generous assistance.

The White City, Old Trafford.

The season closes in a few weeks, and the educated mare belonging to Mr. Harrison Barnes—which has mystified great numbers of people during its stay in this amusement park—finishes its engagement this week and goes straight to the London Hippodrome, then on the Barrasford tour, and on to the Continent. She is fully booked to November, 1909. Countess Romanoff, who gives the "Salome" dance, was a great draw last week, and continues to obtain large audiences. The Igorrote native village, the mystifying La Mort, and Cleopatra's clever illusions also do well. Frank Burley in his thrilling fire dive, Texas Bill Dillingham, cowboy rider, and a host of outside amusements are still very popular.

Roller-Skating at Liverpool.

On Saturday last Mr. C. P. Crawford commenced the winter session of roller-skating at the vast Tournament Hall, Edge-lane, Liverpool, when there was a great attendance of skaters and sight-seers. This is the second season of the enterprise in this country. The first, which closed at the end of May last, was successful beyond all anticipations, thousands of pleasure-seekers attending each of the three gatherings held daily. The place is made exceedingly picturesque by means of Chinese lanterns, electric lamps, and floral chains, while a first-class military band plays popular selections. Mr. E. B. Barnes is again the resident manager.

Grand Forest Event at Bostock's Jungle.

As a crowning event to the closing week of the Hungarian Exhibition, Earl's Court, Mr. Frank C. Bostock, director of the Bostock Jungle and Arena, will to-day (Saturday), at 4 p.m., assemble a royal family of lions in one spacious den. It will consist of "Wallace," a magnificent forest-bred lion, "Victoria," a beautiful lioness, and three splendid five-months-old lion cubs. No other such exhibit can be seen in the world outside the savage state. A peculiarity about the homely friendliness of the whole party is that "Wallace" (known as "the Untamable Lion") is not the father of the cubs, and though immediately fierce at the approach of a human, is so thoroughly animal as to allow the Jungle cat to wander promiscuously in his cage.

Very important meetings of the Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union will take place at Nottingham and Hull Fairs. We draw our readers' attention to these gatherings. For particulars, see our advertising columns.

The Showmen's Guild.

To-morrow (Sunday) the Rev. T. Horne will address two meetings at Gloucester (Barton) Fair, at 3.30 in the afternoon, and again at 8 in the evening.

Marriage of Miss Studt, Clydach.

On Tuesday a marriage was celebrated at St. Mary's Church, between Miss Louise Studt, eldest daughter of Mr. Henry Studt, Tygwyn, Clydach, the well-known amusement caterer, and Mr. V. E. Tuson, Marsh House, Leominster, veterinary surgeon. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. Morris (vicar), assisted by the Rev. D. Rees (curate). There was a large assembly at the church. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in ninon over Oriental satin, semi-Empire gown, with embroidered yoke and bretelles of lace; tunic skirt banded with satin, and a veil draped over wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses, lillies, chrysanthemums, lillies of the valley, and sprig of orange blossoms and white heather and asparagus and ferns, tied with satin ribbon. Her three bridesmaids were Miss Meg Studt, Miss Eme Studt (sister of the bride), and Miss Kammerer, Llanelly. Miss Meg Studt was attired in a white embroidered French gown, inset with Valenciennes lace and touches of pale blue ribbon, and a lovely Nattier blue crêpe de chine hat, trimmed with white Valenciennes lace and blue hydrangeas. Miss Eme Studt, in a dress of Nattier blue crêpe de chine, with yoke of net lace and a waistcoat of French embroidery, the skirt being banded with taffeta. Miss Kammerer in a Tussore silk dress, and a Nattier blue crêpe de chine hat trimmed with white Valenciennes lace and blue hydrangeas. The duties of best man were performed by Mr. M. E. Kammerer, solicitor, Llanelly. After the ceremony the bride and bridegroom left the church for Tygwyn House, Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" being played by Mr. Rees Williams, organist, on their leaving the church. A reception was subsequently held at Tygwyn, the residence of the bride's father, to which forty guests had been invited. The happy pair subsequently left for London and the Continent, amidst the happy wishes of numerous friends. The bride's travelling dress was a lotus-blue cloth directoire costume, braided with black, and a hat of lotus-blue. The bridegroom's present to the bride was a half-hoop diamond ring. There were other numerous presents, including a Bible from the Vicarage, and a large silver tray, suitably inscribed, from the management committee of the Llanelly Hospital.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

18,783.—Joseph Branchi, of London. Life-motion picture apparatus.

18,867.—Thomas Knight Barnard, of London. Improvements in talking dolls, or representations of animals emitting sounds.

18,919.—John Samuel Parker, of London. Improved portable table, chiefly intended for conjuring and similar performances.

18,934.—Stanley Gubbin Cater, of London. Improvements in targets, more particularly for miniature rifle-shooting ranges.

18,940.—Justine Modeste Duchatellier, of London. Improvements in apparatus for modifying the shape of the nose.

19,045.—John Richards Rowland, of London. New improved target for sport.

19,106.—Arthur Graham Strathie, of Edinburgh. Improved apparatus for conveying cars for recreation purposes on gravity or inclined railways.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATIONS ACCEPTED.

22,874.—Harris. Tight cut-offs for kinematographs and the like apparatus.

9,055.—Ludwig Hupfeld Akt-Ges. Pneumatically-operated musical instruments.

13,663.—Barrasford and Faulkner. Fire-extinguishing contrivance for use with kinematographs.

SPECIFICATIONS OPEN TO INSPECTION.

18,431.—De Champtassin. Gymnastic appliance.

18,783.—Bianchi. Life-motion picture apparatus.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

10,531.—Gymnastic, &c., apparatus Ramm, W., of Germany.

Exercising-ladders (a), parallel bars (u), and horizontal bars (v) are combined with a mattress

(d), or form the end parts of a bedstead, so that the gymnast may rest at once after performing the exercises.

10,957.—Theatres, &c. Graszynski, P. W., of Berlin.

In order to protect audiences in theatres, &c., from fire, the floor of the stalls is adapted to be lowered, the occupants of the floor being simultaneously isolated from the auditorium by means of horizontal fire-proof slides, while fire-proof curtains descend in front of the boxes and circles. The floor (Fig. 1) of the stalls is mounted on vertical spindles (3), and with the aid of counter-

weights (4) is lowered by hydraulic, electric, or other devices. The orchestra floor (22) (Fig. 3) may be simultaneously lowered. At the same time, fire-proof slides (6) (Figs. 1, 3, and 4) in the hollow outer ground floor (7) are automatically moved out, and meet in the middle of the auditorium. In order to move the slides a catch (9) (Fig. 4) on a chain (5) connected to the floor (1) engages a tappet (10) fixed to each slide (6). To provide for the reverse movement of the slides, a pivoted arm (11) is provided with rollers (12), adapted to move along a guide (13), a raised part (14) of which causes a nose (15) on the arm (11) to engage the inner side of the tappet (10). As the slides (6) have to avoid supports (16) in the outer wall (17), narrow slits remain between the slides (6), these slits being closed, on the operation of the slides, by means of supplementary slides (6*l*) (Fig. 5), which are moved outwards by means of tongs (19), provided with bolts, having rollers (20) adapted to run in guides (21). Fire-proof roller curtains (23), weighted at their lower ends, are lowered in front of the boxes and circles by means of shafting, which, on account of the curvature of the auditorium, consists of a number of sections coupled together. The protecting devices may be brought into operation of switches.

U.S. AMERICA PATENT.

The improvement of stage scenic effects is the object of the recent invention of Mr. M. Fortuny, of Paris, and to provide a concave wall or shell in a simple and inexpensive manner, and the invention consists of a pliable material, such as canvas-cloth, or the like, secured to a rigid structure, so as to form with the structure an air space and means for exhausting the air from said space, whereby the pliable material will be drawn towards the walls of the structure to form a concave surface or background.

To Stage Machinists and Electricians.—The Manager will be pleased to receive particulars of any new stage appliances or ideas for same for illustration in this column.

Can You Invent?—Do you wish to know of prizes offered to inventors valued at £10,000, £4,000, £1,000, £400, £300, £200, and £100? If so, then get a copy of Patents and Designs, a newspaper called into existence by Mr. Lloyd-George's Patents and Designs Act, 1907, which lately came into operation. Patents and Designs, price 2d., can be had at all bookstalls, newsagents, and at the Publishing Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

ELEPHANTS ON THE CHUTE.

The performance of the elephants in the Ceylon Village at the White City again formed the subject of police-court proceedings on Friday, the 18th, when, before Mr. Garrett, at West London Court, Havadia, elephant attendant, and William Schreida, elephant trainer, were summoned for cruelly terrifying an elephant, contrary to the Wild Animals in Captivity Protection Act, 1900, and Gustav Hagenbeck, proprietor of the elephants, was summoned for permitting the offence.

Mr. Stuart Bevan, who prosecuted on behalf of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, described the performance of the elephants, which consisted in sliding down a chute into a tank of water.

Frederick Lovejoy, inspector of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said he saw Havadia come from the direction of the Ceylon Village with a small elephant two feet under the normal size. He carried an elephant stick (described by Mr. Bevan as a long stick with an iron point). Having arrived on the platform, a rope was fixed to each fore leg of the elephant, the animal showing signs of fear. Before the elephant could be got down the chute several natives used a long pole and Havadia struck the animal six times with the pointed end of the stick. The elephant gave out a long cry, almost a shriek.

Subsequently the witness saw the elephant and found two fresh punctured wounds and a lacerated wound two inches long. He asserted that in an interview with Mr. Hagenbeck the latter said he knew what took place, and added: "My elephants cost me 100,000 marks (£5,000), and must be put through their rehearsals in order to pay my money back. . . . I have got to get my living."

Charles Miller (present on subpœna), an elephant trainer engaged by Mr. Bostock at the Jungle, Earl's Court, said that an elephant's skin was as sensitive as that of a man. The animal would feel the flick of a whip or the touch of a match or a pin. He had never found it necessary to use an elephant stick.

Havadia stated that he never used the stick. He only carried it to frighten the animals. Mr. Hagenbeck had issued strict rules about treating the elephants kindly.

Hagenbeck asserted that no stick was allowed to be used on the elephants.

The magistrate regretted that the public taste should lend itself to exhibitions which in the nature of things must involve a certain element of cruelty.

Schreida was fined £5 and seven guineas costs; Havadia 40s. and 2s. costs; and Hagenbeck was bound over for twelve months in his own recognisances for £10 to come up for judgment when called upon.

Coney Island in Leeds.

Leeds is to have a big new amusement resort, which we understand is to open early in November. Efforts are being made to present all the novel attractions which are the feature of America's famous pleasure resort. The whole is being produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Alfred Wood, who is general-manager for the syndicate.

Dunning and Kahn and Kahn, after a sixteen weeks' most successful tour in the provinces, return to town on Monday for a brief stay, opening at the Crouch End Hippodrome with their magical and second-sight acts.

Mr. V. Newman, general secretary and manager to Mr. John Lawson, has had the misfortune to lose his father, who passed away last Tuesday, after a very short illness.

Ada Bishop, music-hall sketch artist, residing at Lauderdale-mansions, Maida Vale, attended before Mr. Plowden at Marylebone on Saturday to prosecute Winnie Perutelli, an Italian servant lately in her employ, on a charge of stealing a silver watch, three pairs of trousers, two waistcoats, and other articles, to the total value of £7. It appeared that when spoken to about the missing articles the accused said they must have been lost in moving, but she afterwards wrote confessing that she had taken them. She was arrested by Detective-sergeant Steggals at an address in Carnaby-street, Regent's Park, where a bag belonging to Mrs. Bishop was found under the bed. She was remanded.

Tuesday was the thirteenth anniversary of the opening of the Regent Theatre of Varieties, Salford, and in addition to the regular company, alluded to in our provincial columns, enjoyable turns included Jock Whiteford, Arthur Hickman, Dorma Morgan and Billy Williams (by kind permission of the management of the Manchester Palace Theatre), Ted E. Box and Will Poluski, jun. (by kind permission of Mr. Oswald Stoll), Charles Coborn, Gena Manon, Carney Bros., Jean and Dara Troupe, Florrie Cooper, Langslow, Rose Atherton's company, Graham's Premier Juveniles, Fanny Robina, Leslie's Cadets (by kind permission of Mr. Percy B. Broadhead), Ike and Will Scott, Les Rubens, Marie Vere, Minnie Fenton, Violet Stockelle, Maud Beaumont, and Beatrice Lindley (by kind permission of the management of the Manchester Tivoli). Full houses were at the matinée and evening performances.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

FOR THE SAKE OF HIS UNIFORM is an interesting dramatic film production. At the gambling table a young lieutenant is squandering away his last bank notes. He came there in the hopes of finding Fate a little more lenient to him, but when he leaves the room he is desperate, for he has only succeeded in increasing the amount of his debts. To kill himself in the only thing he can think of now, and he slips a revolver into his pocket; but a beautiful landscape reminding him of hope and possible atonement, he throws away his weapon and comes home. In the office of his father, a bank manager, he finds the safe open. A horrible idea comes to his mind, but he struggles mentally against it. He will not be a thief. Yet the idea of his debt is so overpowering that, being quite alone there for a moment, he takes a handful of bank-notes. After his departure his parents notice the theft, and their son's strange behaviour enlightens them as to the culprit. At first they are so horrified at the idea of the wreck of their lives as a consequence of the young man's action, for they see before the eyes of their minds his military degradation, that it seems they will never recover from the shock. At last the father takes a decision, very heroic and simple; he accuses himself of the theft. The young officer, pursued by remorse, and anxious to atone for his former life, accepts in the Colonies a dangerous mission. The glorious part he takes in an action secures him the military cross, but his wounds are fatal. On his deathbed he confesses to the theft which he is going to atone for with his very life, and entreats his superior officer to forward to his father the cross showing that he has repented, and which he hopes will win for him his parents' forgiveness.

THE TWO MODELS.—The artist in this picture has been trying vainly for days to fix upon the canvas the likeness of an Italian boy, very lively and full of fun, and always up to some mischief. While the painter is busy with a customer, his young sitter thinks it will be lovely to make love to a young lady in the flat next to the artist's by means of expressive signs and gestures. But this young person is so upset at the insolence of the young scapegrace that she goes and tells her father, who goes at once to his neighbour's. The model is found out, the painter apologises profusely, and the father, whose anger has subsided, admires the painter's works. Then it is agreed that the latter shall paint a portrait of the young lady, and this new sitter is so fair that when the work is ended the artist and his model find that they are in love with each other, and they are happily married.

DOG AND PIPE.—In the carriage of a fast train a smoker, indulging in his cigarette, looks with a twinkle in his eyes at a lady cuddling her poodle in her lap. The lady having objected to the smoke, the gentleman throws his cigarette out of the window, but presently he lights a cigar. The lady remonstrates once more, and the obliging gentleman relinquishes his cigar again. After a few minutes he takes his pipe out of his pocket and begins puffing at it. The lady, vexed, snatches the pipe out of the hands of its owner, and it takes the same way as the cigar and cigarette. The gentleman gently grips the dog and sends him to join the other articles. The poor lady is made desperate by this cold-blooded deed; but at the next stop she is delighted again to find her darling dog waiting for her, with the gentleman's pipe in his mouth. As a reward the faithful poodle receives a bank note, which he at once puts into the bowl of a blind man that happens to be there.

A MAGISTRATE'S CONSCIENCE.—A girl having been foolish enough to fall in love with a student who does not know his own mind, is left alone with her small son when the fellow makes a wealthy marriage which will enable him to uphold his position as a magistrate, and the selfish father thinks that he has done his duty towards his baby when he puts in the hand of its mother a few bank notes which will enable her to bring it up. The boy is about twenty years of age now, and his poor mother, who has worked so hard for him in his childhood, is very ill. But he has no money, and his very soul is torn between his love for his mother and his sterner duty as an honest man. At last, throwing away all idea of honesty and straightforwardness, he steals the money which will restore health to his mother. He does it too late, for when he comes back she is dead. Later he is arrested for the theft. But it happens that the magistrate who is going to sentence him is his own father, before whose mind appears very vividly the feeling of his own responsibility in leaving him helpless with a helpless woman to fight out as well as they could the terrible fate that he, the magistrate, had practically shaped out for them. The father, understanding at last what he owes to his son, helps the youth to retrieve the past in enabling him to leave for a foreign country.

THE BEGINNING OF THE SERPENTINE.—This is a cleverly-arranged trick film. Rising from a melting pot, the serpentine spreads her flowing draperies surrounded by her sisters, who fill the screen with the flutter of their wings, sometimes resembling huge butterflies, at other times bearing a great likeness to beautiful and freakish flowers. The different pictures are beautifully coloured.

Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd.

MOTOR BOAT RACES.—This film deals with the contests at Burnham-on-Crouch on Sept. 12, 1908, when the swiftest launches in the world were competing. Some of the boats have a record of 32 knots, and all skim and dart along the surface at amazing speed, rounding the mark boat with almost incredible small margin and returning at the same rate to the finishing point. It is a wonderful exhibition of science, skill, and daring. The launches engaged include Daimler II., Brook II., Defender, Sea Dog, Areb, Fleurette II., and Napier Minor. Exciting scenes are witnessed in the finals for motor boats exceeding 10 knots for the Motor Club Challenge Trophy, Handicap for Cabin Cruisers, &c.

WATERPROOF WILLIE is a ludicrous and most original fancy, perfectly and realistically carried out. The troubles of Willie, with whom personal cleanliness amounts to a passion, are faithfully depicted. He yearns to perform a full toilet, but the water necessary to this purpose always fails him. It pours into the basin, streams even from the ceiling, flows in rivers, gathers in ponds, and is ejected from a garden hose, but not for Willie! He remains totally unaffected except by comic despair, and the fun is communicated to the audience.

THE STAR GLOBE TROTTER.—We are told that this is not a play upon the titles of certain London evening newspapers, but a clever farce on novel lines, with humour and mystery in every incident. The globe-trotter is a clever gymnast who, with his assistant, is victimised by a mesmerist and made to perform feats connected with his own athletic calling which would make his fortune upon any stage in the world. In some public gardens an amateur mesmerist entertains the crowd, but its attention is distracted by a globe-walker—an athlete who stands upon a large sphere and juggles with hoops and balls. The offended mesmerist hypnotises the globe-trotter and his assistant, and starts them upon a magic and wonder-working journey. The globe-trotter attempts to leave his ball and board a motor-car, but is repulsed and resumes his trotting. The motor follows, with the juggler's assistant hanging on behind. A strange chase is kept up along country lanes and across an intersecting stream, which is safely negotiated. The globe ascends the perpendicular of a telegraph pole, and along the wires the strange journey is resumed, globe and trotter travelling by their usual means, the assistant magically following. Presumably the athletes arrive in China, to the dismay of the heathen. The steep wall of a Chinese house affords no foot or other hold, but this is of no importance. The ball ascends the sheer wall, with the trotter horizontally footing it. His assistant follows, impelled by magic. Finally an explosion occurs: the globe-trotter and his ball are ejected and ascend to great heights—into the starry heavens, where the trotter trots amongst the constellations. A mad whirligig ensues, and the globe is itself transformed into a twinkling star, with the smiling head of the gymnast standing out in relief from its centre.

THE FESTIVAL OF CORPUS CHRISTI provides one of the most imposing and picturesque pageants ever arranged in the Southern Hemisphere. This festival of Corpus Christi was celebrated at St. Peter's Ecclesiastical College, Mauly, New South Wales, on June 21, and was witnessed by a crowd numbering 25,000 people. Great and pleasing variety is afforded by the rich vestments of the clergy, by the prettily-attired and veiled girls in the procession, the be-sashed boys of the colony, and by the uniforms and regalia of the guilds and societies taking part.

HEARD OVER THE 'PHONE.—A picure of a mother, accompanied by her little girl, gathering flowers, then waiting to extend greetings to her husband, sets before us the opening of this story. Now we see the girl's father visiting the stables, when, after finding his favourite horse gone lame, an altercation takes place with the hostler. In consequence of this the hostler is discharged, and leaves, vowing vengeance. We are now shown the mother, reading to her child, and, hearing footsteps, has a presentiment of danger. Rushing to the 'phone, she rings up her husband, who, whilst endeavouring to calm her fears, hears crash of breaking glass, wife's screams, and the pleadings of his child. Being powerless, he hears everything that takes place, and pictures to himself the happenings. In spite of the child's prayers and the mother's frantic appeals for mercy, the enraged man seizes the child. Then a desperate struggle takes place, during which the mother is shot. Reaching the 'phone, the husband hears his wife's dying words and the heart-rending sobs of his child.

A COMEDY IN BLACK AND WHITE.—This silhouette picture shows a wise old owl and the shadowy outline of a country cottage. On the curtain in the window we see the burly form of pa looking for "news." Seated on the rustic seat a maiden waits the advent of her lover. Being late, he puts in an appearance bearing a huge bouquet, which smoothes matters, and they are very affectionate to each other until pa objects. Romeo does not wait for orders to go, but clears in record time, leaving the weeping damsel to face pa's lecture. Pa's objection, however, does not stop the young lady, who, having more than one string to her bow, exchanges signals with swain No. 2. He arrives with a large bouquet, and being let in by his lady-love, the course of true love for a time runs smooth. "Music hath charms," at least so thinks admirer No. 3, who proceeds, with banjo accompaniment, from the top of the rain barrel, to serenade his inamorata. He chooses the wrong window, and is rewarded by pa with a pail of water. This, with the insecurity of his foothold, lands him in the barrel. Pa then perceives the light below, also the devoted couple, and a general fight ensues, resulting in the throwing out of the lover and the chastisement of the erring daughter, who promises never to have another beau.

THE ST. LEGER ON THE CINEMATOGRAPH.—Through the enterprise of the Sheffield Photo. Company the audience at the Alhambra Music Hall, London, were recently enabled to see the race for the St. Leger Stakes reproduced on the cinematograph. The same event was shown also at the King's Theatre, Nottingham, and in Doncaster. The accomplishment is one of the smartest of its kind ever effected. The race was started at 3.15 in the afternoon, and photographed. The operators returned to Sheffield immediately, the films were developed in the Photo. Company's premises, and one was off to London by the 7.20 train, while the others left for Doncaster and Nottingham about half-past eight, being shown the same evening as well as at the Sheffield Empire.

Nordisk Films Co.

BLIND.—Under this title the Nordisk Co. issue a film which tells a pathetic story. Some unscrupulous scoundrels are ill-treating a little blind boy, making him beg for them. He happens to go to a family which has a blind child, a little girl. The master of the house gives to the boy liberally, without suspecting where the money would go to. A little later the lady of the house comes home and tells her husband about a little blind boy, whom she had seen in the street, being ill-treated by a rascal, who was evidently dissatisfied with the child's work. The gentleman understands at once the connection of the affair, and goes out to find the boy. He was fortunate enough to discover the place where the gang has its refuge, and, assisted by the police, he has the poor fellow given up to him. The boy now has a good home with kind people, and the little blind girl becomes a faithful friend to him. These two subsequently meet with adventures, being captured by the bandits, and the boy saves the girl from being hurt at their hands.

STAGE EMPLOYEES.

The Cinematograph Operators' Association is constantly adding to its membership, and is now arranging for a further examination of the recent applicants for membership. A meeting of the committee will be held on Tuesday at 2.30, at the office of the Association, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, London. Operators engaged to show pictures at Sunday concerts, who do not receive the standard rate for such work, are requested to communicate with the secretary.

A branch comprising some forty members of the National Association of Theatrical Employees has been formed in Stockton-on-Tees. Mr. F. Moody is acting-secretary, pro tem.

Stage employees are reminded that the first of a series of concerts to be given in the Coliseum by the Musicians' Union will take place on Sunday evening. Tickets from 6d. to 5s., obtainable at the doors.

"PASTA MACK" tablets soften the water, and, used regularly, impart a soft and velvet-like appearance to the skin. Boxes, 1s. and 2s. 6d. Pasta Mack soap, hygienic, fragrant, and lasting perfume. Tablets, 10d.; box of three, 2s. 6d. Of perfumers, chemists. Sole maker, H. Mack, Ulm, o/D.—[ADVT.]

A SPORTING SPECTACLE.

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

The New York Hippodrome has opened with a new "show," and the newspapers have used up nearly every available adjective in the dictionary in describing it. Spectacles of extraordinary size and marvellous beauty are an old story at this house, but Messrs. Shubert and Anderson have established a new record, and so emphatic is the success scored by their latest production that no change of bill will be necessary for months to come. The performance begins with a spectacular play called Sporting Days, in which there are five scenes, each occupying the entire stage. First there is a baseball game, and then the circus comes on the scene. The red caravans pass, and the big tent is erected in view of the audience. Polar bears, performing dogs, and other circus acts are shown, the dogs being particularly clever what time they are disguised as Shetland ponies. Marceline, the favourite clown, is there, of course, pretending to help and getting in everybody's way. After the circus comes a ballet of girls, whose skirts are suddenly reversed to produce the effect of a sheet of blue water with boats on the surface. This pretty novelty leads up to a fine representation of a boat race. The final sporting event is a horse race, in which the panoramic effects are uncommonly good. The Land of the Birds, a ballet of surpassing beauty, is introduced as the climax of a pretty fairy story about a little girl who took pity on some caged canaries, and set them free. Their owner was very angry, and after beating the little girl he left her crying on the doorstep. But the birds recognised her as a friend, and came and carried her off to their kingdom. On reaching Birdland she is presented to King Eagle, and then flocks of birds in most beautiful plumage appear. It is a magnificent scene, and it calls forth a storm of applause. The agility and velocity of the dances executed by Mlle. Ester Zanini as the Dove and Signor Bonfiglia as the Devil Bird are nothing short of wonderful, and surprise follows surprise when several of the birds dart through the air over the heads of the audience and scatter roses. The Battle of the Skies shows what is likely to happen in 1950 when the United States of America are attacked by the United States of Europe. Aerial navigation is supposed to be a fait accompli, and a fleet of airships, equipped with radium guns, swoops down on a fortified city and destroys it. The enemy has abducted the commanding officer's daughter, and is holding her as a hostage. As the sun sets and darkness falls, the buildings totter and come down, and the terror-stricken inhabitants flee from the doomed city. A glimmer of light shows a surging of waters that completely submerge the ruins. The officer's daughter escapes in a frail boat, which is tossed on the heaving billows, while the inevitable villain pursues her. Along comes an airship, a line is thrown overboard, and the girl is hauled up into the aeroplane just as the villain is about to seize her. In the final spectacle, representing "The Golden Garden," and concluding with "An Apotheosis of Victory," the effects produced are novel and beautiful. Electricity is liberally employed, and the great tank is converted into a lake with grass-grown banks and green islands. In a march of some forty or fifty girls dressed as grenadiers, a huge ivy-covered trellis is brought in. The girls swarm up the trellis, and suddenly opening their cloaks, form an immense United States flag, which is presently illuminated with incandescent lights, turned on and off in such a way as to produce the effect of waving. Finally the entire company is massed on the stage, and groups of living statuary rise from the water. Mr. Manuel Klein composed the music, which is of an agreeable quality, two of his numbers, "The whole year round" and "Motherland," being particularly pleasing to the ear. Mr. R. H. Burnside's stage-management has been praised on every hand. The dances arranged by Signor Vincenzo Romeo, the scenery painted by Mr. Voegtlin, and the costumes designed by Mr. Alfred Edel, are important factors in the success of the entertainment.

TOTTENHAM PALACE.

Fred Karno's troupe, with his specially-selected company, in The Dandy Thieves, forms the leading attraction at this already popular house, where Mr. T. S. Mayne so ably and courteously manages affairs. Mr. G. Hestor as Sergeant Lightning is a host in himself, and the piece throughout is immensely appreciated. As usual, the "Six little burglars" number is vociferously received. Mr. Tom Leamore is one of the pillars of the programme, and his second item, "Clarence Fitzgerald," is a sure and final nail in the coffin of anything connected with "the blues." A newcomer on the halls is Maidie Scott, with some original ideas, and who here makes a decided hit. Her first song, "Everybody works but father," is a great success, and her second contribution, "He's got to work," a sequel to her former song, simply brings down the house. The old popular comedian Harry Anderson works as hard as ever. The Ten Union Jack Boys take a prominent place in the bill, and a hearty welcome is given them. They work well together with the happiest results. Some excellent dancing is also a feature of the performances of the troupe. The Two Jagos are a decided success, the high-kicking and toe-dancing of the lady artist being a combination of skill and grace that is much appreciated. They are also very clever at bâton wielding. A notable hit is achieved by the Whittakers in their sketch entitled Whittington; and Winnie Derson, comedienne, sings in a very engaging manner. We cannot overpraise the art of the Three San Remo Girls. A series of films by Ruffell's Bioscope completes an excellent programme.

BATTERSEA PALACE.

Competitions for comeliness are this week the leading features of the Macnaghten halls in London, and the belles of Battersea have entered the lists with avidity. A closely-crowded house marked the opening of the competition on Monday, when Mr. James McCarthy, the energetic and painstaking manager, announced that prizes to the extent of £6 in cash would be given, and that three additional awards for the best-dressed hair would be made. He announced that the candidates might include all those between the years of fourteen and fifty, adding, however, that the age would not be divulged. Thus reassured, a dozen or so of Battersea's fairest made for the stage, upon which a committee of local gentlemen had seated themselves in solemn state. The names of the candidates were not revealed, but each participant was numbered, and as Mr. McCarthy called out "No. 1," the maiden, with trembling step and slow, emerged from the wings and posed nervously beneath the powerful glare of the limelight. In vain she looked into the faces of the judges to discern some trace of her fate, but each member of the committee bore an inscrutable expression from which no hope could be gleaned. Thus the trial proceeded, the house cheering in various degrees as each advanced to the footlights. The participants were of a very homely character, and ill compared with many of the artists, who did not take part in the competition. The choice at length was made, and two lassies were selected to compete in the final yesterday (Friday) evening, No. 11, a young lady with golden ringlets, being a very popular choice. The award for the best-dressed hair fell to No. 6, who was also to compete in the final. "Wot abaht No. 6 for beauty?" bawled an enthusiastic admirer in the balcony, but no answer was vouchsafed.

The regular programme is a substantial one, and includes a sensational sketch, The House of Terror, in which Miss Beaumont Collins plays with much dramatic intensity the part of a distraught woman who has witnessed the murder of her husband in a thieves' den in Ratcliff Highway, and eventually takes vengeance on his assassin. A New York detective who enters the house in the disguise of a drunken sailor is cleverly played by that skilful and experienced actor Mr. George Mallett; and good work is also done by Mr. J. Boyd Pearson as a gentleman cracksman and by Miss Stella Leigh as an old hag. A sketch of a humorous character is furnished by Damerell and Rutland and company in the sporting farce Clever Mr. Fugg, which depicts the embarrassments of a runaway couple who are so impecunious that the bridegroom has to lie in bed while his pyjamas are pawned by the man in possession. The extravagant situations of the playlet caused continuous laughter.

A warm welcome is extended to Miss Josephine Crook, who renders sentimental ballads illustrated in gorgeous colours pleasingly, and gains the vociferous assistance of the house in the choruses. Miss Tiny Arnold, the clever little comedienne, sings and dances with all her wonted joyousness and energetic skill; Norman Grant, a lady at the piano, sings a pleasing humorous song with "Georgie" as the burden of her refrain; and Ted Waite, a comedian with a quaint individuality, gives a parody of "Will you love me in December?" with much drollery. Daring equilibristic feats are done by the Almas, one of whom mounts a pyramid of chairs placed on a table, and at this precarious height revolves on one hand and performs other dexterous tricks. Included in the programme are also Attie Santa, burlesque artist; the Two Sprees, in a song-scena; the Strattons in a musical act; Raymond's Bio-Tableaux; and Saxe Edevere, who essays imitations at the piano, which he claims to play entirely by ear.

REVIVAL OF ROLLER-SKATING.

Thanks to American enterprise, roller-skating has entered upon a new era in this country. During the last few months it has been demonstrated that, operated on certain lines, roller-skating rinks can be made not merely places of enjoyment for the middle-classes capable of paying for rational pleasure at a moderate price, but, as well, first-class profit-earning concerns. Tournament Hall Rink, Edge-lane, Liverpool, was only opened at the end of last year and remained in operation until the end of May. During that time the better classes of the city patronised it in their thousands. Mr. C. P. Crawford, not slow to gauge the temperament of the English people as judged by Liverpool, opened another rink at Llandudno, and a third at Newcastle. This revival of roller-skating, so auspiciously inaugurated at Liverpool, spread rapidly through the country. On one carnival night alone at Newcastle no fewer than 7,000 persons paid for admission to the rink. The success thus achieved emboldened Mr. Crawford to still further develop the resources at his command by forming "The American Roller Rink Company," with head offices in North John-street, Liverpool, for the purpose of establishing rinks in most of the large towns of the country. In the case of each new rink a separate company is formed with capital independently subscribed. That the public are enthusiastic in their support of the scheme is attested by the fact that the capital is fully subscribed for rinks in Edinburgh, Leeds, Sunderland, Bradford, and Belfast. The rinks in Sunderland and Edinburgh are already open and receiving public patronage. The American Roller Rink Company have secured the Olympia, London, for a large rink, and are going to open other rinks in Dublin, Glasgow, and Manchester (St. James's Hall), companies now being in course of formation to accomplish this object. From Liverpool has radiated a passion for the sport of roller-skating which has spread throughout the length and breadth of the British Isles, and which seems destined to extend still further.

AN ALIEN PIRATE.

Samuel Lubinski, 22, who gave an address in Fairclough-street, Limehouse, was charged on Monday at Old-street with being in possession of a number of pirated copies of copyright musical publications.

Frank Maybee, an agent of the Association of Music Publishers, proved that shortly after midday the prisoner had a stall with music in Whitecross-street, and the witness sent a woman to make a purchase, she returning with a copy of a song called "Love me and the world is mine," which witness saw was a piration. He then called a constable and gave the prisoner into custody, and on searching the stock on the stall and a quantity hidden found forty-one pirated copies of songs, including "The Merry Widow" waltz, "A Waltz Dream," "Mona," and others.

Witness produced the copyright certificates of some of these, and Mr. Cluer made an order condemning the copies. He ordered the prisoner, who offered no defence, to pay a fine of £5, or suffer a month's imprisonment.

AN exceptionally good programme is presented at the Market Hall, Whitehaven, this week. The pictures include The Organ-grinder's Daughter, The Black Viper, The Pretty Flower-girl, Too Busy to Court, the Gipsy Model, His First Frock Coat, &c. Donald and Le Brun in their sporting absurdity The Huntsman and the Maid are well received.

THE METROPOLITAN.

This magnificent house, which has lately fallen in with the prevailing fashion of two houses a night, is meeting with deserved success in its liberal catering for the masses of Paddington and Kilburn, and Mr. Jack Edgar, the manager for Mr. Henri Gros, who is enjoying a well-deserved holiday abroad, is rejoicing in the generous patronage that has been accorded every evening this week to the two performances. Paul Cinque valli, the world's most famous juggler, is the one performer in the universe whose title is undisputed, even by the most distinguished of his fellows. Originally a remarkable acrobat—an intrepid trapeze performance being his speciality—as well as a daring equestrian, Cinquevalli started his career as a juggler after he met with a serious accident, which incapacitated him for many months. With invincible cheerfulness he mapped out a new career. The great gymnast became the great juggler, who, fertile in invention, leaves his numerous imitators far in the rear by constantly accomplishing new and startling tricks with an ease, an alertness, and a grace that are unapproachable. Billiard cues positively dance to the magic touch of Paul, the apostle of juggling, and as a walking billiard board he pockets the balls from inconceivable places. The act is always bright, and the assistant is particularly amusing in his gesture play, his frantic efforts to save his "guvnor" from disasters that never occur being very droll.

Humour of the most diverting nature is to be discovered in the patter of Vasey and Ramsey, who present their novel creation, The German and His Butler. The telling and effective cross-talk evokes hearty merriment, and the double dance on a table is something to be seen and enjoyed. Cole and Rags, juggling eccentrics, have a series of droll "fakments" which set the house in a roar, and their mirthful mission is exceedingly well carried through. The prismatic beauty of the effects produced by Maurin's Fountains is as undisputed as that of the nymphs who pose as naiads during the playing of the jets beneath multi-coloured lights. This is a display that evokes enthusiasm. Les Strads open the programme with their musical sketch, The Night Before the Concert, in which much skill is shown in the playing of various instruments.

Miss Margaret Parker and company present the stirring interlude entitled Lucky Jim, the story of a newspaper boy, who is able to assert in a very practical way the uprightness and sterling honesty of the lower classes, pursuing a course of transparent virtue that meets with generous appreciation from the gods. He saves a diamond-dealer from committing a felony, and unmasks a slimy and villainous clerk. Miss Parker, in the title-rôle, has the house entirely with her, the outspoken and virtuous sentiments of the character affording intense delight. Mr. Herbert Harden and Mr. Charles V. Sanford give capital support. Other attractions of the bill include Aimée de Leska, the Canadian soprano; Tony Black, Scotch comedian; Jennie Moore, character comedienne and dancer; Victor Newman, in a Dickens impersonation; Lennie and Hast, in The Sea Nymph; and Ruffell's Bioscope.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

The Hall Caine family is well represented this week at the Queen's, Poplar. Mr. Derwent Hall Caine and his company are presenting for the first time

"THE FATAL ERROR,"
A Miniature Drama by Hall Caine.

The Widow ..... Miss Violet Paget
Jonas ..... Mr. Walter Ringham
The Parson ..... Mr. Thomas Ford
The Sheriff ..... Mr. Robin Harcourt
A Guest ..... Mr. G. J. Hallowes
The Traveller ..... Mr. Derwent Hall Caine

Mr. Hall Caine's sketch, The Fatal Error, seems to have been written with the object of introducing Mr. Hall Caine's personal appearance to variety artists. For his son, Mr. Derwent Hall Caine, who is playing one of the principal parts, is so made up, with the assistance of hirsute "additions," as to give us a capital living portrait of his father. There are the luxuriant side-locks, the pointed, Shakespearian beard, and the expression of dreamy obsession characteristic of the well-known author. As to the plot, it is not new to us. A mother and her son are lamenting their hard fate in an inn-farm in the Isle of Man. The home in which they have lived for so many years is to be put up for auction on the following morning, and they anticipate being turned out of it. Unfortunately their unhappy position is due to the conduct of a scapegrace son, whose debts had been honourably discharged by the family exchequer. He disappeared fifteen years before the period at which the story opens. On this night he returns as a stranger to them, and they do not recognise him. He tells them that it is he who will buy up the homestead, and he has already seen the Sheriff in reference to the matter. He shows the old mother a wallet which he informs her contains more than twenty times the amount necessary for the purchase. That night, after the traveller has gone to his bed, the mother and the other son (Jonas) decide that they will become possessed of the money in the pocket case, though the woman warns him that there must be no violence. But seemingly Jonas—though we learn that he has hitherto led an upright, straightforward, honest life—so far lets his feelings get the better of him that he murders the stranger, only to be confronted a few hours later by the Sheriff, who inquires for the long-lost son, whom he knows to have called at the house, and whom he is now informed has never been there! Miss Violet Page plays appropriately and with considerable feeling as the widowed mother, and Mr. Walter Ringham gives a forcefully dramatic representation of Jonas, his remorse at the discovery that he has killed his own brother and would-be benefactor being depicted with a fine sense of tragedy. The little piece received adequate attention from the members of the company who portray the different characters.

There is plenty of variety in the rest of the programme. Miss Bessie Benson is a comedienne and sand dancer of quite outstanding ability, and Ray and Lingard contrive to be exceedingly entertaining in their comedy duologue, The First of April; Miss Marie Blythe has a delightful number in "The old love's lost," which she sings with verve, and Rex Fox displays remarkable talents in his ventriloquial and musical act on the wire. The Lyric Mummers present a refined vocal act, their delivery of "Men were deceivers ever" being particularly commendable. The Lyons Trio submit a clever pantomimic and dancing act, and Miss Billie Burford interests the audience with her very appropriate rendering of "In a cheap excursion train," while Otto and Olga provide a capital comedy and musical turn, their selections on the concertina from The Bohemian Girl being especially admired. Mr. Walter King, "the doleful one," offers some laughable comments on the subject of married life, and very attractive are the animated pictures shown.

Wearing a most becoming dress of the thirties, Madame Guilbert has been singing at the Coliseum this week in succession "Les Cloches de Nantes," a version of "Where are you going, my pretty maid?" and "Mary was a housemaid," and, by way of encore, "A bargain." "Mary was a housemaid" was originally sung in London by Miss Clare Romaine, who has just left us for America.

Harry Lauder is appearing next week at the Tivoli for the last few performances, prior to his departure to America. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope will be exploiting pictures of the Four-Inch Motor Race at the Isle of Man, every incident from the start to the finish being shown on the screen.

WANTED, Wanted, Wanted,
Circus Proprietors, Hippodrome Managers, and Agents to Note that the Greatest Act before the Public of the World will shortly return to England.
The Royal Ohmys,
The Royal Ohmys,
The Royal Ohmys,
Greatest of all Acrobatic Equestrians, on Three, Four, and Five Bare-back Horses. The only act of the kind ever seen in a Circus Ring. The talk of every town in Denmark. Just had the great honour of appearing by command before H.R.H. the Crown Prince of Denmark and Royal Family. Complimented by H.R.H. and crowd of 3,000 people. Read what the Denmark paper says:—The Royal Ohmys' appearance before the Crown Prince has caused a sensation in Aarhus, and so delighted H.R.H. that, after their wonderful performance on three bare-backed horses, they were commanded to return before him to receive Royal congratulations. The Royal Ohmys return to England end of October, after fulfilling a six months' engagement with Bech. Olsen's Great Circus, Denmark. The Royal Ohmys have been the talk of every town visited by this great circus, and the Royal Ohmys are now the talk of Denmark. Bech. Olsen, Director, says:—Mr. Ohmy, your family are the finest performers I have ever seen. They have raised my circus above all the others in this country. They must come back to me next season, whatever the cost may be. This should prove to Proprietors and Managers what these Acts are like. Will be at liberty for the winter season end of October, with six good numbers. The most up-to-date acts before the public. For list of acts, &c., address, THE ROYAL OHMYS, Bech Olsen, Copenhagen, Denmark.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD.

ACTUAL OUTPUT OF FILMS PER DAY, 80 MILES.

THE BEGINNING OF THE SERPENTINE.

Code Word, "ENTRETIEN."

Rising from a melting-pot, the Serpentine spreads her flowing draperies, surrounded by her sisters—who fill the screen with the flutter of their wings, sometimes resembling huge butterflies, at other times bearing a great likeness to beautiful and freakish flowers. This film is beautifully coloured. Making a grand finish to a programme.

412ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 4d. Colouring and Toning extra, £4 15s.

DOG AND PIPE.

Code Word, "ESSENCE."

In the carriage of a fast train a man looks with artful eye at a lady cuddling her poodle in her lap. The lady, objecting to the cigarette he is smoking, he throws it out of the window; but presently he lights a cigar. The lady remonstrates once more, and the gentleman relinquishes his cigar again. After a few minutes he takes his pipe out of his pocket and begins puffing at it. The lady, vexed, snatches the pipe out of the hands of its owner, and it takes the same way as the cigar and cigarettes. The gentleman gently grips the dog, and sends him to join the other articles. The poor lady is desperate, but at the next stop she is delighted again to find her darling dog waiting for her with the gentleman's pipe in his mouth. As a reward, the faithful poodle receives a bank-note, which he at once puts into the bowl of a blind man that happens to be there.

382ft. The Subject, £6 0s. 8d.

PARISIAN LIFE IN MINIATURE.

Code Word, "EXERCICE."

Little Miss Margerit, six years of age, is going to show us what her elder sisters do daily. At 10 a.m. she receives letters from her suitors. She opens one, and reads aloud, "Dear Miss Margerit, allow one of your suitors, who is dreadfully in earnest, to send you his best wishes pending his being the boy of your heart.—Yours devotedly, James." Then there are the morning callers to be received by Miss Margerit, who are dressed in very up-to-date garments. At the restaurant Margerit takes luncheon with James, and allows him to take a kiss from her. George is furious, and he issues a challenge for a duel. The two footmen, who are devoted to their masters, follow suit; but all ends satisfactorily, and the film ends with a general make up.

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s.

THE TWO MODELS.

Code Word "ETHER."

The artist in this picture has been trying vainly for days to fix upon the canvas the likeness of an Italian boy, very lively and full of fun. While the painter is busy with a customer, his young sitter thinks it will be lovely to make love to a young lady in the flat next to the artist's by means of expressive signs and gestures. But this young person is so upset at the insolence of the young scapegrace that she goes and tells her father, who goes at once to his neighbour's. The model is found out, the painter apologises profusely, and the father, whose anger has subsided, admires the painter's works. Then it is agreed that the latter shall paint a portrait of the young lady, and this new sitter is so fair that when the work is ended, the artist and his model find they are in love with each other, and they are happily married.

428ft. The Subject, £7 2s. 8d.

A MAGISTRATE'S CONSCIENCE.

Code Word "EXCURSION."

A girl having fallen in love with a student who is not true, is left alone with her small son when the fellow makes a wealthy marriage which will enable him to uphold his position as a magistrate; and the selfish father thinks that he has done his duty towards his baby when he puts in the hand of its mother a few bank-notes, which will enable her to bring it up, so he thinks. The boy is about twenty years of age now, and his poor mother is very ill—so ill, in fact, that the doctor orders her to a warmer climate. But he has no money, and throwing away all idea of honesty and straightforwardness, he steals the money which will restore health to his mother, but too late, for when he comes back his mother is dead. Poor boy, it is in vain that he has sacrificed his honour, and while he is still sobbing his heart out, the police come and march him off. But it happens that the magistrate who is going to sentence him is his own father, before whose mind appears the feeling of his own responsibility in leaving him helpless with a helpless woman to fight out as well as they could the terrible fate that he has practically shaped out for them. Therefore the father, understanding at last what he owes to his son, helps the youth to retrieve the past in enabling him to leave for a foreign country.

560ft. The Subject, £9 6s. 8d. Toning extra, 10s.

MRS. BONNY'S SUITORS.

Code Word, "ETRUSQUE."

A manservant having been dismissed, has the following advertisement inserted in the papers as a revenge on his former employer:—"A millionairess wishes to marry a keeper who is fond of angling. Apply to Mrs. Bonny, Castle Montrose." One can easily guess what happens after this advertisement has been read by several men likely to be possessed of the necessary accomplishments.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d. Toning extra, 7s.

FOR THE SAKE OF HIS UNIFORM.

Code Word, "EXPLOIT."

At the gambling-table a young lieutenant is throwing away his last bank-notes. He came there in the hopes of winning something, but not so, he has only increased the amount of his debts instead. To kill himself is the only thing he can think of now, and he slips a revolver into his pocket, but the beautiful scenery all around brightens his hopes, and he throws away his weapon, and goes home. In his father's office he finds the safe open. Temptation is too great for him; he takes a handful of bank-notes. After his departure his parents notice the theft, and their son's strange behaviour enlightens them as to the culprit; but to save his son the father accuses himself of the theft. The young officer, pursued by remorse, accepts in the Colonies a dangerous mission, and the glorious part he takes in an action secures him the military cross, but his wounds are fatal. On his death-bed he confesses to the theft, and entreats his superior officer to forward to his father the cross, showing that he has repented, and which he hopes will win for him his parents' forgiveness.

WATERPROOF WILLIE.

A LUDICROUS AND MOST ORIGINAL FANCY, PERFECTLY AND REALISTICALLY CARRIED OUT.

The troubles of Willie, with whom personal cleanliness amounts to a passion, are faithfully depicted. He yearns to perform a fall toilet, but the water necessary to this purpose always fails him. It pours into the basin, streams from the ceiling, flows in rivers, gathers in ponds, and is ejected from a garden hose, but not for Willie! He remains totally unaffected except by comic despair, and the fun is communicated to the audience.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1908.
Daily Express:—
An interesting illustration of the proverb, "Brevity is the soul of wit," is given in some correspondence between Mr. Robert Arthur, the theatrical manager, and Mr. Lennox Pawle, published by the latter in "The Era" Annual for 1908.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1908.
Morning Advertiser, Jan. 20:—
That very useful, one might with truth add indispensable, publication, "The Era" Annual, has once again made its welcome appearance, and once again it is crowded with information concerning the theatrical doings of the past year. Those who purchase it (it is sold at the modest price of 1s.) will have in their possession a complete and succinct history of the year's drama in this country, and a record of the plays produced in Paris and Berlin. As an appetising hors d'œuvre to the solid information, the book contains a number of interesting short stories and amusing anecdotes by well-known actors and theatrical managers.

THE NEW GAIETY THEATRE, LEITH.

BY PUBLIC ROUP, WITHIN
DOWELL'S ROOMS, GEORGE ST., EDINBURGH,
On Wednesday, September 30th, 1908,
at 2 o'clock afternoon,

THE NEW GAIETY THEATRE, KIRKGATE, LEITH.

This is the only theatre in Leith, and a few years ago it was re-built, fitted up, and equipped in a modern and first-class style. Since then the theatre has been well patronised.

There will also be exposed along with the theatre a TENEMENT of HOUSES in the KIRKGATE, Leith, which was purchased to enable the entrance to the theatre to be improved, and which yields an annual rental of £82 15s. UPSET PRICE for both properties £11,500.

For further particulars apply to Mr. R. A. CRAIG, C.A., 22, York Place, Edinburgh, or to Messrs. REID and MILNE, W.S., 2, Thistle Court, Edinburgh, who will exhibit the articles and conditions of roup and sale.

132nd PERFORMANCE.
An All Star Cast.
The Manchester Courier, Sept. 15, says:
Patrons of the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, are given a treat this week, the musical comedy "The Flower Girl" being one of the smartest things of its kind going.
The Manchester Evening News, Sept. 15, says:
Plenty of fun, good singing, and dancing make "The Flower Girl," which is presented by Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company, a very attractive play. The company all-round is a good one, and the performance goes with an excellent swing.
Birmingham Post says:
The piece has not had the advantage of a run in London, and it made its appearance in Birmingham without the aid of well-known sponsors, but it made a more favourable impression on last night's audience than many productions from West End houses which have been heralded by a great flourish of trumpets. "The Flower Girl" is a pleasant surprise. A bright and breezy entertainment.
Birmingham Gazette says:
"The Flower Girl" made her début at the Prince of Wales'. The event can undoubtedly be written down as a success. Mr. W. T. Gliddon has written a clever little comedy, abounding in catchy songs and charming choruses, replete with wholesome fun and smart quips, spiced with topical gags, and pitched amidst delightful scenes. Then there is a touch of romance and a reasonable dash of sentiment—everything that goes to the making of a pleasing comedy, as a matter of fact, and a full house was unstinted in its warm appreciation. The scenery was picturesque and new, the dresses were bright and effective, the chorus was powerful, and the dancing excellent—altogether a refreshing and successful production.
Birmingham Dispatch says:
The first act was laid in Trafalgar Square, and it is doubtful whether the lions guarding Nelson's column ever looked down on such good humour and gay dresses, whilst Nelson must have been stirred by such a bevy of beauties at his feet. Act II. was performed amidst even more up-to-date surroundings, the Italian Gardens at the Franco-British. The scenes, then, were new, the dresses charming, the chorus powerful, the songs catchy and topical, and the music inspiriting; indeed, "The Flower Girl," as it made its first appearance in Birmingham, can be placed among the successes.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ARGYLE STREET, BIRKENHEAD

The only First-class Theatre in the Town, and the PREMIER THEATRE of Cheshire.

Acknowledged by all who have seen it as one of the HANDSOMEST THEATRES IN GREAT BRITAIN.

I do not say it is the Largest Theatre on earth, but it has recently held over 2000 persons, and in money the gross receipts for one night were £131 3s. 6d., and at a matinée recently the takings were £125 4s.

This theatre is situated in the main thoroughfare of the town, and all the electric tramcars stop at the theatre doors.

The advertising department is under the immediate control of the Hustler himself, and if he don't know how to advertise a theatre or a play properly, who does?

I control my own hoardings, and will post any quantity of printing up to 10,000 sheets, so the more printing the companies supply the better I shall be pleased, and the bigger will be the takings.

Nothing but first-class attractions are played in this Theatre, as the following bookings and pencillings for this season will readily confirm:—
"The Merry Widow."
"Belle of New York."
Birkenhead Dramatic Co., 2 Engagements annually.
Clifton Operatic Society, in Gilbert and Sullivan's Operas.
"A Chinese Honeymoon."
"With Edged Tools."
"The Gay Gordons."

ACTING AND GENIUS.

The question as to whether a great actor should be a genius is dealt with in Munsey's Magazine by Brander Matthews, Professor of Dramatic Literature in Columbia University, and author of several plays. "The two things that sharply distinguish the actor from all other artists, except the orator," writes Mr. Matthews, "are the twin facts that he must do his work in public and that he must do it with his own person. The actor works in the presence of the public, and the material of his art is himself. This accounts for the acuter sensitiveness of the actor to criticism. It is easy enough to discuss what the poet has done, or the painter, without personal comment. But how is it possible to separate the art of the actor from his personality? How can the artist and the man be disentangled? How may an adverse comment on the performance of a part avoid the appearance of an adverse comment on the personal characteristics of the human being who has put himself inside the character?"

That an actor must be a specialist is the conviction which Mr. Matthews proceeds to prove. "To win a fair proportion of popular approval," he says, "an actor needs only an attractive personality and a modicum of the mimetic faculty—of the special aptitude for the stage, which is as distinct a gift as the aptitude for story-telling, for making verses, or for acquiring money. The successful actor may happen also to be a man of wide intelligence, as Garrick was, and as M. Coquelin is; but he is no more likely to have acute intellect than a successful novelist or a successful business man. The special aptitude of the actor may be accompanied by ability in other directions; but the possession of the special aptitude is not evidence that he has also the wider intelligence.

"What the actor must have if he is to rise high in his art is not general intelligence, but the special intelligence of his own art, the intuitive understanding of its possibilities and of its limitations, the clear insight into its principles and the power swiftly to apply them. That he should always be conscious of the full effect of what he does, that he should always know just why he does it—this is not at all necessary, for often the best work of the artist is instinctive. He does what he does because that is indeed the only way for him to do it. There is no need that he should be conscious of his processes, or that he should be able to trace the steps that led him to the satisfactory result. Like all other artists, the actor is greatest in his achievement when he has builded better than he knew. His native aptitude and his artistic training enable him to produce an impression which often seems to be the result of pure intellectual power. The actor needs to have under control not only his gestures and his tones, but all other means of simulating sensibility; and these should be ready for use at all times, wholly independent of the words of the text."

The need of a guiding hand even to a matured player is insisted on. "The mere possession of all the tools of his trade does not of itself make the craftsman. The means of expression, however ample and however varied, are useless unless there is something to express—and something which it is worth while to express. Many an actor strong in execution is weak in conception. He does not know what it is best for him to do, though he knows how to do it when the best is shown to him. He needs guidance and he cannot steer himself, although he is certain to make a swift trip if only his course is directed by a wiser head.

"Here is the duty and the opportunity of the dramatist himself, or of the producer of the play, who need not be much of an actor, but who must know how the play ought to be acted in every part, and who can suggest to the several performers the various effects they are to accomplish. It may sound like a paradox to assert that the author, who often cannot act at all, can yet teach the actors, who are his masters in this art; but this is exactly what he may have to do.

"Sometimes, it is true, the playwright may be also an accomplished actor; and the result of this combination is generally very advantageous.

"Performers of the highest distinction have sometimes been indebted to a teacher who lighted the path that else they would have trodden in darkness. This dependence of the performer on the trainer has been excellently seized by Thackeray in "Pendennis," wherein we are shown how Little Bowes, the fiddler, had taught the lovely Miss Fotheringay; how he was the organist, and how she was the instrument whose music was evoked by him, hidden and unsuspected.

"Finer actresses by far than the adored Miss Fotheringay have owed much to a trainer in the background. Even the great Mrs. Siddons was often indebted for her novel effects to the inventive brain of her brother, John Philip Kemble. His, for example, was her startling point in Henry VIII., when Queen Katherine throws full in Wolsey's face her 'To you I speak!'

"The great Rachel, again, was the pupil of Samson, a little comic actor, who yet was able to teach her how to attain to the loftiest heights of tragedy. She used to say that she was 'lame on one side' until Samson had shown her what to do with a part. Legouvé has recorded how she turned to Samson during one of the rehearsals of Adrienne Lecouvreur, and, in the presence of her assembled comrades, expressed her gratitude to the man who had shown her how to get the best out of herself.

"Everyone at all familiar with the inner history of the stage in Great Britain and the United States during the last quarter of the nineteenth century is aware that two of the actresses who held a foremost position in the theatre of both countries were each of them immensely indebted to the constant counsel of two of their professional associates.

"When the keen artistic intelligence and the rich emotional instrument happen to be in the possession of the same person," concludes Mr. Matthews, "then the world is likely to have another great actor. The intelligence alone will not suffice, or else Shakespeare would have been the foremost actor of his day, and not Burbage. The emotion alone will not do it, unless it can express itself adequately by voice and look and gesture—'the actor's symbols,' as Lewes calls them, through which he makes intelligible the emotions of the character he is personating. 'No amount of sensibility will avail unless it can express itself adequately by these symbols,' Lewes adds: 'It is not enough for an actor to feel, he must represent. He must express his feelings in symbols universally intelligible and affecting.'

"If we may rely on the testimony of Lewes himself, actors as prominent as Macready and Charles Kean—men of intelligence and of character, both of them—did not really attain to the highest altitudes of their art because of their defective control of these symbols, the result of purely physical disadvantages.

"As we study the long annals of the theatre, striving to ascertain what player most certainly combined in himself all the attributes of a truly great actor, we are likely to be led to the conclusion that no one has a better claim to the supreme chieftainship of the histrionic art than David Garrick, equally powerful in comedy and in tragedy, and as warmly welcomed in France as he was highly esteemed in England. In our own day we have been fortunate in the privilege of studying two masters of the stage, Jefferson and Coquelin, probably as accomplished and as richly endowed as any of their predecessors in the theatre, gifted by nature and trained by art."

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Miss Winifred Chalmers' company, including Mr. Henry L. Osmond, is here this week in The Master Criminal. Mr. H. L. Osmond's impersonation of the title-rôle was intensely dramatic and convincing; Mr. J. C. Carlyle gave a capital performance of the Detective; and Philip Manners was well played by Mr. Edward Avinal. Miss Violet Lytton presented a good study of Mabel Manners; Miss Winifred Chalmers portrayed with power and distinction the part of Cecile; much laughter was caused by the combined efforts of Miss Mabel Tremere as Peggy Perks and Mr. Harry Cook as Tommy Dale; and another part that is very well handled is that of Gentleman Jim by Mr. Chas. Tolcher.

ABERDEEN.—H. M. THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The new version of The Christian is played this week by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Mr. Henry Renouf appears as John Storm with conspicuous success; Miss Doris Gilham makes a vivacious Glory; Mr. George R. Mountford acts skilfully the part of Lord Robert Ure; and Mr. Oswald Marshall gives a quiet but finished portraiture of Horatio Drake. The smaller parts are capably filled.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The amusing sketch The House of Tinn is acted with unflagging vivacity by Mr. J. Gar Kiddie and company; Mr. Whit Cunliffe repeats his success of last week; the Royal Tokio Company are singularly expert equilibrists; and among other members of the combination who are well received are Mr. Harry Marte, vocalist and dancer; Miss Lily Burnand, a sprightly comedienne; Mr. Harry Lisbon and Mr. Bert Barker, eccentric comedians, with some very clever business; the Sisters Marion, excellent vocalists; and Dusty Rhodes, the well-known comedian.

BEACH PAVILION.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. David Thomson.—The company this week includes Mr. Percy Maye, a clever female impersonator; Miss Violet Davidson, soprano; Mr. David Thomson, humorist; and Mr. Jack Marson, vocalist and raconteur. All the turns are heartily applauded. A fine selection of pictures is shown by the London Safety Bioscope Company

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL. — Proprietor, Mr. John Sinclair; General-Manager, Mr. George B. Lee.—Mr. H. C. Bostock appears on the scene of his many past triumphs this week. The veteran is heartily encored. Among the other members of the company are Mr. Dan Fraser, Scottish comedian; Miss Nellie Elliene, a vivacious soubrette; and Miss G. Stewart, a fine soprano.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—Included in the companies that appeared at the four performances given by the Empire lessees on Monday (the local autumn holiday) were Mr. G. W. Fyvie, comedian; Mr. Arthur Bright, vocalist; Prof. Monty, conjurer; Miss Jennie Bunting, singer and dancer; Miss Marguerite Lowe, soprano and entertainer; Miss Marie Rose, vocalist and dancer; Scotch Kriss, comedian; Miss Kate Morgan, soprano; and Miss May Calder.

MR. DOVE PATERSON continues to conduct the Gaiety with marked success. The principal of his cinematograms this week depicts the wonders and glories of the Franco-British Exhibition. Mons. Beaute, the fasting man, is now in the third week of his forty-three days' fast at Mr. Humber's waxwork saloon. There seems to be little doubt but that he will successfully accomplish his feat. The attractions of the house are increased by the engagement of Aaron Moore, a coloured giant 7ft. 6in. in height, with a ready tongue in his head.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—The Prodigal Parson is being admirably presented here this week by Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod's company. The title-rôle is portrayed in a clever manner by Mr. Logan Darragh; Mr. Alfred Northway gives a fine impersonation of Enoch Jaggins; Mr. Charles Ashwell does justice in the part of Ben Jaggins; Fern Godley, the parson's wife, is played in a natural and charming way by Miss Violet Hammersley; Mr. Owen Remonde as Phil Drive supplies the comedy with Miss Alice Buckland, a capital Gretchen.

PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—The Mariners of England is being presented here by Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company. As Lord Nelson Mr. Ernest R. Abbott gives a highly successful impersonation; and Miss Ada Abbott as Mabel Talbot wins high appreciation.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—A crowded house welcomed the return visit on Monday of Mr. Walter Melville's company in The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning. Mr. F. Ronald Adair depicts the rôle of Willie Mason in an admirable manner; Jack Fenton is capably portrayed by Mr. Frank R. Robertson; Mr. Raymond Wood displays power in the part of James Harcourt; Mr. Sidney Sarl is effective as Bill Slater; and Mr. Frank Denis sustains the part of Richard Fenton creditably. Miss Jessie Belmore is a sympathetic Sophie; Miss Zoe Davis a commendable Lucy Coventry; and Vesta Le Clere is acted with ability by Miss Nannie Meade. Comedy relief is afforded by Mr. Fred Ingham and Miss Marie Kildare as Johnny Walker and Poppy Fitzgerald.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—The Merry Widow, with its captivating music and exhilarating comedy, has a reputation that is fully maintained here on a first visit, a packed house greeting the talented company on Monday night. Miss Mysie Devine's is a charming and chic portrayal of the name-rôle, and her graceful dancing is one of the features of the rôle, whilst her fine conception of the wiles of women is clever; Mr. Frank Greene (who is a brother of Evie Greene) is a dashing Prince, and in his personation of the willing, yet unwilling, lover, he fills a difficult part in a talented manner, whilst his "last dance" with Miss Devine in the second act is one of the hits of the play; Mr. Edward D'Arcy keeps the audience in roars of laughter with his caustic wit and infectious humour as the Baron; Mr. Ripley Evans is the possessor of a fine tenor voice, which is heard to advantage in the numbers allotted to his part of Jolidon; M. de St. Brioche is in the capable hands of Mr. F. W. Pedgrift, who has an exceptionally pleasing baritone voice; another cleverly-played rôle is Mr. Fred Fowler's Nisch; Mr. Wm. Allison's Marquis is a capable enactment; and as the General Mr. Clifford Seyler is particularly good; whilst Messrs. R. Needham and Bert Edwards are capable. Miss Ada Thomas is a delightful Natalie.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Van Biene and Traynor's company are appearing here in the play entitled Man and Wife. Mr. Jno. F. Traynor gives a manly interpretation of Paul Revere; and Miss Kate Hallam as Marcelle appeals to the hearts of all. The evil genius of the play is Captain D'Esparre, and Mr. Edward M. Hamilton makes him a military despot of the most cruel and vindictive character. Mr. George Overs as the cripple boy, Jean, wins the sympathy of the audience; Colonel Latour and Sergt. Jacques are important factors in the action as interpreted by Messrs. Geo. Rammell and Ambrose Horton. Good work is also done by Messrs. E. Hall-Eldon and Geo. Vinning. Mr. E. Leslie is prominent as Father Coupe; and other characters find adequate exponents in Messrs. Phillips, Harcourt, Ralph, and Best. A touching depiction of the blind mother, Ruth Revere, is given by Miss Violet Temple. Rosette is vivaciously portrayed by Miss Millie Doris.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—The leading item of the week's bill is An Airship Elopement, played by Aeronauts with a real motor-car and wonderful cloud and storm effects. Greener, the pit lad, in some of his popular ditties, is well received; the ventriloquist, Baddow, affords considerable amusement; Fred S. Peake and company are reappearing here with the historical dramatic sketch The Hypocrite, an exciting episode of Charles I.'s reign; Celesi gives a sensational wire act; and Kendrick and Laura appear in a diverting and dainty interlude. Ibon-Obed, equilibrist, proves an interesting performer. The Bioscope is brought into greater requisition than usual.

PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Cinematograph Co.—The old Star Theatre, long closed, has reopened its doors, the interior and exterior having been renovated and decorated. The entertainments are to be animated picture exhibitions, with variety "turns."

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—A most interesting series of animated pictures are shown here this week, the most prominent being Father and Son, a military episode; The Mysterious Letter-box, At a Select Hotel, Bear Hunting in Russia, His First Top-coat, and Romeo and Juliet. Mr. W. H. Gatty, in the second week of his engagement here, is meeting with much success in his illustrated songs.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Pease; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—The Five Saxonias evoke applause for their instrumentalism; and other turns are contributed by Miss Rosie Coleman, comedienne and dancer; Carlo Bianchi, foot equilibrist and juggler; Mr. Harry Conlin, comedian; the Bedini Trio of pantomimists; Master Charlie Carr, comedian and dancer; Willard's Marionettes; and the Attergraph pictures.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—This week the theatre is occupied by Dr. Walford Bodie and company. The Doctor is a host in himself, and his "turn" is a drawing feature. His company is an entertaining one. Little Dolly Robson, one of the Doctor's "cures," sang several catchy songs; Mabel Martin was exceptionally good, as was also Bella Skene. The dancers and comedians, Brothers Baxter, gave great satisfaction; Francisco, in his juggling act, was clever, and Li Chang Hi mystifying in the extreme.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors,—The Long Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Lovers of Shakespeare here have had a rich treat by the visit of Mr. F. R. Benson's North company, who fulfilled a three nights' engagement. The production of Twelfth Night created great interest, and enthusiastic audiences expressed keen appreciation of the high order of the acting. Miss Violet Farebrother created an excellent impression by her powerful rendering of Olivia; Miss Gladys Vanderzee gave a distinctive and engaging interpretation of Viola; and the skittish Maria was capitally undertaken by Miss May De Launey. A vigorous portrayal of Orsino was provided by Mr. Bernard Limpus; Mr. James Berry and Mr. Everard Vanderlip imparted a piquant touch to the representation of Sir Toby and Sir Andrew; Mr. Arthur Fayne also distinguished himself as the Clown; and Mr. Henry Herbert scored a conspicuous success by his extremely clever impersonation of Malvolio. The Merchant of Venice, Merry Wives of Windsor, and Julius Cæsar were also produced by the same company.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company opened here with Maritana this week. Miss Christine Gomez makes an engaging heroine, singing and acting prettily; Mr. J. W. Turner is a capital and spirited Don Cæsar; and Mr. Tom Griffiths as Don José and Mr. Frank Clark as the King of Spain both do well; while Miss Jessie Dennis is a winning Lazarillo.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Tom H. Taylor's company in Is Life Worth Living? is here. Miss Lillian Earle is a pleasing Madge Roxton; and Miss Jeannie Burgoyne a capital Isabel Crosbie. Mr. Ernest Owttrim as Lionel Ray is exceptionally good; and Mr. Herbert Hollister is the polished villain as Randolph Kerr.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—At the top of the bill is Maude Mortimer, who scores a success. Roars of laughter greet the comedy duologue Two Sides of the Wall, by Nightingale and Stigant; a clever and amusing acrobatic turn is given by Cummin and Seaham; Alec Kendall is a talented comedian; Staffo, the butcher-boy juggler, is a capital turn; Lorne and Lorne are very good in their song-scena, Capital and Labour; the Laura Brothers give a skilful gymnastic turn; and some fine pictures by Vernon's Bioscope conclude.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—A most interesting picture entertainment is drawing large houses here this week. The programme is interspersed by some capital songs by Mr. James Bassett.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—Mr. F. G. Kimberley presented A Soldier's Honour on Monday to a crowded house. As Captain Deane Mr. Kimberley was excellent; and the Captain Temple of Mr. J. Ellis was well acted. Mr. H. Percy made a truculent villain. The comedy parts were well placed with Messrs. H. Lyndon, F. Newburn, and Miss Bales respectively.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The Private Secretary is once again causing the usual hearty laughter to old and new playgoers. Mr. Eugene C. Stafford fortunately retains the services of Mr. Donald Price-Evans (Spalding), Mr. W. Hargreaves (Cattermole), Mr. Frederick Tyrrell (Gibson), and Mrs. Alfred Davis (Miss Ashford) in the rôles they have now practically made their own. Mr. Frank Stanley is capital as Mr. Marsland; Miss Cecily Wade worthily enacts Mrs. Stead; and Mr. Andrew Wight, Mr. Lawrence Grove, Miss Dorothy Ripley, and Miss Edith M. Savery appear creditably as the four young people. The Wild Man from Borneo precedes.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Sahib Gustave Fasola is creating wonderment by his bewildering mysteries; Sybil Montague is an admirable vocalist; the Millicent Frères perform clever trapeze feats; Marie Jones, supported by Mr. Ernest Munro, presents a smartly-worked protean duologue, The Way to Win a Bet; Violet Nunn, coon singer, is a favourite; Thornbury gives his admirable smoke painting and ventriloquial act; Edwardes and Dacre please in their comedy act What a Life; Raymond's Bio-Tableaux remains a fixed attraction.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—There was a full house at the above on Monday night, when Mr. Wentworth Croke's company presented, with much success, Hall Caine's Prodigal Son. Mr. Hugh Montgomery gives a powerful portrayal of the noble and unselfish Magnus; Mr. Gordon Mackintosh is very fine as Oscar Stephensson; and Mr. Charles Cooper is a dignified Stephen. Miss Barbara Gott is an excellent Anna; Miss Marie Harcourt causes some fun as Margaret; Miss Mildred Cottell is good as the scheming Helga; and Miss Valerie Crespin undertakes the dual rôle of Thora and Elin with grace and pathos. Mr. Philip Renouf is natural as Oscar Neilson, and the numerous other characters are ably impersonated.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Hardie and Von Leer's company opened here on Monday with the celebrated play Two Little Vagabonds. Mr. Richard A. Greene was thoroughly capable as George Thornton, and Miss Florence Dalton—a good emotional actress—furnished an exceedingly clever interpretation of the injured wife Marion Thornton, her acting throughout being worthy of much praise. The rôles of Dick and Wally could hardly be in better hands than those of Miss Denise Zaleski and Miss Alice Leon; Mr. Arthur E. Melborne was quite successful as Captain Darville, and Miss Marion Fawcett furnished a skilful impersonation of Barbara Scarth. The humour of the piece was interpreted by Miss Marie Pritchard and Mr. Martin Sands, who were very funny as Biddy Mullins and Bill Mullins; and Mr. Fred Archer also contributed to the humour by his unexaggerated interpretation of the Coughdrop. Mr. Joseph Brandon was excellent as John Scarth; and other rôles were effectively presented by Miss Ida Drayton, Miss Dorothy Hart, and Messrs. Stanley Field, Frank G. Kent, John Humber, &c.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Lew Lake and company again top the bill, and present their comedy drama, My Pal Jerry, with every element of success. The trick cycling of the Westwoods is certainly marvellous, and the sweet tenor vocalism of Mr. Arthur Hickman has been enthusiastically received. Miss Mamie Fenton is a very capable Scotch comedienne with good songs, and Mr. Mark Leslie an excellent swell coon; Miss Marie Blythe, comedienne, and the Palace pictures complete a good bill. The picture matinées at this theatre on Saturday afternoons are receiving a large measure of support.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Will Sley and Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs. The chief position here is held by Harry Roxbury and company, who present their musical mélange The Prince of Monte Carlo, which has created roars of laughter. The juggling feats of the American juggler, Harry Friskey, are quite amazing; and Mr. Victor Courtney's performance at the piano is clever. The Days, in their second-sight performance, are deserving of much praise; and Mr. W. E. Gillin's ventriloquial act is undoubtedly one of the best before the public. The Canadian Trio in their vocal comedy act take well, and the Four Sisters Gilby play a number of musical instruments cleverly. Also here are Willie and Johnnie, good balancers and acrobats; Woodhouse and Wells, comedians and dancers, and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The Gothams top the bill, and this talented combination delight all with their comedy and capital vocalism. As a mimic, Mr. George Newburn has few equals; and Harry Rogers and company appear to the utmost advantage in their dramatic episode, Told in a Flat, which is well acted and staged. The fine vocalism of Mr. W. H. Downs, the coloured ballad vocalist, has afforded much pleasure; and Miss Elsie Kerry, a refined comedienne with good songs, made a big hit on Monday. Miss Kathleen Grey is a charming comedienne and dancer. And also here are Wee Mona Vivian, juvenile vocalist and dancer, and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—The good business at this hall continues, thanks to the remarkable energy of the popular manager, Mr. Will White. This week the following films have been exhibited: A Nobleman's Pleasure, Save the Pieces, Getting Rid of His Dog, Distress, Flat Dwellers, Still Worthy of Its Name, and The Poacher's Daughter. Mr. Barney Vox, the clever ventriloquist, appears, and his reception has been gratifying; and Mr. T. C. Callaghan, character comedian, is also here.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The animated pictures exhibited here are aptly announced as unsurpassed for smartness, steadiness, and artistic finish. This week the Electrographic exhibits, under the direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett, the following films, Tragedy of Japan, Lightning Barber, California, Isle of Man Motor Races, The Old Shepherd, &c. In addition Miss Florence Raymond, a smart lady ventriloquist, appears; also Mr. John Cronow, facial expert. With characteristic enterprise the popular manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur, introduced on Friday evening last "Amateur Night," before a crowded house. There were several competitions, and the winner, Mr. Thos. Meharg, will receive a week's engagement at this hall. This innovation on Mr. Arthur's part is bound to be a successful feature.

BILSTON.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Business-Manager, Mr. S. Hadskis Dawson.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is here this week under the direction of Mr. Teddy Myles with the domestic drama An Abandoned Woman. Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam is eminently successful as Ninon Malvoisin, and she is ably seconded by Mr. Wm. Fraser-Brunner as Philip Malvoisin; as Sammy Sharpe, a London street arab, Mr. Victor Garnet-Vayne is very successful; Mr. Teddy Myles works hard as Paddy Boyle, and keeps his audience well amused. Other parts are adequately sustained by Messrs. Herbert M. King and Arthur Curzon, Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner, Miss Alma Curzon, and Little Frances Maddocks.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. Mouillot's No. 1 Company in the comic opera Tom Jones presents a delightful and highly attractive entertainment, and were enthusiastically received here. It would be difficult to find a better exponent of the title-rôle than Mr. Cyril Thompson, who, both histrionically and vocally, acquits himself with great distinction. As Sophia Miss Margaret Stonor gives a charming and unaffected rendering, singing her various numbers with fine finish and effect. Miss Florrie Saunders is prominent with a clever performance of Honor; Mr. Geo. Elton displays genuine humour and ability as Partridge, the village barber; Mr. Fred Seymour is well placed as Squire Western; Mr. Michael Dwyer is a mirth-provoking Gregory; Lady Bellaston is excellently played by Miss Olive Elton; Miss F. McEvoy is a good Miss Western; and Mr. A. J. Nicholls as Mr. Allworthy and Mr. Arthur Radcliffe as Blifil are admirably suited. The chorus is numerous and efficient, and the augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Ernest K. Irvine. The costumes and scenic effects are on a liberal scale.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Quite a galaxy of pronounced favourites at this popular hall are in the bill this week, including Mr. Charles R. Whittle, the popular comic vocalist; the Brothers Egbert, the happy dustmen; Ike and Will Scott, versatile character comedians; Miss May Henderson, the dusky comedy queen, a sure draw here; and the McConnell Trio, vocal comedy sketch artists. Mr. Arthur Aldridge is a tenor of ability; Mr. Wilfred Burnand an entertaining character comedian; Miss Eily Adair a talented comedienne; and Brown's Royal Bioscope complete an excellent company.

OLYMPIAN GARDENS, ROCK FERRY.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Edwin Adeler.—A petite musical comedy, The Gay River, forms an attractive entertainment here. It is capably interpreted by Messrs. Bert Byrne, Frank Dunlop, Dudley Gibson, Charles North, and Mesdames Rayne, Constance Clive, Harriet Fawn, Nora Walker, Nellie Crawford, and Harriet Greene.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Follies, here this week, have brought the theatre-going public face to face with a new form of entertainment, which has proved very popular. The "potted plays" have included A White Man, The Merry Widow, and The Christian, and a burlesque of a benefit matinée, yclept Everybody's Benefit, has given huge delight. Mr. H. G. Pélissier was assisted in his "ideas" by Messrs. Dan Everard, Norman A. Blumé, Lewis Sydney, and Mesdames Gwennie Mars, Muriel George, Dollis Brooke, and Ethel Allandale, all of whom, both solus and in concert, helped to make the entertainment one of excellent parts.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Diana of Dobson's made a most welcome and first appearance here on Monday, with Miss Lena Ashwell in the title-rôle, and both as the shopgirl in revolt and the woman of style and means she carried the audience completely with her. Mr. C. M. Hallard portrayed Captain Bretherton with good style; Mr. Dennis Eadie gave off the self-important and vulgar characteristics of Sir Jabez Grinley with no more than due emphasis; Miss Frances Ivor was well placed as Mrs. Cantelupe; Miss Gertrude Scott came out well as the aristocratic Mrs. White Fraser; Miss Ida Palmer made a cleverly exigent forewoman as Miss Pringle; and Mr. Norman McKinnel was a strong "force" as Constable Fellowes. There was other good support, The Likes o' Me preceding. On Thursday Miss Ashwell appeared as Irene Wycherley.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest. — The Belle of the Ball, here, is another of those light and merry shows which Mr. Collingwood has taken to submitting his patrons. The titular rôle, Poppy, is Cinderella up to date, and as such Miss Gertrude Melville is most charming; the squire lover is portrayed with true gallantry by Mr. Robert Hyett; the step-sisters are made the best of by the Misses Ethel Bertram and Corona L'Estrange; Mr. Chas. Adeson scores as the father, Farmer Jones; Mr. Johnnie Schofield sets the house in a roar with his amusing portrayal of Tibbs; and Mr. Llewellyn C. Hughes, Mr. E. W. Chewd, Miss Vera Grafton, and Miss Florence Watson are good in their parts. A very pretty miniature brougham and ponies to match appear in the play, which is handsomely mounted, and boasts a well-dressed, good-looking chorus.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Convict's Daughter is successful here, with Mr. Frank Bertram's company. Mr. Bertram's acting in the quadruple rôle is well diversified, and evokes great applause; Mr. Walter Graham does well as Harold Trevalyan; Mr. Escott Robson is highly efficient as Jasper Thorn; Miss Lillian Dene is much admired for her charm and tact as Edith; Miss Nellie Waddington gives a clever portrayal of Marion Thorn; and Mr. William Burgess plays the rôle of the banker, Frederick Neville, with fine skill. Mr. Willie Black as Patrick O'Laragan is responsible for much diversion; and Miss Amy Randolph makes a pleasing rôle of the maid, Betty Hyne.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Old Home is presented here by the author, Mr. Roland Yorke, supported by a star company. Mr. Yorke's acting of Lord Avondale is marked with much detail; Mr. Harding Thomas shows his sound qualities as Daddy Deane; Miss Nina Blake-Adams presents an exquisitely-drawn picture of Hazle Deane; Mr. T. W. Dunscombe imparts a fine tone of reality to the character of the Rev. Eric Armstrong; Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite makes a strong part of Bridget Donoghan; Mr. Fred L. Connynghame makes a big success as Sam Adams; and Mr. Jas. L. Air as Timothy Twaddle and Miss Mattie Crawford as Polly Popp support well. Mr. W. Simpson and Mr. Walter Osmond complete the cast. Both play and company have received excellent receptions from crowded houses.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Leah Kleschna is attracting much attention to this house, big "houses" gathering nightly to witness Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's fine presentation of this engrossing play. Mr. William Clayton shows the implacable nature of Kleschna with powerful rays; Mr. Hamilton Deane dignifies the rôle of Paul Sylvanus with many admirable features; Mr. Algernon J. Hicks's acting as Raoul Burton is excellent; Mr. Gilbert Heron makes the rôle of Schram very acceptable; and Mr. Chas. Barrett as General Burton, and also as the journalist, Favre, is good. Miss Bessie Rignold as Leah shows both power and restraint in her acting, which makes her portaayal one of great impressiveness; and the Misses Dorrie Turner, Emmie Wallace, and Ethel Russell afford good support.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Miss Evie Greene is attracting crowded houses here, her charming singing and pleasing style being loudly applauded; May Edouin comes in for a large share of applause for her quick-change burlesque of comic opera; the rich soprano voice of Mavis Clare is highly appreciated; Arthur Playfair and Elly Helene have a smart racing sketch, 327, Finsbury, which is full of humour; Harvey's American Boys and Girls sing and dance themselves into favour; Hugh Barclay, Walker and Lake, Harry Herbert, and the Brumells complete the company.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Horace Golding is mystifying the large audiences here; his tricks are remarkably clever, and deserve the applause they obtain. Barton and Ashley have a new act, Adam the Second, which causes roars of laughter; Daisy James is applauded for her songs, as also is Queenie Llewellyn, who has a sweet, rich voice; Venando, ventriloquist, brings his latest novelty, The Park Pest; and other good turns are done by the Harmony Boys, Tom Woottwell, and Frank and Free, who are all popular.

HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—Happy Holland is on a return visit here. This pretty Dutch operatic sketch, presented by Jake Freedman's company, is more attractive than ever; Diamond and Beatrice charm their audience by their refined musical entertainment, and Violet King renders selections of a high order on the violin; Lillie Soutter is loudly applauded for her songs; Violet Lorraine, John G. Marx, Harry Levaine, Lee and Kingston, and Charles Prelle's Bijou Circus are also in the bill.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Harry Tate, in his latest success, Fishing, is drawing good houses here. He is certainly very amusing, and is loudly applauded. Mysticus presents his entertainment with success; Roze and Calvert have a smart comedy act; and the Raymond Trio, Jessie Lee, Cynthia, Mlle. Sylvesto, and La Martino all do up-to-date turns.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—The pictures here include The Story of Enoch Arden, The Shipowner's Daughter, and several which are most interesting. Jackson and Osman provide a musical entertainment; Dora Denmark sings well; and George Mayo supplies the comedy of the evening.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Wm. Mollison and his répertoire company, including Miss Evelyn McNay, are here this week, and opened to a crowded house on Monday evening in Hamlet. Mr. Mollison played the title-rôle with remarkable ease and ability, and scored a huge success; Mr. Henry Deas was notable for his capital rendering of Cladius; the Ghost was played to perfection by Mr. William Calvert; and Mr. W. A. Mackersy (Polonius), Mr. Archie W. Chappell (Horatio), and Mr. Whitford Kane (Laertes) gave distinct and interesting portrayals of their respective parts. Miss McNay was an excellent Ophelia; and Miss Edith Blair-Staples made a painstaking and thorough Gertrude.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Edward Terry, supported by a very capable company, is paying his annual visit here this week, and meeting with his usual success. Fiander's Widow was played on Monday night, when Mr. Terry portrayed with unerring fidelity the character of Isaac Sharpe. Mr. Edmund Hollick acted well as Richard Marshall; Mr. Kenneth Brampton gave a good account of Sam Belbin; Miss Edith Coleman as Mrs. Fiander and Miss Sophie Lingwood as Mrs. Belbin also played their parts with credit and distinction. Liberty Hall, Sweet Lavender, and The Magistrate have also been represented during the week.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Lady Frederick is presented here this week by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. The title-rôle is played by Mrs. Brown Potter, and Mr. Philip Cuningham is seen to advantage in the part of Paradine Fouldes. Mr. Reginald Van Ranney as Sir Gerald O'Mara and Mr. Cecil Bevan as Captain Montgomerie are satisfactory.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Fred Storey tops the bill here this week, and appears with considerable success as Shylock in an excerpt from The Merchant of Venice. Albert Whelan, the Australian entertainer, is a great favourite; Kelly and Gillette contribute a clever acrobatic turn; Dick Tubb finds favour as an eccentric comedian; Jessie Buckle is a very pleasing comedienne; Jane Eyre sings nicely; Will Van Allen excels as a raconteur; Esmond and Evelyn contribute a sketch; and Louis Kerno appears as a coon delineator.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—The Tyrant is being presented here by Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company. Mr. Somerfield's assumption of Homodei, the avenger, is powerful and impressive; Miss Marie Dagmar gives a telling portrayal of Tisbe; Mr. Roy Fortescue plays the part of the Tyrant cleverly; Miss Margaret as Lady Catherine acts in finished style; Mr. Edward E. Louis gives an interesting picture of Prince Rudolph; Miss Cherry Veheyne is a pleasing Eulie; and Miss Nellie Freeland as Reginella, Mr. Frank Etheridge as Victor, and Mr. Willie Barrett as Nobbo contribute to the success.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A capital company is appearing here this week, the great attraction being Miss Hetty King, male impersonator, who scores heavily at each performance. Other good turns are the Stavordale Quintette in their banjo and harp speciality; Harry Taylor, the Wigan Hebrew comedian; the Sprees in their scena Twickenham Ferry; Maston, Yorkshire mimic; S. and G. Auer in "Jumps, Bumps, and Rags"; W. L. Murray as the "Roman Gladiator"; the Danbys, expert dancers; Cosgrove and Burns in a drawing-room entertainment; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE VARIETIES.—Proprietor Mr, Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—The bill here is headed by Broughton's electric scena, embracing twelve performers, in a series of wonderful electric novelties. Other turns are Amy Elvira, burlesque actress; Captain Kettle, the mysterious sailor; John Renson and Rose Waite, comedy duo; Souplessi, contortionist; Little Joey Sterling, character comedian; Gertrude Martini, chorus and descriptive vocalist; the Four Spanish Goldinis in their novel electrical speciality; "Carpet Spinning Extraordinary"; and the Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—The principal turn this week is Fred Ginnett and Wal Pink's company in their new production of St. George and the Dragon, a pantomime, burlesque, and drama in one, in which Miss Cissie Ward is seen to advantage as St. George of England, as also is Mr. Harry Valdo as Peter the Woodman. Wilkie Bard's company keep the house in a good humour in their comedy songs; Hayman and Franklin, in A Matrimonial Agency, receive hearty applause; Witty Wattie Walton is funny; Baby Vi Davis receives a great ovation; and the other turns worthy of note are Hardy Palm, quaint comedian, and Leah Arden, vocal comedienne.

BOSTON.—THE PALACE.—Licensee, Mr. H. Fountain; Business-Manager, Mr. E. Cass.—This well-known place of amusement reopened on Monday for the season with a very good variety show. Mr. E. Cass, who has taken over the management, is a member of the Bohemian concert company of Skegness, and is a great favourite of the Bostonians. The Sisters Carlton, duettists and dancers; Barry Gilmore, comedian; Jennie Mackay, the possessor of a sweet voice; the Sauterons, in a smart drawing-room act; the Birds, in a display of dancing; Mackay and Cass, operatic duettists; Pongoulla, the human monkey; and the Beautiful Zaiida, the elegant and graceful slack-wire artist, are the chief attractions.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—A most enthusiastic audience greeted Sir John Hare when he made his entrance on Monday as Benjamin Goldfinch, in A Pair of Spectacles. Pleased with so affectionate a reception, the eminent actor appeared to throw his whole heart into the character, and played it as he alone can. Mr. Charles Groves as Uncle Gregory was thoroughly convincing; Mr. Ivo Dawson was easy as Percy; and a capital sketch of Bartholomew was given by Mr. J. H. Brewer; as Dick, Mr. Bertram Steer did well, while the Joyce of Mr. Fred W. Permain and the Lorimer of Mr. W. T. Lovell were capital; Miss Mona K. Oram was quite charming as Mrs. Goldfinch, and as Lucy Lorimer Miss Amy Brandon Thomas acted with much effect. A Quiet Rubber was also given, in which Sir John Hare repeated his well-known impersonation of Lord Kilclare. Mr. Charles Groves, Mr. Ivo Dawson, and Miss Amy Brandon Thomas completed the cast. During the week The Gay Lord Quex was also played.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The Sins of Society, which Mr. F W. Bolam is presenting, is nightly greeted with a storm of applause. Every character in the big cast is adequately played. Mr. Blake Adams as the unpolished but genial James Hogg and Miss Grace E. Leslie as the erring Lady Marion Beaumont stand out with great prominence. Miss Dorothy Giles is very charming as Lady Gwendolen Ashley; the unscrupulous scoundrel Noel Ferrers is represented with coolness and self-possession by Mr. C. F. Collins; Mr. E. Vassall-Vaughan is convincing as Sir Dorion March; Miss Pattie Browne plays Lady Goldbury with delightful buoyancy; and prominent amongst the many excellent character-studies in the drama is the Duchess of Miss Janet Hodson.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is paying yet another visit with the popular drama A Royal Divorce, which is staged with the usual excellence and received with favour. Miss Edith Cole repeats her fine performance of the persecuted Josephine, and awakens the sympathies of her audience; Mr. Keith Fraser presents a well-studied and clever impersonation of Napoleon; and Mr. Percy H. Vernon's Talleyrand, Mr. Stanley Harrison's Marquis de Beaumont, and Mr. G. Hudson's Grimaud are conspicuous efforts in an admirable representation.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—George Auger, the 8ft. giant actor, is a big attraction here this week in an up-to-date well-staged sketch, Jack the Giant Killer, and his lilliputian company includes the smart little comedian Ernest Rommel, who is interesting as Jack. The Griffiths Bros. elicit roars of laughter with their burlesque wrestling; Madge May, comedienne, submits a dainty turn; acrobatic feats by the Lumars are sensational in character and cleverly accomplished; and there is some remarkable somersault throwing by the smart Three Brothers Huxter. Little Ganty is a very funny comedian who elicits laughter; Ernie Mayne, too, is droll; Harry Drew, Welsh basso, sings with power; and there are some diverting pictures shown by the American Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—The special attraction here this week is a Beauty Show and Hair Competition, which is exciting much interest. William Garland and Fred Douglas's company of coloured artists in A Trip to Coon-town provide an animated and amusing entertainment; Annie Heath is a graceful dancer and comedienne; as a coach-horn blower and cornet player D. W. Watson is good; Lillie Lassah is a dainty and attractive vocalist; Elmo and Regs are good comedy acrobats; Jimmy Laurie is responsible for some excellent comedy; Kelly and Ashby in Fun in a Billiard Room do some novel and clever work; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are entertaining.

BRIDLINGTON. — ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE. — Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. Norfolk Megone's municipal orchestra is presenting some special programmes this week in the Grand Pavilion. Mr. Harry White's violin solos have been a source of delight, as have also the solos of Herr Sassbach. The vocalist this week is Mme. Naomi Odille Bell, a charming soprano. Mr. H. Flockton-Foster and his talented costume comedy company finished up their season's engagements on Saturday night, when they had a crowded house, and submitted a monster programme.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—The Hollanders, a clever company of entertainers are appearing in the Opera House this week and drawing crowded houses. Miss Beatrice Rowe charms with her songs at the piano; Miss Marie Merton possesses a fine soprano voice; Miss Elsa Brettingham is a clever song and dance artist; Mr. Alec S. Clowes possesses a fine baritone voice; Mr. Dick Henty in his humorous songs is most amusing; and Mr. Harry Buss is a clever comedian.

SUMMER GARDENS. — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Chas. Beanland. —The Waterloo Pierrots finished their season on Saturday night, when they gave a big farewell programme; and at the close a grand beauty show was held, valuable prizes being given for the most beautiful ladies present at the entertainment.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—The stirring drama Two Little Sailor Boys is performed here this week by Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company. Mr. H. E. Herbert submits an admirable impersonation of Commander Noel Tregarthen; Miss Muriel Dean is a charming Mildred Grey; Miss Blanche Steele displays great dramatic ability as Lola Grey; Mr. Horace Booth gives a forcible representation of Lieut. Richard Redstone; Miss Ivy Millais and Miss Effie Crawford are well placed as the two boys; and much amusement is afforded by Tom E. Sinclair as Ben Baxter, Mr. Fred Acton as Jolly Jack, and Miss Lizzie Chambers as Lucy Wilson. Others who merit praise include Mr. H. M. Clifford (Captain Tom Yorke), Mr. C. W. Spencer (Admiral Grey), Mr. Sydney Fiennes (Jim Royston), and Miss Lily Nichols (Mary Primrose).

ALHAMBRA.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—Miss Margaret Cooper is re-engaged here, but, owing to a Royal command, was absent on Monday evening. The services of Mrs. Lewis Waller and Miss Winsome Mayde were secured, the former being highly successful with her choice selection of poems, and the latter in the Dagger Dance of Peshawur; Francini, Olloms, and Page give a capital acrobatic and equilibrist turn, introducing concertina and xylophone selections; Gertie Gitana sings in excellent style; Jack Lane's original comedy is warmly appreciated; Walter Ellis and company are very diverting in the playlet, The Sleep Walker; the Czar's Royal Troupe contribute whirlwind and fantastic dances; Will 'e Stopit? is a pleasing eccentric; Philips and Merritt are refined entertainers; Sam Redfern, "the black philosopher," is very humorous; and the Alhambrascope pictures are, as usual, interesting and amusing.

WEST PIER.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company, under the direction of Mr. Silvanus Dauncey, is here this week, with The Hypocrites. Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton gives an admirable portrayal of the Rev. Edgar Linnell; Mr. John Dennys presents a good character study as Lennard Wilmore; Miss Muriel Pope imparts much sympathy to her impersonation of Rachel Neve; Miss Muriel Mason is highly pleasing as Helen Plugenet; Miss Laura Groves is admirably suited as the devoted mother, Mrs. Wilmore; Mr. Frederick Morland as the lawyer, Mr. Viveash, is very successful; and Mr. Charles Tyrel's Sir John Plugenet, Miss Sybil Brooke's Mrs. Blaney, Mr. E. H. Ruston's Mr. Wilmore, and Mr. F. G. Thurstans' Rev. Everard Daubeney also merit commendation.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Mr. Arthur Hare and company are here this week with The Importance of Being Earnest. Mr. Arthur Hare gives an excellent representation of Jack Worthing; Mr. Cyril Scott makes an admirable Algy Moncrieff; Mr. Morton Francis acquits himself ably as Canon Chasuble; Miss Olive Wilton's Gwendoline Fairfax is a fine protrayal; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is conspicuously effective as Lady Bracknell; Miss Una Mainwaring does well as Cecily Cardew; and Miss Kate Wingfield makes the most of her opportunities as Miss Prism.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Fred Bauer.—An excellent series of animated pictures is submitted here this week. The unhappy career of Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots, is admirably represented; a telling story is conveyed by Grandfather's Birthday, and The Blacksmith's Daughter and The Guardian of the Bank possess great dramatic interest. Much amusement is afforded by The Doorkeeper's Substitute, The Universal Flirt, A Quiet Day at the Café, The Artist's Nightmare, and Hurry Up, Please!

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—A return visit of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch is proving attractive. Mrs. Madge Carr Cook's inimitable impersonation of the quaint but kindly Mrs. Wiggs obtained the utmost appreciation on Monday; Miss Rita Carlyle was most amusing as Miss Hazy; Mr. Frederick Forrest was entertaining as Stubbins; Miss Christine Rayner acted in pleasing style as Lovey Mary; Mr. Walter M. Cameron made the most of Mr. Wiggs; and other important parts were carefully taken by Mr. Edward Coventry, Miss Mabel Durrant, and Miss Violet Vivian. The play is effectively staged.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Straight from the Shoulder is being well played by Mr. R. A. Roberts's principal company, the drama being staged exceptionally well. Mr. Mathew Boulton acts remarkably well as Dr. Francis Bedford; Miss Beatrice Burdett is pleasingly sympathetic as Millicent Grant; Mr. Leonard Clarke displays considerable power as David Gleeson; Miss Frances Bruce is admirable as Mary Gleeson; Miss Edie Casson acts cleverly as Miss Brittle; Miss Beatrice Moore is sufficiently vivacious as Gladys Brittle; Mr. George H. Child presents a capable study of the Rev. John Armitage; Mr. George Fisher is well placed as Fred Stafford; and the remaining parts are all carefully played.

PALACE — Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Ten Loonies head the bill successfully with their funny musical sketch Dotty. Cromo and Hamilton score in their novelty act, Artful Aladdin; Clack and Clack, lady acrobatic barrel jumpers, are exceptionally smart; Webb and Edna Branston are capable operatic duettists; Donna Morgan pleases with her song scena, Miss Carnation; Sivroni, assisted by Amy Broughton, scores in his comedy act, Mixtures; and Horace Jones, Anglo-Welsh character comedian, obtains appreciation. The performance concludes with a good set of films, Uncle's Rejected Present, depicted by Vernon's bioscope.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire. — Fred Maxwell, Lois du Cane, and company successfully present an interesting dramatic sketch, entitled The Revolution, the setting being elaborate; the Venetians supply excellent singing amid picturesque surroundings; the Empire Trio, who are also fine vocalists, excel in their comedy act Park Pets; the Dancing Gilberts are exceptionally clever; Violet Ashcroft is a pleasing vocal comedienne; George S. Melvin, Scotch comedian, dances a Highland fling in clever style; Jade Crawley amuses with song and patter; Dan Thomas scores as a character comedian; and Frank Sley and Nipper excel as clog-dancers and comedians. The performance concludes with a good selection of animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—Ralph Pringle's animated pictures and variety entertainment is still attracting good houses. This week the speciality films include The Guardian of the Bank, The Eucharist Congress, and The Chieftain's Revenge.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—The comic opera, Amasis, with its beautiful Egyptian scenery and effects drew a good house on Monday. Miss Winifred O'Connor sings and acts charmingly as the Princess Amasis; and Prince Anhotep is a fine hero in the hands of Mr. Edward McKeown. Very good character studies are made by Mr. Arthur Stroud as Cheiro, Mr. Fred Hudson as Nebenchairi, Mr. Frank Atree as the Court Embalmer, and Mr. Frank Wood as Psamtik. Mr. W. H. Denny is very diverting as Pharaoh, and he is ably assisted by Mr. Walter D. Brodie as Sebak.

THE WHITE CITY, OLD TRAFFORD.—Countess Romanoff continues to be one of the chief attractions this week, with her charming dancing, including the famous "Salome" dance. On the 26th inst. a large number of Baden-Powell Boy Scouts and boy and girl naval and life-saving brigades attended in this amusement park for inspection, and afterwards went through numerous manœuvres to the satisfaction of crowds of visitors.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A welcome reappearance of Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's company in A Message from Mars is delighting the audiences here. Mr. Wallace Widdicombe gives a new and pleasing reading of the rôle of Horace Parker, and Miss Flora Hastings repeats her success as Aunt Martha; Mr. W. H. Brougham makes a commanding figure of the Messenger, and Miss Rose Helene is a delightful personality as Minnie; Mr. Norman Clark as the Tramp and Mr. Robert Grey as Arthur Dicey are admirable, and the remaining small parts are capitally performed.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Seven Perezoffs, in their Animated Supper at Maxime's, please the house with their clever exhibition of juggling; the Holloways perform a number of daring and difficult feats on the tight-wire, which call forth great appreciation; and the Stuart Bros. are acrobats with skill and humour. The Soho Trio introduce good singing and dancing, and Victor and Louis are capital comedians. Another pleasing turn is that of Ida Kathrena, "the dolly girl," and Marie Kay, juvenile comedienne, does well; Millie Howell suits with descriptive songs, and the Empire Theatroscope is up-to-date.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Fred Karno's popular Dandy Thieves heads the programme here; Mr. George Hestor takes the rôle of Sergeant Lightning, and keeps the house very merry; Flash Jack and Lady Maude are capitally rendered by Mr. Frank Moreton and Miss Anita Penrose respectively; Hayes and Merritt display skill interspersed with fun in their bouncing turn; Bert Kemble, comedian, is good, and Helen Charles is a charming versatile entertainer; Rose Sartella is a good vocalist with a tasteful rendering of "Dreamland," and Chas. F. Best, contortionist, as McBunker the Mountebank is responsible for many laughs. The Brokers' Man in Trouble is shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—The Lancashire Lad is being presented by G. Carlton Wallace's company this week. Mr. Aleo Alexander finds a congenial rôle as the hero, David Elmore; the part of the heroine, Jessie, is played with natural ease and pathos by Miss Stanley Burt; callous villainy has capable exponents in Mr. T. G. Vane (Max Carlton) and Miss Nell Oliver (Lorna Wincote); and Mr. Percy Maitland is well placed as Jem Wincote. A group of mill hands, who declaim in broad Lancashire dialect and create much amusement are Miss Jennie Halworth (Jane Alice), Miss Molly Monaghan (Mother Wardle), and Mr. Rob Anderson (John Willie). Good variety turns by members of the company are given in Act 3.

BURY (Lancs.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND PALACE, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Harry Tate's company in Fishing is as funny as ever; Herbert Cottermore's company provides a sensational drama entitled Her Princely Betrayer; Victor Newman, described as Irving's double, gives representations of Cardinal Wolsey, Svengali, &c.; the programme also includes Florence Esdale, vocalist; The Kymros, Welsh duettists; Sisters Draycott, vocalists; The Dunvilles, in a comedy and musical act: and Melia and Mozarabar, Oriental equilibrists.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—The pictures are all good, and include The Streets of Paris, The Promenades of Paris, Features of Ireland, Buy me a Dolly, Policeman's Dream, The Barrow Race, A Wild Goose Chase, &c. The variety turns are Zellini, a clever comedy juggler; and Violet Esdaile, vocalist and dancer.

THE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—A strong company here includes the Six Brothers Luck, Ltd., in The Hermit; Lionel Vaughan's company in a funny sketch, In Trouble; George Young, blind musician; Ada Parker, singer and dancer; Hearne and Palmer, acrobats; Herbert and Lindon, song and dance experts; and Eva Chadwick and A. E. Clifford, vocalists.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Buxton Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday last Mr. Leonard Boyne and entire London company presented Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman, before excellent audiences. The play, owing no doubt to the soundness of the cast, appears to be as popular as ever. Mr. Leonard Boyne in the title-rôle proves a worthy disciple of the author, and provides an excellent character-sketch; Mr. E. W. Thomas as Curtis Bedford proved a great success; and Mr. Buckstone Clair was very satisfactory as Crawshay; as also was Mr. Harold West as Bunny. Miss Hilda Moore as Gwendoline, Miss Blanka Stewart as Lady Amersteth, and Miss Dorothy Gordon as Marie did their work exceedingly well. As the Earl of Amersteth, Mr. Arthur Willoughby was perfectly at ease; and the part of Mrs. Vidal, by Miss Lilian Hallowes, was remarkably good.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. John Gerant and company are paying a return visit with At Duty's Call. Mr. Gerant as Harold Alison played his old part with ability; Mr. Chas. C.

Calvert was really good as Captain George Alison; Mr. Ernest St. John made a striking figure of General Gordon; Mr. J. Tilly Dillsen put any amount of "go" into the part of Terry O'Hallaron; Mr. Frank P. Morton was well suited as Jack Spencer; Miss Beatrice Western played Dora Drummond charmingly; Miss Ada Roscoe was satisfactory as the devoted slave Salema; and Miss Laurie O'Neill was a saucy Mary.

CARDIFF.—New Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker's company appears with considerable success in Man and Superman and Arms and the Man. In the former play, presented during the first half of the week, Mr. Granville Barker undertakes the rôle of John Tanner, and gives a brilliant impersonation; Miss Frances Dillon as Ann Whitefield and Miss Auriol Lee as Violet Robinson are two vivacious actresses quite equal to the severe calls made on their capabilities; Mr. Michael Sherbrooke (Roebuck Ramsden), Mr. David Powell (Octavius Robinson), Mr. Richard Haigh (Henry Straker), Mr. Frederick Lloyd (Hector Malone), and Mr. James Hearn (Mr. Malone) are all thoroughly at home in the intricacies of their parts; while Miss Helen Rous as Mrs. Whitefield submits a delineation of exceptional merit.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Foremost on the bill are Walter Passmore and company, who present a highly-amusing and unusually successful sketch entitled The Constable and the Pictures. Another comedian also on the list is George Formby, who achieves distinct popularity with his laughable songs and patter; Theo. Bouwmeester proves a remarkably clever protean actor in an interesting sketch, Who is Guilty? the well-known Hebrew comedians Lowenwirth and Coghan once more gain a hearty reception; while Will English is more entertaining than ever with his medley of coon songs. Other turns are provided by Frank Couch, a popular patter comedian; La Danseuse in a pretty scena, Santa Claus; Austin Boyd and Trixie Gilfain, gifted vocalists; and Naughton and Gold, Scotch comedians and dancers; all of whom are equally responsible for the enormous success of the week's performance.

Theatre Royal.—Under the Management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—London with the Lid Off is the peculiar title of the drama doing good business at the Royal, presented by Mr. Stanley Carlton's company. The hero of the piece, the Rev. Allen Gordon, is ably sustained by Mr. Carlton himself; Mr. Wm. G. Marshall submits a rendition of the blind burglar which is one of the features of the production; Mr. James Hart acquits himself with credit of the villainies of Collini; while Mr. Edward Vincent as Sam Rendall does his full share of the work. Miss Rubie Maude makes a heroine impossible to resist, and her Astra Bell is most sympathetically received; Miss R. Hamilton Belasco as Mrs. Glendale and Miss Charlotte E. Bellinger as Sarah Shafto are placed in parts for which they are particularly suited; while Miss Amy Ellam as Madge Rendall works with an unusual sprightliness. Miss Emily Lewis (Dolly), Miss Emily Marshall (Clara Jane), and Mr. Lancelot Usher (Percy Plunker) are all responsible for excellent comedy.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—A capital detective sketch, Sexton Blake, is put forward by Miss Carlotta de Yonson, who is supported by an excellent company of thorough actors, the performance proving most interesting. Jack and May McKenzie, well-known in Cardiff, are given a flattering reception; the Sisters Silcott are delightful vocalists and dancers; and the Forsyths are amusing in a comedy speciality act. Colin Mail, light comedian; the Miltons, skating comedians; Albert Letine, female impersonator; and Cliff and Kean, comedy duo, are the other artists announced on the programme.

CARLISLE.—H.M. Theatre.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Sexton Blake is a big attraction here, as presented by Mr. Charles East's company. In the title-rôle Mr. Horace Hunter's powerful and artistic acting is a big factor in the success. Mr. Charles East, too, in the heavy part gives a clever impersonation, being well supported by Miss East Robertson as Philadelphia Kate; Mr. William Felton is excellent as Roger Blackburn, and the heroine is admirably played by Miss Lily Hammersley.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Jack Lorimer, who again tops the bill, is funnier than ever; another highly appreciated performance is contributed by Sid Doody and Edie Wright; the Sisters Casseli, in their excellent dancing; Blake and Granby, in a funny sketch; the Saletos, with wonderful head and hand balacing; Stella Stahl, a bright and lively comedienne; May Marton, an attractive vocalist, and some excellent pictures are other attractions.

CARMARTHEN.—Assembly Rooms.—Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—This week Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company has been here with The Silver King. Mr. Sydney T. Pease gave a fine interpretation of Denver, and the same may be said of Miss Gladys Hastings-Walton as Nellie. Jaikes, the old servant, was admirably impersonated by Mr. Tom Paulton; Cissy was ably portrayed by Miss Dorothy Love; Mr. Charles Freeman was an eminently successful Spider; Mr. Harry Colbeck an excellent Corket; Mr. John Detliv a droll Elijah Combe; and Mr. Charles McCann a smart Cripps. The part of Geoffrey Ware was well played by Mr. Claude Graveley.

CASTLEFORD.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman, J.P.—Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod's company is here in A Country Girl in London. Mr. W. V. Garrod shows ability as Frank Gordon; Marjorie Hamilton is played cleverly by Miss Bertha Kingston; Mr. John S. Sheridan acts with care as John Hamilton; Mr. G. Moreton-Williams does good work as Godfrey Clinton; an admirable character-sketch of Job Smithers comes from Mr. Clifford Marle; Gwendoline Gordon finds an able exponent in Miss Josephine Colona; Adelaide Puddyphat is impersonated successfully by Miss Leslie Adair; and Mr. Seymour Perry as Wilberforce Puddyphat causes roars of laughter. Mr. E. W. Avery provides a welcome amount of fun as Heinrich.

Queen's Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Travis.—Heading the bill here are Le Clair's dogs in The Canine Picture Gallery; Lily and Elsie Judge, with their "society bird act," well merit the praise bestowed on them; Tom Joy, comedian, creates roars of merriment; the Brothers Brooks are also mirth-provoking; Cookson is much appreciated for a clever ventriloquial turn; the Fordyces (Jenny and Will) take remarkably well; the Sisters Brand dance gracefully; Little Frankie is a youthful vocalist of promise; and the Loyal Dominion Co. are showing some interesting pictures.

CHELTENHAM.—Theatre and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—This week Mr. George Dance's company with Miss Hook of Holland pays a welcome return visit, and opened on Monday to an enthusiastic audience. Mr. T. A. Shale (an old favourite in Cheltenham) is inimitably droll as Mr. Hook, the liqueur distiller, and his study of the part was much appreciated. Miss Alice Coverick is very pleasing as Miss Hook (Sally). She made the most of her songs, the one "Little Miss Wooden Shoes" being vociferously encored. As Mina Miss Cissie Sephton was great, her singing and sabot dancing being quite a feature; the Dutch loafer, Simon Slinks, was very cleverly impersonated by Mr. Tom Seymour, and Mr. Len Neville plays up to him well in the character of the very tired Van Eck. Mr. Frank Crimp takes the part of the bandmaster (Van Vuyt), and scores well with "It was all the violoncello," concluding with a pretty dance with Mr. Hook. As the leader of the band that played the fascinating military march, the bandmaster was repeatedly encored. Mr. George Ide as Capt. Paap sang well "The soldiers of the Netherlands"; Mr. Geo. Mudie, jun., made a good study of the lovelorn Ludwig Schnapps; as also did Miss Tattie Leonard as the distillery manageress. Other parts were well filled by Mr. G. Foley (the Arndyk villager), Mr. W. Ogle (policeman), Misses Isabel Vivien, Mary Allen, May Leslie, and Maud Leonard, and Mr. James Davies as Lieut. de Coop.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Messrs. Cowper-Smith and Douglas Payne's company in the musical comedy The New Girl is doing good business here this week. Pretty music, good singing and dancing, and capital mounting combine to ensure success. Miss Rosa Bennett presents a charmingly bright rendering of Hilda Coleman; Cerise is capitally undertaken by Miss Ivy Leighton; Miss Beatrice Sutherland plays Jane excellently; and Miss Victoria Douglas is effective as Martha Grimm. Colonel Bullet is humorously presented by Mr. Edward W. Colman, who creates continuous laughter; Mr. Ralph Lynn as Bertie Holbrook and Mr. Edgar McIntyre as Harry Harrow are exceptionally good; and Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., as Brown is strikingly funny. There is a capital chorus, and the augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Julian Rutt.

CLYDEBANK.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietor and Director, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Miss Daisy Morell tops the bill here this week, and is a great success. Mouing and Cooney, comedians, get a good reception; Marzelo also finds favour; Mr. Harry Leaton sings some good songs; Empress, the female Houdini, mystifies the audience; and the Bioscope is par excellence.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Belle of Mayfair opened a half-week's engagement here on Monday before a goodly audience. Amongst the ladies, the palm must be awarded to Miss Rosina Effingham as the Princess, her charming gracefulness and deep melodious voice being much admired. Miss Nellie Barnwell made a sprightly Julia, whilst as her mother, Lady Chaldicott, Miss Denny Fitzherbert was delightfully quaint. Miss Grace Mackay showed a fine conception of the Gibson-Girl qualities; Miss Dora Lyons danced well as Pincott; Mr. Sidney Burt sturdily maintained the character of the nouveau riche Sir John Chaldicott; Mr. Michael Raven was very happy as Hugh Meredith, his singing being much applauded; Mr. Stephen Hall and Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft as Earl Mount Highgate and his heir respectively worked in a praiseworthy manner; and Mr. A. Batting was well placed as Count Perrier. The concluding half of the week was allotted to that charming play Angela, as presented by Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and company.

Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Lockhart's elephants, under the direction of Captain Taylor, are topping this week's bill, introducing their well-known business. Paul Cavalli, the musical athlete, shows enormous strength; Jules Kiaro, hand equilibrist, is a very entertaining turn; Maud Willow makes quite a hit with her "Hallelujah" song; Dorothy Sephton, becomingly dressed in white, has some tuneful melodies; Marie Wilton sings much that is popular; Lester May is paying a return visit; and the musical contributions by Carl Heber's orchestra is much applauded.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Messrs Garside and Knowles's company is here this week with the drama Her Marriage Vow. Mr. Chas. Beddells does justice to the part of Gilbert Carlton; as Daffy Dan Mr. Edwin J. Collins is very good; Mr. J. Forbes Knowles is an excellent Ned Benton; as Larry Leary Mr. Dan Ryan is very funny; Mr. John W. Ryder as William Walters and Mr. Wilford Bailey as Eben Chubb are both well received; Miss Helena Walbran is exceptionally clever as Kate Walters; as Hester Norton Miss Nelly Shirley is all that could be desired; Miss Grace Ryder as Almira is worthy of mention; and as Maggie Clair Miss Winifred Barton is successful.

CORK.—Opera House.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company opened a week's engagement on Monday in Florodora. As Tweedlepunch Mr. Fred Eastman fills the part with success; Miss Maisie Ellinger as Dolores is excellent; as Lady Holyrood Miss Edith Housley is most successful in her topical number; and as Lord Abercoed Mr. H. V. Cropton effectively displays a fine baritone voice. Mr. Stanley White as Cyrus Gilfain is capable.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The programme here is of exceptional merit. The Maritana Operatic Company gave a capital performance here on Monday of a couple of acts from Maritana. Mr. Frank Pemberton was the Don Cæsar; and Mr. Ernest Trowbridge the Don José and the King of Spain; Miss Bessie Forde the Lazarillo, and Miss Evelyn de Lara Maritana. The singing and acting were appreciated. Il Trovatore and The Bohemian Girl are also in the répertoire. Daisy Reed is a good speciality dancer; Adie Le Moir presents some well-executed pieces on the harp; and Sill and Sillcott, in an acrobat and railway skit; Henry and Tyler, quaint cyclists; Mlle. Lockhart, wire artist and serpentine dancer; the Sisters Ford, comedy duettists; the Cromwells, jugglers; and the Palascope are other attractions.

COVENTRY.—The Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—That stirring drama The Midnight Wedding, by Walter Howard, is being presented at the above house this week. Mr. Alfred Paumier gives a masterly rendering of the hero, Paul Valmar of the Red Hussars, and is ably assisted by Miss Yvonne Orchardson as the Princess Astrea, both artists being responsible for some fine acting. As Captain Von Scarsbruck Mr. Alfred Radford gives a typical rendering; capital characterisations are those of Mr. A. W. Barne as Lieut. von Stralsburg and Mr. J. Nesbitt as Prince Leopold. Humorous episodes are introduced (as Sergt. Max, Corporal Otto, and Private Bobo) by Mr. J. E. Page, Mr. H. Richardson, and Mr. A. Spalding respectively, and by Miss Ada Champion as Kathie.

Hippodrome Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Miss Shields heads the bill this week, and causes an ovation; Billy Williams renders his songs in a jocular manner, and soon becomes a favourite; Haines, Borthwick, and company give an amusing sketch entitled Half a Dollar, which causes continual merriment; Alix Lukos, who appears in a scena entitled The Language of Flowers, introduces impersonations of Disraeli, Napoleon, Booth, &c.; the Barton and Franklin Trio give a fine performance on various instruments; and Ryan and Hall, acrobats and comic wrestlers; Harris and Worth, sporting comedians; Nancy St. John, comedienne and dancer; and the Bioscope, showing some excellent pictures, are also in the bill.

Empire.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—The star turn takes the form of living statuary, presented by Mr. Alfred Toft. Miss Maud Rochez introduces cleverly-trained monkeys; Matthews and Cowper appear in an amusing comedy entitled When the Clock Went Wrong; Messrs. Sinclair and Parr render capital Irish songs; the Leonards are heard in a comedy act entitled How to Treat a Burglar; the Sisters Pine are pleasing singers and dancers; and Bioscope pictures conclude.

CRADLEY HEATH.—Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John H. Morton.—Mr. Carr Loate's company with A London Outcast is here for a second week. Miss Cissie Milford deserves special mention for her rendering of two parts, Tom All Alone and Susan Good; Miss Molly Bee as Mabel Raymond plays with much taste and feeling; Miss Kathleen Saunders gives a capital portrayal of Little Philip; Miss Clara Hall as Mary and Mr. Jess. Boxer as Joe Good supply unlimited fun; Mr. Carr Loates himself takes the "heavy" part of Edgar Hall, and gives a masterly rendition; Mr. Geo. W. Knight supplies a very careful study of John Trueman; Mr. Walter Leonard as Philip Raymond has a lot to do in a little time, and acquits himself well; Mr. Leo Rodway as Silas Beal creditably helps along the play; and Mr. William Griffin fully justifies his selection for the part of Police-constable Hearty.

CREWE.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—The attraction here this week is Wm. Holles and Nannie Goldman's company in The Stepmother. Miss Eva Mansell gives an excellent rendering of the title-rôle; Mr. William Holles gives a good portrayal of Bob Bristow, captain of the Seamew; Miss Milly Wetton is well placed as Amy Bristow, Bob's wife; Miss Nannie Goldman creates an impression as Danny, Bob's son; Mr. H. A. Gribben as David Blake of Scotland Yard is very well received; Mr. Arthur Rodney makes an ideal Abraham Wiggins; Mr. Wilton Reed as Luke Trixel, a tramp, is very good; Mr. Edwin Stevens and Miss Fay Rivington cause much amusement as Timothy Yapp, of the County Constabulary, and Johanna Jones respectively; and Miss Ethel Rayner as Clara is good.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—A visit of Mr. Herbert Sleath's company in A White Man is giving much pleasure here. Miss Eleanor May deserves congratulations for her rendering of the Countess of Kerhill; Miss Rhoda Ray is appreciated as Nat-u-ritch; Miss Gertrude Price acts with effect as the Dowager Lady Kerhill; and Misses Nora Wadeley and Kathleen Mervyne are appropriate as Lady Mabel Wynnegate and Mrs. Hiram Doolittle. Mr. Frank E. Petley submits a fine, manly rendering of Captain James Wynnegate (Jim Carston); Mr. Lewis Broughton is commendable as the Earl of Kerhill; Mr. H. Wilmott Jackson is capital as Sir John Applegate; Mr. G. T. Lambert is well placed as Mr. Chiswick; Mr. William Dempsey is convincing as Malcolm Petrie; Mr. Louis Ashmeade makes an excellent Dean of Trentham; Mr. R. A. Brandon wins encomiums as Big Bill; Messrs. Thomas Swem and Martin Henry are adequate as Shorty and Andy; Mr. Eric Hudson makes a picturesque Taby-wana; Mr. A. C. Hardie is forcible as Cash Hawkins; Mr. John Wilmer is firstrate as Bud Hardy; Miss Rosina White makes an intelligent little Hal; and minor rôles are in capable hands.

Hippodrome and New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Osmond.—Mr. Percy Norman's company in A Woman Worth Winning is the attraction here this week. Mr. Sydney Barton is well placed as Czar Nicholas; Mr. Gilbert Standing as Amos Pauloff is distinctly good; Mr. George Edwin Clive appears to advantage as Fergus Lovinsky; Mr. A. B. Mackay admirably portrays General Borinsky; Mr. Louis Newman as Bertie Scribbles deserves praise; and Mr. Ernest Kendrick creates much merriment as Peter Popples. Miss Ida Mackay is pleasing as Katerina Kloss, and Miss Chrissie Dunbar plays the part of the heroine, Roma Pauloff, in an accomplished manner.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hal Cummings.—The Thief, played by Mr. George Alexander's company, has attracted good houses here this week. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart as Richard Chelford gives a finished performance; Miss May Congdon as Marise Chelford, in a trying part performs it with becoming dignity; Mr. Gerald Ames as Raymond Leyton is very realistic; Miss Mary Dibley as Isabel Leyton is admirable; Mr. Alfred Lugg does well in the part of Harry Leyton; and Mr. Cyril Cattley as Mr. Prothero gives a clever rendering.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—The Paxton Trio are delighting large audiences here in their clever head-balancing and acrobatic act; the Bros. Webb also evoke laughter and applause; the Ward and Davis Comedy Duo do a graceful act. Others engaged are Archie Pitt, comedian; Barbara Babington, vocal actress; Stephens and Rennior, comedians and dancers; and Harry Leybourne, comedian. The Pepiscope is an attraction.

DARWEN.—Public Hall, Palace of Varieties.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—Wat Tyler, character actor-vocalist, is very good, as also is Beatrice Lane, a charming chorus vocalist; Jim Ainsworth is pleasing in his illustrated songs; Harry Hutin causes roars of laughter in his legmania act; and Ena Corelli, singer and dancer, is well received. The pictures on the Bioscope are of the best.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is this week producing Mrs. Ponderbury's Past, preceded by the one-act comedy, His Landlady. As Mr. Ponderbury Mr. George Mudie is inimitable; and Miss Florence Wix capably accounts for Mme. Poloco Modjeski. As Mrs. Ponderbury Miss Annie Stalman presents a clever character-study; Mr. Alfred Ibberson as Peter is entirely praiseworthy; and Mr. Drew Mackintosh as Mervyr Thorpe contributes to the success of the production. The Captain Rumford of Mr. George Child is a refreshing assumption; and an asinine dude is well played by Mr. Charles A. Starte. Miss Florence Wellesley figures with acceptance as Ethel Penniston; and other characters receive justice at the hands of Mr. H. Burns, Mr. James Michael, and Miss Madge Elswick. Mr. Alfred Ibberson takes premier honours in the curtain-raiser, and is well supported by Mr. Drew Mackintosh and Misses Florence Wellesley and Madge Elswick.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—Starring here this week is Mr. W. Fulbrook's company in the sketch Astronomy, which keeps the house in a continual roar. Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, in Trafalgar Square at 4 a.m., create great merriment; Cumminger and Colonna are responsible for the finest exhibition of sand-dancing seen locally for some time; the Two Kays are charming duettists, and possessed of fine voices; Will Sullivan, comedian, has some amusing songs and patter; Dan Robano is a pleasing vocalist; Valvo gives a thoroughly entertaining ventriloquial sketch; and the Bioscope pictures are, as usual, of an excellent variety.

DEVONPORT.—Theatre Metropole.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Why Men Love Women, by Walter Howard, is decidedly above the average melodrama, and is deservedly doing very good business, the gorgeous Eastern setting and really capable acting being greatly admired. Miss Ellen Snow as the heroine, Violet Livingstone, has a difficult task, but fully rises to the occasion; Mr. Oliver Rogers as Gerald Fielding plays with manliness and becoming reserve; Mr. Lionel Gadsden gives a highly creditable rendering of Captain Staniloff, a part requiring careful handling; and Mr. N. C. Slaughter does well as Lieut. Tommy Fitzherbert; Mr. B. Griffin works hard as H.H. the Maharajah of Balore, and Miss Beresford Glynn is noticeable as Mrs. Figgins.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—Mr. Arthur Dandoe's company in The Phonograph Belle is starred for the week, and much genuine fun is provided, Mr. Dandoe as Crooky Sharks being particularly strong in the humorous department, whilst some attractive vocal numbers are carefully interpolated. Miss Alice Hollander has a voice of excellent range and power; Mahatma furnishes a mystifying exhibition of second-sight, and the Mezzettis give a humorous, yet clever, display on the horizontal bars; Vere and Royal have some picturesque scenas, and Fred Dunstone and Ugo Nap materially contribute to the evening's enjoyment.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—Sherlock Holmes, as presented by Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart and company, this week has given local playgoers a succession of thrills. In the title-rôle, Mr. Hamilton Stewart acts with a cool nonchalance and clever vocal inflection that wins much admiration; Miss Betty Fairfax plays Alice Faulkner with sympathy, refinement, and gentleness; Prof. Moriarty had an adequate realisation at the hands of Mr. Robert Gilbert; very agreeable and effective is the acting of Miss Edith Vogue as Madge Larrabee; a strong and earnest interpretation of James Larrabee comes from Mr. Mark D. Draper; Mr. Arthur Shelton is a cheery Dr. Watson; Mr. Walter A. Chetham is an able exponent of John Forman; praise should be given to Master Thomas Russell for a vigorous and volatile Billy; other rôles are undertaken with efficiency.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Married to the Wrong Man was well received here on Monday evening. Mr. Oswald Gray as the hero upheld the rôle with distinct credit; as Captain Dearing, Mr. H. Lane Bayliff did well; Mr. Ray Raymond gave a good reading as Sergeant Manners; Mr. Charles Vivian scored a success as Jasper Skinner; Mr. Paige Lawrence was well placed as Archie Bird; and the Nurse Manners of Miss Rosalie Notrelle was a clever sketch. Miss Gertrude Boswell in the rôle of the heroine is a persona grata in the cast.

DOVER.—Royal Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. S. W. Winter.—Texas Hattie, the premier turn this week, performs some extraordinarily clever feats on the tight rope; Tiger Lily is an agile dancing acrobat; Mabel Thorne's songs have captivated the town; smart "tangle-foot" dancing is contributed by Daly and O'Brien; and Johnny Val also dances cleverly. The Four Lariats' lasso manipulation is pretty and interesting; the Fedora Quartette sing brightly and dance with grace; Harry Hoddinott appears as a comedian with a fair amount of success.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Fred Holt.—That popular comedian Fred Southern is presenting the sketch Silas the Yank on this, the second week of his engagement here. He is well supported by Miss May Emery as Muriel Mayne, Miss Sadie Southern as Estelle Drew, and Messrs. Hugh Mewburn and Percy Emery as Ivan Petroff and Silas respectively. The skill of Winona as a markswoman is duly appreciated, and her turn with Colonel King is loudly applauded; the Sisters Selwyn have a pleasing vocal and dancing act; Dave Laird is an amusing vocal comedian. The programme also includes Flo Burnett; Beal and Broadway, in a harmony and dancing act; Geo. Porter, comedian; the Glennys, in a musical mélange, Waifs and Strays; and Raymond's pictures.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Jack Straw was presented here for the first time on Monday, by Messrs. Lionel Glenister and Wood Ingram's company, and met with a good reception. Mr. Lionel Glenister is most amusing in the title-rôle, and scored a decided success; as Mrs. Parker Jennings Miss Florence St. John was responsible for much laughter, and won high honours; Mr. A. T. Gulliver does full justice to the part of Mr. Parker Jennings; and Miss Jessica Waters makes an ideal Rosie Abbott. Vincent Parker Jennings is well assumed by Mr. Christmas Grose; and Miss Edie Graham is seen to advantage as Lady Wanley. Mr. J. W. Wood-Ingram gives a capital sketch of Count Adrien von Bremer; and Miss Estelle Despa makes an effective Mrs. Withers; Mr. Ernest Graham acquits himself well as the Rev. Lewis Abbott; and Miss Lucie Milner is all that could be desired as Ethel Parker Jennings. The part of Ambrose Holland is in the able hands of Mr. Frederick Moyes; and Mr. Edgar Stevenson is satisfactory as the Marquis of Serlo. The staging and dresses are excellent. The comedy is preceded by a curtain-raiser entitled After Seven Years.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The amusing musical play, The Dairymaids, is attracting large audiences here this week. Miss Phyllis Dare as Peggy presents a charming and artistic performance; Mr. Harry Dent gives an exceedingly droll impersonation of Joe Mivens; Miss Dorothy Lane fills, with much credit, the rôle of Helene; as Lieut. Sam Brudenall, Mr. Strahan Staples introduces much humour; Miss Edith Blanche is dignified as Lady Brudenall; and Dr. O'Byrne has an excellent representative in Mr. Percy Marshall; Miss Gladys Ivery is bright and winsome as Winifred; Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., is well placed as Lieut. Frank Meredith; Miss Lottie Sargeant is particularly good as Eliza; Mr. Horace Percival well sustains the part of Lieut. Brereton; Mrs. Rose Edouin Lewis is admirable as Miss Penelope Pyechase; and Mr. Cecil Barnes, as Tim Capus, and Mr. Lewis Oliver, as Togers, are both good in their respective parts. The choruses and orchestra under the direction of Mr. Arthur Wood are also worthy of mention.

Queen's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. S. Pearse; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hereford Jones.—Animated pictures are still showing here, and drawing crowded houses nightly.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Mr. G. H. Elliott, coon comedian, is starring here this week, and is the object of a flattering demonstration; Brown and Le Clerq, in Black Justice cause roars of laughter; Lady Mansel and her clever juveniles, in their comedy speciality, A Concert Rehearsal, are recalled nightly; and the Sisters West are smart duettists and dancers; the Four Watsons, in their vocal and musical act, contribute some excellent items; and Ailsa Douglas has some good songs, and knows how to sing them; Ralph and Nellie Howard, in a musical comedy scena, Military Maids, are favourably received; Welda and Wynne, in a juggling and dancing act, score a success; as does also Bert Weinar, character comedian; and Queenie Dell, comedienne and dancer, has a host of admirers; Films, Ltd., depicting Tribulations of Roller Skating, concludes.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls render popular songs in a telling and effective manner; in a sensational episode, entitled The Guilty Man, James Hare and company are loudly applauded; and Dallas and Varden, in a musical comedy scena, That Husband of Mine, create much hilarity; an excellent turn is provided by John Lloyd's Gondolier singers; and Dorothy Watson, in songs at the piano, is highly entertaining. The Bonanzas give a remarkably clever hand-balancing act; and Miss Gertrude Lytton, comedienne, gives her songs in capital style. Other exceedingly good turns are Zano Brothers, in a comedy bar act, and Cestris, comedy juggler. The Bioscope adds greatly to a good programme.

Round Room Rotunda.—Messrs. Harry and Fred Poole's Myriorama and combination company opened for a short season here on Monday, when an excellent entertainment was provided for the large audience. The Myriorama is perfectly up-to-date, and thoroughly interesting. A remarkably strong variety programme includes Harry Dowsett, eccentric comedian; Miss Phyllis St. Clare, operatic and ballad vocalist; George French's Troupe of cyclists; Learto and his clever dog, "Babbs"; the Snow Family, eccentric knockabouts and expert skaters; and Mr. Bert Gates, ventriloquist and guide. A number of amusing animated pictures add to the interest of the programme.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The programme here includes Edwards and Ward, comedy entertainers; Tom E. Swift, descriptive vocalist; Rita Lyons, comedienne; Walter Conilla, chorus vocalist; Jim Merry, comedian; Bett and Bett, comedy duo; and the cinematograph.

Pavilion, Kingstown.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—Mr. Stuart Alexander's So and So's company are attracting large audiences nightly. Mr. Alexander possesses a sweet tenor voice, and his songs are ably given; Miss Maud Phillips, contralto vocalist, is very warmly received; Mr. Harry Quinsborough, monologue artist, keeps the audience in good humour; Miss Lilian Leoffeler's dances are loudly applauded; Miss Maude Davis, vocalist, has a good reception; and Mr. George Sharritt, humorist, and Miss Dorothy Edwardes, solo pianist and accompanist, also contribute successfully.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and company opened here on Monday with Jane Shore to an appreciative audience, and acted the title-rôle with her usual skill and artistic ability. She is well supported by Mr. F. Skein, who, as Richard Duke of Gloucester brings the sinister traits of this character into bold relief. The Lord Hastings of Mr. Howard Rose is a powerful and polished rendering; Miss Alice O'Dea displays ability as Elizabeth Woodville; and another earnestly-played part is that of Matthew Groat by Mr. Bernard Merefield. During the week Leah, Nell Gwynne, and Catherine Duchess of Dantzic are billed.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. B. Peberdy.—Heading the bill is the Derrington Family, aptly described as sensational cyclists. The Sisters Henderson, in a new musical speciality, introduce some clever dancing; Ida Barr is of charming appearance and sings well; Petro and Leon are clever gymnasts; and the Kenmores give an up-to-date novelty with success. The Sisters Slater secure applause as duettists and skipping-rope dancers; Billy French, who astonishes his audiences with a marvellous exhibition of wooden-shoe dancing; and the Empire pictures are as good as ever.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—This theatre was crowded on Monday evening by a most appreciative audience, who heartily enjoyed The Dairymaids. Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is one of all-round excellence, the dresses and setting, especially the scene depicting the gymnasium at Pyechase Academy, being much admired. Miss Clare Marsden makes a most charming Peggy, and wins rounds of applause for her singing of "Sandow girl" and the amusing "Little stranger"; Mr. Johnny Osborne as Joe Mivens keeps the house in continual roars of laughter, his duets with Miss Gladys Silvani, who makes a great hit as Eliza, being encored over and over again; another excellent comedian is found in Mr. Nelson Keys, who infuses much life into the part of Lieut. Sam Brudenell; Mr. J. A. Warden as the jovial Irish doctor, is "a broth of a bhoy"; and Mr. A. Wykes Ashdowne, Mr. Harry Cottell, and Mr. Boris Bellew, all work hard and well in their respective parts. Miss Clarice Lockstone as the other dairymaid is altogether charming; Miss Mabel Younge's portrayal of the stately Lady Brudenell is decidedly good; and Miss Penelope Pyechase is represented with much effectiveness by Miss Madge Avery.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Local Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—The star turn this week is Dick Turpin's Ride to York, which is very realistically depicted by Fred Ginnett and company, who also present their old favourite, Rejected Remounts. The Claymores score as vocalists, dancers, and jugglers; and Herbert Clifton does not belie his title of "marvellous voiced mimic." That delightful sketch, The Little Colonel, by E. Montefiore and company, is warmly received; Arthur Boyne, a very capable comedian, causes much merriment; Bella and Gretna, duettists and dancers, are decidedly good; Harry Bold is a capital raconteur; Terry and Bentley treat us to some fine comedy business; and Maud Prenton, a smart comedienne, meets with much approval. The Bioscope completes a good bill.

Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Miss Zona Vevey's songs are decidedly novel and clever, and she is ably assisted by the eminent piano accompanist, Herr Max Erard; the Szarvasi-Ferencz troupe of Hungarian singers, dancers, and acrobats give an exceptionally brilliant turn; Edward Crossland's melody makers are conspicuously successful in a brilliant musical act; Maud Edwards, the lady ventriloquist, is even more amusing than ever; and Tom E. Hughes brings down the house with his quaint rendering of "Can London do without me?" Williams and Warden simply bubble over with wit and humour; Halter and Ray, who work on novel lines, are an amusing couple; and Cline and Vera, in a refined scena, The Squire and the Dairymaid, prove a tit-bit. A well-acted sketch, entitled Black Against White, depicting an incident in the race feud in America, completes a grand array of talent.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Franco-British Moving Picture Company again provide a long and varied programme of pictures, chief among which are My Sweetheart when a Boy, The Moneylender, Uncle's Present, The Franco-British Exhibition, and a very long film, entitled John Bull's Bread Basket, showing the reaping and gathering of wheat in Canada. Jeanie Fergus, a sprightly comedienne, furnishes a very entertaining turn; while Harry Jennings, a smart comedian and dancer, also meets with success.

Newman's Picture Palace.—Another fine display

Colyer is an exceptionally gifted dancer, and her work is some of the smartest and most polished seen here for a long time; Eugene and Willie have a pleasing turn with acrobatic work and music skilfully combined; Mr. Steve McCarthy is a fine dancer and able comedian; Mr. Fred Mulvey and Minnie Miriam are entertainers of merit; the Sisters Morgan sing and dance in a picturesque manner; Stevens and Gillard are clever mimics and cartoonists; and new pictures are shown.

PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and company were on a visit here for the first three evenings of the week in The Lady of Ostend. Mr. William Spray was particularly well suited in the part of Dick Whortles; Mr. L. Brough repeated his successful work as Le Baron; Mr. Robert Bolder as Joseph Carbury introduced clever fun in a happy manner; Mr. William Macready was a very realistic and comically menacing Toby Krockitt, Mr. Harry Collier a capital James, and Mr Hewson Elliott a smart little Thompson. Miss Barbara Glyn supplied interesting work as Dorothy Whortles; Miss Bessie Harrison was an excellent Matilda Carbury, Miss Alice Leigh a pleasing Millie Grace, and Miss Edith Adeson a satisfactory Jane. At the Rising of the Moon was the curtain-raiser. Mr. Edward Compton and company supplied the bill for the remainder of the week.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. G. F. Slatter.—Rowland Hill is heartily applauded here for his humorous songs; Eldra is deserving of credit for the training of his dog, Prince; Wyndham and Waters prove a huge success; the Ramsey Trio create roars of laughter; Fame and Fortune give a good account of themselves; Ikey Moe, the little Hebrew, is precocious; Helm and Cozens are pleasing; and the Denaro Bros., juvenile equilibrists and acrobats, are excellent. Galvanic Fluid, The Fidgety Fly, and Magic Powder are depicted on the Bioscope.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. Oscar Asche, Miss Lily Brayton, and company are attracting crowds of playgoers here this week. The company opened on Monday with The Taming of the Shrew, in which Miss Brayton repeats her delightful impersonation of Katharina—a charming conception charmingly executed. Mr. Asche's Petruchio, mellowed by many performances, remains a masterly and virile study; while it is positively refreshing to see the other parts in the hands of actors who play with uniform excellence. Mr. Kay Souper, graceful and easy in bearing and elocution, is an admirable Lucentio; Mr. Reginald Ian Penny is an effective Hortensio; Mr. E. T. Anson shows a real sense of humour as Biondello; and that sound comedian Mr. Henry Kitts is very amusing as Grumio. Mr. Caleb Porter makes Gremio a vivid character sketch, the story of the wedding being told with great force and cleverness; Miss Muriel Ashwynne is sweet and graceful as Bianca; and Mr. Fritz Russell, Mr. J. Fritz, Mr. Tripp Edgar (a humorous Tranio), and Miss Caroline Bayley render excellent service. The play is artistically staged. The Two Pins was given on Tuesday evening, with Mr. Asche in his effective portrayal of Philip and Miss Brayton in her vivacious and pleasing impersonation of Elsa. Othello has also been played during the week.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Very refreshing entertainment has been provided here this week by Miss May Palfrey and an excellent company in Mr. Somerset Maugham's breezy comedy Mrs. Dot, seen now for the first time in Edinburgh. Miss Palfrey's performance of the attractive widow is a most delightful characterisation; Miss Aida Jenoure as Lady Sellenger gives another finished and artistic portrait; while Mrs. Kemmis in the more staid and reserved part of Miss Eliza Macgregor is pleasingly natural and effective. The fair ingénue, Nellie Sellenger, nicely acted by Miss Evelyn Beaumont, finds a good foil in the soft-headed and impressionable Freddie Perkins of Mr. Basil Hallam; and the small part of Charles is unobtrusively made the most of by Mr. McIntyre Wicksteed in highly commendable fashion. The outstanding rôles of Gerald Halstane and James Blenkinsop are very well played by Mr. Hugh C. Buckler and Mr. F. Kinsey Peile, the former giving a manly and consistent interpretation of the widow's willing victim and the latter revelling as the confirmed misogamist. The piece is prettily set, and ripples with amusement from start to finish. A four-part little farce by Mr. H. de Lange, entitled A Lively Dinner, does duty as a curtain-raiser.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Chanti, a quick-change artist of great ability, takes premier place here this week. His impersonations of different nationalities are remarkably clever, the transition from an Italian peasant to a Highlander in full costume being an especially smart piece of work. Mr. John Humphries, the well-known comedian, is seen in a funny sketch entitled Ancient Britons; Will Probyn's Brooklyn Comedy Four sing with taste and humour several part-songs, a particularly noticeable effort being "Rocked in the cradle of the deep"; the Three Panamas contribute a bright acrobatic act; Miss Madoline Rees is a comedienne of considerable charm; the Melroses are capital vaudeville performers; and excellent turns are given by Mr. H. G. Prosper, comedian, and Miss Billie Burford. The King's Bioscope shows some pretty films.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—The pièce de résistance here this week is Mr. Herbert Darnley's sketch The Brigands of Tarragona, a mélange of songs, agreeably rendered by Miss Annette Sellers, and droll fooling by Mr. Chas. H. Bell and Mr. H. Snowdon. Mr. Mendel, the blind musician, displays his marvellous powers of improvisation, and is enthusiastically received; Mr. Ludwig Amann's impersonations of past and present celebrities are clever alike in facial expression and make-up; Tennyson and Wallis are entertaining comedians whose patter is amusing; Mr. Gus Garrick's mimicry of various types of music hall comedians are admirably done, and his burlesque of a Spanish dancer evokes screams of laughter; and Mr. Will Johnson, comedian; Miss Violet Halls, a graceful vocalist; Mr. Walter Wade, comedian; Miss Daisy Martell, comedienne; and Mr. C. J. Johnson, a brisk cake-walk dancer, are also included in the programme, which closes with a humorous series of views by the Bioscope.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford. — The F. R. Benson Shakespearean company is occupying the boards this week, and is drawing large and appreciative houses. On Monday The Taming of the Shrew was produced. Mr. Henry Herbert, who is a local favourite, makes an excellent Petruchio; and Miss Gladys Vanderzee as Katherina is the shrew to the life. Mr. Bernard Limpus ably portrays Lucentio; and Mr. Victor Wiltshire is good as Gremio. Miss Violet Farebrother is charming as Bianca; Mr. James Berry as Baptista is all that could be desired. During the week Romeo and Juliet, Richelieu, Twelfth Night, Merry Wives of Windsor, Julius Cæsar, and Richard III. are being played.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—The pantomime The House that Jack Built, as produced by the juvenile company of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell, was made very welcome on Monday. It is a capital show, beautifully dressed. Mr. Jimmie Watson as Aunt Purdy is inimitable; and Messrs. Graham and Barron as Scraggs and Scraggles prove a very lively and entertaining couple; Miss Daisy Wood makes a splendid Jack; and as Jill Miss Dolly Dodds makes the most of the part. Both excel in their vocal efforts. Little Gladys Wyse scores in the character of Wee MacGreegor; Miss Jennie Hughes is captivating as the Fairy; and Mr. H. Hillerby takes the part of the Squire with success. A special feature of the entertainment is the dancing by the Forget-Me-Not Quartette.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—The week opened with Mr. Frederick Mouillot's No. 1 company, including Mr. Arthur Royston and Miss Nita Faydon, in The Beloved Vagabond. Needless to say, Mr. Arthur Royston played the romantic Gaston de Nerac in an able manner, and well merited the frequent applause; Miss Nita Faydon made a decided hit as Blanquette, and her sympathetic acting proved a feature of the play; the important part of Comte de Verneuil, the cynical man of finance, was finely acted by Mr. Warburton Gamble; Asticot, the hunchback protégé of Gaston de Nerac, was ably portrayed by Mr. Ramsey Macbeth; Miss Kathleen Harrington has a fine stage presence, suited in every way to the part of Joanna Rushworth (afterwards Comtesse de Verneuil); the dainty little juvenile actress, Miss Hetty Kenyon, won all hearts as Louisette; a young Folkestone amateur, Mr. Guy O'Neal, well known in military theatricals, made his début in a manner that speaks well for the success of his professional career. Mr. James Welch's company, in When Knights Were Bold, is billed for the second part of the week.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—The Poppies are increasing in popularity, and are playing to good houses. Miss Annie Wallace, a charming soprano, sings delightfully; Miss Dorothy Evans, a chic comedienne, sang and danced herself at once into the hearts of the audience; the humorous element is in the capable hands of Messrs. Will Tissington and Harry Lea. A strong feature of the Poppies' programme are their concerted numbers. Charles Resti is giving his smart conjuring interlude at each performance. Miss Eva Hayden, A.R.C.M., presides at the piano with her customary ability.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—Miss Bonwin's Carlton's company appeared here for the last three nights last week in The Old, Old Story, Poor Joe, and The Plucky Nipper. On Tuesday and Wednesday Mr. Julian Graham presented the new musical comedy The Gay Goddess. Miss Kate Graham Beck was an imposing representative of the Goddess; Mr. Chas. Leverton gave an amusing rendering of Timothy; Mr. Richard Teasdale was effective as Sherlock Blake, the detective; and Les Papillions introduced some clever dancing.

GLASGOW.—ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—An exceptionally strong attraction is offered here this week in the shape of the Lyric Theatre production of A White Man, with Mr. Herbert Sleath and Miss Ellis Jeffreys in the leading parts. With two such attractive performers in the rôles of Jim Carston and Diana, the enthusiasm aroused by the performance is easily accounted for. Amongst other outstanding impersonations is Miss Dorothy Dix's touching portrayal of Nat-u-ritch; and as the Earl of Kerhill Mr. Harold Weston proves himself equal to his strong scenes. For the parts of Lady Kerhill and Lady Mabel, Miss Emma Gwynne and Miss Enid Sass are eminently suited; Mr. A. G. Poulton hits off the foibles of Sir John Applegate amusingly; and Mr. Harold Richardson's Dean is a pleasing sketch. As Big Bill Mr. George Fawcett proves a favourite; and the other cowboys—Shorty (Mr. Cecil Yapp), Andy (Mr. S. J. Warmington), Grouchy (Mr. Richard F. Symons), and Hawkins (Mr. Menifee Johnstone)—are all realistically played; Mr. A. S. Aspland makes an impressive Indian chief; as the Sheriff Mr. A. W. Jack Ellis is very good; a characteristic lawyer is seen in Mr. Herbert Vyvyan's Petrie, and Miss Victoria Harris acts well as Little Hall.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—A crowded and enthusiastic audience welcomed Mr. George Alexander and his company in The Thief on Monday. The thrilling situations and the acting of Mr. Alexander and Miss Irene Vanbrugh in the crucial scenes ensure for the play a remarkable success. Mr. Dawson Milward contributes a fine performance as Raymond Leyton, and Miss Nina Sevening shows much advance in her art by her acting as Mrs. Leyton; Mr. Reginald Owen as Harry also does well, and Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds as Protheroe completes an able cast. The play is preceded by The Nursery Governess, in which Miss Jean Sterling Mackenzie and Messrs. Ashton Pearce and Harcourt Williams specially distinguished themselves.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. Russell Rosse's company is presenting here this week the highly amusing comedy A Pair of Spectacles. Mr. David James gives a natural and easy study of Benjamin Goldfinch, and Mr. Fred Dobell supplies an entertaining delineation of Uncle Gregory. The rôle of Percy is ably handled by Mr. Russell Rosse; Mr. Robert Noble submits a capital reading of Dick, and a satisfactory Lorimer is found in Mr. Robert Rivers. Miss Ida Chapman infuses much charm into her impersonation of Mrs. Goldfinch; Lucy Lorimer is carefully acted by Miss Kathleen Naughton; and Miss Gertrude Le Sage is effective as Charlotte. At the finish the one-act comedy His Last Legs is admirably played.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdock.—A large audience attended here on the opening night to witness Walter Melville's new production The Soldier's Wedding, the interest taken in the play being keen. Mr. Wingold Lawrence as Jack Brown, the soldier hero, fills his part with artistic ability; Mr. Gerald Jordan and Miss Marie M'Aulay as a couple of mischief-makers draw forth resentment from the "gods." Another important part is that of Nancy Lee by Miss Dorothy Richardson. Messrs. Beresford Whitcomb, Johnny Chippendale, Frederick Birdu, and Misses Alice Campbell and M. Lowe render able assistance. The staging is effective.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Frank Adair are giving here that strong drama Man to Man. Mr. Frank Adair as Richard Ellerton and Mr. Edward Lloyd as George Gordon ably sustain two of the principal parts. Mr. Clifford Bown is excellent as Bill Burkley; Mr. H. Holland is well suited as Matthew Ellerton; and a clever performance is the Samuel Plumtree of Mr. Bruce Williams. Mr. R. Val Shane gives a fine rendering of the part of the Rev. Philip Ormond. In the female rôles, Misses Louie Adair, Adeline Lester, Evelyn Warde, and Ada Martin, are all of much value to the cast, and Miss Phyllis Oakley is a smart little Ned Doyle.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Miss Winifred Maude's company is giving here that stirring drama The Convict, in which Miss Maude ably acts the part of Dora Renshawe; Mr. Arthur Denmead gives a dignified performance of Charles Renshawe; Mr. J. M. Olivert is a manly Jack Britton, and the scheming Captain Hurley is ably played by Mr. St. Clair Forbes; the humour of Mr. Victor Du Cane as Freddy Freckles is much enjoyed; Mrs. Wingold Lawrence gives a clever performance of Olga Brandon, and Miss Amy Lawrence makes a bright Jennie Perkins. The play is well staged.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Glasgow's favourite comedian, Mark Sheridan, takes the place of honour, and meets with the hearty reception he so well deserves; another turn of considerable merit is that provided by the Scala Opera Company—a powerful quartette, which includes Mrs. Arthur Rousby. Rose Cabani sings and dances as well as ever; Harry May Hemsley is a talented lightning artist with humorous qualifications, and is also a good mimic; Fred Poplar is responsible for an amusing turn, a like remark being applicable to Larola, styled as "a clever man with funny ways"; Ted E. Box is a good comedian who whistles well, and Kitty Wager sings very nicely. Ernest Tilbury's illustrated chorus songs are popular. The Bioscope terminates a capital performance.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—That clever dancing team Fraser and French are a big success here; Clarice Sefton is a smart and dainty comedienne; Blarney and Kennard contribute an amusing song and dance speciality. The bulk of the programme is occupied by Plimmer and Blake's American sketch Happy Hooligan, which contains several bright items, the fun being mostly contributed by Wm. H. Lester as Hooligan.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—A strong bill here is headed by two favourite comediennes, Clarice Mayne and Annie Purcell. The latter gives several songs in her own tuneful style, and the former introduces her popular imitations of well-known artists and a catchy new ditty, "Georgie Brown," in all of which she is ably assisted by Jas. W. Tate at the piano. Athas and Collins give a diversified song, dance, and burlesque act; Arthur Reece scores with two clever songs; Selbo is accorded a most enthusiastic recall for his wonderful club-juggling; Ernest Rees is as amusing as ever in his quaint style; Dale and O'Malley catch on immensely with their original patter and business; and Amy Sullivan and Minnie Mace are clever comediennes.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—The principal item on the programme this week is a pleasing operatic mélange by the Musical Twelve, accomplished vocalists and pianists; Signor and Mme. Borelli make quite a hit with their cat duet and other imitations; a smart comedy sketch is submitted by Geoffreys and Benson; W. T. Ashcroft's songs and dances are received with the heartiest appreciation; the Davenports give a wonderful exhibition of palming; W. B. Raby, a comedian with a capital voice, takes well; an amusing acrobatic act is provided by Bains and Reed; and the instrumental turn of the Cecilias is clever.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The Craggs, in their lively acrobatic sketch Billy, evoke roars of laughter; Jock Mills is an amusing Scotch comedian; the Frank L. Gregory Troupe show some clever tricks with hoops; Mason and Bart take well in their Captain Kettle business; J. P. Ling's imitations are smart and clever; Lottie Govell sings and dances well; the Four Jumels contribute an enjoyable turn; and Gus Le Clerq and the Bensons also help to make an enjoyable entertainment.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—The popular comedian Martin Conway tops the bill, and meets with much success; Jack Easy, a pawky Scotch comedian, is well received; Doyle and Gibson appear to advantage in a very entertaining cross-talk turn, and do some good dancing; Harlin and Hanlon in a somewhat similar entertainment make a good impression; Miss Marie Clifton, comedienne and dancer, makes a decided hit, and pictures on the Bioscope are greatly enjoyed. Good houses have been the rule.

BRITANNIA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Eris and D'Auburn are responsible for much merriment; Hugh Rogers, descriptive vocalist, sings two songs in fine style, and Miss A. G. Davis is a ballad vocalist worthy of note. The Bioscope has an exceptionally good series of pictures.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—Salome, as presented by Mlle. Sahara, occupies the place of honour; Mr. Charles Frazer's comedy illusion, "Iona," is a funny and smart piece of work; Bromley and Fontein are clever and diverting in "The man behind the music-stand"; and Phern and Phern win applause. The Godfreys have a pretty and tuneful musical act; Cline and Clark are in great demand; an amusing item is rendered by Billy Richardson; Ryder Davis goes well; Eva Ward proves to be a dainty burlesque actress; J. H. Crew is quaint, and a good dancer; and the Palacescope shows some good films.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.—Miss Gertie Nicholas is pleasing in illustrated songs; and the life-motioned pictures are drawing good houses. A fine programme of films is given.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company opened to a packed house on Monday with A Wrecker of Men. Mr. M. Noble as the villain, Pharosaphus, is spirited; Mr. E. Campbell gives a powerful portrayal of Jim Murley; Railton is ably undertaken by Mr. J. A. Wilson; Mr. A. Robinson makes as much as possible of the part of Guise Strange; Mr. M. Wilson as the Hon. Reggie Verincourt and Mr. F. Carruthers as Eric Melville are highly successful; Mr. C. E. Lovell is a capital Ezekiel Isaacs; and Miss Florence Melrose Millett in the title-rôle gives a powerful impersonation. Doris Melville finds an exceedingly clever exponent in Miss G. Talbot; and Miss B. Reynolds is a satisfactory Vavasole.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM. — Sole Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale. — Mr. Wentworth Croke presents an excellent company in The Christian. Miss Daisy Scudamore gives a finished interpretation of Glory Quayle; Mr. Roy Redgrave submits a masterful portrayal of John Storm; Mr. Royce Milton makes a dignified Lord Storm; Mr. Wilfred Noy as Horatio Drake ably hits off the society man; Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn is a great success as Father Lamplugh; the character of Lord Robert Ure is in the able hands of Mr. Herbert Hewetson; Mr. John Hooker is admirable as Archdeacon Wealthy; Miss Molly Hayden is excellent as Mrs. Callender; and Miss Cora Deane makes a charming Polly Love.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert.—The Five Juanitos give a wonderful somersault exhibition; Silbon's performing pony, dogs, and cats are very entertaining; John Watson, in a burlesque jockey act, is funny; Marlo is a first-rate juggler; Cull Pitt and Miss Adele give a smart trick and patter turn; Leicester Cooke is an excellent equestrian; Jenny Alexander proves a clever child comedienne; Recco is very amusing as a burlesque acrobat; Joe Archer is aptly styled "the cheerful chappie"; and excellent pictures are displayed on the Bioscope.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—Nat Travers is the "star" here this week, and is a big favourite with his coster songs; Julia Gilbert is a pleasing comedienne; Saxo, a clever instrumentalist; The Coster's Christmas Eve, in which Nat Travers appears with a capital company, is a big success; and Harry Travers sings some good coon songs. The programme concludes with a singing contest, which causes much merriment.

THE GEM.—Proprietors, the Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B. Cochran.—An excellent set of humorous and dramatic pictures this week includes The Shaughraun, A Dressmaker's Dummy, A Wife, Work Made Easy, and Roll Around.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Yukio Tani, the Japanese ju-jitsu wrestler, gives a display of his special talents. Other turns of great importance are the Selbinis, in their pot-pourri cycle performances; the Three Phydoras, in a novel musical act; Princess Pauline, comedienne; Pat Lynch, an expert clog-dancer; Abalo and Hurst, in their comedy act, The Sport and the Shoeblack; May Tyler, comedienne and dancer; and J. C. Scatter, comedian. An exhibition of the Alexandroscope is also given.

EMPIRE. — Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun. —The programme here includes the Four Maisanos, who are excellent in their musical act; the Hyde and Cody Trio give a clever acrobatic performance; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard introduce an amusing sketch; the Brothers Lawrence, vocalists and dancers, are well received; Flo Hilton is a clever male impersonator; and Rita and Roma as versatile vaudeville entertainers are good. The Empire pictures are interesting.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—The bill this week is headed by the New York Nippers, whose clever comedy and excellent dancing well deserve the reception accorded. Further supporters of an excellent programme are the Arleys, a trio of daring cyclists, who introduce their wonderfully clever performing dogs; Bayne and Hope, in a well-acted dramatic sketch, An Emperor's Divorce; Sandy and Carl, comedians and burlesque artists; the Venda Bros., comedy gymnasts; Nellie Martell, comedienne and dancer; and Kempton, described as America's silent comedian.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson is here again with Rogues and Vagabonds, a popular play in Grimsby. Mr. Hill-Mitchelson appears in his old character of Nathan Baxter, and is as successful as ever; Mr. Graham Woods acts well as Harry Stanford; Mr. Arthur McCullock is satisfactory in the part of Fernand Delair; Mr. Russell Bogue is excellent as Police-constable Clegg; Mr. Sinclair Holden quaintly fulfils the part of John Lamb; Miss Violet Carlyle acts with distinction as Hilda Jefferies; Miss Alice Barber does well as Vera Laverne; and Miss Mabel Ronald is good as Ben.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—The Poluski Brothers are nightly delighting crowded audiences with their original comedy. They have an inexhaustible fund of very smart patter and stories. Spry and Monti have also a very entertaining comedy turn of a different character; Sterling and Love appear in a diverting vocal and instrumental act combined with good comedy; Edna Latonne is a clever male impersonator; Stelling presents a novel turn, introducing a highly-trained dog; Fred Curran has some capital songs; and Lucy Coventry is a pleasing comedienne and dancer.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—An excellent bill of fare drew large audiences this week. Charles Woodward is a capital comedian; Lomar, the man monkey, gives an astonishing turn; mirth-provoking is the fun provided by the Gren Trio; Kinnard proves an expert magician; Lucie Barnard favours with illustrated songs; Lillie Luraine is a talented brass instrumentalist; and Charles Verner scores with his songs. A new and clever turn is provided by Vivianna and company in a dancing scena, The Toy Shop. Raymond's Bio-tableaux add to the enjoyment of the evening.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Gay Gordons is playing to crowded houses. Miss Zena Dare is the Peggy Quainton, and her interpretation of the part is giving universal satisfaction; Mr. Stanley Brett makes a fine Angus Græme, and infuses plenty of life and dash into the part; Mr. Edward Lewis is the comic old showman, Nervy Natt; Mr. Ernest Torrence makes a typical American as Andrew Quainton; Mr. Wilfred Norman plays remarkably well as Edmund Simmons; Miss Madge Vincent is a decided success as Victoria Siddons; Miss Nellie Dade's Charlotte Siddons (the old showman's wife) is a talented performance; and the minor parts are well filled. The play is elaborately put on, and the dresses are superb.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The Elliott Savonas are proving a big attraction at the Grand this week with their wonderful musical scena, The Palace of Orpheus. Bliss and Bliss are two smart patter comedians; Miss Florence is successful in illustrated songs; Senorita Elvina is a graceful gymnast; Great Scott gives a marvellous performance whilst balanced on an upright ladder; and Macdonald and Huntingdon please as American vaudeville entertainers. Leedam Stanley, humorist, and a series of good pictures complete.

Valentine are clever and amusing in their comedy juggling business; Wilson Hallet is mirth-provoking in his mimicry of children; the Macdonalds contribute an amusing musical act; Walter Emerson's comic songs go well; Mr. Chas. Rose is a smart clog-dancer; Howard and Collinson are entertaining in their comedy act; Mr. Chas. Russell's song-scena, "1854," in which he has the assistance of some local veterans, goes well; Allis and Cassati are good in a musical and cross-talk turn; and the Bioscope shows some interesting films.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Captain Drew on Leave is being played here by Miss Norah Garton's company. Miss Cynthia Brooke plays Mrs. Moxon most naturally; Mr. Chas. B. Vaughan is an entrancing Captain Drew; Miss Nora Garton as Miss Mills gives a whole-hearted rendering of a coquettish heiress; George Moxon as presented by Mr. Tom Mowbray is a capital part; Mr. Willox Cadogan plays Ernest White cleverly; Mr. Gerald Venning as Gerald is highly commendable; and Miss Lydia Haywood makes a clever maid. Cut Off With a Shilling precedes.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—A capital programme is headed by Harry Champion, comedian, who pays his first visit to Hanley. Miss Helen Roberts is causing a sensation with her dances; Cissie Curlette is a success with her charming songs; Russell Brandow, a coloured comedian, dances finely; the Vasilescu troupe are clever on the bars; the Grand pictures show scenes in the Isle of St. Kilda; Heeley and Meeley appear with success; the Norman and Leonard Trio, with The Itinerant, are favourably received; and the Fitzroys, gymnasts, are graceful and clever.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Acting-Manager and Operator, Capt. F. Shaw.—The principal pictures here are Stickfast, An Attractive Catch, The Pony Express Rider, Black-Eyed Susan, Hostler Joe, Magic Fertiliser, and The Coster Seedsman. Geo. Castrey is a light comedian with a good style.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—For the first three nights of this week Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared in The Belle of New York. Mr. James A. Watts as Harry Bronson is pleasant and unforced; Miss Hebe Kneller did well as Violet Gray; and Miss Dorothy Doria played vivaciously as Fifi. Mr. Frank Lawton, in his whistling sketch, evoked loud plaudits; Mr. Arthur Ricketts as Harry Bronson's father played well; and Mr. Joseph R. Tate as the stolid and phlegmatic lunatic made much of his laughter-moving opportunities. Miss Florence Hersee acted with abandon and verve. During the remaining three nights of the week Mr. Leonard Boyne and his company in Raffles occupied the boards.

THE KURSAAL.—General-Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. Julian Clifford; Assistant-Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. Eldrid.—Miss Violet Elliott is the vocalist here this week, and the Munograph is showing new films with three changes during the week. On Wednesday the last Symphony Concert of the season is announced, under the bâton of Mr. P. Tas, of the Duke of Devonshire's orchestra. On Saturday afternoon Fritz Kreisler is announced to give a violin recital.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. Ferrier.—Pictures are highly approved of here, the house being packed.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. James Welch's company made a return visit here on Monday in the farce When Knights Were Bold. Mr. Henry J. Ford filled the rôle of Sir Guy very acceptably; Miss Bruce Joy was a pleasing Lady Rowens; Mr. Talbot Homewood again sustained his rôle as Wittle; Mr. Reginald Hunter was good as the Seneschal Barker; Mr. Cecil Clayton was effective as Widdicome, the jester; Miss Bessie Walters made a pleasing appearance as Alice Barker; and the Jew and Jewess had capable representatives respectively in Mr. Vernon Sansbury and Miss Phyllis Beck. Mr. George Rowlands was equal to the requirements of Sir Bryan Ballymote, and a good character impersonation was supplied by Mr. William Lockhart as the Rev. Peter Pottleberry. The Wrong Side of the Road preceded the farce, the characters being sustained by Mr. Cecil Clayton and Miss Phyllis Beck. For Thursday Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company was billed in The Beloved Vagabond.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. R. Vivian Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Miss Lily Wood, a pleasing singer, opens a good programme. Alpho gives an amusing ventriloquial sketch; the subjects presented by the Hipposcope are quite up to date; Continental songs and dances are well illustrated by the Figaros; Rud Whitworth gives a clever musical and comedy act; Peggy Pryde's songs and patter create great merriment; Hal Chapter, eccentric comedian, wins great applause; and a good turn is given by Fyne and Hurley as the coster and the Dude.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Miss Ethel Vibert possesses a powerful contralto; Mr. J. D. Hunter and his alert little company appear in a light-hearted trifle, A Quiet Family, which excites great merriment; Mr. Thornley Dodge is very clever in his drawing-room entertainment entitled A Musical Comedy; the wonderful memory of Datas arouses much discussion; the Zedoras are particularly good in their acrobatic feats; and Payne's interesting Bioscope concludes.

About six weeks ago I was suffering with

PIMPLES

ALL OVER MY FACE,

brought on probably by painting my face for my eccentric business. I was also suffering with SCURF IN THE HAIR. Being rather alarmed, I asked a friend's advice, and he recommended me to take "Clarke's Blood Mixture." I purchased a 2/9 bottle, and within a week I found marked improvement. The pimples and the scurf is entirely gone. I cannot tell you how thankful I am at having taken "Clarke's Blood Mixture," and I shall recommend it to everybody, as I think it only right that such a remedy should be known.—(Signed) JOHN HENRY JONES, known as "Little Johnny," Llandudno's Popular Comedian, Thorndale, Llandudno, Feb. 24, 1908.

VANISHED LIKE MAGIC,

PUBLIC HALL.—The People's Picture Co. continues its attractive entertainment here under the management of Mr. Hy. Gray. The interest of the pictures is enhanced by the lecturer's (Mr. Clement Hurst) well-chosen descriptions. The Weimars on the elevated wire cause diversion; and Charlse Neiman contributes an instrumental and vocal turn.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Under the direction of Mr. D'Arcy Clayton, the Gipsies and their Jester are securing good audiences. Mr. Will Gane as the Jester is particularly good. The speeches and medley by Mr. Edgar Berte and the dancing of Miss Inez du Buisson are attractive items of the entertainment.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. P. Barnsley.—A welcome return visit is being paid by Mr. Alfred Cross and company in The Manxman. Foremost amongst an excellent company is Mr. Harold B. Lewis as Philip Christian, whose fine stage presence and clear, telling voice make him an artist of exceptional worth. As Pete Mr. Alfred Cross plays naturally and is very convincing; Miss Minnie Watersford as Kate has scope for the display of emotional acting in a trying part; Mr. Ernest Allen makes a decided hit in the humorous part of Monty; Mr. Fred Charles is excellent as Ross Christian; and the same may be said of the Cæsar Cregeen of Mr. Fred Mace. Mr. W. Dewhurst is highly amusing as Professor Mawley.

HORWICH.—NEW PRINCES'.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—The Woman from Russia, presented by Miss Adria Hill and Robert Ayrton's company, forms the attraction here. Miss Adria Hill portrays Wanda Sonorovitch in artistic style; Miss F. Sorsby played Edith with feeling; Miss Maude St. John made an excellent impression as Mary Ann Smith; the manly characteristics of Frank Haldane were shown to advantage by Mr. Robert Ayrton; and the Hon. Reginald Fitzgerald was capitally rendered by Mr. Basil Mitchell. Captain Alexis Zarviski had an excellent exponent in Mr. Max Coutts; Mr. Richard Pitt as Frank's gouty father was amusing; Mr. Jas. Firth's Jerry Moriarity causes plenty of fun; and the Jew, Ezra Caroni, was well represented by Mr. G. Mortimer Hancock. Mr. Harry Elliston as Wun-Hi, a Celestial, was received with shrieks of laughter. Under Two Flags was billed for Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thomas J. Phillips.—Mr. Seymour Hicks' smart musical comedy, The Gay Gordons, met with a cordial reception on its first appearance here on Monday. Miss Maie Ash was charming in her dainty freshness and tireless vivacity as Peggy Quainton; Mr. Frank Lincoln rattled through his work as Angus Graeme with irresistible verve; Mr. Tom Graves contributed materially to the success by his quaint humour as Nervy Nat; Mr. Edward Nainby was diverting in his inanity as Edmund Siddons; Mr. Norman Forrest was adequate as Corporal John Smith; and Miss Nellie Lonnen and Miss Ida Laurie were both good as the two Siddons ladies.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The top turn on this week's bill, Alexandre and Hughes, is one of the most polished bits of comedy seen here for a long time, and the music is equal to the humour. Others appearing are Dolly and Madge McCalla, duettists and dancers; Sergeant Pickering, on his well-trained mare Ruby; Bert Rowe and Jim Roe, comedians; James Stewart, comedian on the piano; H. C. Lovell and company in a farcette entitled Mam'selle Pom Pom; Ray and Calden, comedians and dancers; the Enrico Martialo Trio, in a clever juggling turn; and new films on the Bioscope.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The attraction this week has been The Girl Behind the Counter, which is in a large measure securing the same patronage as it did on the last occasion it was produced in Hull, when record business was done. Amongst the company responsible for the success gained is Mr. Kennedy Allen as General Willoughby; Winnie finds an admirable representative at the hands of Miss Ida Stratham; the Mons. Duval of Mr. Claude Dampier is a characteristic study of the Gaul; the Dudds of Mr. Fredk. Park is a noteworthy performance; and Mr. Sam Lockridge plays the part of Charles Chetwyn with distinction.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—Dear Old Charlie, a comedy new to Hull, is creating a very favourable impression. The husband is a rôle that suits Mr. Geo. Lestocq; nothing could have been better than the Dumphie and Peploe of Mr. R. S. Trelawney and Mr. C. Douglas Cox; Miss Leonora Braham is effectively cast as Mrs. Fishbourne; Miss Edith Hall wins admiration as Charlie's wife; and the rest of the comedy is well cast.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Village Blacksmith is the play for this audience, and the attractions of it are enhanced by the presence in the cast of Mr. Sam Livesey, who has all the qualities which go to make a success. Mr. Albert Sinclair is well suited as Captain Leo, and the wrestling episode is well done. Miss Maggie Edwards plays with distinction the rôle of the blacksmith's wife, and Miss Cissie Le Grande is the Ruth Perkins. The Village Blacksmith is a play always certain of a good welcome on its return visits.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Messrs. F. Marriott-Watson and Sanderson Moffat and company are appearing here in What a Woman Did. Mr. Moffat gives a capital impersonation of Conrad de L'Orme; and Miss Florence E. Florence as Elise de L'Orme is a recided success. Mr. C. Elton Morgan as Fritz is highly amusing; and is ably assisted by Miss Norah Waylett as Nannette. Mr. Owen Edwin is a quaint Peter Pippin; La Papillon is admirably represented by Miss Phillis Hamilton; Mr. F. Marriott-Watson makes an excellent villain as Marquis de Viray; and his accomplice, Black Piton, is in the hands of Mr. Reg. Kloof. The Clancy Girls are expert dancers, and the songs sung by the various artists meet with approval.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM.—The three nights' visit of George Duval and Cosmo Gordon Lennox's company in the delightful comedy of Angela has given much pleasure to good audiences. The acting of Miss Florence Glossop Harris in the title-rôle met with the appreciation it so richly deserved. Much was expected from Miss Harris, and her grace and resource in a part of some difficulty realised every anticipation. Mr. Frank Cellier as Richard Evesham was in excellent form; Miss Janet Woram was a skilful Mary Pemariage; the part of Christopher Keswick was in the hands of Mr. Arthur Goodsall; and Mr. Horace Sinclair provoked much laughter as Bithers.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Fred Land is paying a return visit this week, and is again popular with new and catchy songs. Nat Watkins and Alec Lyner are eccentric dancers of merit; Corman's Juveniles (ten in number) are a clever and pleasing troupe; their dances of old time, including the Minuet in court costumes, are very pretty and picturesque. Mary Ohms has a well-trained circus of ponies, bears, donkeys, and monkeys; Miss Rose Hamilton is a mimic of quite exceptional ability, and sings equally well; the Richards Trio have some very novel acrobatic feats; and Hugh Cedar and Edward Algar, in an amusing sketch entitled Ye Dayes of Old, and several films on the Bioscope complete the bill.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson.—Mr. Frank Bertram's company, in The Breed of the Treshams, is here. Mr. Sydney Bland proves himself a capable actor in the part of Lieut. Reresby; and Miss Grace Harlington gives a good account of that of Batty. Mr. Alfred Holles supplies a spirited portrayal of Viscount Dorsington; Mr. W. R. Winning is well placed as Colonel the Hon. Clement Hungerford; Mr. G. Traill is excellent as Colonel Sir Henry Curwen; while Mr. Howard Brennan is a meritorious Francis Tresham. Miss Mildred Hodson is a charming and powerful Margaret; and the rest of the parts are in good hands. Mounting and dresses are excellent.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. E. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—The principal feature of this week's programme is an original dancing scena by the Viviana company, entitled The Toy Shop. The salesman is a clever acrobat, and the girls who pose as dolls give some characteristic dances. Other turns are contributed by Charles Woodward, a powerful voiced comedian, whose patter was much applauded; Charles Verner, vocalist; Margaret Allwood, vocalist; Lomas, the man monkey; Kinnard, magician; Marie Bernard, in illustrated songs; and Lillie Luraine, cornet player. The performance terminates with Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

KENDAL.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Managers, Messrs. Butler and Chorley.—Miss Nora Carton's company gives a pleasing interpretation of that charming comedy Captain Drew on Leave. Additional interest was taken in the play locally owing to Miss Carton being the widow of a former Liberal candidate for this constituency. The character of Miss Mills is pleasingly delineated by Miss Carton; Miss Cynthia Brooks faithfully portrays Mr. Moxon; and the remaining parts are in capable hands. The dresses have been specially designed, and are very attractive.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—On Monday Mr. Julius Booth's No. 1 company opened a week's engagement in Monte Cristo. In the rôle of Edmond Dantés Mr. Julius Booth excels; and Mr. Howard Brenan ably portrays the part of Nortier. Danglars is in the capable hands of Mr. H. Bannister; Mercedes is artistically played by Miss Lelia Drummond; and Miss Jessie Blake as Sophie Danglars does well.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's No. 1 company has been here this week with The Old Folks at Home. As Lady Howard Kenilworth Miss Mary Fulton acted with a fine sense of light and shade; Mr. Frank Liston powerfully sustained the rôle of the dissolute husband; Mr. Aidan Lovett played with conviction the part of Andrew Ross; and the Christopher Robin of Mr. Henry Nelson and the Martha Robin of Miss Clara Santley were alike excellent. Mr. Frank Caffrey introduced the humorous vein as Ben Jolly; and as Patricia Bathurst Miss Kate Froud acted a difficult part well.

KIRKCALDY.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mr. Henry Coutts is the centre of attraction this week with a sketch entitled Outflanked, in which he is responsible for some really clever quick changes; Joe Humphreys, with some capital songs; Mr. W. H. Smart, comedian; Orlando, a good tenor; Mr. Geo. A. Park, vocalist; Mr. Will Harris, comedian; Yvonne Lamor, comedienne; Pauline Du Barrie, male impersonator; and Miss Kitty Lavigne, comedienne and dancer, are also on the bill.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—The attraction for the first three nights this week was Mr. Ed. Graham Falcon's company in The Private Secretary. Mr. Tom Taylor-Vinson appeared with success as Mr. Marsland; his nephew, Harry Marsland, was played by Mr. Ben Barnett; whilst Mr. Chas. Simms made the most of Mr. Cattermole. The parts of Douglas Cattermole and the Rev. Robert Spalding could not have been in better hands than those of Mr. Wentworth Fane and Mr. Cyril Price-Evans. Miss Josephine Richards gave an excellent portrayal of Edith Marsland; Miss Winifred Williamson won favour as Eva Webster; and the characters of Mrs. Stead and Miss Ashford were respectively well depicted by Miss Camilla Norrys and Miss Sybil Chester. The Power of the Cross is billed for the remaining three nights for Mr. Lingford Carson's company.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Another interesting programme is arranged this week, with Pip Powell and Katie Vasey at the top in a sketch, The Perfect Woman. Mrs. Hugh de Beera and company in a scena, "An Old-English Rose Garden," has a great reception, and is recalled nightly; the Bros Obo are very smart comedians; and the De Wynne Bros. are clever equilibrists. Mr. George Reeves, comedian; Frances Drew, burlesque artist; and the Onyx Duo, in a quick-change act, all do well; and the Hippograph depicting Baby and the Ne'er-do-well and Making a Bad Acquaintance cause roars of laughter.

LEAMINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George Anthony.—Davis and Gledhill are this week topping the bill in their wonderful entertainment of motor and cycle racing on a patent track, a truly remarkable performance. The Foy Bros. keep the house in a continual roar of laughter by their comedy absurdity, Pat in China. Another entertaining item is the dramatic episode entitled Her Good Name, presented by Miss Diana Hope and company with the greatest credit. The other turns include Halma, a Scottish society juggler; Ted Saunders, mimic; and Marie Neilson, expert dancer. The Premier Imperial Pictures also prove interesting.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss present their latest success, The Gay Gordons, this week, and the entertainment is thoroughly enjoyed by crowded houses. Mr. Hicks gives a characteristic performance as Angus Graeme, his clever work arousing continual merriment. Miss Terriss is the recipient of much enthusiastic approval for a dainty and artistic effort as Peggy Quainton. The remainder of the company are a capable lot, and the production is dressed and staged in exquisite style.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—A well-staged drama, Her Road to Ruin, is the attraction at this theatre, and the engagement proves a popular one. The hero, Frank Temple, is played in convincing style by Mr. Henry Woolston; a particularly good study is that of Jess Willoughby by Miss Beatrice Edwards; whilst Mr. Dane Clarke as the Bishop leaves but little to be desired. Mr. Alex Bradley handles the rôle of Philip Hardy in clever style.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—Harry Randall heads a strong programme here, and his rendering of several new items vastly pleases his numerous admirers. Another popular humorist, Tom Foy, is high in favour with his funny item, The Yorkshire Lad in London; Nell Emerald scores a conspicuous success with a vivacious turn; trick cycling extraordinary by the Danedin Troupe is a much-applauded feature; Lee and Bentley repeat previous successes with a well-acted sketch; Ouida McDermott is a popular actress-vocalist; and fine turns by the Musical Schafers, Rhoda Paul, and Sidney Stern are each enthusiastically received.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—J. Willard and company score a success here with a dramatic item, The Ace of Hearts; Harry Weldon is having the usual good time; whilst the Haydees, with acceptable comedy; Les Ados, in a clever Continental speciality; and Tiny Arnold, the diminutive vocalist, also render capital support.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—Freddie French and company are doing a diverting entertainment here under the title of The Policeman's Ballet, and evoke frequent laughs; Kelly and Agnes are also popular fun purveyors. The Three Braggs have an acrobatic act that arouses enthusiasm; a tumbling and balancing act by the Maximilian Trio is well received; whilst other strong turns are the Society Quartette, in clever song and dance; Minnie Love, the Wallys, Sam Thomson, and Ruby Norton.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A neat comedy sketch, Wanted, a Wife, is the principal turn at this popular hall, Mr. Leslie Clare, whose company it is, playing the leading part in good style. The Fimans are also vastly amusing in a humorous sketch. Ernest Clifford is making a big success with song and dance; Edie Veno is again a favourite; a clever speciality by Elvio, Ross, and Elvio is much enjoyed; and of the rest, Johnny Dwyer and Florence Deighton are particularly successful.

ALBERT HALL.—Ibsen's remarkable play Ghosts was presented at this hall on Monday evening to a large and critical audience by Mr. Harold V. Neilson's company. Mr. Neilson's conception of Oswald Alving was a telling and effective one, and made a big impression; Mrs. Theodore Wright is to be credited with a really accomplished portrayal of Mrs. Alving, a large share of the honours of the evening falling to her lot; Mr. Dickson Moffat made the rôle of Pastor Manders very convincing; some fine work was done by Miss Constance Bromley as Regina; and Mr. Orlando Barnett's Engstrand was also a most satisfactory effort.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton.—A rich musical treat is being offered the patrons of this theatre this week, by the welcome return engagement of the famous Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, which is under the direction of Mr. Walter Van Noorden. The répertoire for the week includes Carmen, Faust, Bohemian Girl, Il Trovatore, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and Maritana. Carmen was presented on Monday. Miss Doris Woodall both sang and acted delightfully in the title-rôle; Mr. Edmund Davies scored a success as Don José; Mr. Charles Victor as Escamillo made an excellent impression; Mr. Frederick Clendon was very good as Dancairo; Miss Bessie Cartwright, as Micaela, sang exceedingly well; and both Miss Christine Ritz, as Mercedes, and Miss Annie Walker, as Frasquita, may be highly commended. The orchestra and chorus, under the conductorship of Mr. Walter Van Noorden, left nothing to be desired. On Tuesday evening Faust was presented.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A Sister's Sin, presented by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company, provides the attraction here this week. Mr. Cecil A. Olgar as Harold Raymond, and Miss Violet Ingram as Minnie Hastings play well; and Mr. Andrew Money is capital as George Oakley. Both Miss Beryl Ravenswood as Chazel and Miss Florence Trevoir as Redempta do well; Miss Mabel Ray as May Raymond and Miss Violet Bales as Jack are to be complimented on meritorious portrayals.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Topping this week's excellent programme are Clark and Hamilton; the Boisset Troupe (Frank and Albert and company) are again arousing merriment with The Bricklayers; Happy Tom Parker, a clever dancer, is popular; May Mars well maintains her favouritism; Edie King, in her clever quick-change vocal and dancing act is rewarded with much applause; the Crown Trio of speciality vocalists are good; the Sisters Grovini give a smart and graceful acrobatic performance; Valerie De Lacy has some taking illustrated songs; and the Bioscope completes.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrenc.—A hit being made here this week by Marguerite Broadfoote, in taking songs; Mr. N. W. Phillips and company are a special and popular feature in the military drama A Soldier's Dishonour and the amusing comedietta The Troubles of a Landlady; Mlle. Bertenelli gives a clever performance on the golden globe; the Milton Trio of vocalists, dancers, and paper manipulators are scoring a success; Arthur Harris is a popular descriptive vocalist; Ethel Schaffer goes well with illustrated songs; Jim Cheetham is a boy whistler of merit; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is popular.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Hurley.—The leading moving pictures this week are The Nihilists, Animated Snowballs, Too Old to Work, The Lady's Companion, and The Music Teacher, which are interspersed with turns by Bert Rose, vocalist; the Brothers Dodge, comedians and dancers; and Jack Miller, vocalist. An open dancing competition is being introduced for the first time here this week.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Mr. T. G. Bailey's new domestic drama Love Rules the World is presented by Mr. Sidney Rennef and his company. Mr. Richard Vane and Miss Gertrude Sterroll, as the terribly tried hero and heroine, have strong emotional rôles, wherein both display ability; as a pair of thoroughly villainous adventurers Mr. Stephen Langton and Miss Constance Medwyn succeed in drawing forth hearty execrations from the audience; the house is kept in irrepressible mirth by the humour of Mr. Walter Dale and Miss Kitty Russell; Miss Annie Brunette submits a clever character study of Mother Grimble; Mr. Matt Russell does well as Farmer Carruthers; Mr. Alex. Wilson Wynne merits high commendation for his rendering of Paul; and in the pathetic part of Jim Dikey Mr. Rennef himself appears with conspicuous success.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company have been here this week with popular selections from their répertoire. On Monday evening Lohengrin was staged, and produced with that completeness of detail which is a special feature of anything emanating from this combination of artists. The fine orchestration, supplied by forty-five performers, under the bâton of Herr Richard Eckhold, proved one of the great features of the evening's enjoyment, and it was generally conceded that Wagner's magnificent and impressive music was most skilfully interpreted by them. Mr. Philip Brozel in the title-rôle sang with an ease and clearness of enunciation that was exceedingly pleasing to the ear; and Mme. De Vere Sapio as Elsa looked charming, acted gracefully, and, being in good voice, rendered her numbers with rich artistic effect. Much credit was certainly due to Miss Marie Louise Roger for her finished portrait of Ortrud. Both as an actress and vocalist she earned honours, her round, clear, telling contralto voice being listened to with deep interest; Mr. William Dever made an imposing and dramatic Frederick; Mr. Charles Magrath proved a dignified King; and Mr. R. Cliffe did justice to the rôle of the Herald. Other operas of the week were Carmen (with Mlle. de Lussan and Mr. Seth Hughes), The Meistersingers (the first time by this company, Miss Kate Anderson and Mr. Brozel being in the principal parts), Faust (Mme. Sapio and Mr. Louis Laurier), Madame Butterfly (Mme. Fanny Moody and Mr. Seth Hughes), Tannhäuser Mme. Sapio and Mr. Laurier), and The Bohemian Girl (Miss Kate Anderson and Mr. Hughes).

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh put in a second week here, presenting The Walls of Jericho, and on Wednesday, by special desire, The Arm of the Law, the latter being preceded by a curtain raiser, A Marriage Has Been Arranged. In the first-named piece, which was particularly enjoyed, Mr. Bourchier gave his Jack Frobisher with all its old-time force, and held his audience at the point where he assumed his proper station and authority in his own house. Miss Vanbrugh as his wife showed that delicacy of movement and refined touch which proves the accomplished actress, and the appreciation of her efforts evinced by the audience was very flattering. Worthy support also came from Mr. Arthur Whitby (the Marquis of Steventon), Mr. Leon Quartermain (Hankey Bannister), Mr. Charles Bryant (Harry Dallas), Miss Pamela Gaythorne (Lucy), and Miss Henrietta Watson (Lady Westerby).

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The attraction here during the week was Second to None, presented by Mr. T. Edward Ward's principal company, and it must be said that the bright military play met with acceptance. As Sir Reginald Greystone Mr. Theo Balfour acted with keen judgment; Mr. Frederick F. Lloyd made a powerful Captain Mannering; Mr. J. G. Maine ably represented Sergeant Horseman; Miss Clarrie Yandell proved a humorous Norah; good assistance in the comedy came from Mr. Allan Carruthers, as Joe Ruggles; and other well-held parts were Lieut. Ballater (Mr. Arthur D. Layland), Harry Wilding (Mr. Leonard Williams), Nell Greystone (Miss Dorothy Clifton), and Private Flutter (Mr. Louis Esmonde). The mounting of the drama was good.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Here this week we have had Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company with From Slave to Princess, which made its first appearance in Liverpool. The play, which was ably presented, was received with every mark of appreciation. As the Slave Miss Dorothy Lart acted with much judgment, and earned applause; the Princess Claudia of Miss Agnes Verity was full of dramatic intensity; Mr. Austin Milroy made a Manly Prince Julian; Mr. H. Benson caused a deal of humour as Patrick O'Brien; Mr. Victor Gardom creditably filled the rôle of King Adrian; Mr. Arthur Elwyn gave a capital study of the traitor Bardoni; and Mr. Dermont Fitzgibbon afforded satisfaction with his Lieut. Alexis.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Vesta Tilley has been the shining star here this week, and thousands of her admirers have flocked, as usual, to see her; the Donaldson Brothers, along with their company, which included Fred Weedon and Fred Hunter, presented a smart burlesque comedy, Sports in a Jungle, which pleased generally; Carrie Laurie's kindergarten combination gave a pretty comedy speciality, A Model School; Marie Young showed much capability with her character sketches from well-known authors; the Japanese mimic, Takio, had a turn that was much appreciated; Johnson and Bert gave a novel act, entitled A Queer Customer; Bob Hamilton, as a Scotch comedian, was very diverting; the Narow Brothers were particularly eccentric comedians on wheels; and Norah Emerald, soubrette and dancer, also appeared.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—The attraction here this week has been Melville's The Ugliest Woman on Earth.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Heading the bill here we have had Florrie Gallimore, who is popular at this north-end house. Her latest songs were cordially appreciated. The particularly smart all-round show given by Vasco, "the mad musician," proved one of the most acceptable items on the programme; Clown Barker, with his comedy animal act, pleased as well as ever; Mlle. Alexandra and Mons. Bertie presented a refined aerial act, After the Ball; as patter comedians and dancers Celby and Myers were a treat; Arthur Woodville had some very funny songs and danced cleverly; and other good turns came from Josie Delaine, soubrette and dancer; Curwen and Bell, burlesque artists; and Ivy Aberdare, comedienne and dancer.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—In big type here this week has been Walter C. Kelly, who made his first appearance out of London. As a comedian he proved a treat, and kept his audience in roars of laughter. The merry musical fantasy, The Capture of Venus, presented by J. C. Piddock and company, earned hearty approval; Mlle. Renee gave a refined drawing-room musical act, which gained for her general approbation; some remarkable work on the double trapeze was performed by Sibb and Sibb; the three Sisters Tree had a neat "hunting" act; Ted Karno and company caused great laughter with their sketch, The Merry Carpenters; Nash and Noel were a couple of versatile comedians and dancers; and the list also contained the names of Beaty and Blanche, duettists and dancers; Richard Taylor, the whistling ventriloquist; and the Three Krags, gymnasts.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock dramatic company here have this week given The Curse of Crime, from the pen of Julian Rochefort. Mr. David G. Noble made a manly Harry Sterling; as the scoundrel Dick Blight Mr. Sydney Grant played with dramatic force; Mr. Robb Wilton proved a particularly humorous Phil Carney; Miss Florence Palmer submitted a sympathetic Ruth Blight; the rôle of Marie Heartley was undertaken in able manner by the accomplished Miss Lilian Radbourne; and crediable were the efforts of Messrs. Cecil Ravenswood (Mr. Oppenheim), R. Seath Innes (the ferret), Leo Montgomery (Fenton), Miss Florence Cameron (Sally Jinks), and Miss Emmie Edingale (Mother Smith). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed the latest films.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to the Bioscope pictures shown here the following artists appeared during the week:—J. H. Ellis, eccentric comedian; and Hemel and Hedis, banjoists.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Heading a "taking" bill here this week was Arthur Roberts, with his screamingly funny sketch, Till Sunday, which proved immensely enjoyable. Among his supporters were Messrs. H. Rokeby, H. J. Worth, Harry Huddlestone, Miss May Hallett, and Miss Ruby Celeste. J. W. Rowley had a good reception for his latest songs; Jennie Johns proved a general favourite, particularly with her catchy number, "A middy in the King's Navy"; the comedy sketch entitled Her Birthday, given by Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas, met with as much acceptance as ever; Stewart and Morgan had a neat vocal item, "Leaving Ireland"; Walter King, "the doleful one," raised much laughter; the Jackley Trio of acrobats gave a skilful entertainment; and contributions also came from the Three Welsh Girls, with harmonised illustrated songs; and the Five Olracs, ragtime acrobats.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Good business continues to be done at this newly-erected place. Heading the programme this week was The Isle of Ooma, a bright comic opera sustained by Arthur Rigby and company. It was beautifully put on, and met with cordial approval. Nat Clifford, "the nimble one," was very amusing; Fanny Robina, a prime favourite, brought new business; Florry Cooper pleased exceedingly, particulrly with her song, "Smile, smile, smile"; a smart quick-change comedy act was gone through by the Three Behans; Langslow exhibited remarkable skill in the matter of balancing; Stacey and Williams proved diverting with their comedy; Shavo introduced some funny juggling, which caused endless laughter; and Billy Bint, comedian, also appeared.

LLANDUDNO.—PIER PAVILION.—Secretary, Mr. S. Hughes.—The grand special concerts finished on Saturday, Mme. Blanche Marchesi being the vocalist. Mr. A. W. Payne, F.R.C.M., bade farewell to the audience in an appropriate manner, and was the recipient of many tokens of esteem, amongst them being several beautiful floral baskets.

HIPPODROME ROLLER SKATING RINK.—A contest took place here on the 24th ult. for prizes for the best couples at graceful skating and "two-step." An enormous audience applauded the winners.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Manager and Lessee, Mr. J. Ritson.—For three nights Miss Lydia Donovan's company appeared here in Niobe. Mr. C. Quinton Fulford ably acquitted himself as Peter Amos; Mr. Frank Lennard was good as Cornelius Griffin; Mr. Alfred G. Raymond as Philip Innings was well placed; and Miss Lydia Donovan as Niobe was excellent.

LONG EATON.—ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—This week we have a visit from The Girl who Went Astray company. Miss Gwynne Warren in the title-rôle does well; Mr. John B. Shinton is capable as Captain Frank Julian; and Miss Ada Ryder as the persecuted wife is worthy of praise. Miss Mary Dalby is a mirthful Molly Smart; Mr. Fred Lloyd a truculent villain; Mr. R. Ashton a sympathetic doctor; and Mr. Edgar P. Melrose makes up well as the Sergeant.

THE PALACE.—The Metropolitan Picture Co. have good patronage. Miss May St. Clair, Marshall and Forster, and Geo. Larry have a variety programme; while the pictures are as popular as ever. Mr. Alf. H. Smith has two shows nightly. He has comfortably seated the place, and it is well patronised.

LONGTON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Longton Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. H. Sherriff Howard.—Mr. Wilson Benge and company are paying a return visit with The Eve of Her Wedding, and are continuing the excellent business done here recently. As George Tremain Mr. Wilson Benge succeeds admirably in the part; Miss Sadie Smith acts sympathetically as Mavis Leverton; as Renie de Telle Miss Effie Bartlett gives a convincing rendering, and receives excellent support from Mr. Fred Rivers as Giovanni; Mr. Arthur Keand is effective as Squire Leverton; Mr. Henry Danson gives a capital display as Dick Leverton. Mr. Charles Digby as Rudolph Earle and Miss Daisy Cook as Kinkie are responsible for the comedy; whilst Messrs. Wallace Campbell, Charles Groves, jun., Arthur E. Holland, and Miss Amy Milstead complete the cast.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. B. Reed.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company in his own drama of A Wrecker of Men has been drawing large houses. Mr. Eric Campbell as Jim Murley gave a powerful interpretation of this exacting part; Mr. Arthur Robinson as Guise Strange, played the part in a finished style; Mr. Arthur Wilson was very good as Reggie Verincourt; whilst Mr. Chas. E. Lovell as Ezekiel Isaac played the Jew with exactness. Eric Melville was safe in the capable hands of Mr. Thompson Carruthers; Mr. Milner Noble was excellent as Pharosaphus; Miss Florence Melrose Millett as Risca Mallison, the wrecker of men, treated the patrons with a sample of fine and powerfully dramatic acting; Miss Gwendoline Talbot was most successful as Doris Melville; and Miss Beatrice Reynolds created a deal of hilarity by her unique portrayal of Vavasole Sloper.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Following a run of musical comedy, the management have again decided to follow on the lines of the Hippodrome by submitting a season of the "variety business." This week Billie Barlow tops the bill, and secures a full measure of success. The bill also includes Enzer, in a juggling act; Miss Clarice, ju-jitsu expert; Marie Goodwyn; the New Macs; Johnny Fuller; the Sisters Dorrell, duettists; and E. V. Barr, a local comedian.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—The management here commenced an entirely new season on Monday with many notable improvements, both in seating and lighting. Additional electric lighting of 16,000 candle power has been installed, together with a new and efficient orchestra under Mr. Harry Tidswell. The scenic effects and stage appointments have also been brought thoroughly up to date. On Monday night an audience of upwards of 3,000 warmly signified its approval of the lengthy programme, which was presented with evident taste and skill. Of the beautiful animated subjects special mention should be made of the Isle of Man Motor-car Race (by Warwick), which aroused the greatest interest. Ada and Marvel Webb present a graceful swimming act in the crystal tank; and Brayne and Lloyd created roars of laughter with a genuinely funny sketch, The Tree of Truth, seen here for the first time. The Four Dorians present a splendid gymnastic turn; and equally successful are Drum and Major, a comedy couple, whose local topics quickly caught on. Also included in the bill are the Boston Twins, comedians; Whisper, comedy juggler; Beattie Bloom, comedienne; and the Bros. Bright in a smart balancing act. Altogether it is one of the best variety programmes ever presented locally. The management also announce other star turns in all professions.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. Douglas Bruce has brought another drama by Mr. W. Melville, The Girl Who Lost Her Character. Amongst the strong cast must be mentioned the Captain Caversham of Mr. Richard Ferris and the Rev. Robert Everton of Mr. E. Maclean, both very well acted. Mr. Harold Macartney, in the dual rôle of Jack England and Private Johnson, gives a good impersonation. Special praise must also be given to Miss V. E. Lawson as Molly Vernon.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. T. A. Jones and company are here with When Other Lips. Mr. T. A. Jones as Ted Daunton handles the rôle with expression and earnestness; Miss Marie Daventry as Ruth Lingley gives an artistic impersonation; Mr. Juan D'Alberti acts with force as Basil Cunningham, and Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is amusing as Tommy Neeles. The part of their farewell performance being given on Saturday last to an immense audience. A number of presents, some of them of considerable intrinsic value, were handed over the footlights to the several artists. This week Mr. Richard Arthur brings a variety company, including Roulette, whose turn on the rolling globe is much appreciated. Alec Watson is a good coster comedian; Tom Tiddler's patter as a "morose comedian" provokes much laughter; the Kranlees are skilful dancers; and Arthur Stevens contributes song-scenas with considerable success. Miss May Shine pleases with character impersonations and songs, some of which are illustrated, are contributed by Miss Beatrice Hyde and Miss Marie Jones.

MAIDSTONE. — PALACE. — Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The appearance of Mr. Gus Elen, the coster comedian, is proving very popular, and he has to give three songs at each performance before the audience is satisfied, his "'Arf a pint of ale" and "The wrong 'un's bedroom" being especially well received. Mr. H. A. Moore is a mimic and impersonator with a large répertoire, the selections which he gives including imitations of Mr. Albert Chevalier, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Arthur Roberts, and Mr. R. G. Knowles, the latter quite one of the best we have seen. Maggie Strachan is a clever instrumentalist and vocalist; Russell Carr is a ventriloquist with novel and original methods, his act going with a swing from start to finish. Others appearing are Donald MacDougall, Scotch comedian; the Sisters Du Cane, duettists; Chas. Denton, comedian, and the Bioscope.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—A large audience was attracted here on Monday by the appearance of Mr. Fred Terry and company in The Scarlet Pimpernel, of which a highly interesting and successful performance was given. Mr. Fred Terry cuts an admirable figure as Sir Percy Blakeney, and is worthily applauded for his picturesque and gallant bearing during the exciting course of events. Valuable assistance is rendered by Mr. Horace Hodges as Chauvelin, Mr. Alfred Kendrick as Sir Andrew Ffoulkes, and quite a host of other capable people in interesting rôles; while as Lady Blakeney (the part usually undertaken by Miss Julia Neilson, who is at present indisposed) Miss Miriam Lewes acts with considerable skill and charm. The staging is, of course, worthy of the play and the company.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A capital performance of Hamlet was given here on Monday by Mr. H. B. Irving and company, including Miss Dorothea Baird. Mr. Irving's delineation was not quite so melancholy as is the general rule in the title-part; but whether his interpretation may be accepted as correct or not his acting was always cultured and suggestive. As Ophelia Miss Dorothea Baird submitted a very effective performance; and the good effect was further enhanced by the thoughtful and clever acting of Mr. Tom Reynolds as Polonius, Mr. Charles Dodsworth as the First Gravedigger, Mr. Frank Tyars as Claudius, Mr. Eric Maxon as Laertes, Mr. Stanley Howlett as Horatio, Mr. B. A. Pittar as the First Player, and Miss Eily Malyon as Gertrude, Queen of Denmark. On Tuesday The Lyons Mail (preceded by The Sergeant of Hussars) furnished another enjoyable evening's entertainment, the week's répertoire including also Louis XI. and The Bells.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—A return visit of When It Was Dark is to be recorded here. The play is popular and well known, and the company, Mr. Morton Powell's, is a thoroughly capable one. Mr. Wilfred Lyndon is very good as the Rev. Basil Gortre; Miss Ethel Griffies is quite equal to the demands of the rôle of Gertrude Hunt; as Constantine Schwabe Mr. Haldane Dalton shows great ability; and other good parts are smartly played by Mr. Charles Brandon, Miss Marie Barrett, Mr. George Tawde, and Mr. Jack Armitage. The staging is excellent.

GAIETY THEATRE. — Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne.—A good performance of Mr. Charles McEvoy's really clever and amusing comedy David Ballard was given here on Monday. Mr. B. Iden Payne played the title-rôle with commendable sincerity and understanding; Miss Hilda Bruce Potter was always nice and sympathetic as Mercy; Miss Ada King's Mrs. Ballard was a fine piece of character-acting; and the same may be said of Miss Louise Holbrook's Louisa; while as Percy Ballard Mr. Charles Bibby gave further proof of his sterling value as a comedian; Mr. Jules Shaw played Snodge with excellent spirit; Miss Penelope Wheeler's depiction of the insufferable Gladys was exceptionally fine; and Mr. Lewis Casson gave a pathetic and natural rendering of Ballard, senior. The minor parts of Leo and Rosace were adequately filled by Mr. Leonard Mudie and Mr. Basil Dean. The comedy was preceded by Reaping the Whirlwind, a notice of which appears elsewhere.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mr. Sam Duckworth's company presents here Her Nameless Child, a well-written and interesting domestic drama. Miss Pattie Hastings gives a fine and womanly rendering of Phillis Ford, and Mr. J. W. Evelyn is excellent as the blacksmith, Anthony Ford, while Mr. Sidney C. Cranston is well placed as the heroic Arthur Ford. The inevitable schemers, here named Lord and Lady Sibil Woodville, are well impersonated by Mr. Arthur E. Pringle and Miss Mona Gray. Mr. Larry Clements and Miss Renie Douglas provide humour.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Andrew.—When London Sleeps is played here twice nightly by Mr. Lester Collingwood's company with realistic effect. Mr. E. F. Ashby as David Engleheart, Miss Mabel Scudamore as Queenie Carruthers, Mr. Harry Wren as Captain Haynes, and Miss Lilla Wilde as Hilda Carode are the principals, who are well supported by the remainder of a clever cast.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Fred Karno's company in The Dandy Thieves provides the top turn here this week. Fred Kitchen is in the cast, and the fun is consequently great. A good and wonderful turn is that of the Ten-Ji Troupe of Japanese illusionists; while excellent business is added by Harry Tate's company in Motoring; Little Maudie Francis, child actress and dancer; Walter Curtis, comedian; Duncan and Godfrey, in their capital Cockney sketch, Me and 'Er; Howe and Ardie, comedy gymnasts; and the Haytors, comedians and eccentric dancers.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Miss Cecilia Loftus tops the bill here this week in her imitations, and is highly successful, especially in her burlesque of the lady in the car; Daley Cooper, Mabel Lait, and company are exceedingly good in a musical absurdity, The Tea Shop; the Belliclair Brothers, American gymnasts, go through a very surprising performance; Fatmah Diard sings in fine style, and is well received; Boccacci's Minstrels, including Signor Francia, the famous mandolinist, are entertaining; Arthur Jefferson presents in good style a farcical comedy sketch, Home from the Honeymoon; Rossi Ashton, the London artist and war correspondent, is excellent in his speciality "Song Sketching"; Ruth Lytton, Scotch comedienne, is good; and Johnny Walker is a smart comedian. Pictures complete.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Leo Dryden tops the bill here, presenting his successful song-scenas with a nightly change of items; Harwood's Juveniles are also prominent in their novelty scena, A Children's Christmas Eve; the Maddison Brothers give a smart and original boxing act; and other enjoyable items are provided by Bert Bowden, comedian; Scott, Scott, and Co., in That Awful James; Ada Jenner, in The Lady Barber; Percy Curry, comedian; Arthur Bearle, the popular Lancashire comedian; the Lovelaces, song illustrators; the Colonials, in Unexpected Guests; Kirk and Saraski, in a novel acrobatic act; and Kingstone Trollope, in a dramatic monologue, Unity a Dream.

PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Manager, Fred Leighton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Vesta Victoria, the popular and successful comedienne, is the top star here, and is extraordinarily well received. John Tiller's company includes Bob Selvidge in the musical extravaganza A Trip to Paris, a bright and enjoyable show; Sammy Shields, the Scotch comedian, goes well, as usual; and other good turns are Phil Rees' Stable Lads, in a novel racing act; Fred Hallam, comedian; Ted Curtis and Piccaninnies; Maudie Ford, comedienne; the Royal Dreadnought Trio of rifle shots; and May Fayre, soubrette.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Miss Meredith Meredos sings several taking songs in her usual delightful manner; Miss Helen Mosley and company are seen to advantage in a neat drawing-room sketch, Who is Sylvester? and is ably assisted by Mr. John S. Chamberlain; Fred Herbert, up-to-date vocalist, proves very popular; Eileen Douglas, the musical comedy girl, dances gracefully; Kitty Taylor, a refined comedienne, has a good voice, and sings well; Charles Santon, male soprano, is warmly applauded; Nellie Deane is a very pleasing comedienne; the Sisters Allen are spirited dancers; Nellie Ridgway sings and dances on the slack wire; and Hunter and Mavis are seen in a speciality act of some merit. Ruffell's Imperial pictures complete.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Harriett Vernon, the well-known burlesque artist, is a great attraction here this week, and sings delightfully in a charming song-scena, "A Yuletide Story." A very entertaining comedy sketch is presented by Rose Atherton's company, entitled Murphy's Affinity, in which Cissie Kingsley acts well, and is strongly supported; Fred W. Millis is a good singing ventriloquist; Coverdale and Huxley's Bijou Juveniles are exceedingly smart; Mi Narom is a capable and original comedienne; George Westland, Scotch comedian, has a pleasing style; and other smart turns are supplied by Gala and Norris, in musical duologue, introducing good dancing; Leslie Race, swell comedian; and George Griffin, comedian.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Day.—Sydney Mason and Theresa Moore, assisted by a capable company, present here this week in good style a dramatic episode, The Usurer; Ritchie Hearn and company create roars of laughter with The Village Fire Brigade; and the Milsted-Bell Trio are highly amusing in a "natural" comedietta, Three Sharps in a Flat. The Carney Brothers are good in their vocal scena Brothers; one, Billy Farrell, is an entertaining "coon"; Ajax and George, in a very clever gymnastic act, are well received; Lily Hayes dances neatly; whilst other good turns are those of the Sisters Lotus, duettists and harmony vocalists; the Sages, burlesque artists and dancers; and Fred Athalan, a clever head-balancer.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie.—An excellent programme, as usual, is offered here. Miss Gertrude Howarth has a fine contralto voice; Mr. Herbert Uzielli, tenor, sings well; Mr. Fred Field, comedian, proves very popular; Maynard Dakin is a smart entertainer; and James A. Lowe is good at the piano. Mr. Wilford Woodward, acting as deputy for Miss Betty Green, comedienne and dancer (indisposed), contributed a good item.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is here with The Christian. Miss Margery Fayne gives a clever interpretation of Glory Quayle; Mr. P. Geodge Twyman as John Storm is dignified and impressive; Mr. Edward Ouston makes an excellent Drake; and Mr. G. Montague Lane ably depicts the character of Lord Robert Ure. Mr. J. H. Batson as Father Lamplugh is all that could be desired; Mr. William Mallalieu makes a capital Archdeacon Wealthy, and Mr. Max Wakeman is successful as Paul. Miss Gladys Vernon as Polly Love is pathetic and convincing, and Miss Alice Maude is a delightful Mrs. Callender.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Menotti is a source of attraction in his act on the wire; an amusing sketch, The Second Mrs. Chester, is presented by Mr. S. Bedford and company; the Seymours are clever equilibrists; and other successful turns are provided by Hewson's Æolians; Almon, the upside down marvel; Lily Gaston, comedienne and dancer; and Yeager and Dacosta, the Blackville Duo. The Biograph, showing some good pictures, complete the bill.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arnold.—Mr. Coleman Davies's company presented on Monday the drama Beneath the Stars. Stephen Harcourt was played in breezy style by Mr. Hugh Macdonald; Mr. B. Halley was capital as Matthew Marsden, the victimised farmer; Lord Sylvester had a sympathetic representative in Mr. Harry Reynolds; Messrs. Terry Davies and Arthur Prescott sufficiently emphasised the wickedness of Major Blonson and the wily Silas Clipper respectively; Mr. Coleman Davies, in the amusing part of Jemmy Hopblossom, made himself very popular, as did his rustic sweetheart, Becky Wiggins, ably played by Miss Eunice Udall; Miss Mamie Winter capably presented the adventuress Paulina Petrowski; and Miss Gladys Vane was quite successful as the persecuted Angel Marsden. The Tramp was billed for the last three nights of the week. The latest pictures on the Gaietyscope are much appreciated.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Geo. Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company is this week presenting Her Luck in London. Miss Mary Neil plays with intelligence as Nellie Harborne; as Lillan Harborne Miss Beatrice Hudson displays ability; a typical portraiture of fast life is presented by Miss Amy B. Ellis as Angelina Plantagenet; Mr. Douglas Cecil plays with much power the part of the Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor; Mr. T. Lionel Ellis sympathetically treats the part of the old farmer Stephen Harborne; Mr. Frank Strickland plays vigorously as Richard Lenowen; whilst the rôle of the Rev. Lionel Strong is ably sustained by Mr. Douglas Tremayne.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—A leading feature this week is a film representation of the Great Marathon Race. Other fine pictures are The Bargee's Daughter, The Pierrot's Jealousy, Following in Father's Footsteps, The Enchanted Guitar, The Little Hero, &c.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Edward Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is here this week with The Merry Widow. Baron Popoff is admirably impersonated by Mr. Lionel Victor; Mr. Basil Foster is particularly fine as Prince Danilo, and his duets and waltz with "the merry widow" are received with the warmest applause. The title-rôle is taken by Miss Clare Evelyn, a lady of attractive appearance and fascinating manner. She is the possessor of an exceedingly sweet voice, and she imbues the part with humour and charm. Vicomte Jolidon is in the capable hands of Mr. Haigh Jackson, whose fine voice is heard to great advantage; Mr. Albert Kavanagh created much enjoyment by his clever impersonation of the Marquis; and a word of commendation is due to Mr. Tom Redmond as Nisch; and Miss Mary Grey is an exceedingly pleasing and vivacious Natalie.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Rembges.—Mr. Milton Bode's company occupies the boards here in the musical comedy The Belle of Mayfair. Miss Florence Imeson, who plays the part of Julia Chaldicott, is a success; Mr. Hugonnet makes a gallant suitor of Raymond Finchley; the comic element is well supplied by Mr. Harry Parker in the part of Sir John Chaldicott; Mr. Percy York is excellent as Earl Highgate; and Miss Aurelie de Loriere is delightful as Lady Rockesley.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles G. Rembges.—A return visit is being paid here this week by Atlas and Vulcana, who, together with the Sisters Atlas, give a clever and fascinating display; Gipsy Woolf and her Sunbeams, with The Mermaids of Margate, give vim and sparkle to a pretty and interesting scena; and an amusing sketch, The Husband of Peggy, is presented by Miss Sylvia Cavalho and company. Walker and May are pleasing, and other turns are given by Chas. Sloman, comedian; Minnie Warner, comedienne; and Wright and Lawson.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; manager, Mr. C. Nicholls.—Mr. Geo. Dance's comedians create roars of laughter in a musical comedy, The Burglar's Ball; a novel exhibition of shadowgraphy is given by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde; and Morny Cash, the Lancashire lad, sings in excellent style. The Bros. O'Brien, Hilman and Russell, Frank Sylvo, and Sadie Thompson also add to the programme.

MORECAMBE.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. M. Julian.—Mr. James Bell's company is appearing this week with striking success in Mr. Charles Darrell's stirring play, The Idol of Paris. In the character of Flare-Flare Miss Annie Bell has made a conspicuous success. Miss Bell is supported by a company of all-round ability, and the production is a most creditable one.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. William Greet's company is paying a return visit here in the ever-popular Sign of the Cross. Mr. C. Austin-Lee admirably sustains the rôle of Marcus; the craft of Tigellinus and the bluff hatred of Licinius are excellently portrayed by Messrs. Aldred and Weatherall; the Glabrio of Mr. Frank Wood is the quintessence of Bacchanalian humour; the dandified Philodemus is well played by Mr. Henry Jones; Mr. Walter Fleet and Mr. Clifton Yates act with commendable restraint as Farius and Titus; Mr. Clifford Yorke gives a carefully-studied rendering of Nero, which remark also applies to the Strabo and Servilius of Messrs. G. W. Ruff and H. Thurston Harris. Miss Constance Little's sweet girlishness, combined with her abilities as an emotional actress, make her a strong favourite as Mercia; Berenice has an excellent exponent in Miss Lily Wand; the Stephanus of Miss Edith Drayson is an admirable bit of work; and special mention should be made of the excellent comedy acting of Miss Cissy Carlton as Dacia.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—His Wife No Longer, a new drama by Mr. Stephen Pratt, a Preston playwright, and produced for the first time in that town last week, has had a warm reception here. The diabolical villainy of Anthony Merivale, who pursues his career of merciless ingenuity unto the very doors of eternity, dying with a malevolent sneer on his lip, is powerfully presented by Mr. Clavering Craig; Mr. E. Paul Neville hits off admirably the character of Harold Medworth; whilst as an example of the muscular parson Mr. C. Wordley Hulse is an able exponent, the garret scene being a thrilling episode. As Daniel Trench, the tool of Merivale, Mr. David Donaldson is skilful; whilst the character of the breezy Tommy Oglethorpe is most feelingly presented by Mr. C. Vivian Charles, a comedian of exceptional promise, who was one of the successes of the production. He has a natural gift of touching off humorous situations, and his aptness, in which there was no show of artificiality, was greatly appreciated. Miss Enid Edonie gave a capital portraiture of Marion Jeffries, the heiress; Miss Nellie Lawson won the appreciation of her audience by a refined sketch of the assertive, yet lovable American girl, Lucy Hopper; whilst Miss Rose Mervyn displayed fine dignity and pathos in her treatment of Mrs. Merivale.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—An enthusiastic welcome was accorded My Mimosa Maid on its first appearance in Newcastle. The company is particularly strong, and includes the charming Marie Studholme, who plays Paulette. The rôle seems particularly suited to Miss Studholme, who acts with her usual grace and abandon, and is as winsome and pleasing as ever. Mr. Charles McNaughton as Victor Guilbert is responsible for a really clever and amusing portrayal of a difficult character, and with Miss Studholme shares the honours of the entertainment; Mr. Charles E. Paton as Max Guilbert and Master Archie McCaig as Bock assist considerably in the fun-making; whilst Mr. Arthur Jackson as Gone, the waiter, gives a clever character study. Mr. Percy Carr as M. Emilie Gerrard and Mr. John H. Goldsworthy render their songs in a spirited and taking style; and other leading rôles are ably filled by Miss Mabel Hirst, Miss May Garstang, and Miss Ruby Gray.

TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company in Brewster's Millions is here, and is enthusiastically received. Mr. Percy Hutchison as Monty Brewster gives an excellent interpretation, and the calls at the end of each act proved the unanimous appreciation of his talent; Miss Cicely Stuckey supplies a charming and convincing study of Peggy Grey; and Miss Eva Stuart plays with pleasing grace as Barbara Drew. Miss Violet Ley as Mrs. Dan de Mille puts plenty of energy into her performance; Mr. Aubrey Mather is distinctly good as Joseph McLeod; Mr. Henry Hampson is successful as Archie Golding; and Miss Frances Davie, Mr. Cyril Rawdon, Mr. Chas. Esdale, Mr. Douglas Greet, Mr. Bennett Parker, and Mr. Otho Hazlewood are among others who figure to advantage in an admirable entertainment. The play is staged in a most effective and realistic manner.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Mrs. Frank Bateman and Stuart Lomath's company is appearing here in No Wedding Bells for Her and Sapho. The first-named was played on Monday evening to a large audience. Miss Lizzie Montague as Lolo Delaspierre has a hard and difficult part, which she treats with considerable ability; and Mr. Stuart Lomath's Frank Hatherleigh is an interesting study. Mr. G. Harvey, Mr. Percy Shaw, and Mr. George Herbert have parts which suit them well; Miss Cicely Clutterbuck as Doris Fane is effective; Miss Patty Allberry does exceedingly well as a Geisha; and Miss Nellie Wilson makes a typical landlady.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. F. W. Bolam.—The Power of the King is the attraction here this week. The piece is well staged and admirably played, and of the company special mention should be made of Miss Leila Zillwood, Mr. Geball Blake, Mr. Travis Green, Mr. Chas. Whitlock, and Miss Georgina France.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. Parham Wells.—The chief attraction of an all-round interesting bill is an American racing playlet, Futurity Winner, which is ably presented by Joseph Hart's company, and proves extremely popular. The attractive and charming comedienne and dancer Ella Retford proves as taking as ever with her tuneful singing and graceful dances; a trick cyclist turn of more than usual merit is given by the Cumberlands; and Kent and Keith, comedy duologue artists, prove extremely amusing. Another smart turn is that of Charlene and Charlene, expert jugglers; and Dion Wade, comedian and mimic, fairly brings down the house in his quaintly rendered songs. Other artists contributing to an attractive show are Verne and Voyce, Fred Lincoln, and David Stewart, the Bioscope completing.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Miss Kate Carney holds the place of honour here this week, and her new production, "The Yiddisher Boy," is going well; the Six Æolians provide a pleasing singing and dancing turn; and other prominent artists figuring on the programme are Michael Nolan, Cullen, Carty, and Little Cluley, Dollie and Elsie, Bell and Butt, and Dollie Ross, the Barrascope completing.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Diana of Dobson's is being played here by Miss Lena Ashwell's principal company, and good houses are the order. The girls at Dobson's, in the hands of Miss Molly Tremaine, Miss Kate Turner, Miss Nannie Griffin, Miss Eva Leonard Bryne, are excellent character studies; and Miss Ellen Keary capitally represents Miss Pringle. Miss Mary Stuart as Mrs. Cantelupe is dignified and natural; Miss Georgette de Serville is strikingly attractive as Mrs. Whyte Fraser; and Mr. Alfred Harris makes an amusing Sir Jabez Grindlay, Bart.; while Mr. Albert Wainwright does well as P.C. Fellowes. Miss Dorothy Green plays Diana with humour, refinement, dignity, and tenderness; as Captain the Hon. Victor Brethertón, Mr. H. Grendon Bentley gives a clever character study. The Bishop's Candlestick forms an attractive curtain-raiser.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Queenie Leighton is the star turn here, and, charmingly attired, sings three songs that captivate the house; Madge Osmond, "the immaculate dandy," takes well; Ben Albert, "the logician," causes hearty laughter; and Carney and Armstrong provide a laughable turn. Cruikshank, in a purely comic line is exceedingly popular; Fred Keeton's songs and eccentric movements are acceptable; and the Eight Lancashire Lads, in pretty singing and dancing capture the house; while Leo Tell gives some wonderful imitations of instruments and animals. The Bioscope, showing local pictures, completes the bill.

NORWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Ian Maclaren and company are here this week, in Henry of Lancaster. Mr. Maclaren himself appeared as Henry of Lancaster, and was much appreciated; Miss Violet Sternes as Elizabeth of York showed much force and charm in her acting; Mr. J. V. Bryant was convincing as Richard III.; and Mr. Gordon Philpott was humorous as Patch.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Miss May Moore Duprez heads the bill as the "Jolly Dutch Girl"; the Faludy acrobats accomplish some astonishing feats; the Prince Milner Trio are clever with hoops, and on the light wire; the Australian Trio are entertaining musicians; the Melbournes are attractive in singing, dancing, and witty sayings; Ray and Lingard are good as duologists; and Will Walton, comedian, and Peter Bermingham, comedian, are appreciated. The Hippo Bio. is also good.

NORTHAMPTON.—NEW PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans; Musical Director, Mr. Walter Ashton.—F. Harrold's company of sketch artists is presenting The Enemy of Man with great success here; another highly successful entertainment is Haley's Garden of Girls, an octave of good singers and able dancers, beautifully costumed, who perform with special scenery and electric lighting; Johnson and De Vere provide some daring cycle tricks, the lady's performance on the wire gaining great applause; Luigo Salvina, the boy musician, is again successful with his solos on the saxophone, &c.; Karr and Kooney are clever in their cross-talk; Nellie Lunelle is a dashing comedienne and dancer; Jack Searle is funny in song and dance; and the Palace pictures still prove attractive.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Mr. Waller Jeff's New Century Pictures are here for a second week. The films include Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show on Parade, The Last Bullet, An Incident of the Indian Mutiny, A Trip to Klondyke, Life on the Gold Claims of Alaska, A Day at the Races (a most exciting picture), Flying Errand Boy, Porter's Mistake, On a Tandem, Ninette (a child model). Varieties are supplied by the Five M.P.'s, the Musical Palmers, Fred Field, baritone, and the courteous manager, Mr. T. Londberg.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr. T. Carlton Wallace's company with The Love that Women Desire. As Squire Abingdon Mr. J. O. Stewart is effective; Mr. Morris Maud, in the part of Richard Abingdon, is also responsible for some good acting; and Mr. Sydney Leyton scores as Philip Carnaby. Mr. Hugh Wallace makes the most of Frank Hardy; Mr. John Hignett makes quite a hit as Dennis O'Rourke; and Mr. J. W. Wilkinson proves a capable P.C. Sowerberry. As Sybil Thorburn Miss Aimee Grattan-Clyndes wins high praise; Miss Jessie Elvin is clever as Madge Abingdon; Miss May Neilson makes a smart Patty Swift; Miss Violet Young is a pleasing Molly; and Miss Dorothy Northmore is successful as Marquinha.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The chief attraction here is provided by the Cameron Quartette in harmony and humour, which has been much appreciated. Messrs. James and Alexander, Scotch comedians and dancers, have met with a hearty reception; Miss Carrie Harding and Mr. Charlie Preston, comedy artists, are well received; Master Willie Roberts, Scotland's boy comedian, is a great favourite; and Mr. Harry Hayton, eccentric comedian; Mr. Charles Beamont, in his unique entertainment; Marvellos, speciality act; and the Mouldoscope are other attractions.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Miss Bonwin Carlton's company, which is here this week in a répertoire of plays, opened on Monday with The Old, Old Story. Mr. Edward Surrey was forcible and convincing as William Grimshaw; Miss Carlton's Tilly, the Lady Bookie, presented an excellent delineation; Mr. J. P. Dryden played James Marlow with skill and care; Mr. B. Martin did good work as Sir Humphrey Hazel; the comedy parts of Bobby Blossom and Higgins were well placed in the hands of Messrs. C. Wilson and Wilson Lowther respectively; Netty Hazel was capitally played by Miss Bernice Fielding; Janet Marlow found a good representative in Miss Esther Lamont; and Miss Kitty Maynard was a charming Kitty.

THE PAVILION.—Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Towyn Thomas; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Reginald Fletcher.—George Wyres heads the bill here this week; Miss May Jukes, soubrette and dancer, gives a good turn; The Evales are funny; John Howell, the Welsh basso, in his songs with illustrations, is a complete success; Joe Atkins, parodist, continues in high favour; Mr. E. causes laughter with his limericks; and Ruffell's Bioscope has some interesting pictures.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Carnival week is specially favoured by a return visit of The Girls of Gottenberg, including Mr. Edmund Payne and Happy Fanny Fields. The performance on Monday was as lively and entertaining as could be desired. As Max Mr. Payne was the very essence of humour and kept the audience in the merriest mood; Miss Fields also sustains the fun at a high pitch; Mr. Leslie Holland as Otto makes a hit, and Mr. Fred Allendale (Albrecht), Mr. Fred Payne (Brittlbottl), and Mr. Jocelyn Hope (the Margrave), give of their best. The ladies were capably represented by Miss Maisie Gay (Clementine), Miss Thelma Raye (Elsa), Miss Florence Melville (Katrina), Miss May Weston (Barbara), and Miss Ethel Wilson (Betti), while praise is due to Miss Florence Phillips for her amazing acrobatic dance as Lucille.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—The company touring under the auspices of Mr. Frank Lindo is presenting here the interesting and pathetic drama Home, Sweet Home. Miss Marion Wakeford, a charming young actress, is seen to great advantage as Joan; Mr. Frank Lindo in the heroic rôle of Stephen Armitage displays the possession of excellent versatile histrionic ability; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle elicits sympathy by his portrayal of an old man, and the aristocratic Duke of Ancaster loses nothing of needed dignity in the hands of Mr. Archer Brown. Miss Hetty Webster is good as Lady Somerton; Miss Maude Leslie-Cudd's vivacity makes the part of Sybil Fay a success; and the Dora of Miss Violet Esme is a well studied characterisation.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—George Gray, in his popular sketch, The Fighting Parson, proves a capital attraction at the head of the bill this week. L'Incognita demonstrates her possession of a wonderful soprano voice; Herbert Lloyd, King of Diamonds, is as fresh and versatile as ever in his comedy; Carl Howard in his humorous skits on conjuring causes endless amusement; and Pipifax and Paulo create roars of laughter by their droll acrobatic sketch, Humpti-Bumpti; J. W. Hall is a comedian of conspicuous merit; and the singing of Charles Stevens is a source of great enjoyment; La Belle Nello is thoroughly at home in her acrobatic and contortionist work; the Carina Sisters present a refined and delightful musical melange; and some capital pictures are shown.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—This house was formally opened on Monday last. A report of the opening will be found in another column.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd.—Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross.—Mr. Baron H. Harriss's company is here on a first visit with The Prince of Pilsen. The company had a most enthusiastic reception on the opening night. Mr. Harry Kilburn, in the rôle of Hans Wagner, is a host in himself, and keeps the house in a constant merriment; Mr. Leslie Owen makes a capital Prince of Pilsen; Mr. Arthur Geary is well placed as Lieut. Tom Wagner; a capable Earl of Shrimpton comes from Mr. Chas. Rogers; Mr. Ernest Gifford is good as François; Miss Dora Christian sings and acts in a charming style as Edith Adams; Miss Mabel Dent is a highly-pleasing Sidonie; Miss Nellie Lomas is a captivating Nellie Wagner, and gives some capital songs and dances; Miss Marion Ryder does well as Jimmy; Miss Sophie Harriss gives a capital assumption of Mrs. Maddison Crocker (the scheming widow), and wins hearty applause. The piece is splendidly mounted, the music is bright, and the dresses are exceedingly pretty and effective.

OLDBURY.—PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—A well-varied programme is drawing good houses here this week. The La Dor troupe of acrobats create a furore with their feats; Miss Hetty Knight, comedienne, renders several good songs; Harry Plowden is a quaint comedian; Miss Cissy Gorden is much appreciated; and Miss Alice Oakley, descriptive vocalist, creates a favourable impression. The sketch Matadores causes much fun. The pictures are, as usual, extra good. The Two Clarkes, on rolling globes, are also in the bill.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—The Hypocrites opened here on Monday, and was heartily enjoyed. Mr. A. B. Imeson is a great success as the Rev. Edgar Linnell, taking full advantage of the scope afforded; Miss Amy Ravenscroft makes a capital Mrs. Wilmore; and Miss Gladys Purnell is a very good Helen Plugenet. The interfering Mrs. Blaney is cleverly acted by Miss Florence Steventon; and Miss Madge Severne is a capable Mrs. Linnell. Miss Violet Harley is good as the pert servant Patty; Mr. Alfred S. Barber is excellent as Mr. Wilmore; and Mr. King Fordham is capital as Lennard Wilmore. Mr. Chas. Hartley as Mr. Viveash gives a smart rendering of the character; and Mr. Cecil Brooking is praiseworthy as the Rev. Edward Daubeney. Mr. Sydney Hamilton as Sir John Plugenet is to be commended; Mr. H. Browning is a typical Dr. Blaney; and Mr. Douglas Jeffreys makes a fine Goodyer.

Colosseum Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood. — A crowded house welcomed Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company in The Still Alarm on Monday. Mr. M. H. Glenville as Jack Manley acted in a manner quite acceptable to the audience; Mr. Gerald Kennedy well elaborated the villainy of John Bird; Mr. Tom Beasley was capital as Willie Manley; Mr. Lewis Gordon was an effective Franklyn Fordham; and Mr. Fred Osmond as Doc Wilbur caused much laughter. Miss Beatrice Shirley as Elinor Fordham acted in a finished manner; Miss Hettie Zillwood as Carrie Wilbur did much to amuse; and Miss Mabel Veriton was a motherly Mrs. Manley. The Lyric Comedy Four introduced some capital singing.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow. —Paul Cinquevalli juggles with his usual skill, and earns much applause; Tom Costello in songs and scenas does very well; the Peters (Phil and Nettie) are comedy entertainers of merit; That Brute Simmons, played by Miss Oliph Webb, Mr. Julian Cross, and Mr. G. Delaforce, is productive of much merriment; the De Breans introduce some smart sciography into their act; Dancit is a clever exponent of dancing; and Alice Maydue is a sprightly comedienne; Fred Lindo is a capital comedian, with a voice.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall. — Wild, Willie, and West are very smart in their tumbling act; Pick, Tholl, and Taylor dance in a clever fashion in The Dancing Master; Whimsical Walker presents a well-acted sketch, Captain Hamilton, V.C.; Geo. Acre sings some capital songs; Rita Rhylle is a smart comedienne; Sydney Dolf is decidedly novel in his act; Bishop and Vale are capable comedians; and an interesting picture on the Dottoscope concludes.

OXFORD.—East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and Mr. C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Messrs. Martin Alwyne and A. W. Thompson's company is fulfilling a week's engagement here with My Sweetheart, which is very capably presented throughout. Tony Faust finds a most able exponent in Mr. Wilfred B. Brandon; Mr. A. W. Thompson scores an undoubted success, and brings the house down as Joe Shotwell, the "loving husband" of Mrs. Fleeter; while Mr. Martin Alwyne causes roars of laughter as Dudley Harcourt ("Dash it all!"). Mr. Chas. Cameron does well as Dr. Oliver; Mr. Stewart Quartermayne is capable as Harold Bartlett; and Mr. Charles Edwards is good as Farmer Hatzel. Miss Violet Hurley is most attractive, and attains conspicuous success as Tina; Miss Belle Russell is very natural as Mrs. Hatzel; and Miss Kathie Bratley is admirable as Mrs. Fleeter. Miss Josie Highland makes a capital Peek-a-Boo. All the musical numbers are well rendered, and some pretty dances are contributed by the Empire Trio, which secure deserved encores.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Always a favourite actor in Paisley, Mr. Chalmers Mackey is delighting patrons at this house this week in his new play Rollicking Rory. He is supported by an excellent company. Mr. Mackey in his impersonation of Rory O'Donohoe is brimful of mirth; as Desmond Fitzgerald, Mr. Charles Homer achieves a distinct success; the villainous Stephen D'Arcy is capably played by Mr. Fred W. Leonard; Mr. St. John Stuart is excellent in the rôle of Shaun Brady; Mr. Henry Sainsbury as Mr. Callagan is admirable; and General Ashleigh receives a good rendering from Mr. George Francis; Mrs. Chalmers Mackey as Rosaleen Ashleigh submits an excellent portrayal; Miss Nana Flensberg is eminently suited as Rosie O'Donohoe; Miss Adele Liddon as Widow Callagan causes merriment; as Queen of the Fairies Mme. Constance Bellamy sings artistically; and valuable aid is rendered by Misses Marie Flensberg, Ena Ellesmere, Margaret Seymour, and Messrs. George Ross and Joseph Healy.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—The star turn here this week is Tubby Edlin, in The Cowboy Millionaire, in which he submits a very entertaining mixture of mirth and melody; Moon and Morris are clever comedians and unique dancers; Dolly Denton is a dainty comedienne; Sid Kenneth and Maud Kane, in a comedy duo, Just a Few Words, are capital; Godfrey James, the singing collier, has a good reception; the Brothers Zenary elicit applause for their novel and high-class acrobatic act; Leah Adell, vocalist, is well received in her Irish scena; Blake and Amber, an American duo, evoke much merriment; and the Bioscope is entertaining.

PENTRE.—Tivoli Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Gunn. —Topping the bill is Geo. French; Henry Bekker is deservedly applauded in a series of juggling acts; and Lozelle, in a gymnastic display, wins similar favour. Bennett and Martell are also in the bill.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. Geo. Alexander's company presented The Thief on Monday for the first time locally. Miss Marie Polini, to whom the rôle of Marie Chelford is entrusted, acquits herself admirably of her task whether as the playful coquette, the luxury-loving woman, or the faithful wife. Mr. Rupert Lister as Richard Chelford rises to a high pitch of dramatic excellence in the second act, and Mr. Luke Forster makes a cool and calculating Mr. Protheroe; Mr. Cyril Harcourt as Raymond Leyton correctly interprets a difficult part; Miss Jean Cadell, beautifully gowned as Isabel Leyton, acquits herself with becoming ease and grace, and Mr. Owen Nares as Harry Leyton is excellent. The play is preceded by a cleverly-written comedy entitled Too Happy by Half, in which the principal characters are undertaken by Messrs. C. King, O. Nares, and B. Stevens, and Miss Eileen Kerin.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Mr. Eddie Clark and his Winning Widows provide a decidedly novel musical act, and justify their position at the head of the week's bill; Brinn provides a sensational balancing turn; Lotto, Lilo, and Otto give their up-to-date cycling contribution, and Ada Cerito contributes a couple of vocal numbers which meet with hearty approval; Fraser and Haley, accomplished vocalists, are warmly applauded; A Ba-Be's picture postcard album furnishes some attractive tableaux, and Oliver Martyn, comedian, has some amusing patter.

PONTEFRACT.—Alexandra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—Miss Lilian Burns and company top the bill at this hall with a dramatic episode entitled Betrayed. The characters are excellently played. The Itrams give a smart and attractive trapeze act; Fred Tenby is a rollicking comedian; Arthur and Angus do some very funny patter and are clever dancers; Cissy Trent, petite and chic, is a lightning change artist and a dainty dancer; Walter Buxton, who has a capital baritone voice, sings some really good songs; as also does Nellie Walton, the Lancashire mill girl. Lillie Le Breton gives a graceful exhibition on the trapeze; and Pearce and Ward are dancers and burlesque boxers, the lady being particularly vigorous with the gloves. Fred Horsfall's "yodling" and imitations find great favour. The pictures are good.

PORTH.—Palace.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—The top turn here this week is Rose Elliott, an excellent singer of sensible songs; Lazern, the famous magician, gives the audience entire satisfaction in his clever performance; Bert Woodward, cycling coon, is well received; Addie Dorina deserves special mention for her successful production "Dr. Spot's Patients"; the Two Madges are intelligent juvenile artists in mimicry, song, and dance; Flo Melville is a dainty burlesque actress; Adams and Ward, American acrobatic comedians, are responsible for much amusement; and Edgar Adams, singing collier, Julian Mack, the chattering dame, and the Palascope are other attractions.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. James Welch and company are appearing here in When Knights Were Bold. Mr. Welch does not spare himself, and his irresistibly funny and quaint Sir Guy de Vere keeps the audience in one continuous chuckle; Mr. Cecil Kinnaird plays Sir Brian Ballymote in capital style; Mr. Arthur Grenville's character study of Isaac Isaacson is decidedly good; Mr. George Desmond is exellent as the Hon. Charles Widdicombe; the Rev. Peter Pottleberry is played in capital style by Mr. Guy Lane; Mr. George F. Tully is a humorous Wittle; and Mr. Leopold Profeit an impressive Herald. Miss Helen Palgrave plays the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave gracefully and naturally; Lady Millicent, Lady Marjorie Eggington and Kate Pottleberry find pleasing representatives in Miss M. O'Hea, Miss Gwendoline Rayne, and Miss Annie Furrell respectively; and Lady Rowena is portrayed by Miss Audrey Ford in most engaging and artistic fashion. The farce is preceded by the one-act play The Changeling.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—The romantic play Her Love Against the World is being staged here for the week by Messrs. W. H. Hallett and Walter Howard's company, Mr. Fred Emery sustaining the rôle of Eric Earl of Strathmere with power and conviction; Ulric is admirably played by Mr. Lewis Gilbert; Mr. W. H. Hallett as the good-natured Prince Othmar is most successful; Mr. Victor Rowlands acts with ability as Prince Maurice; Sergeant Kaspar is well taken by Mr. Arthur Moss; and Messrs. H. B. Lewis and John Mill are amusing as Heinrich and Fritz. Miss Nellie Fletcher, in the part of Shulah, deserves much praise; Miss Julie de Esco is seen to advantage as Corona; and Misses Gertie Reid and Hettie Ferguson make a diverting pair of maids. Miss Rossie St. John as Lionel does well; Miss Grace Heywood enacts Princess Iris with dignity and power.

King's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Lafayette is the popular attraction for the week; J. W. Gallagher is a capable comedian; Flora Cromer a graceful versatile artist; Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford, in Getting Even, play well; Albert Bellman and Lottie Moore are a lively pair; Jordan and Harvey are smart Hebrew comedians. Animated pictures by the Barrascope conclude.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Captain Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—The top-liner this week here is Oswald Williams, the well-known and sensational illusionist, who is contributing a turn of more than usual merit, assisted by Mlle. Winifred La Barte and company; Johnson and Pelham, in an American pot-pourri act, prove a smart pair; Arthur Albert is a light comedian with excellent style; Nipper Lupino Lane, boy comedian and eccentric dancer, shows versatility; the Lupino Bros., in scena Musician and the Poodle, do capable work; and Dan Hendy, comedian and dancer, Raie Walters, dainty comedienne, and Wilson and Waring cause much hilarity. Payne's Bioscope is also an attraction.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter De Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Acting-Manager, Colonel Roberts, V.D.—An attractive programme is offered here for the week. Mr. Joe Peterman and company, in The Singing Servants, are amusing; Vandinoff, in his production of pictures in oils at lightning speed, is much liked; Horace and Olga's table troupe of cats and dogs submit a clever turn; Mr. Dave Carter, tenor, Mr. Willie Gardner, American pedestal skate-dancer, Mr. Ted Cowan, with two items of amusing character, Herr Munstedt's Liliputian circus, introducing the Colibris Midgets, and the Hippo pictures are other attractions.

PRESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Exors. of the late William Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. Edward Marris's company, in the Dandy Doctor, is as popular as ever. Mr. George Brentwood causes much merriment as Melchisadek Brown; Miss Mollie Wynne is a charming Ivy Pendred, her singing and dancing being much appreciated; Miss Florence Smithers' impersonation of Jane ("the general") is irresistible, and she kept the house in roars of laughter; Mr. Herbert Pearce is a capital Colonel Pendred; Mr. C. Burrunston Williams, who possesses a good voice, is excellent as Arthur Vandyke, M.D.; and Mr. Leslie Martin is very droll as Bertie Bolingbroke, his vocal efforts being much applauded. Miss Edie Dawson both looks and acts well as Miss Vandyke, and Miss Vi Coudroy as Miss Loraine and Miss Rosie Chandler as Marie Merton are successful in their respective parts. Miss Dolly Payne makes a sprightly boy-in-buttons, and Mr. James Thompson as P.C. Quick and Mr. Dalton Dane as Mr. Drycoff complete a capital cast. The chorus, though small, is very effective, and includes Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of Empire Girls and the Little Dutch Girls. The musical-director is Mr. Harry Bolton. The piece is drawing good houses.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is here this week in A Broken Heart. Mr. Stanley Bedwell is a manly John Barnard, and displays much power; as the dissipated Stephen Raylton, a young man of fortune, Mr. George Newall is very successful; Mr. Will Lindsay as Tony Tibbetts (the village idiot) creates much amusement; Mr. Edward Rawlinson displays the requisite malevolence as Gash Gills; and Mr. C. Vivian is a capital Rev. Mr. Staunton; Miss Marguerite Thorne as Mrs. Barnard provides an able bit of character acting; Miss Dora Hargreaves as Sally Tavner is good; Miss Daisy Rocheford as Little May is winsome and captivating; and Miss Eileen Bamford is praiseworthy as Grace Fanshawe, as is also Miss Ethel Grey as Mrs. Killett. Miss Sheila Walsh has a trying rôle to sustain as Mary Barnard, but she is fully equal to its requirements. The remaining characters are capably sustained by Mrs. George Addison, Mr. Chas. Grant, Mr. Harrison Tate, Mr. George Ford, and Mr. Hugh Alexander. The drama is excellently mounted.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—David Poole, ventriloquist, and his Messenger Boy mannikin, are very amusing; the Bros. Ford, in their singing and dancing act, The Poetry of Motion, prove themselves artists above the ordinary; Gena Manon, vocalist and soubrette, is well received; Charles Rowen and Clifford Stewart, comedians, are both successful; Alfred Graham's Premier Juveniles, in their vocal scena A Concert on the Lawn, are much appreciated; Wall Robbins, black and white musical comedian, has some smart patter, and is a clever performer on the Japanese fiddle; Cuban's French Circus is an excellent turn, the animals having been trained to a high state of perfection; and two items are given on the Bioscope.

Public Hall.—Hamilton's Excursions opened their sixtieth season here on Monday, and are popular as ever. In addition to the pictures, there are some clever variety turns. Mme. Florence on the revolving sphere is expert; the Ethairiens, comedians, cause much laughter; Abex, athlete, displays abnormal strength of jaw; the Two St. Johns are versatile musical artists; and some excellent pictures are given on the Eragraph. The entertainment is up to its usual high standard, and is drawing good audiences. Mr. Claude Howell is the manager of the tour.

RADCLIFFE. — Grand Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Mr. Andrew Emm's drama The Diver's Luck is finding favour here. Mr. Harry Cullenford as Martin Faber gives an excellent rendering; Mr. Fred A. Marston as Barney Bawn is rewarded by peals of responsive laughter; the villainous parts of Tom Hall and Pedro are well taken by Mr. Wm. J. Miller and Mr. Kendrew Milson respectively; the aged Maurice Wyngate has a satisfactory exponent in Mr. F. Scarth, and Mr. Joe Rowland is very good as the nigger Snowball; Miss Dora Pass is a charming Helen Wyngate, and submits a carefully-studied rendering of the part. The piece is well mounted.

RAMSGATE.—Royal Victoria Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jules Richeux.—Robin Hood, put on in first-class style by Mr. Lewis Waller's company, has constituted the attraction at the "Pav" this week. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards is a powerful and picturesquely effective Robin Hood, and Miss Lilian Stennis is a charming Maid Marion; Mr. F. Clive Ross cleverly portrays Little John, and Mr. C. Bruce Winston is a delightfully robust Friar Tuck; Prince John is another part most capably sustained; Mr. Spencer Lloyd is heard to marked advantage as a vocalist, and the general tone of the production is distinctly good.

Royal Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Resident-Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest.—The Mystery of Edwin Drood has been staged in fine fashion this week. Mr. C. H. Crocker-King gives a masterly interpretation of the part of Jasper, and Edwin Drood is a character sustained in talented style by Mr. Ridell Robinson; Mr. Edward Thirlby does admirably as Mr. Grewgious, and Miss Nita Charlton (Rose Budd) and Miss Gladys Jonson (Helena Landless) appear with success; Mr. Lloyd Townrow makes a good Durdles. A distinctly fine production.

RAWTENSTALL.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. B. Feather.—Mr. Reginald Dance's clever combination is this week presenting Raffles, which play met with a cordial reception on Monday evening last. In the title-rôle Mr. Lewis Edgard gave a most fascinating and powerful impersonation, his clever acting being repeatedly applauded and deeply appreciated. Mr. C. Keane as Curtis Bedford also gave a fine portrayal and showed capable abilities for the part; Mr. Arthur Bell as Harry Manders was excellent, and seconded Mr. Edgard's efforts with much success; Mr. P. Alexander as Lord Amersteth was thoroughly good; and Mr. Rivers Bertram as Lord Crowley imparted a vein of humour to the character. As Crawshay Mr. Oswald Griffiths was very good, the last act being very fine; as Gwendoline Conron Miss Beatrice Marsdene gave a delightful portraiture, her acting being graceful and sympathetic; as Lady Melrose Miss Kitty Lofting was most capable; and Miss Frances Titheradge was also an excellent Lady Ethel.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Mr. Cecil A. Collins is presenting the late Henry Pettitt's stirring drama Hands Across the Sea this week. Mr. Rawson Buckley gives a powerful rendering of the part of Jack Dudley; and Miss Beatrice Whitney acts very effectively as Lillian Melford. Mr. Cecil A. Collins gives a spirited impersonation of Tom Bassett; and the part of the rascally Robert Stillwood is sustained in characteristic style by Mr. C. Clifton Boyne. Mr. Clive Currie is excellent as Jean de Lussac; Mr. Adam Alexander as Joseph Stillwood, Mr. Frank Woodville as Dick Melford, and Miss Lilla Nordon as Lucy Nettleford are all good. The plot is full of interest, and some stirring scenes are enacted. The play is put on the stage in a very complete style, and the scenery is most effective.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco. —The Lyons Trio of pantomimists and dancers produce a very funny sketch; Henri Cazman gives a clever entertainment, Le Café Chantant; Ruby Bijou gives a dainty exhibition of barefoot dancing; Fred Elton is paying a return visit with his popular musical sketch, On Board an Ocean Liner; the Katos indulge in some spirited dancing and good singing in their miniature theatre; Florence Zaymen, coon caricaturist, burlesques coon songs and singers in a very amusing manner; the Camerons are a pair of clever comedians; Gicardo, boy juggler, is expert; and a good Bioscope show completes the programme.

REDDITCH. — Public Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. T. E. Field.—Miss Hook of Holland, under the direction of Messrs. Dudley, Bennett, and Wray, gave performances here on the 25th and 26th ult., before big houses. Mr. E. Russell's personation of Mr. Hook was a most excellent performance; Miss Ethel James, as Sally, Miss Hook, was also good. The chorus and band were all that could be desired. The play went excellently from start to finish. Home, Sweet Home, presented by Miss Maggie Morton's company, was billed for Friday and to-day.

RHYL.—Pavilion.—On Saturday and Sunday, the 26th and 27th ult., Mme. Clara Novella Davies's Welsh Choir gave two special concerts, which were largely attended. Solos were given by Mme. Maud Loveless, Miss Winifred Lewis, Miss Marie Novello, and Mr. William Kenway. Mr. de Jong's orchestra concluded a successful season.

Olympian Gardens.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Eric Charlswood.—This week Messrs. Adeler and Sutton's pierrots commence an extended season, and are rewarded with good houses. C. D. C. Edwards, baritone, and the pictures are also to be noted.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—This week we are receiving a visit of A Warning to Women, under the direction of Miss Lilian Herries. The latter undertook the part of Moira Kennion with distinct ability. Mr. Leonard Lawrence, in the exacting part of Dr. Dread, acquitted himself well; Mr. William Vane as Shaun, a wandering minstrel, gave a pleasing performance; and Mr. Henry Rutland as Squire Kennion upheld the dignity of this character in a capable manner.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. Walter Dean.—Full houses have witnessed an excellent performance of Bernard Shaw's You Never Can Tell, played by Messrs. Trevor Platt and Trevor Lowe's company. To Mr. Trevor Lowe is entrusted the part of the Waiter, which he plays in such a manner as to ensure the success of the piece; Mrs. Claudon is convincingly portrayed by Miss Katherine Stuart. An excellent pair are Gloria and Valentine, impersonated by Miss Gladys Morris and Mr. Leslie Hamer, who do full justice to the parts, a remark which also applies to Miss Clara Earle (Dolly) and Mr. Donald Calthrop (Philip); Mr. J. Edward Pearce has a fine conception of Fergus Crampton, and as Finch McComas Mr. Charles Daley is well-nigh perfect; and as Bohm, the barrister, Mr. George Howard could not be excelled.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company presents Her Forbidden Marriage. Miss Gertrude Le Sage is a charming artist, and her impersonation of Lucy is very fine; George Maddison is played by Mr. Henry Lonsdale with considerable success; Mr. Louis Hector as Charles Devereux brings out the villainy of the character well; Miss Grace Lester could scarcely have improved her delineation of Lady Lucretia Lancaster; Mr. Vincent Loraine is very funny as Joe Lambkin; and Timothy Tuttutt is cleverly represented by Mr. Fred de Vere. Mr. George Elsworthy and Miss Maud Merrick as Benjamin Wardle and Patty Lovejoy provide excellent comedy.

EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—A finely-balanced programme is headed by George Bastow, whose old English characters are deservedly popular; Miss Lydia Yeamans, with her delightful baby impersonations and singing, charms all; she is well assisted by Mr. F. J. Titus. Percy Honri's talented concertina playing provides one of the hits of the programme. Rousby and company's Greater London is a scena of great splendour, thoroughly deserving its hearty reception; Millie Payne is, as usual, excellent, her "Directoire" song providing a great hit; Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire mill girl, has a wonderful voice; the Hartley Wonders do clever jumping, and the Bioscope pictures conclude.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Topping the bill here this week the Columbia Comedy Trio are loudly applauded in their operatic and humorous absurdity. A clever turn is that of the Van Hoste Trio, comedy acrobats; La Freya presents an electrical novelty; Picitt and Lizette, magical pantomimists, are entertaining; Marion Armitage, low comedy artist, is very good; and Starr and Leslie present a new act, in which Indian clubs are smartly manipulated. The Empire pictures complete. Flo Warren, vocal comedienne, was unable to appear on Monday evening, owing to her luggage having gone astray.

TON-Y-PANDY.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Watson.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is presenting The Woman Who Gambles. Mr. Clifford Rean gives an admirable study of Count Otto Steinbach; as Lieut. Karl Ctzartorski Mr. Reg. Fox is well suited; the Baron Cratzlaw of Mr. Norman Overton is a masterly assumption. In the name-part Miss Laura Walker is eminently praiseworthy.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Heading the bill here are the Cytoza Brothers, hand balancers; Leo Fields makes another welcome appearance; Clown Garford's dogs are much applauded. The picture par excellence is A Big Fire.

Grant's company with The Woman From Scotland Yard. Mr. Charles Gordon as Sir James Stanhope proves himself a gifted actor; Mr. Arthur L. Read gives a fine reading of the part of Harry Stanhope; Mr. Alex. C. Grant makes the most of his opportunities as Paul Obanoff; Mr. John L. Schofield is to be complimented upon his portrayal of Ivan Vassilietch; Mr. Leo Whamboult causes roars of laughter as Algernon Fitzmaurice; Miss Isobel Edbrooke proves herself a reliable actress in the trying rôle of Edith Mayne (the woman from Scotland Yard); Miss Gipsy Alexander gives an excellent impersonation of Lady Mary Stanhope, and Miss Dorothy Wilkinson is cleverly amusing as Mary White. For the last three nights of the week The Silver King is announced.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale; Manager, Mr. A. H. Burdett.—The annual visit of the Moody-Manners company is bringing to a close a very successful operatic and dramatic season, and full houses are the rule this week. The most interesting feature in the répertoire is the first local production of Madame Butterfly, which aroused great enthusiasm among local music-lovers. The principal parts were splendidly sung by Miss Enriqueta Crichton, Miss Rosina Beynon, Mr. Chas. Carter, and Mr. Chas. Moorhouse. The other performances during the week include Lohengrin, Faust, Il Trovatore, Cavalleria Rusticana, and Carmen, the title-rôle in the latter being sustained by Mlle. Zelie de Lussan.

TYLDESLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. W. Brierley, A. Brierley, and W. German; Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Send Him Victorious was presented here on Monday by Mr. Montague Beaudyn and company. Mr. Beaudyn deserves commendation for his portrayal of Captain Frank Allison; the villainy of Colonel Heinrich Kaufmann is forcibly depicted by Mr. G. M. Montanini; Mr. John Baxter gives a clever study of Major Charles Strauss; and the part of the King of Ravonia is in the safe hands of Mr. Frank Holyoaks. Mr. James Burt is well placed as Sergeant Max; Miss Marie Robson gives a capital rendering of the Countess; and Miss Irene Munroe is a graceful Ethel. The comic element is well provided for by Mr. Arthur Tomlin as Geordie Walker and Miss Cecilia Crawford as Gretchen.

WAKEFIELD.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Clarence C. Corri's company (under the direction of Mr. Haldane Crichton) is here this week in the military comic opera The Dandy Fifth. Mr. Jack Crichton gives an able and spirited rendering of Brown; Mr. Percy Baverstock is capital as the Colonel; Mr. George Beverley does full justice in the rôle of Sergt.-Major Milligan; and Mr. J. Edward Fraser gives a clever representation of Dick Darville, his singing winning applause. Miss Pauline Hague as Kate Lorrimer contributes by her fine acting and singing much of the success of the piece; Miss Norah Morra makes a charming Polly; and Miss Maude Nichols fills with taste the part of Mrs. Von Blitzen.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Arthur Watson, Flo Stanley, and a clever company of artists, in a musical sketch, The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, top the bill this week, and obtain hearty appreciation; Mr. Wilton Heriot and company provide an excellent protean turn; Mlle. Yetta gives a fine performance on the wire; Rose D'Aulby, ballad vocalist, obtains a good reception; Rosie Bartlett, comedienne, delights; and T. C. Jacques, comedian, merits applause.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Potter.—Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. V. Leveaux present this week The Walls of Jericho. Mr. Alfred Goddard submits a fine interpretation of Jack Frobisher, the manly nature of the "man from Queensland" being well developed. A robust Hankey Bannister is Mr. Russell Barry; and Mr. Ben Lewin is seen to advantage in a clever sketch of the Marquis of Steventon. Mr. Christopher Steele scores as Lord Drayton; and the cynical Harry Dallas is seen in the capable hands of Mr. A. W. Tyrer. Miss Nancy Beresford is a charming Lady Althea; Miss Elsie Ross makes the most of Lady Lucy Derenham; and Miss Ormonde Wynne as Lady Westerby delights all with her skilful interpretation of a noble character. The subsidiary rôles are all well sustained, and the staging was excellent.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—Janet Hall's songs are all well received; the Moores are capital speciality entertainers; and the pictures are all good.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—That clever and quaint comedian H. G. Wills is here this week with his fund of humour and good songs; Kurkamp, the singing conductor, again wins favour with his classical selections; the Sisters Cora are charming vocalists and dancers; the Gregson Trio score in the sketch The Dummy; the Twin Sisters Edwards are seen to advantage as vocalists, dancers, and drummers; Harry Walton is an accomplished Dutch comedian and dancer; and Burns and Bentley are a capital dancing team. The pictures are all good.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is paying a return visit this week in the successful drama The Two Little Vagabonds. Mr. Geo. Denham in the rôle of George Thornton, gives a skilful rendering; and the part of Captain Darville is ably performed by Mr. Herbert Standing. Jim Scarth by Mr. Harry Reynolds is all that could be desired; and as Bill Mullins alias the Gaffer Mr. Herbert Russell does full justice. The rôles of Dicky and Wally are excellently played by Miss Chrissie Francess and Miss Ethel Frances Greene respectively. Miss Dora Frank Harvey's presentation of Marion Thornton meets with every approval; and as Barbara Scarth Miss Leonora Castelle proves herself a capable artist. An amusing interpretation of Biddy Mullins is given by Miss Ethel Lodge.

WELLINGBOROUGH.—EXCHANGE.—Miss Loie Esmond's company appeared on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday in Nana, In the Gloaming, and The Sorrows of Satan. In the Gloaming was played for the first time, and a report of the production will be found in another column.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—The Midnight Mail is being excellently reproduced here by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard's company. Mr. Grant Lytton as Billy Brewer, the drunken stoker, is clever; Mr. Geo. Harvard is capable as Harry Steyne, the driver; and as Leonard Royle, the manager of the line, Mr. Chas. H. Longden has a part admirably suited to him. Miss Jeannie Weston is a charming Lady Eustace; Miss Daisy Clifford as Nancy Brewer and Miss Trissie Humphreys as Mary Steyne fill their respective rôles with distinction.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—Special praise must be given to the Three Orros, who give a clever performance on silver chains; Rappo and Ella are very smart gymnasts; Parker and Parr, Welsh vocal entertainers, possess beautiful voices, which they use with much effect; Professor Buer introduces his clever talking donkey; Mr. R. Victor Moran's electrical musical transformations are exceedingly pretty; and Victoria Cross and Marjorie Cecil are two clever comediennes. The Three de Venas introduce an interesting juggling turn; and the Hippodrome pictures are fine.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—The comedy Merely Mary Ann is being presented this week by Mr. Herbert Greville's company. Mr. Paul Lovett's rendition of the rôle of Lancelot reflects great credit upon the artist; Mr. Stanley Logan makes of Peter a most enjoyable character; Mr. Robert Entwistle is entirely successful as the Rev. Samuel Smidge; as Lord Tottenham Mr. Herbert Greville contributes considerably to the humour; as Mrs. Leadbatter Miss Violet Greville makes an amusing lodging-house keeper, and Miss Florence Radcliffe scores a success as the daughter. The rôle of Countess of Foxwell is artistically played by Miss Ethel Carlyle, and Miss Jessica Solomon is to be congratulated upon the success she achieves in the rôle of Mary Ann.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—Bonnie Goodwin's Apollo Piccaninnies in their dancing bring down the house; The Silly Burglar, a sketch brimful of comedy, is capitally played by the Waldrons; Gladys and Alber are sparkling and original in their acrobatic comedy act; Happy Attwood is an old favourite of whom a West Hartlepool audience could never tire, and the same may be said of Cassie Walmer. The Lecardos Bros. are a couple of comedy acrobats; Frank Seeley makes a hit, and Raymond's bio-tableaux are popular.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. C. Bowmaker's company is here this week in The Education of Elizabeth and The Idler. The former of these was staged on Monday. Miss Florence Harcourt as Elizabeth Black gives an interpretation that is altogether admirable; a thoroughly sound artist is Miss Blanche Lynd, whose Blanche Macyntyre is artistically impersonated; as Lucy Middleton, Miss Helene Forest gives a refined rendering of the character; and Miss May Norris is charming as Lily Kerr. The ripe experience of Mr. Ernest E. Norris stands that excellent actor in good stead as Reggie Hankey; Mr. Bert Morley makes the most of Harry Fairfax; and Mr. Fred Castleman makes a praiseworthy Mr. Whitby.

GRAND PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. John H. Stevenson.—The Dandies are giving their delightful entertainment here this week. Miss Josephine Gordon's rendering of "There you are, that's a girl," is decidedly chic; Miss Rhoda Gordon's Scotch songs were loudly applauded; Miss Gurney Delaporte sings a serenade of Gounod's with much expression; Mr. Henry J. Corner received an encore for his dramatic rendering of the prologue from Pagliacci; Mr. Stephen Fitzgerald's humorous songs are rapturously received; and some very fine pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

VICTORIA HALL.—Manager, Mr. Frude.—Mr. M. W. Shanly's bioscope and variety company is the attraction this week. The pictures, by Pathé Frères, are decidedly good, especially those entitled Secret Service, Love and Duty, and The Custom Officer's Revenge. Mr. Gus L. Harris is an artist of much versatility; his songs and recitations are exceptionally good. Master Leonard Athersych's song, "Ora pro nobis," was loudly encored.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Claudian, the famous creation of the late Wilson Barrett, has been performed to record houses here this week. Mr. William Maclaren acts with the requisite fire and dramatic passion as the splendid Claudian; Miss Lily Bandman makes a graceful and winning representative of Almida, and all the other characters are excellently played. The scenery and costumes, together with the mechanical effects, are faithful copies of the original production.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Stage-Manager, Mr. George W. Montrose.—The Kraners head the bill here with a fine exhibition on the rings and trapeze; the Vanderbilts are very smart in their refined act; Roos presents a fine illusion, which mystifies the house; Frances Haskoll is a sweet singer of illustrated songs; Wal Langtry causes roars of laughter; the Chameleon, in her ever-changing scene, is excellent, and the Vicoscope completes.

WHITEHAVEN.—MARKET HALL.—Lessees, The Edison Picture Company; General-Manager, Mr. Victor Branford; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Urwin.—Pictures shown here this week include The Border Limit, The Man in Overalls, Mixed Babies, The Mesmeriser, Under a Crocodile Skin, The Ragpicker's Wedding, &c. Also appearing here is Charles May, vocal comedian, who is exceptionally well received.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Mr. Chas. Macdona and his talented company are presenting Mr. Popple to delighted audiences. In the title rôle Mr. Macdona scores a big success; Miss Nellie Hodson wins admiration for her charming portrayal of La Bolero; Miss May Hart deserves special praise as Louise; Mr. Tom Hart makes a decided hit as Platt; the character of Norman Popple is in the capable hands of Mr. C. Du Cane; Mr. Eric Barrington is successful as Jacques Kenyon; Miss Marie Moss is a real favourite as Violet Buntor, and Miss Lilian Tait wins admiration as Mrs. Henney.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Mr. John Lawson is appearing here in the highly fascinating sketches, The Monkey's Paw, Pigs in Clover, The King's Minister, and the great favourite Humanity. Miss Alice Maude is an extremely clever impersonator; Jack Neil is an excellent mirth-provoking patterer; the Royal Delomes are capital clog dancers; the Three Zaracs appear successfully in a comedy sketch entitled Mashing the Barmaid; the Melba Twins please greatly with their charming singing; the Ladderites contribute a daring speciality act; Kloof and Ramsay are artists of great merit, and Harry Zetter is a popular comedian.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Woon.—Good business rules here. The pictures include Hamlet, The Adventures of Princess Tricksy, Life in the Army, A Little Savoyard, and a host of other entertaining subjects. Mr. Dick Wadeson, the popular comedian and dancer, is well received. A clog-dancing competition for which some very fine prizes are being awarded is a big draw.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company, in The Conscience of a Judge, was well received here on Monday. Mr. Kenyon Musgrave is excellent in the part of Judge Granstone, which he plays with fine distinction; Mr. Sam Courtney as Sir Edwin Mervin makes a polished scoundrel; Mr. Reginald Maurice plays quietly, but with telling effect, as Cecil Bentley; and Mr. Walter Clarke is straightforward and manly as young Geoffrey Granstone. Mr. Frank Ayrton as John Summers and Mr. Fred W. Graham as Horatio Winters are responsible for the comedy element, and keep the house in roars of laughter, their efforts being ably seconded by Miss Madge Seymour as Mary Wilson. Miss Nellie Howlit as Jessica Draycott proves herself an emotional actress of exceptional power; Miss Mabel Coleman makes a pleasing Ethel Vaughan; and Miss Elsie Isaacs ably fills the rôle of Little Kitty. The piece is capitally staged.

EMPIRE PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—The Biter Bit, a highly-humorous boxing sketch by the Brothers Horne, is the star turn here; the Tally Ho Trio are brimful of mirth and melody; the Brothers Dean soon whistle themselves into favour, and are responsible for some very clever dual dancing; Miss Rosie Lloyd is paying a return visit, and is as popular as ever; Mr. George Prince is a good comedian; and Mr. A. W. Scott sings some taking coon songs, and also dances well.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—The Bondman is being presented here for the first time, and with a measure of generous support which more than justifies its great reputation. The interest of the story is sustained throughout the five acts, and Mr. Wentworth Croke's numerous company is responsible for an excellent representation. Mr. R. Scrope Quentin in the title-rôle displays a fine grip of the characterisation; and Mr. L. Atwill as Michael Sunlocks succeeds in making the part most effective. Miss Georgina Wynter's impersonation of Greeba is marked by dignity and restraint; and the part of Mrs. Fairbrother is in the able hands of Miss Madge Lanerton. Mr. Oswald Lingard is well suited as the unctuous Adam Fairbrother; and Mr. W. H. Rotherham successfully doubles the part of Father Ferrati and Grandfather. The small character of Christian Ann was well filled by Miss Emilie Mayhew; and the children, Mona and Danny, are excellently impersonated by Miss Gertrule Helene and Master Walter Neville. The play is elaborately staged, the scenic effects being startling and realistic.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jno. J. Scott.—Alex and Jolly give a really clever and amusing performance on the triple bars; Mueller and Coyne prove themselves smart vaudeville artists, and do some wonderful tumbling; the Le Bruns, in their novel vocal and juggling speciality, My New Lady Partner, are popular; and Little Edie's singing is much appreciated, as are the Empire pictures.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The popularity of Mr. Allan Wilkie is clearly on the increase, and the theatre during the present week has been well filled. On Monday, in Julius Cæsar, Mr. Wilkie gave a powerful rendition of the part of Mark Antony, which is imbued with all the necessary fire. The company is one of all-round excellence. Miss Carrie Baillie, in the somewhat minor part of Lucius, shone conspicuously; as Brutus, Mr. Alexander Marsh had ample opportunities to display his undoubted power as a Shakespearean actor of the first rank, and scored a complete success; Mr. Frank Royde was an ideal Cassius, giving a finished performance; our old friend, Mr. John Paley, brought his ripe experience to bear with telling effect on the rôle of Casca. A répertoire of Shakespearean and other plays is announced for the week.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—F. V. St. Clair is being heartily received this week, his popular songs and local allusions finding great favour. Oakdene is a ventriloquist of great ability; Rosa Loader at the piano has been heartily applauded; Enid Errol and company, in a dancing episode, entitled The Magic Vase, do well; and Farley, Rennie, and Farley produce an amusing sketch, entitled Fun at a Railway Station, in which some clever tumbling is introduced. August and September, in their particular line, are inimitable; and Alston's White Stars give a turn which is at once clever and acceptable. The Three Tivoli Girls and Jolay and Francis complete an attractive programme.

THE

A NEW AND CHEAP EDITION OFFERED TO "THE ERA" READERS ON SPECIALLY ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

THERE can be little doubt that the whole profession should have this Edition of the great dramatist's works, arranged as it has been by the greatest Shakespearean actor of modern times, in conjunction with Mr. Frank A. Marshall; with extensive Notes and Introductions by Joseph Knight, O. F. Adams, H. A. Evans, P. L. Round, Dr. Richard Garnett, A. Symons, W. J. Rolfe, A. Wilson Verity, Canon Beeching, P. A. Daniel, and Prof. Edward Dowden.

The Edition has many features to recommend it, which here can merely be touched upon: "Shakespeare as a Playwright" by Sir H. Irving, "An Appreciation of Sir Henry Irving" from the pen of Bram Stoker, "Shakespeare's Country" contributed by Jerome Harrison, being, perhaps, the most important. Whilst the text is given unmutilated, un-Bowdlerized, Sir Henry has specially marked those portions which can, in his judgment, best be omitted in dramatic presentation.

The books have been specially illustrated by celebrated artists, and each has a coloured frontispiece.

6/= TO EACH SUBSCRIBER A MAGNIFICENT PHOTOGRAVURE PORTRAIT OF SIR HENRY IRVING AS HAMLET IS PRESENTED.

Send 6/- to-day, and complete edition in 14 volumes will be despatched, carriage paid; nine payments of a similar sum and one payment of 3/- will complete the purchase.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Musical Comedy entitled "MISS HOOK OF HOLLAND."

The audience at the King's on Monday evening was evidently well pleased with Miss Hook of Holland. Mr. George Dance's company carry out the intentions of the makers of the play by entering into the spirit of the thing with energy and animation. Mr. Arthur Reynolds has a fund of dry humour which he uses with excellent effect in the character of Mr. Hook, the distillery proprietor; Captain Adrian Paap is dashingly played by Mr. Frederick Hobbs, who sings well; Mr. Lionel Scott is good as Lieutenant de Coop; as Bandmaster Van Vuyt Mr. Powis Pinder acts in manly fashion, and his singing is worth hearing; Mr. Percy Davidson is a clever and active Ludwig Schnaaps; and Mr. A. Murray is capable as Van Eck. Deserving of very great praise is Mr. Fred Lyne for a highly amusing personation of the loafer Simon Slinks, the audience being kept in good humour. With an exceedingly clear voice and a delightful presence Miss Marie Wilson represents Sally Hook to everybody's satisfaction; Miss Mabel Sealby, who displays real comedy powers, quite distinguishes herself as Mina, the maid, and her songs gain the encores they richly deserve. The chorus act and sing with much power, and the quaint Dutch costumes and scenery are objects of admiration. The orchestra is ably directed by Mr. Sydney Shaw.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Musical Comedy, entitled "THE MERRY WIDOW."

Record business is being done at the Marlborough this week with Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Merry Widow. The house has been full to overflowing throughout the week, and seats have been at a premium. Mr. Edwardes has engaged a company of which the principals are artists whose performances are too well known to need any special comment. In the title-rôle Miss Constance Drever at once made herself a favourite by her singing, graceful acting, and dancing. Mr. Leonard Mackay is equally excellent as Prince Danilo, his work being characterised by artistic completeness. Mr. W. H. Rawlins makes a great success as Nisch, and provides a good portion of the fun; and Mr. Theodore Leonard meets with considerable appreciation as General Novakovitch. Mr. W. Talleur Andrews acts and sings admirably as Vicomte Camille de Jolidon; and Mr. Thomas David is well placed as the Marquis de Cascada. Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter figures with good effect as the Head Waiter at Maxim's; and Messrs. Norman Greene and Robert Whitehouse play their respective rôles, M. de St. Brioche and M. Kadja, with due appreciation of their possibilities. The sight of Mr. Eric Thorne with his ludicrous facial and tonsorial make-up is amusing enough in itself; but when to this is added the clever comedian's innumerable eccentricities of speech and manner, the result is mirth-provoking beyond description. Miss Ethel Cadman is very charming as Natalie; and Miss Sylvia May appears with excellent effect as Olga, the same remark applying to Miss Kathleen Courtney as Sylvaine. The work of the whole company has a spontaneity and brightness unique in character, the chorus vying with the principals in the easy grace of their acting and the brilliancy of their vocalisation. An attractive lady, whom we are unable to identify by the programme, submitted a pas seul in the last act, which obtained a deserved encore. The scenery of the piece is brilliant in the extreme, and is quite up to the usual standard of the painters, Messrs. Joseph Harker and Alfred Terraine. Right well and earnestly does Mr. A. MacCunn perform his duties as musical director of the augmented orchestra.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 28, "THE WHIRLPOOL."

The new play by Herbert Swears, The Whirlpool, founded on a short story by Cyrus Townsend Brady, which made its London début at the Marlborough last week, is a drama of American "high finance," into which is deftly woven a romance of middle-aged love interest. Mrs. Kendal must have a predilection and a great sympathy for spinsters who are approaching the "sere and yellow leaf" of old-maidism, for this somewhat hapless mortal finds a place in several of her plays, notably The Elder Miss Blossom, and no one could possibly earn more sympathy for them or bring the dumb agony of their monotonous existence more forcibly before us. The part of Miss Constance Livingstone does not exactly come under this category, but it is painfully near it at times, and with all her wealth of money we are permitted by the author, and more especially by the actress, plainly to see how much she longs for a wealth of love to crown her happiness and content. Mrs. Kendal's charm of manner and expression, her grace and refinement, are they not written in the chronicles of her several performances? So suffice it to say that she is quite up to her best form as Miss Livingstone. Mr. Kendal as Elijah D. Tillottson has a part after his own heart as the fearless, intrepid, resourceful, and intensely loyal American engineer, who wrecks the scheme on which his life's happiness depends in order to save the honour of his loved one. Mr. Edmund Gurney as his pal, Ephraim Johnstone, is "great," and contributes a fine characteristic performance of the wild Westerner. Mr. Metcalfe Wood is just splendid as the antediluvian clerk Chappin. Mr. W. M. Rutherfurd, who on Monday night had the reversion of Mr. Bassett Roe's part owing to the indisposition of the latter, came out with flying colours as the egotistical and snobbish Bertram Livingstone, who was determined that no one should play with his sister's money but himself, and was well suited to the part. Mr. Bennett took up Mr. Rutherfurd's part of the manservant Parker. Mr. T. Holding created a good impression as the Hon. Reginald Killegrew; and Mr. Wellesley Draper acts with sincerity and naturalness as the coffee broker, Cutter, of Cutter, Drewitt and Co. Miss Ethel Dane both looks and acts prettily as Gertrude van Stuyler; and Mrs. A. B. Tapping is eminently satisfactory as Aunt de Kaater. On Thursday evening The Elder Miss Blossom was billed, and on Friday and Saturday The House of Clay.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Romantic Comedy, "DIANA OF DOBSON'S."

Mr. Peter Davey, the managing-Director, made another happy hit in bringing to the riverside town the above London success, which was sent down by Miss Lena Ashwell with her principal company. Good houses have attended each night during the week, and this, one of the latest London successes, was received with rapturous applause. One cannot speak too highly of the acting of Miss Emilie Polini in the principal rôle of Diana Massingberd. Her portraiture of the shopgirl at Dobson's was most realistic, and her behaviour in the Engadine whilst enjoying the fleeting pleasures purchased by a legacy of £300 was also true to life. Miss Daisy England presented a faithful picture of Miss Pringle, the angular and severe forewoman at Dobson's. The other girls at Dobson's were admirably impersonated by the Misses Violet Gould, Eva Lonsdale, Dorothy Garth, and Olga Esme. Miss Gwynneth Galton made a most successful appearance as Miss Cantalupe; and Mr. Frank Woolfe also gave a good account of himself in the part of the invertebrate Captain Bretherton. A special word of commendation is deserved by Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce for an admirable picture of the successful parvenu, Sir Gobez Grinlay, of Grinlay's Emporium, Limited. The minor parts in the play were also well presented. The Bishop's Candlesticks was presented as a curtain-raiser, and gave Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce an opportunity of presenting a touching picture of a lovable French bishop. The other parts were ably filled by Messrs. Frank Woolfe and Stewart Dawson and the Misses Daisy England and Olga Esme.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Comedy, entitled "THE MOLLUSC."

"One of the cleverest comedies of the day" must be the verdict of all who have seen The Mollusc at Kennington Theatre this week, a production which redounds infinitely to the credit both of the talented author, Hubert Henry Davies, and of the clever quartette of artists who interpret him so faithfully. The Mollusc is essentially a comedy in which everything depends on the spirit in which the company catches the author's quaint fancies and work them out, and certainly there can be nothing but praise for the manner in which the play is presented by Miss Annie Hughes and her colleagues. In the title-rôle Miss Annie Hughes is wonderful. The part suits her to the life, and she gives the most delightful sketch of Mrs. Baxter, the Mollusc, that can be imagined. Miss Hughes proves herself to be a finished comedy actress, and she quickly wins all hearts. Of scarcely less importance to the success of the play is Miss Lilias Waldegrave's sympathetic study of the character of Miss Roberts, the governess. A charming lady, Miss Waldegrave impersonates the governess with refreshing naïvette, and she well deserves all the encomiums she has showered upon her. The Tom Kemp of Mr. Athol Stewart is remarkably well done; he is the unsentimental but good-hearted brother to the life. An appeal to the wife's jealous instincts is conventional, but the way in which Mr. Stewart goes to work invests it with absorbing interest. Mr. Aiick Chumley is splendid as Mr. Baxter, the husband of the Mollusc, and proves himself to be a gifted actor.

There is a pretty and unconventional curtain-raiser in the shape of Mrs. Oscar Beringer's one-act play A Bit of Old Chelsea, which affords additional opportunity for Miss Hughes to demonstrate her great versatility as the derelict flower-girl, and for Mr. Aiick Chumley to make a hit in the part of Jack Hillier, the sculptor. As Hillier's friends Mr. W. A. Thompson and Mr. F. Hartley both do well.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Musical Play, entitled "THE DAIRYMAIDS."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard has made a most auspicious start on his autumn season with the new and revised version of the above popular piece. In addition to providing such good fare for his patrons, this popular manager has done much to add to their comfort in a rearrangement of the seating and installing additional heating apparatus, whilst very plain notices insist on the removal of ladies' head-gear in the front seats. Mr. Robert Macdonald's company is a good one, and with fresh scenery and a large contingent of extra ladies and gentlemen, is beginning its autumn tour at this theatre. Miss Carrie Lacy makes a bright Lady Brudenell, her dresses and acting being alike smart. The cheerful Sam Brudenell is a lively character in the hands of Mr. Richard Telford, and his dancing is a feature of the performance. Mr. J. Scott Melville as Lieut. Frank Meredith, the naval lover, plays with discretion and a natural manner, making also a very passable girl when disguised in the school scene. Dr. O'Byrne, the Hibernian naval medico, was a matured impersonation in Mr. Bernard Vaughan's experienced hands. Mr. Dare Agar has added many drolleries to his part of Joe Mivens, A.B., and his quaint mannerisms, clever acting, and almost athletic dancing, make each of his appearances the occasion of unrestrained merriment. This is especially the case in his scenes with Miss Nellie Bowman, whose Eliza is an excellent embodiment of the maid-of-all-work. Her singing and acting were of the high order to be expected of this clever little comedienne. Miss Lucy Edwin is a commanding figure as Miss Penelope Pychase, proprietress of the Ladies' School, where so much of the fun takes place, and Miss Vera Chrichton displays a cultured voice and a pleasant manner as Winifred. Miss Empsie Bowman has plenty to do as Peggy, and her two principal songs, "Hullo! little stranger," and the "Sandow Girl," are among the successes of the evening, being encored many times. Miss Doris Dickens has not much to do but to look sweet, and the crowd of dairymaids, school-girls, &c., do the same with marked success. The four Sandow Girls are eminently well selected for their fine physique.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Drama entitled "AN UNWEDDED WIFE."

Described on the bill as "a great play of human emotion," An Unwedded Wife is presented by Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. E. Whitty's company. Miss Ethel Van Praagh, who is a great favourite at the Elephant as elsewhere, undertakes the part of Marion, the unwedded wife, and gives an artistic performance, being recalled several times at the end of each act. Mr. J. Edward Whitty plays the part of P.C. Runyin, "the pride of the force"; Mr. George Daiper as Frank Haythorne is a manly hero, and delivers his lines well. Mr. Charles Stirling accentuates the villainies of Philip Blackstone; Mr. Will Casey is a favourite as Napoleon B. Boomer, a jovial showman; and Miss Jessie Gillette is a good second as Caraway Crumpet, his sweetheart. A word of praise should be given to the child actress Little Doris, who takes the part of the boy Reggie. The play is well mounted.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Play entitled "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

The attraction at the Pavilion for the current week is Mr. Charles Harrington's American combination in Uncle Tom's Cabin. This well-known story is always of interest, and appeals particularly to children, for whom two special matinees are given. A feature of the play is the grand plantation festival in Act IV., when some fine singing and dancing is given by Messrs. Rich and Moor, Shorty May, J. Warrie, and Dinah Dixie. Mr. J. Carr in the part of Uncle Tom is very expressive; while his better half, Aunt Chloe, is amusingly performed by Mrs. Carr. Mr. Charles Harrington contents himself with a rendition of Phineas Fletcher; and the callous Simon Legree is portrayed with power by Mr. T. Bowron. Mr. Frank Forbes Robertson is acceptable as Mr. St. Clair; and an energetic and vigorous George Harris is found in Mr. Ernest Regent. Eliza Harris is made the essence of refinement by Miss Hero Hathway, and Topsy is humorously delineated by Miss Annie Watson; while Miss Hetty Johnson as Cassy is forcible. Little Eva is pathetically performed by Miss Kitty Bell, and Miss Ethel Vernon is seen to advantage as Emmeline. The remainder of the long cast are in excellent hands.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Play, in a Prologue and Four Acts, entitled "THE NEW EAST LYNNE."

Mr. W. W. Kelly is presenting here for the first time in London a new adaptation from the pen of Mr. Edmund Gurney of Mrs. Henry Wood's famous novel "East Lynne." Whilst, as in the other versions, the plot of the novel is closely adhered to, Mr. Gurney has—whilst retaining the pathetic incidents of the story—broadened out the comedy part, and his introduction of the Irish retainer, Murty O'Flynn, who is one of the most prominent characters in the production, adds greatly to the humour. An excellent company has been engaged, and their interpretation is in all respects thoroughly satisfactory. Mr. Frederick Harker is responsible for a sterling rendering of Archibald Carlyle, playing the part in quiet, easy style, but with a determination admirably in keeping with the character. The heartless villainy of Francis Levison is neatly hit off by Mr. W. H. Garbois, who acquits himself with credit. As Murty O'Flynn Mr. Richard Nugent is a host in himself, and his humorous remarks and clever repartee make him a warm favourite. Mr. W. Lowe is a sufficiently irascible Justice Hare; and Mr. R. Aspinall makes the most of the part of Otway Bethel. Mr. Byron Pedley is well suited to the rôle of Mr. Dill; Mr. M. Talbot is a dignified Lord Mountsevern; and Mr. W. T. Ellonby renders good service as Richard Hare. In the rôle of Lady Isabel Miss Beth Elliott is remarkably successful. The suffering and despair of the broken-hearted mother beget the fullest sympathy. Miss Sophy Shenton must be warmly commended for a really clever presentation of Cornelia, whose tirades against the sterner sex cause much laughter. Miss Josephine Gwynne, a prepossessing Barbara Hare, acts with pleasing effect; Miss Guinevere Shilton cleverly doubles the parts of Afy and Joyce Hallijohn. The remainder of the company all do well in smaller parts, and the scenery and mounting is beyond reproach. Mr. Frank Rogers is manager for Mr. W. W. Kelly.

THE NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 28, "A LION'S HEART."

This interesting drama is drawing good houses at the Lyric. It is a play of absorbing interest, and receives excellent treatment from Mr. Bebb's company. Mr. Henry Bedford interprets with much effect the part of Rizardo; Mr. Leonard Booker is a manly Dick Lorimore; Miss Ada Oakley as Louise in the prologue and as Dick's wife later on wins much sympathy by the able manner in which she acts; Miss Madge Beresford is a lively Bessie; Mr. Edgar J. Coyne creates much laughter as Jack Bealey; Mr. Archie Helsby scores well as Colonel Robert de Villefort; quite excellent are the acting and make-up of Mr. Stephen Scanlan as Gaspard Dobre; little Elsie May plays cleverly as Gilbert; Miss Beatrice Holmes is commendable as Sister Gertrude; Miss Kitty Ross is good as Mme. le Cheminart; and the other characters were all ably played. The scene where the ex-prisoners choose wives from among the female convicts was well acted and caused much laughter. The scenery throughout was effective, and the performance met with well-merited applause.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Drama, entitled "QUEEN OF THE NIGHT."

The stock company engaged at this popular house is winning the warm favour of the local playgoers. This week's attraction is the drama Queen of the Night, which gives opportunities for the display of ability which the performers take every advantage of. The production includes some excellent scenic effects, with a good representation of a train in motion. Mr. Harry Tresham as Frank Featherstone is thoroughly suited to the part, and acts in frank and easy style; Mr. H. Ryland Leigh as Phillip Stoneleigh is very successful, and gives a most powerful performance of the part of the unscrupulous scoundrel. One of the best impersonations is the Old Brisket of Mr. C. Alan Hineson, who supplies a really good character-study of the bibulous personage. Considerable amusement is caused by Mr. H. G. Brandon as Adolphus Brisket and Miss Florence Barnes as Kitty White. They take full advantage of their opportunities of creating laughter. An excellent impersonation is that of the miser, David Pentreath, given by Mr. W. S. Clarke, who makes the money-grubbing old man stand out very prominently; a charming and dainty Maud Sylvester is Miss L. Stanhope, whose quiet and unaffected manner is very agreeable; Mrs. Brisket is played in a very forcible manner by Miss Edna Lester; Miss Alice Emery as Mary Pentreath is decidedly good. Unqualified praise must be bestowed upon Miss E. Gordon Murray for her very able and consistent performance as Paulina, her acting being much above the average; her performance deserves heartiest congratulations.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Romantic Play, by Walter Howard, entitled, "THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

Mr. Alfred Paumier and Mr. Walter Howard's company is presenting this week at the Dalston Theatre Mr. Walter Howard's romantic play, The Prince and the Beggar Maid, which has only recently terminated its run at the Lyceum, where it was originally produced. The piece is well acted all round. Prince Hildred of Sylvania has a powerful representative in Mr. Ivan Cleveland, who is much admired; Mr. Graeme Campbell as Prince Michael acts with care, and Mr. Herbert Ford, as Prince Olaf, who eventually marries the Princess of Illyria, is a manly hero. As Monica, Princess of Illyria, Miss Annie Saker is deserving of nothing short of the most unstinted praise. Not only does she look the part to perfection, but the amount of feeling which she imparts to certain scenes proves that she puts heart into the character, a rare quality which ensures complete success in any impersonation. As Camlola, a beggar maid (whom for a time the actual Princess impersonates), Miss Dido Drake may be congratulated on a decidedly pretty rendering of a most sympathetic rôle. The part is played with a charming degree of naturalness. Miss Isla Vayne is all that can be desired as Viola, sister to Captain Hector (of the Princess's bodyguard), a character well presented by Mr. D. Lewin Mannering. Mr. Kendal Chalmers is Lieut. Karl Stromberg, the other guardsman to the Princess. Mr. Albert Carlton as Lieut. Felsburg, Mr. J. E. Gardner as Nathan, a dumb servant, and Mr. Francis Hawley as the Bishop of Illyria, are also among the efficient cast. Mr. W. R. King, the business manager at this popular house, does everything possible for the general comfort of all in front of the curtain.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

Monday, Sept. 28, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Horace Stanley, entitled "GUILTY GOLD."

That popular actor-author Mr. Horace Stanley is appearing here this week in a capital play written by himself, in which he sustains with skill and effect the part of Septimus Sweet, a character exactly suited to his ability, and which immediately makes him a warm favourite with his audience. He is admirably assisted by Miss Kate Kilpack, whose Nancy Bright is a delightfully amusing performance. Miss Cora Linda as the twin sisters Elsie and Hetty Middleton is a charming and capable actress, who creates much interest by her clever and sympathetic performance. Miss Josephine Lee as Rhoda Hampton is excellent in every way; and Miss Evelyn M. Walton is a capital representative of Bertha Blossom. Mr. J. Arthur Plummer is very good indeed, and scores well as Harold Elmore; and Mr. Fred Wilberforce as Robert Bartlett gives a consistent and incisive performance of the bigamist and blackmailer. Mr. Chauncey Morris supplies an excellent performance of John Middleton; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is capital as Sweet William; Martin Haldane is in the capable hands of Mr. William Hayward; Mr. Alaric Burton is a clever Uriah Fudge; and Mr. Arthur E. Francis gives a smart performance as Algernon Carruthers. Other prominent parts are ably enacted by Mr. Ernest Griffiths (Jem Huggins), Mr. Mark Lane (Tobias Dobbs), Mr. Richard Barker (Joe Nobbs), Mr. James Bennett (Sam Swipes), Mr. Harry Loates (Gaffer Giles), Mr. Fred C. Roper (Tom Rowe), and Mr. Thomas Dunn (Inspector Bradley). The performance concludes with an exhibition of animated pictures by the American Bioscope.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the play entitled "IRENE WYCHERLEY."

A pleasant and attractive bill of fare is presented this week at this popular house; and the enterprising management should reap a rich reward for their enterprise. The fame of Miss Lena Ashwell's great success in Irene Wycherley no doubt accounted for the large audience, who gave a hearty welcome to the Monckton-Hoffe company in Mr. Wharton's clever play. Miss Maude Henderson splendidly realises the arduous character of Irene Wycherley, her intense acting throughout giving every satisfaction; Mr. Charles Garry is to be distinctly complimented on his admirable portraiture of Philip Wycherley; Miss Grace Illingworth is a graceful exponent of Carrie Hardinge; and Miss Evelyn Cecil successfully enacts Hilda Preston. Miss Muriel Carmel is seen to advantage as Linda Hetheridge; Miss Beatrice Mervyn is excellent as Lady Wycherley; Mr. Ralph Hutton stands out prominently with his clever impersonation of Sir Peter Wycherley; Mr. Edward Sorley is capital as Harry Chesterton; Mr. Claude Haviland well depicts Charles Summers; Miss Phillis Stuckey must be congratulated on her acting as Muriel Wycherley; Miss Olive Warne's rendering of Lily Summers is very commendable; and Miss Emmie Reamer is good as Parker. The play is nicely mounted. Mr. Will T. Taylor is, as usual, always to the front in looking after the comfort of Mr. Fred. Melville's extensive clientèle.

ROYAL ARTILLERY, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Play entitled "THE ADVENTURE OF LADY URSULA."

Besides the above-mentioned play Mr. Norman V. Norman is also presenting during the current week David Garrick and Nell Gwynne of Drury Lane, with a matinée of Still Waters Run Deep, so that patrons of this house are well provided for. The play under notice is carefully dressed and adequately staged, and each of the four acts is set forth in an interesting fashion. Mr. Norman, with his fine stage presence, has a part which suits him admirably as Sir George Silvester. He takes every advantage of his chances, and presents a very finished performance. Miss Beatrice Wilson, in the character of Lady Ursula, contributes a highly successful study, imbuing the part with the necessary intensity and feeling. That "very proper" aristocrat Mrs. Fenton is capably undertaken by Miss Ethel Coleridge. Miss V. Malcolm Barnett is responsible for the part of Dorothy Fenton, which she invests with brightness and charm. Mr. Alfred Gray instils the necessary amount of impetuosity into the character of the Earl of Hassenden, and is entirely successful; Mr. Sam Wilkinson is amusing as the Rev. Mr. Blimboe; Mr. Reginald P. Lamb gives a clever impersonation of Mr. Dent; and the remaining members of the cast are quite efficient.

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Drama entitled "THE SAILOR'S WEDDING."

Written by H. Brinsley Hill and produced before the footlights early in the present month by the Hardie and Von Leer company, The Sailor's Wedding is continuing a successful career, and is meeting with a very cordial reception at the Royal this week. The setting of the play being under Italian skies offers a fine opportunity to the scenic artist, who has adequately availed himself of the chance. The various emotional situations are carefully handled by a very capable company, who deserve the applause so liberally meted out to them. Mr. C. W. Standing gives a natural impersonation of the part of Gordon Drake and acts with sincerity; Sir Victor Lascelles is cleverly undertaken by Mr. Cecil Klein, who imbues the part with much human sentiment; Mr. Frank Stone gives an earnest rendering of the ambitious Count Bellini; Mr. Hodgson Taylor as the unpopular villain Giovanni Ferici portrays the character with good effect; Giacomo of the Evil Eye is essayed with excellent ability by Mr. F. Finch Smiles; Mr. Walter Pemberton makes an amusing Jack Hawkins; Miss Winifred Pearson gives a praiseworthy representation of Lenore de Gresac, and shows considerable experience and talent, her efforts in the boudoir scene being noteworthy; Countess Bellini is judiciously enacted by Miss Maud Linden; Miss Dulcie Greatwich as Mary is a charming and graceful heroine; Miss Celestine Bertram is humorous as Ninette; and Miss Belle Travers is a suitable Polly Clarke. Minor characters are adequately assumed by Mr. Huntley Gifford, Mr. Frederick Jacques, Mr. Water Emsdale, and Mr. Charles Childs.

ACTORS' DAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me, through your columns, to remind your readers that Oct. 15—the third Thursday in October—is Actors' Day? The Advisory Board have constant evidence before them of the great practical utility of Actors' Day, and they look forward with confidence to the infinitely greater service it will render to all of us as soon as its objects are completely and universally understood. After last year's collection, the Advisory Board decided that Actors' Day should in future be confined to one simple and definite object—the help of those who are willing to help themselves: that its funds should be independently and exclusively administered on this basis. This was confirmed at the annual general meeting, held at the Kingsway Theatre on March 19 last.

Now, and in future, only those who contribute their one night's earnings once a year on the third Thursday in October can be on the register. All out of engagement may remain on the register without contribution, provided they notify the Advisory Board of their position at the time. Only those on the register may apply for benefit in any form. Actors' Day is open to actors, actresses, managers, and authors.

The benefits are even now substantial, as many can gratefully testify. With general support the benefits will be enormously increased and out of all proportion to the sacrifice involved. A contributor to Actors' Day knows that no part of his contribution will or can go to anyone who has not proved his willingness to help himself by having contributed. All this and further details are fully explained in posters which are being sent to every theatre in the kingdom, and on contribution forms, which will be sent individually to all whose addresses can be obtained.

But, in spite of every effort, there are many with whom it must be impossible to communicate personally. The Advisory Board, therefore, ask for the help of all who are willing to assist by making Actors' Day and its objects as widely known as possible. Actors' Day is not an appeal to charity: it is a genuine effort made by actors to help themselves. The Advisory Board commend it to the careful consideration and cordial support of all who earn their living in the most precarious of all professions. The hon. secretary will be glad to supply forms and give the fullest information to all who apply by letter, addressed to him at Dudley House, 37, Southampton-street, Strand, London, W.C.—Yours faithfully,

SYDNEY VALENTINE,

"REAPING THE WHIRLWIND."

A play in one act, by Allan Monkhouse, produced for the first time on any stage at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, Sept. 28.

Sir Frank Selby, Bart., F.R.S. — MR. LEWIS CASSON
Dickinson — MR. EDWARD LANDOR
Dr. Rushton — MR. JULES SHAW
Lady Selby — MISS DARRAGH

It is not often that a play so compact and effective in the space of one act is put upon the stage as that which Mr. Allan Monkhouse has entitled Reaping the Whirlwind, and which was produced by Miss Horniman's company at the Gaiety Theatre on Monday last. It is tense and suggestive from the first moment, as if the curtain had risen on the great scene of a large dramatic effort. Sir Frank Selby is alone in his study, having just completed a scientific paper on cause and effect, which proves his theory that every effect has a cause—as he is shortly to learn from a concrete example at home. It is late, and he begins to feel concerned about the home-coming of his wife, who has been out dining, and is beyond her usual hour. To him comes a sincere and candid friend, much perturbed about the domestic situation, knowing that Sir Frank has sacrificed time to his studies which might better have been spared to his wife. Dr. Rushton has, in fact, overheard an assignation between Lady Selby and one Asher, who is to take her away by the midnight train; and he tells Sir Frank this unpleasant truth. The latter can scarcely believe it; but his feeling of trust in his wife, and a secondary feeling of the inevitable nature of this issue if it is true, gradually give way to an impulse to follow in the footsteps of Rushton, who goes off in spite of protest to try and avert the impending calamity. Before Sir Frank has put on his coat and hat, however, Lady Selby puts in an appearance. She is obviously overstrung, but her husband, instinctively ignoring his knowledge of the situation, endeavours to talk to her as usual. Her character is shown in her eagerness for confession. She has found out that she could not do the thing she had been on the brink of doing, and that she loves her husband after all. The pity of having misled the third person of the trio is, however, deep in her; and in this lies her guilt, as well as in the thought of her contemplated infidelity. Can things ever be the same again? Sir Frank shows her that they can, so far as he is concerned, for his, after all, is the blame—the blame of neglect—though he loves her. Here, then, is reconciliation. But a startling issue is at hand. A shot is heard; Asher has committed suicide on their doorstep. His body is brought into the house, and the slow tread of men is heard as they carry the suicide upstairs. Horror creeps into the situation as the wife and husband realise that the victim is being taken to their bedroom, to be laid upon their bed. Things can never be the same. At the last, words fall from Lady Selby's lips—the expression of a weird thought spiritually true: "He lies between us!" The scene is extremely well done, both in the literary and the dramatic sense, and the thrill imparted is keen. Mr. Lewis Casson showed ability to cope well with the character of Sir Frank Selby; Mr. Edward Landor played the old servant, Dickinson, with quiet naturalness; Mr. Jules Shaw as Dr. Rushton was incisive and arresting; and Miss Darragh gave a performance as the anguished wife that showed her to be an actress of great emotional possibilities.

"THE FLAG LIEUTENANT" CENTURY AT THE PLAYHOUSE.

Major Drury, R.M.L.I. (part author with Mr. Leo Trevor of The Flag Lieutenant) was landed in command of the marines of the Camperdown and Astræa for service in Crete on the occasion of the massacre of Christians and attack on the British camp by Bashi-Bazouks in September, 1898, and has served much at sea. Hence the truth of detail, the exactitude of the replica of life on board one of His Majesty's warships that constitutes one of the chief attractions of The Flag Lieutenant, which has now "notched" 100 performances, and commands the favour of very large houses at the Playhouse. So breezy, so refreshing a play makes us hope that its authors will again collaborate and provide Mr. Cyril Maude with another success. That popular actor-manager has added a few extra touches to his fine portrait of Richard Lascelles, the irresponsible officer, who refuses to take his profession seriously. Even when dressing for his dangerous masquerade as a Bashi-Bazouk "Dicky" remarks on his saucy "bags," and the character is so cleverly limned by the actor—who has so exactly reproduced its various facets—that it is a sheer delight to the playgoer to see and hear him in a creation that is a veritable triumph.

Miss Winifred Emery completely realises the humour, the sparkle, and the pathetic touches that are to be found in the part of Mrs. Cameron. One does not require to hear the fascinating widow's avowal of love for William Thesiger. The eloquence of her gesture in the first act makes the fact sufficiently clear. Miss Emery shows us that the thought of love is with her by the tone and expression of her farewell. It is one of those little touches that flash forth the genius of the actress. How charmingly naïve, too, is Miss Emery in the third act when seeking to help Lascelles.

Mr. C. Aubrey Smith deals with the part of the Major of Marines in most effective fashion, and supplies a splendid contrast to the raillery and "rotting" of Lascelles in the second act, where Mr. Smith accomplishes a wonderful fall when the Major is hit. He plays with restrained force and coolness, and with just that touch of cynicism so natural in a brave fellow who has never had his chance.

Miss Lilian Braithwaite looks very sweet in three extremely pretty frocks, and presents a type of girl that is essentially English and essentially lovable. Miss Rosalie Toller is chic and attractive as Viola Hood; Miss Emma Chambers's Mrs. Gough-Bogle gives just the touch of ill-breeding and ill-nature that is so necessary in such a part; and Miss Marie Linden is a gracious, kindly, and well-bred Lady Dugdale.

The play has very much advanced the reputation of Mr. Arthur Holmes-Gore, who is a distinct acquisition to Mr. Maude's company in the part of Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir Berkeley Wynne. The portrait is clear cut and the conception true to life.

Mr. Sydney Paxton presents a finished character-sketch of the deaf and scandal-loving General Gough, and, though the part is short, it requires the clever handling of an experienced comedian. Mr. Ernest Mainwaring as the surgeon Crutchley is manly and outspoken; and the middies, as played by Messrs. H. Robert Averell and Spencer Trevor, lighten the play by their capital impersonations. There is genuine fun in the James Sloggett of Mr. John Harwood and the Thomas Steele of Mr. A. G. Onslow; Mr. Clarence Blackiston is irreproachable as the Irishman, Michael Palliser; and Mr. Daniel McCarthy makes his mark as the wounded Cretan, Memeti Salos. Mr. E. F. Mayeur and Mr. Charles Hampden realise the soldierlike qualities of Colonel McLeod and Captain Munro; and Messrs. Peter Blunt, W. Percival, Larcombe, Lane, Crawford, and M. Wetherell are seen to advantage in small parts.

The stirring scene on board His Majesty's ship, The Royal Edward, is a triumph for the stage-manager, Mr. John Harwood, and the scenic artist, Mr. Bruce Smith, whose brush work in the Kandia scene is most artistic. Mr. Willie Clarkson's "wigging" is perfect.

DEATH OF ROBERT SOUTAR.

We regret to announce the death, which took place on Monday, in his eighty-first year, of Robert Soutar, the husband of the late Nellie Farren, and father of the well-known actor Mr. Farren-Soutar. The late Mr. Soutar was the son of Robert Soutar, the journalist, and for some time held the position of stage-manager at the Gaiety Theatre under the lesseeship of Mr. John Hollingshead. Mr. Soutar wrote various farces and pantomimes. His first play—a farce called The Fast Coach—was produced at the Olympic so far back as the summer of 1851, and revived at the Gaiety in 1873. A Deed Without a Name was also given at the Olympic, and Never Taste Wine at the Docks, another trifle, was produced at the Strand. Quicksands and Whirlpools, another piece, first saw the footlights at "Victoria's own theayter," in the Waterloo-road, on March 21, 1868; and The Chinese Giant was performed at the Marylebone, now the West London Theatre.

Mr. Robert Soutar was the Green Jones in the original production of The Ticket-of-Leave Man, produced at the Olympic on May 27, 1863, and his "giggle" in the character was extensively copied. Miss Nellie Farren, who became Mrs. Soutar, was not in the first cast of Tom Taylor's famous drama, but afterwards succeeded Miss Raynham in the part of Sam Willoughby. In another play of Tom Taylor's, Settling Day, produced at the same theatre on March 4, 1865, the deceased comedian played the part of Rocket. Miss Kate Terry was the heroine, and Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Horace Wigan, and Mrs. Leigh Murray were also in the cast. In a performance in May of the same year of Stirling Coyne's comedy Everybody's Friend, Mr. Soutar as Icebrook supported Mr. Charles Walcot, an old American actor. Mr. Soutar's first London appearance in Shakespearean comedy was as Sir Toby Belch in an Olympic revival on June 7, 1865, of Twelfth Night, in which he supported Miss Kate Terry as Viola, Miss Nellie Farren playing for the first time the clown, Feste. In a revival of The Merry Wives of Windsor he took the part of Pistol, and in a performance of John Bull he played John Burr. Stirling Coyne, who was prolific in his adaptations from the French, was responsible for an English version of Les Coulisses de la Vie under the title of Woman of the World, in which Sheridan Jones was played by Bob Soutar.

At the opening of the new Gaiety Theatre, under the management of John Hollingshead, on Monday, Dec. 21, 1868, the deceased actor was appointed stage-manager of the house, and Miss Nellie Farren then commenced, at the home of the "sacred lamp," her series of brilliant triumphs in comedy and burlesque. Mr. Soutar was also cast at the Gaiety for a number of parts in burlesque and comedy. In October, 1871, he appeared as Mr. Featherstone in Cheltnam's piece The Matchmaker, and a few days later was seen in the part of Menelaus in Charles Lamb Kenney's version of Offenbach's La Belle Hélène, with Julia Mathews in the title-rôle. He played, in 1873, Tobin in Bibb and Tucker, an adaptation of Tricoche and Cacolet. In a revival of The Ticket-of-Leave Man at the Olympic in 1875 he repeated his success as Green Jones, and Miss Nellie Farren again appeared as Sam Willoughby. He returned to the Gaiety in 1876, playing on Aug. 26 of that year the part of Peter Oleum in a dreary piece by H. J. Byron, entitled The Bull by the Horns. On the same evening a farce from his pen, entitled Sold Again, was produced, previous to the burlesque of Little Don Cæsar de Bazan, in which Mr. Edward Terry made his first appearance at the Gaiety as the King of Spain, with Miss Kate Vaughan as Maritana. At the farewell benefit of John Parry at the Gaiety on Feb. 7, 1877 Mr. Soutar played Lord Burleigh in The Critic, and in October of the same year appeared as old Faust in Byron's burlesque of Little Doctor Faust.

About 1885 the deceased actor performed his old part of Green Jones in a revival at Sadler's Wells of The Ticket-of-Leave Man, Miss Nellie Farren playing Sam Willoughby. This was the last time either artist appeared in their original characters in Tom Taylor's celebrated drama—one of the cleverest adaptations from the French ever seen on our stage. It was taken from Léonard, a melodrama by Brisbarre and Nus.

When the Farren and Conway company opened at the Strand in 1887 in The Clandestine Marriage Mr. Farren (who predeceased Mr. Soutar by three days) was the Lord Ogleby, a rôle in which his father was most famous, and Mr. Robert Soutar played the valet, Canton, Harry Conway, as Sir John Melvil, delivering Garrick's prologue. Of late years the stage had seen little of this very useful and conscientious artist.

"FLUFFY RUFFLES."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Fluffy Ruffles, a musical mélange by John T. McNally, W. T. Francis, and Wallace Irwin, has scored a popular success at the Criterion Theatre, New York, although the critics were not very enthusiastic over it. The character was created by a newspaper cartoonist, and was supposed to be typical of the so-called up-to-date New York girl, whose abbreviated skirts and peculiar, not to say "freakish," manner of dressing were calculated to attract the attention which the maiden of that species considers indispensable. Fluffy goes to business, but finds it difficult to hold her position for any length of time, although a rich uncle has promised her a large sum of money if she will do so. Wherever she goes she is followed by so many admirers that her employers have to discharge her. Her uncle is so liberal that he pays the expenses of a European trip for the deserving girls in the shop where Fluffy is first employed, thus enabling all the persons concerned in the complications that arise to follow her to France and England, and have all their difficulties adjusted by the energetic heroine. Miss Hattie Williams plays Fluffy, and makes the most of her opportunities. Her song in the second act, "Willie has another girl now," scores a hit, and so does a clever speech which she makes as a Suffragette. Mr. George Grossmith, jun., is delightfully humorous as Augustus Traddles, Fluffy's English admirer, a youth of the "silly ass" variety. Mr. Grossmith sings two songs, "Augustus" and "Dining out," which are very well received. As Noggie Noggles, Mr. Bert Leslie's vocabulary of slang is responsible for much laughter; and Miss Marie Annis sings "Echo of my heart" in capital style. The scenery and costumes are splendid, and the piece, as a whole, is lively and entertaining.

AN ACTRESS OF EXPERIENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—On Monday, July 30, 1888, at one of Charles Dickens's favourite theatres (Theatre Royal, Margate), I played Esther Summerson for the first time in Lady Dedlock's Secret, a version of "Bleak House."

I am specially engaged by the Dickens Fellowship to give this character next March, in the Town Hall, Ealing, and on the twenty-first anniversary, in 1909, I hope to arrange a special performance of it in the novelist's county of Kent.

It would be interesting to know if there are any other "juvenile leads" still on active service in the Dickensian parts they were portraying in 1888. There are many ladies playing "character parts" still on duty. These I exclude from the record, as the longevity of actresses is proverbial, and I hope we shall all be playing those parts on our one-hundredth birthdays!—Yours faithfully,

HELEN BRINCKMAN.

Sheffield, Sept. 29, 1908.

MISS LILLA NORDON.

"When I made up my mind to go on the stage," says Miss Lilla Nordon, "it seemed as if it would be an utter impossibility to even get an engagement. I knew how difficult it sometimes was even for clever, well-known people to obtain work, and as I had no influence and knew nobody in connection with theatrical management it seemed as if there would never be a chance of anything turning up for me. However, I kept on trying, and at last I began to get engagements." Miss Nordon began by walking on at the Adelphi Theatre in The Children of the Ghetto, which only ran for a week, and in Drink, during Mr. Chas. Warner's season at the Adelphi. After reciting a good deal at such places as the Winter Gardens at Bournemouth and at the Victoria Hall, Waterloo Bridge-road, ballad concerts, &c., she played small parts at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, under Mr. J. M. East's management. While she was there Mr. Charles Warner and Miss Grace Warner visited the theatre to play with the stock company in Drink, and Miss Nordon was then engaged by Mr. Warner to go on tour with him and play a small part and understudy in Drink. She then went on tour with a répertoire company, and played such parts as Primrose Deane (The Prude's Progress), Diana Chesney (The Sorrows of Satan), and Duchesse de Sonnaz in Moths. This engagement was varied by several odd weeks in Our Boys with Mr. Russell Rosse's company, and also in Mr. Chas. Otley's tour with the same comedy, together with Polly Eccles (Caste). Subsequently Miss Nordon was engaged by Mr. Bert Coote for his sketch Supper for Two, which ran for a few weeks at the Oxford Music Hall. Miss Ewerette Lawrence then engaged her to create parts in two one-act plays which she had written. In one—Her Ladyship's Daughter—Miss Nordon played the title-rôle, a very young girl, and in the other play—A Dangerous Ruffian—she represented an old lady. A tour followed under Mr. Chas. Frohman's management, during which she played Thérèse, the French maid, in Sherlock Holmes, for forty-two weeks. Then she was engaged to play Kitty Spencer in One of the Best under Mr. Robert Arthur's management, and after this she undertook the rôle of Joyce in East Lynne for a few special weeks in Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company. Then came an engagement on tour to play Tilly Vane in A Girl's Cross Roads under Mr. Walter Melville's management. Miss Maud Hildyard then secured her to create the character of Selina Worts in The Great Awakening—a part which proved to be her favourite one. She played with Miss Hildyard till last May, when she went to fulfil an engagement in Australia and New Zealand. After that Miss Nordon was engaged by Mr. Frank Bertram for Betty in The Convict's Daughter, and she is now representing

MISS LILLA NORDON.

Lucy Nettleford in Hands Across the Sea. "I love the stage and everything connected with it," declares Miss Nordon, "and although I often feel, especially when I am out of an engagement, as if fresh work will never come, I have never regretted joining the profession. I think," she added, "people should play as many different parts as possible, provided they are in appearance fit for those parts."

MR. FREDERICK HARKER.

It was not until Mr. Frederick Harker was well up in his teens that he witnessed his first play, which was The Lady of Lyons, with the late Mr. Barry Sullivan as Claude Melnotte. During the next few years, however, he saw all the "stars" who visited Birmingham (his native city). Labouring at an uncongenial profession—that of schoolmaster and tutor—Mr. Harker at length drifted on to the stage. He started at the bottom, and had some valuable experience in the smalls. He left Mrs. W. Aubrey's répertoire company to join the late Mr. Henry Talbot in the tour of the English small towns, which he started in 1885, supporting the tragedian as Laertes, Cassio, Bassanio, Edgar, De Mauprat, Alonzo (Pizzaro), and Captain Thornton. In the spring of 1886 Mr. Harker secured an engagement with Mr. John Dewhurst, then touring the principal towns, to play Horatio, Catesby, Glavis, Count Wintersen, Louis XIII., Oliver (Louis XI.), and Ramiro in Carpio, a romantic play by John Finnamore, an Australian dramatist, produced for the first time in England during that tour at Prince's Theatre, Bradford, May 24, 1886. This was followed by a long stock season at Jarrow, under the management of Miss Ethel Arden. After several minor engagements Mr. Harker went to Worcester for a production of The Flowers of the Forest, with the late Mr. William Gomersal, which led to an engagement for his Christmas stock season. In 1887 he was introduced to the late Mr. Andrew Melville, with whom he had many and long engagements, continuing until he retired from active management as confidential manager, stage-manager, and actor, playing chiefly heavy parts. In the autumn of that year Mr. Harker toured with the late Mr. Clarance Holt, playing Jack Randal in New Babylon. Then followed tours with My Sweetheart, Mr. Barnes of New York (Mr. Henry Dundas), and The Famine, and in the autumn of 1889 he was engaged by the late Mr. J. B. Howard to play Captain Thornton in Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's production of Rob Roy at Edinburgh and Glasgow, and that of Fitz-Eustace in their grand production of Marmion. Mr. Harker's principal engagements have been with Miss Claire Scott, playing Gubetta in Lucretia Borgia, Lord Burleigh in Mary, Queen of Scots, and Nathan in Leah; with Mr. H. M. Millington, as Captain Gilchrist in Bootles' Baby; with Mr. Thomas Sennett, as Langton Seaton in Redemption and in répertoire; with Mr. Edmund Tearle, as Brabantio, Alastor, Caius Claudius, Horatio, Julius Cæsar, Crabtree, &c.; two tours with Miss Marie Dagmar, as Davenport in A Woman's Victory; two tours with Mr. Lester Collingwood as Captain Rodney Haynes (his original part) in When London Sleeps; two tours with Mr. John J. Lloyd, as Oliver West in Shall We Forgive Her? with Mr. Fred Cooke, as the Timour in Mazeppa and Martin Faber in The Diver's Luck; with Mr. Henry Dundas, as Mathew Hawker in Human Nature; with Mr. George Daventry, as Major Ingleby in The Indian Mutiny, Polonius in Hamlet, and the Doctor in Lost in Paris; with Mr. Walter Sealby, as Robert Galloway in The Law and the Man; with Mr. Edmund Tearle, as Athos, the Ghost, Polydor, Banquo, Numitorius, Lord

MR. FREDERICK HARKER.

Stanley, and David Deans; with Mr. G. Howard Watson, as Captain Slade in The Way of the World; with Messrs. Lely and Mollison, as Captain Thornton in Rob Roy; with Mr. Henry Bedford, as Gerald Skinner in Gipsy Jack and Capt. Hart in Mafeking; and with Mr. T. Edward Ward, as Gilbert Fernside in Her Fatal Past. Mr. Harker has also played in stock seasons (principally heavy-lead) at the Standard Theatre, London (two), Birmingham (four), South Shields (two), Swansea, and Northampton. An interesting engagement in the autumn of 1905 was with the Rev. Forbes Phillips (the Vicar of Gorleston), in his own drama, A Maid of France. Among Mr. Harker's recent parts have been those of Paris, in Mr. J. W. Turner's production of Romeo and Juliet at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham; Malcolm Graeme, in Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's revival of The Lady of the Lake at Glasgow and Edinburgh; Captain Thornton, in the spectacle of Rob Roy, with Mr. Leo Stormont, at Glasgow, Edinburgh, Liverpool, and Manchester; Captain Levison, on tour with Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's East Lynne company; Captain Harry Vernon, on tour with Mr. Joseph Bebb's Prodigal Daughter company; and Rashleigh Osbaldistone (ond stage-management) in Mr. Robert Arthur's production of Rob Roy at Dundee and Aberdeen, Christmas, 1907-8.

MR. ROBERT H. HOWARD.

Mr. Robert H. Howard, actor and vocalist, is an Irishman, and was born in Clonmel, the capital of Tipperary. Although he did not enter the profession until he was nineteen years old, he made a public appearance at the early age of seven. When he was quite a small boy he used to appear at concerts in several "lines of business"—play flute or piccolo solos and flute obbligato to his sister's ballad, sing a comic song, and take part in concerted numbers. Mr. Howard belongs to a very old Tipperary family—the Prendergasts—and adopted his mother's name of Howard when he entered the profession. His first engagement in England was as the Demon King in Babes in the Wood. Owing to the illness of the principal comedian he afterwards played

Dame with much success. Since that he has appeared in pantomime every year until 1905-6. At the end of his first engagement Mr. Howard confesses to having felt homesick, and he accordingly joined a company going to Ireland and remained with it for eighteen months, playing all kinds of parts—Archibald Carlyle, Danny Mann, Taffy, and Copall in a burlesque called Bonny Boy Blue, which part he played for about twelve months

"Before I leave the subject of Ireland," says Mr. Howard, "I must tell you of an incident which occurred in my native town during the performance of The Ticket-of-Leave Man, in which I was playing Bob. I had employed a half-witted chap called Jim to make himself useful at 'the back,' and just before making my last entrance I gave him the cash box to hold till I went off to take it from him. All went well till just before the time for my exit to rob the safe. To my dismay, on walks Jim with the cash box and says, 'Here's the cash box, sir.' That incident," adds Mr. Howard, "I shall never forget." After nearly two years' tour in Ireland Mr. Howard returned to England, and was engaged at the Duke of York's Theatre in the Sims-Corri opera The Dandy Fifth.

At the finish of the run he thought he would like to go on the music halls, so he founded the combination now well-known as the Steinway Quartette (male voice), with which he has been associated ever since. He has fulfilled engagements with them at all the principal music halls (including the Alhambra, W.) and concert halls in the kingdom, including Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's production of Kenilworth, in which he played Goldthread, singing the "Bonny, bonny owl" and taking part in the quartet "Row, gently row." His pantomime engagements with the quartette include five consecutive years with Mr. Robert Arthur's Forty Thieves, in which he played Mustapha, the old cobbler. Character-comedy is a line of business of which Mr. Howard is particularly fond. Other engagements with the quartette included The Cherry Girl, from the Vaudeville, and four consecutive years with the Borough of Margate Fêtes Committee, supplying the concerts on the Oval Band Stand, Cliftonville. During one of Mr. Howard's seasons there a remark was overheard from a lady whose speech betrayed the fact that she hailed from the East-End of London. It was while Mr. Howard was singing one of his favourite Irish songs. The lady said, "'E's a fine singer, and I like to 'ear Irish songs sung, but what a pity 'e's got such a Cockney accent!" Considering Mr. Howard's nationality the remark was amusing.

One of Mr. Howard's last theatrical engagements was with Mr. Wentworth Croke as Tony, in his production of My Sweetheart, with Miss Minnie Palmer as Tina. This was Mr. Howard's second tour with My Sweetheart, he having been engaged to support Miss Palmer as Tony by the late Mr Jerrard on the previous tour of the piece. On the conclusion of his engagement with Mr. Croke Mr. Howard returned to his quartette, and was about to appear with them at the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, when he was attacked with acute rheumatism and was ill for three months. He is now happy to be able to say that no evil effects have resulted from his illness, and he is stronger and better than ever. He is now playing the Hon. Billy Greenhill in The Flower Girl, on tour.

late Fred Beckett and niece of Harry Beckett, the original Harvey Duff, in The Shaughraun. It was in that play that she made her first appearance, being carried on in the Wake scene at the tender age of three weeks, so that it may truthfully be said that she has been on the stage all her life. She was well known as a child actress, and gained her experience with her mother in that best of all schools—a stock company. Miss Loncraine has played a wide range of parts. For the last three tours she has been leading lady with Mr. Clifton Alderson, starring in Held Apart, A Soldier and a Man, &c. Last year she was engaged by Mr. Richard Flanagan to play the title-rôle in his revival of Joan of Arc at the Queen's, Manchester, and made an instantaneous success, being highly congratulated by the author and management. Amongst numerous other parts she has played Lady Sybil Elton in The Sorrows of Satan; Lady Isabel, in East Lynne; Beatrice Selwyn, in A Fool's Paradise; Lady Huntworth, in Lady Huntworth's Experiment; Esther, in Caste; Kate Hardcastle, in She Stoops to Conquer; Pauline, in The Lady of Lyons; and leading parts in most of the old English comedies. Miss Loncraine is equally well practised in farcical comedy, having played Edith in The Private Secretary, Rose in Confusion, Marjorie Sylvester in Our Flat, Violet Melrose in Our Boys, &c. Miss Loncraine is the wife of Mr. Leonard Laurence. She is very keen on her profession, but says that it is a very lonely life for a girl unless one has a hobby of some kind. She is very fond of boating and golf, and is a great lover of animals. A peculiar incident which happened while she was playing at the Queen's, Manchester, is an instance of the remarkable sagacity of the horse. In one scene Miss Loncraine made her entrance on horseback, and just as the animal was going on, he caught his hoof in one of the holes in the stage used for the electric connections, and nearly fell. The next evening the horse absolutely refused to go over the same spot, but carefully sidled round it, and would not lift one foot until he had carefully planted the other on the stage. The same horse on another occasion was not so considerate to his rider, but bolted on the stage with her, and nearly succeeded in depositing her into the orchestra.

Theophilus Thistlewood and his son, Holmes, keep a gaming house, to which we are introduced in Act 1. Living with them is Brenda, supposed to be the old man's daughter, who is used as a decoy. She is, however, not aware of the part she is playing in the proceedings until Clyne Quiller (an associate of the Thistlewoods) informs her, and takes the opportunity of asking her to leave the evil surroundings for a home he will provide for her. As, however, he at first refuses to marry her Brenda declines, and when he promises her marriage she, rightly estimating his character, still rejects him, at which he is furious. She gets away with the assistance of Smudge, a dirty, but faithful, servant girl, just before Thistlewood is arrested by Hummock (a boasting but seldom successful detective) for keeping a gaming house, the younger Thistlewood being nabbed for forgery. In the second act, Brenda is comfortably settled as companion to Ella Tollbrook, but receives a shock when Hummock boasts in her hearing that he knows where to find the daughter of Thistlewood, who, with his son, is in gaol, thanks to his wonderful ability. Fearing exposure of her past, Brenda decides to leave. Before doing so Ross Heatherstone proposes to her; but, on account of her clouded life, she is reluctant to accept him, and only does so on the understanding that they leave the country at once. After travelling abroad for a long time the happy couple return to their beautiful home at Brannock Towers, where further trouble is awaiting Brenda. Her supposed father (who with his son has escaped from prison) finds her out, and Clyne Quiller, asked to stay with Ross, on arriving recognises Brenda and takes a cruel revenge. He threatens to expose her unless paid to keep silent, but she refuses to make terms with him. Smudge, who has been associated with Thistlewood in the search for his daughter, on discovering her former mistress makes an appointment to see her alone, and on entering the house is caught by one of the servants. So as not to bring any disgrace on Brenda, she states she was there to steal; but Brenda will not accept the girl's sacrifice, and she tells the truth of their acquaintance and her connection with "her father, the convict." Her husband is astounded, and lets her depart with Smudge, thus closing a striking Act 3. Quiller, who has for some time been endeavouring to find out the truth relating to Brenda, extracts from Thistlewood that she is the daughter of a General Denby, who left his fortune and his daughter in his charge. He is negotiating for the proofs of this, when Thistlewood is re-arrested; but in the struggle Smudge secures the documentary evidence. This is taken to Ross, who meets Brenda "in the gloaming"; and with all misunderstandings satisfactorily cleared up, they decide to forget the past.

The company throughout played remarkably well for a first performance. Mr. Edward Neville has in Theophilus Thistlewood a part that suits him down to the ground, and he gave an exceptionally fine piece of character acting. Miss Lloe Esmond brightened her play with a capital impersonation of Smudge, and Miss Hilary Burleigh was a very fascinating and capable Ella Tollbrook. Miss Rosie Neville acquitted herself well as Brenda; Mr. F. Douglas Howard had not a great deal to do as Ross Heatherston, but certainly made the most of his part; Mr. E. Holland Day's Clyne Quiller was all that could be desired; and Mr. Claude Casey as Holmes and Mr. Edwin Ramsdale as Hummock displayed an able grasp of their respective parts.

COQUELIN AND CHARITY.

(FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT.)

Pont-aux-Dames is a small village some five-and-twenty miles distant from Paris. Three years ago nobody—except a few school-children very strong in local geography—knew of its existence. To-day it has become celebrated, because in that pretty spot a delightful home for old and decayed actors and actresses has been erected. The organiser of this admirable charity is M. Coquelin aîné, who, with a skilful hand, manages the concern and comes to the rescue when funds threaten to become low. His methods are simple. The moment money is needed he organises a matinée at which the "stars" of the Paris theatres and music halls appear; and the announcement of such an entertainment is sufficient to bring thousands of spectators to the pretty al-fresco theatre in Pont-aux-Dames. On a recent Sunday I assisted for the first time at one of these matinées—the last one this season—and did not regret having had to travel in a stuffy, crowded railway compartment at the rate of about five miles an hour, not reckoning the stoppages. M. Coquelin, indeed, had offered us a sumptuous fare. MM. Brasseur, Jean Coquelin, Magnard, Fursy, Chabert, Albany; Mmes. Tissier, Focké, Taillade, Thénard, Carrick, and many other celebrities appeared on the programme, and delighted the audience with their songs and recitations. But the great feature of the afternoon was the dancing of Mme. Mata-Hari, the famous Hindoo dancer, who incarnated the flower "Ketjoeboeng," that blossoms and dies in one night. With her magnificent costume twining around her the clever artist gave the illusion of the tropical flower, and scored an immense success. The charmingly characteristic music, written for this symbolic dance by Mr. Louis Keyzer, the young English composer, was played by M. Paul Vidal, the chef-d'orchestre of the Paris Opéra.

After the entertainment M. Coquelin invited the artists and a few intimate friends to a collation; and the conversation having drifted to the subject of dancing Mme. Mata-Hari made some remarks worth reproducing. "Two years and a half ago," she said, "I made my first appearance at a private performance in the Musée Guimet, when M. Guimet, the great Orientalist, gave an interesting lecture on Eastern dances. Ever since that memorable date ladies styling themselves 'Eastern dancers' have sprung out of the ground, and honour me with imitations. I would feel highly flattered with this mark of attention if these ladies' performances were accurate from a scientific and æsthetic point of view. But they are not. Born in Java, in the midst of a marvellous tropical vegetation, I have been taught from my earliest childhood the deep meaning of these dances, which constitute a cult, a religion. Only those born and bred there become impregnated with their religious significance, and can impart to them the solemn note to which they can lay claim. I have travelled all over the East, but can honestly say that nowhere have I beheld women dance holding a snake or some other object. This I saw when I first came to Europe, and it struck me dumb with amazement. The Eastern dances such as I have witnessed and learnt in my native Java are inspired by the flowers, from which they take their poetry. Last year, in the interior of Russia, I came upon a lady—also a pseudo-Eastern dancer—who modestly styled herself an Oriental pearl; and I could not help remarking to her that if there are real precious stones there are also imitation ones."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. George Alexander has arranged to lengthen his present tour in order that Mr. Forbes Robertson may continue his success at the St. James's with The Passing of the Third Floor Back. Mr. Alexander was only able to give his brother actor-manager a two-weeks' extension, as Mr. Alfred Sutro's new play, in which Mr. Alexander and Miss Irene Vanbrugh will have the two principal parts, is due at the St. James's on Wednesday, Nov. 11. Mr. Alexander will visit Bristol on Oct. 19, and a week later will be at the Kennington Theatre, The Thief forming the attraction.

Mr. Forbes Robertson will thus be enabled to carry his season with Mr. Jerome's play at the St. James's into November. The Passing of the Third Floor Back will then, it is hoped, find a haven in another West-end theatre, where its prosperity will be indefinitely prolonged.

Mr. H. R. Smith, of the Lyceum, will start his season at the Waldorf with a musical comedy, adapted from the French by Mr. Adrian Ross, with music by Dr. Hugo Felix, the composer of Madame Sherry and of Les Merveilleuses. It will bear the name of The Antelope. The title of the work is wittily arrived at. The original deals with the business of a matrimonial agency, whose contracts contain a clause forbidding either parties to the agreement eloping within two years from the date of the wedding. The firm has thus come to be known as the anti-eloping institution, a phrase from which The Antelope is a natural outcome.

The Waldorf is to be entirely redecorated and reupholstered within, the colour scheme remaining as before, a blend of Rose du Barri, cream-white, and gold. A special feature is to be made of chorus and of orchestra, the latter consisting of forty instrumentalists. Mr. Smith originally intended to run the theatre on the system of popular prices, which has been found so successful at the Lyceum; but the expenses of the venture promise to be so heavy that the idea of cheaper prices has been, for the time being, set aside.

Mr. George Edwardes will give The Dollar Princess, one of his latest acquisitions from America, a preliminary performance at the Prince's, Manchester, where he will produce it on Dec. 21. The piece is a three-act comic opera, written by Herr A. M. Willner and Herr F. Grunbaum, with music by Dr. Leo Fall. The adaptation has been made by Mr. Basil Hood. Miss Hilda Moody will play the title-rôle, and Mr. Robert Michaelis, Mr. Vernon Davidson, and Mr. Richard Golden will be included in the cast.

Mr. Martin Harvey's production of The Last Heir at the Adelphi on Monday is one of the events of a busy week. The work is Mr. Stephen Phillips first play in prose, and parts of the dialogue find the gifted dramatist in a comedy vein, the character of Craigengelt being treated on humorous lines. The elaborate nature of the production is indicated by the scene-plot, which comprises the Interior of Wolf's Crag, Tod's Den, The Castle of Ravenswood, The Woods, The Terrace of Ravenswood Castle, and The Hall of the Castle. The Kelpie's Flow will furnish an impressive tableau, showing the quicksands and the figures of the three old hags gloating over their victim.

Alluding to the pathetic story of Scott's celebrated novel, Mr. Harvey says:—"The expression that is sometimes used in describing it 'the Romeo and Juliet of the North' seems to me very appropriate. There is the rivalry, in a measure, of the two houses; there are the two young people, the offspring of these families, falling in love with each other; and there is Fate, cruel Fate, intervening to keep them apart. Certainly it is one of the greatest love-stories in literature—one of the few modern stories, as Mr. Gladstone once said, that can be compared with the ancient Greek in the steady working out of the influence of Fate upon the lives of two helpless creatures."

The complete cast of The Last Heir will consist of Messrs. Martin Harvey, Albert E. Raynor, Leslie Palmer, Philip Hewland, Charles Glenney, Charles J. Cameron, George Cooke, Denholm Muir, Alfred Mansfield, Henry Watson, Leonard Craske, F. Cremlin, H. Barry, A. Ruben, and Percy Foster, Master Bobbie Andrews, Miss Mary Rorke, Mrs. F. Wright, Miss Bessie Elder, Miss Ethel Patrick, Miss Maud Hoffman, and Miss N. de Silva.

Mr. F. R. Benson delivered an interesting lecture at the Stoke Town Hall, on the 25th ult., and said he believed there was a splendid future for the theatre and the music hall. Just as on the local schools was inscribed, "To the beautiful, to the new and the true," so would those words be the watchword of our theatres and of our music halls in the very near future.

Miss Lena Ashwell will introduce two new aspirants for dramatic fame at the opening of her second season at the Kingsway on Friday next. The pièce de résistance will be The Sway-Boat, a three-act comedy, by Wilfred T. Coleby, in which Miss Ashwell will be supported by Miss Kate Rorke, Master Philip Tonge, Miss Frances Ivor, Mr. Ernest Cosham, Mr. C. M. Hallard, Mr. Dennis Eadie, Mr. E. W. Garden, and Mr. Norman McKinnel. Act 1 is laid in the West Room at Ninewell Towers (evening); Act 2 passes at the same place, three months later, and the setting of the third act is the Library at Ninewell Towers, on the evening of the same day. The period of the play is the present.

"The Treasure," a one-act piece, by Elisabeth Kirby, will precede, and will be acted by Mr. T. A. Shannon, Miss Dorothy Brunt, Miss Mary Barton, Mr. O. P. Heggie, and Mr. Lemmon Warde. The scene is the morning-room in Algernon Iffey's house in London. The curtain will be lowered once during the action of the play to indicate a lapse of twenty-four hours. Both plays are produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Norman McKinnel.

Miss Ellen Terry will visit the Crystal Palace Theatre on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 6 and 7, with a matinée on the latter date. There will be no increase in the prices, and the eminent actress is sure to furnish an excellent attraction.

The marriage took place on Tuesday at St. Andrew's, Stoke-in-Teignhead, of Mr. Malcolm Sterling Mackinlay, the well-known vocalist and teacher of singing, to Miss Dayny Hansen, daughter of Captain Hansen, of Christiania. Mr. Mackinlay is the elder son of the late John and Antoinette Sterling-Mackinlay. He studied singing with the famous Manuel Garcia, and made his first appearance at the Queen's Hall Ballad Concerts in 1900. He has appeared in The Medal and the Maid at the Lyric, Dolly Varden at the Avenue, and The Love Birds at the Savoy, and has given many concert recitals. He also wrote "Antoinette Sterling and Other Celebrities," "Garcia the Centenarian," and has contributed to various magazines and periodicals.

Mr. Geo. Graves is severing a long connection with Mr. George Edwardes lasting over five years, and goes to Mr. Tom B. Davis, to create the principal comedy rôle in the new two-act musical comedy The Belle of Brittany, to be produced at the Queen's Theatre on Oct. 17. The strong cast will also include Mr. Walter Passmore, Mr. Laurance Rea, Mr. Charles Maude, Miss Ruth Vincent, Miss Maud Body, Miss Lily Iris, and Miss Maudi Darrell.

Dublin has declared itself unanimously in favour of Brewster's Millions, and for the tenth time in succession the attractive comedy has beaten the records of thirty-eight plays produced by the Hutchison management. Mr. Percy Hutchison and his clever company were received with intense enthusiasm. The praises of company, play, and production have been chorused by the Dublin Press, one of the leading papers referring to the great ship scene as a triumph in stagecraft and the most realistic ever witnessed in Dublin.

At the end of the performance of Brewster's Millions at the Gaiety, Dublin, on Saturday night, the enthusiasm was intense. In spite of the fact that the curtain had been raised over a score of times during the evening there were loud calls for speech, and at length Mr. Hutchison was induced to come forward to express his thanks on behalf of the members of his company and himself. The young actor-manager said that although it was the last time he should visit the Gaiety Theatre while it was under the management of Mrs. Gunn, who for so many years had catered admirably for the amusement of the Dublin people, he hoped he should have the pleasure again and again of appearing before the playgoing public of the Irish capital. Mr. Hutchison added that he would be represented there the following week but one by his company in Lady Frederick, in which he would present the eminent actress Mrs. Brown Potter, the visit making the fourth of the Hutchison companies to the Gaiety, Dublin, this year.

Mr. Joseph O'Mara, who is about to sail for America, will give a farewell concert at Bechstein Hall on the 9th inst. A new group of songs for children, by Mme. Liza Lehmann, will be performed, for the first time, by Miss Hester Reeve and Master Albert Hole. The famous tenor may rely upon a hearty send-off, and wishes for a renewal of prosperity across the Atlantic.

Mr. O'Mara was entertained by the Lord Mayor of Dublin at the Mansion House on Tuesday. In proposing a toast to their guest, the Lord Mayor said that they much regretted Mr. O'Mara's departure from the land of his birth. Mr. O'Mara, in responding, said that he felt deeply honoured by the magnificent reception he had received there that night. He meant to raise the standard of the Irish music and folk songs, and to make them loved by those over the seas. The little he had done in Dublin had been appreciated. The city was peopled by whole-hearted, true-souled Irishmen, and he was deeply grateful to them for the honour they bestowed on him.

Mr. H. B. Irving finishes his travels on Saturday next, and will open at the Shaftesbury the following Thursday with The Lyons Mail. Destined for later production is Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy's four-act play, Cæsar Borgia, which was tried at Edinburgh last November and duly noticed in our columns. Mr. Irving, of course, has the title-part and Miss Dorothea Baird that of Lavinella Orsini.

Another busy theatrical week is before us, happily, however, without any clash. As originally arranged, every night of the forthcoming week was a premier, but the postponement of Lady Epping's Lawsuit at the Criterion to Saturday, the 10th, leaves Thursday free. This evening witnesses the coming of The Hon'ble Phil at the Hicks Theatre; Monday will find The Last Heir at the Adelphi; Tuesday welcomes Sir Charles Wyndham to the New with Bellamy the Magnificent, and the following day the Scala will reopen with a series of Indian dances by Miss Ruth St. Denis. Friday is set apart for The Sway-Boat at the Kingsway, and the week will be completed, as we have said, by the production of Mr. Hubert Henry Davies' comedy at the Criterion.

The members of the O.P. Club are to be congratulated on moving into brighter and pleasanter quarters in the Criterion, Jermyn-street, where Mr. Martin Harvey will lecture on Oct. 18, and Miss Hilda Trevelyan and Mr. Gerald Du Maurier will be the guests of the club at the Annual Dinner on Nov. 15. With Mr. Max Pemberton as President, and Mr. F. D. Bone as Vice-President, the club will doubtless be as prosperous and popular in its new location as it has been in its former home in Covent Garden. The hon. secretaries, Mr. J. D. Smith and Mr. Stanley Greig, are likely to receive many applications for new membership.

Naval and military performances are to be given at the Court Theatre on Nov. 2 and 3 in aid of the Veterans' Club Labour Review. The programme will consist of popular one-act plays. The performance is obtaining influential support, among its patrons being H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Frederick Harrison, Mr. Forbes Robertson, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Captain Robert Marshall, Mr. Charles Hawtrey, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. Arthur Playfair, Sir A. Conan Doyle, and Miss Lena Ashwell.

Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison presented to a packed house at the Opera House, Southport, on Monday, Mr. Somerset Maugham's remarkable success, Lady Frederick, which was beautifully staged. Miss Mabel Love as the fascinating Lady Frederick, who reveals the mysteries of the feminine toilet, won immediate favour, but appealed with especial force to the ladies in front, and received a great and spontaneous reception at the fall of the curtain.

Miss Love's dresses are glorious creations. She makes her entrée wearing a huge black hat, swathed by white tulle and adorned by aigrettes and pendant ostrich plumes of the same hue. Her long-trained gown of amber silk is veiled in creamy point d'esprit inlet with lace appliqués, and embroidered by exquisite designs of trailing leaves composed of jet paillettes, with true lovers' knots of amber satin at intervals around the hem and touches of silver embroidery. From the front of the corsage depend two long streamers of black tulle, and ties of black tulle finish the elbow sleeves, with pendant ends weighted by jet cabochons.

In the second act Lady Frederick is beautifully gowned in lotus-blue satin-striped mousseline de soie, with creamy lace vest and under-sleeves. Daintily-tasselled bows of miroir velvet ornament the corsage, and the fair curls are threaded with blue velvet, terminating in an effective velvet chow. Great interest is evinced in the dressing-room scene, when Lady Frederick arranges her hair and complexion in kimono peignoir of white, patterned in pale green and pink, which she eventually changes for a most delightful toilette of rose-pink satin charmeuse in Directoire style. The corsage has a square yoke of fine white lawn, and under-sleeves of the same, whilst black velvet chenille falls from the deep waist-centure at the front over the fully-trained skirt.

Miss Mabelle Gilman, the American actress who was recently married to Mr. William E. Corey, the president of the Steel Trust, has published in the form of an interview a philippic on the narrow-mindedness of the American aristocracy, the members of which, she says, are devoid of all artistic sense. Mrs. Corey declares her intention of spending as much of her time as possible in France, where an artist is received on terms of equality and not on sufferance, as is alleged to be the case in America.

Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory has just returned to town from a two months' holiday of a thoroughly varied character, during which he has kept himself aloof from all business. He is giving the provinces a rest for the present, in favour of London. Particulars of a somewhat remarkable production will be announced shortly.

An amusing incident occurred to Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory when motoring with a friend in the Isle of Wight during the time that the King of Spain was in the island. One evening, on approaching Cowes, he was somewhat concerned to find that large and enthusiastic crowds insisted on greeting the car with loud cheers and other marks of honour. It seems that the fact that Mr. Maundy-Gregory was sitting without his hat and that his friend was wearing a green one of the same type as that worn the previous day by the King of Spain, added to the coincidence that the car was similar to the royal one, caused a confusion of identities. Turning down the light inside was of no avail; so, alighting, Mr. Maundy-Gregory explained to those nearest that neither himself nor his friend felt justified in accepting such a reception, and that there must be some mistake. His protestations were not, however, taken seriously, and finding the crowd increasing Mr. Maundy-Gregory boarded the car and fled.

Mr. J. Hastings-Batson has made a great hit in the part of Father Lamplugh, in Mr. Wentworth Croke's production of The Christian, and his wide experience is brought to bear on the part with the best results. Mr. Hastings-Batson, in the course of a long and extensive career, has given to the stage many fine impersonations, among the more recent of which are the Duc de Brissac, in Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sugden's production of Zaza, and his Lord Datchet, in Mr. Percy Hutchison's Freedom of Suzanne tour; while his recital of Everyman at Croydon at the beginning of last year will be remembered with equal pleasure by those privileged to hear it.

Miss Rosemary Rees, who is playing Lady Mereston in Mrs. Dot on the Hutchison tour, leaves Tilbury on Oct. 16 by the Oruba for Australia and New Zealand, and expects to be away about a year. The rights of Miss Rees's one-act play Her Dearest Friend have been purchased by Mr. Percy Hutchison, who produced the piece in the spring of last year at the Coronet, and it is now being given in front of Mrs. Dot. As an instance of the smallness of the theatrical world, it may be added that while playing at the Opera House, Middlesbrough, last week, Miss Rees was in opposition to her own drama, A Desperate Marriage, which was being performed by Mr. Fred Mouillot's company at the Theatre Royal.

The excellent performance of Lieut. Beresby, in Mr. Frank Bertram's Breed of the Treshams company, which our South Shields correspondent attributed to Mr. Sydney Bland last week, should have been credited to Mr. Frank R. Gwyn-Richardson, the general-manager of the company, who took up the part owing to the illness of Mr. Bland.

Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, was crowded last Sunday evening on the occasion of a sacred concert, in aid of the funds of the Sisters of Mercy Bazaar. An attractive programme was provided, the contributors including Misses Clare Marsden and Clarice Lockstone, and Messrs. Harry Cottell and A. Wykes Ashdown, of Mr. Robert Courtneidge's The Dairymaids company, which is this week appearing in the town. Mr. Louis Karpe, the cultured manager of Her Majesty's, gave a recitation, and the orchestra, under Mr. H. E. Loseby, rendered selections, the accompaniments being played by Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Loseby's daughter. Councillor High, in the course of the evening, delivered a short address, commending the object of the concert, and thanking Mr. Robert Arthur for granting the use of the theatre, the artists, the ladies and gentlemen of The Dairymaids company, and the Misses Karpe, who assisted at programme selling and taking up the collection.

Mr. Charles Boult, Mr. R. A. Roberts' genial business-manager, is getting married on Tuesday next at Leeds. We join with his many friends in wishing him a long and happy married life. Over a hundred presents have been already received by the bride and bridegroom elect.

The reopening of the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, under the direction of Moss Empires, Ltd., on Monday next, is eagerly looked forward to in Glasgow, and the production of Dorothy, with Messrs. Hayden Coffin, John Coates, and Arthur Williams, and Miss Ruth Davenport in leading parts, should be a noteworthy event. At the head of affairs in the Grand will be found Mr. Christie Grant, for years the able lieutenant of Mr. R. C. Buchanan, and of whom an interesting biography was recently published in our columns.

On Friday, the 25th ult., a grand matinée was held at the Market Hall, Whitehaven, in aid of the Mayor of Wigan's fund in connection with the recent Maypole Colliery disaster. The sum of £14 15s. was realised, Mr. Branford very kindly defraying all expenses. Mr. and Mrs. Field, of Whitehaven, appeared at this matinée in songs and duets, and were very warmly applauded.

At the close of the performance at the P.O.W., Nuneaton, on Monday, the genial acting-manager, Mr. W. J. R. Bryan, was presented, on behalf of the directors and staff, with a handsome gold Albert chain, as a token of esteem, on the occasion of his retiring from the post of acting-manager, which he has held for the past five or six years. A handsome marble clock, with side bronzes, was also presented from a number of friends and well-wishers in the town. A gold brooch set with pearls was among the gifts received by Mrs. Bryan.

Miss Mildred Blanchard, who lately returned from America, has been engaged by Mr. Montague Beaudyn for the title-rôle in The Power of a Wicked Woman.

The Council of the Academy of Dramatic Art has invited a number of gentlemen to become Associates. They will have the right of voting, and from their number will be chosen members to fill up any vacancies on the board of the council. They will also have the power, together with the members of the council, to nominate a limited number of candidates for open scholarships, to be won by competitive examination. The first competition will be held in Jan., 1909. Amongst the new Associates are Messrs. Henry Ainley, Oscar Asche, Allan Aynesworth, Granville Barker, F. R. Benson, Alfred Bishop, Dion Boucicault, J. Comyns Carr, R. C. Carton, Haddon Chambers, Hubert Henry Davies, Gerald du Maurier, Norman Forbes, Basil Gill, Sydney Grundy, Lyn Harding, Martin Harvey, Anthony Hope, H. B. Irving, Frederick Kerr, W. J. Locke, Captain Robert Marshall, W. Somerset Maugham, Henry Neville, Louis N. Parker, Alfred Sutro, Lyall Swete, Fred Terry, J. Fisher White, and Herbert Waring.

The Academy will start the new October term with about eighty students. The probationary period has been reduced, and the severity of the entrance examination has been relaxed. Certificates of honour are being prepared to be signed by members of the council as vouchers for the ability of the students which may assist them in securing engagements.

Mr. Oswald Brand has arranged with Sir William Magnay, Bart., for the sole rights of dramatisation of his thrilling novel "The Red Chancellor." Mr. Brand is not yet thoroughly well, and will accordingly do the work of adaptation in Worthing.

Mr. Douglas Gordon has been compelled to resign his engagement with the Bandmann Comedy company in the Far East owing to a severe attack of fever. Mr. Gordon was ailing when the company arrived in Cairo on Sept. 2, and by continuing to play for a week seriously aggravated his condition. Up to date Sept. 23 he was progressing favourably, and will leave Cairo for England as soon as he is pronounced fit to travel.

Miss Grace Hampton (Mrs. Charles Dodsworth), who was so long a valued member of the late Sir Henry Irving's company, has been engaged by Messrs. T. C. Wray and Dudley Bennett to play Lady Caterham in The Catch of the Season, opening at the Broadway Theatre, New Cross.

The Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, will next week welcome the first visit to England of the celebrated French actress Mlle. Camille Dalberg, who will appear with her own company in The Farewell Supper, a comedy in one act by the celebrated Austrian dramatist, Dr. Arthur Schnitzler, the play having been adapted by Edith A. Browne and Alix Grein. Three one-act pieces will also be performed, namely, Makeshifts, a new comedy in one act by G. L. Robins, Bringing it Home, by H. M. Richardson, and Gentlemen of the Road, a successful tramp sketch by Charles McEvoy.

Miss Horniman's company will also produce at special matinées on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons the Hippolytus of Euripides, for which Mr. Granville Bantock has written special music. A signal honour has been paid Miss Horniman's company by an invitation to perform the Hippolytus of Euripides at a flying matinée at Birmingham before the Classical Association on Friday, Oct. 9.

Mr. Herbert Vere, who returned from Canada on Sept. 19, was married to Miss Kate Walfred at St. Mary's Church, Kirkdale, Liverpool, on Monday last. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. J. J. Abrahams, senior curate of St. Mary's, Mr. Percy Dawsone acting on behalf of the groom, and Miss Nancy Roberts officiating as bridesmaid. Shortly after the ceremony the party left for Rotherham, where the bride is playing in Mr. Andrew Melville's Driven from Home company. Mr. and Mrs. Vere intend to tour a company of their own from Christmas.

Miss Ada Rainey appeared as Lady Mary in Peter's Mother during Miss Lilias Earle's enforced absence from the cast at the Opera House, Ayr. Miss Earle has happily recovered from a chill contracted during the crossing from Llandudno to Douglas, and is delighting crowded audiences at the Opera House, Northampton, where Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is presenting Peter's Mother.

An international copyright conference is to be held in Berlin this month, when the countries which signed the Berne Convention will again be represented. Various proposed modifications and additions will come under discussion, and a scheme for a universal term in the existence of copyright, by means of which present irregularities could be removed, will be considered. Among the subjects set down for discussion is that of the reproduction of copyright music by mechanical means.

Mr. Charles J. Cameron, who was unable to appear at the commencement of Mr. Martin Harvey's season at the Adelphi, by reason of an acute attack of laryngitis, has, we are glad to say, sufficiently recovered to resume his part of Favrolles in The Corsican Brothers, which he originally played in Mr. Harvey's successful revival last year. Later in the season Mr. Cameron will again be seen as Lord Dorsington in The Breed of the Treshams, and as the President in the Trial scene of The Only Way.

For their forthcoming production of the Witches' scene from Macbeth, to be played at the St. George's Hall, Langham-place, Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant have engaged Mr. Gordon Bailey to sustain the title-rôle. It will be remembered that during the successful three months' run of Romeo and Juliet at the Lyceum this spring, Mr. Bailey played Paris for about a month, Mercutio for over six weeks, and Romeo for one week. He has also been associated many times in London, and elsewhere with most of our leading Shakespearean actors, including Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. William Haviland, and Mr. Hermann Vezin.

The reception accorded The Village Blacksmith on Monday at the Alexandra Theatre, Hull, was very flattering, every part of the vast house being packed, and many unable to gain admittance. Each act was followed with keen interest in spite of this being the fifth visit to the theatre in four years. At the conclusion of the thrilling wrestling match which brings the play to a close, the audience gave vent to their feelings in cheering, the like of which had seldom before been heard in the building. Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey are to be congratulated on the success achieved.

"Fanny and the Servant Problem" will be produced at the Aldwych on Wednesday, the 14th, with Miss Fannie Ward in the principal character. Mr. Leslie Faber, Mr. Chas. Cartwright, Miss Kate Phillips, Miss Alma Murray, Miss Adela Measor, Miss Carlotta Addison, and Mr. Chas. Sugden will also be seen in important parts. "Our Empire" is impersonated by a band of beauties, quaintly called England, Scotland, Canada, Australia, India, and other names of the British possessions. They will be embodied by Misses Esme Beringer, Jean Harkness, Edith Cuthbert, Lydia Flopp, Margaret Hastings, Miriam Miner, Vera Beringer, May Straker, Marion Ashley, Patsy McCullock, Rose Barrett, and Daisy Markham. Miss Mabel Garden, Mr. John W. Dean, and Mr. Benedict will complete the cast.

Owing to loss of voice, Miss Dorothy Firmin was unable to appear at St. Helens on Wednesday, and her part of Lily, the Flower Girl, in the successful musical comedy of that name, was played by Miss Kitty Hyde, who was warmly complimented.

Music will constitute a highly important feature of the season of Oriental dances which Miss Ruth St. Denis will commence at the Scala on Wednesday. In the various themes employed in the series of five dances, the compositions of several nationalities are included. Thus, the music to "The Spirit of the Incense" dance is the work of Mr. Harvey Loomis, an American; that of the "Radha," or "Temple," dances is from Delibé's "Lakmé"; while as the Nautch Girl and the "Yogi," Miss St. Denis will dance to the native melodies of India.

Mr. W. H. C. Nation, who a couple of years ago had a season at Terry's, followed by one at the Scala, has taken a lease of the Royalty, where he will begin his enterprise in November. It will be remembered that in 1866 Mr. Nation was lessee of Sadler's Wells, and, subsequently, of Astley's, the Royalty, the old Holborn, and Charing Cross Theatre.

Mr. H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird have kindly promised to give a matinée during their autumn season at the Shaftesbury Theatre, in aid of the Mothers' and Babies' Welcome, Somers Town, St. Pancras, an institution for helping and feeding nursing mothers.

Miss Amy Willard has been engaged by Messrs. Lionel Glenister and J. W. Wood-Ingram to understudy Miss Florence St. John as Mrs. Parker-Jennings in Jack Straw on tour. This is Miss Willard's first appearance in the English provinces since her successful tour round the world.

Mr. Eric Williams repeated his very successful recital from the works of Shakespeare, Tennyson, Longfellow, &c., in aid of Lord Roberts' Veterans' Relief Fund at Ramsgate on Monday evening. There was a large and fashionable audience, and much ceremonial attended the proceedings. The Mayor received General Sir Harry Prendergast, V.C., G.C.B., assisted by the Deputy Mayor and General Sir Charles Warren, K.C.B., G.C.M.G. A guard of honour, under the command of Captain Arthur G. Hendry met Sir Harry Prendergast at the station and an escort of Yeomanry was under the command of Lieut. Robert Sebag Montefiore. Mr. Eric Williams received a telegram from Field Marshal Earl Roberts wishing the recital every success.

"The Flag Lieutenant," which is being sent on tour by Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper, will start at the County Theatre, Kingston, on Monday. The tour is practically booked up to 1910.

The Grand Opera House, Middlesbrough, presented a gay and striking appearance on Tuesday evening last, the occasion of the visit to the town of the Iron and Steel Institute. Some 1,400 seats had been booked by the reception committee, and amongst the distinguished assembly were guests representing nineteen nations. The magnificent building, gaily decorated with flowers, was seen at its best, and evoked admiration from everyone present. Special train arrangements had been made for the event.

The performance given by Mr. George Edwardes's excellent Merry Widow company went without the slightest hitch. During the intervals a staff of liveried waiters served ices, &c., to the ladies. The invited guests included the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, Lord Airedale, Sir George White and Lady White. During the remainder of the week this palatial place of entertainment has been packed at early doors, many hundreds being unable to gain admission.

Mr. Esme Percy will play Percinet in the revival of The Fantasticks at the New Gaiety Theatre, Manchester. The part was created at the Comédie Française by M. Lebargy, and was first played in English by Mrs. Patrick Campbell at the Royalty Theatre, London, in 1900.

Mr. Hubert Druce's production, The Cheat, has had the provincial verdict of success thoroughly endorsed by suburban audiences at the Crown, Peckham, this week, and before very long we may expect to see this powerful play, with its fine cast, in the West End. Mr. Druce's manager, Mr. George Unwin, is anxiously awaiting New York's criticism of his sketch, which he wrote for Miss Minnie Palmer, and which is to be produced there on Monday.

Mr. Norman V. Norman has acquired a modern play of powerful interest, in which there is a strong emotional part, which will be played by Miss Beatrice Wilson. Mr. Norman will open his season at Brighton with a special production of the powerful romantic play Under the Red Robe, in which he will play Gil de Berault, and Miss Beatrice Wilson Renée de Cocheforêt. Mr. Alfred Gray has been engaged to play Cardinal Richelieu, and special and elaborate scenery has been built.

The "matinée hat" came more than ever into prominence at the Garrick on Saturday afternoon, when a gentleman, having appealed in vain to two ladies who occupied stalls in front of him to remove their hats, carried his case to the management. The gentleman declined the offer of another stall, so the difficulty was overcome by transferring the ladies to a private box. Many communications urging that the obnoxious hat should be banned have been received by the management. Miss Evelyn Millard fully sympathises with the gentleman in his argument that a ticket-holder is entitled to an uninterrupted view of the stage from his seat, but has stated that while recognising that some action was necessary, she could not say what would be done until she had consulted her colleagues in the management.

As an alternative to the matinée hat, the Spanish mantilla, which was generally worn out of doors at the recent Eucharistic Congress, has been suggested. This charming head-dress is artistic and graceful, and would not screen the stage from the vision of those who pay for their seats. The mantilla can be made of black and white silk, and can be worn with a bunch of bright ribbons or flowers arranged on the side of the head.

We hear excellent accounts of a new soprano, Miss Mabel Hope, who has a pure soprano voice, which is very rare nowadays. Mr. George Edwardes has shown his usual cleverness and perspicuity in securing her for three years, and she will shortly appear under his management. The young lady has been entirely trained under that clever professor, Mme. Kate Flinn, who also thinks very highly of her pupil. The ladies who study under Mme. Flinn have so many advantages, as Mme. Flinn is one of the few teachers who have been in grand opera and comic opera herself, consequently they have a practical knowledge given them on stage work as well as in voice training and style.

Miss Pauline Chase scored a triumph at the Théâtre des Arts, Paris, on Thursday, when Mr. J. M. Barrie's Pantaloon was produced. As a compliment to the talented young actress one of the Paris dailies arranged to print its notice of the production in English.

The twenty-fourth annual report and balance-sheet of the Playgoers' Club shows that the year 1907-8 has been eventful and successful, and that the club continues to occupy a sound financial position, notwithstanding the fact that the expenditure has somewhat exceeded the income. In April of the present year the possibility of amalgamation with the O.P. Club was discussed, but the committee of the latter signified their inability to accept the scheme drawn up by the sub-committee appointed for that purpose.

Last winter the committee made the usual arrangements for taking some of the poorest children in London to see the pantomimes at Drury Lane and several of the suburban theatres, and the committee are now able to report that very nearly 100,000 children have been taken to the theatres since the foundation of the fund some six years ago. The fund will start the forthcoming season with a balance in hand of £49 11s. 6d. The report contains a résumé of the various social activities of the club during the year, and warm appreciation of the help rendered by various members of the dramatic, musical, and variety professions. The annual general meeting is fixed for Tuesday next

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Tree at the East End.

"It is curious," writes Mr. Raymond Blathwayt in Pearson's Magazine, "to note the hold that Tree gains in a moment upon the most varying sections of the body politic. I took him down once to give an address to a large and very poverty-stricken audience in the most desolate part of East London. Dear rugged Will Crooks was in the chair, and the two men took to one another immediately they met. Tree clad in a smart frock coat, and irreproachably 'West End,' from shiny silk hat to patent leather boots, was greeted with a storm of applause the moment he set foot upon the platform, and for nearly an hour that rough and motley audience listened spellbound whilst he talked to them on the humanity of Shakespeare. He was one with his audience in a moment; not by reason of any gift of oratory, or the interest of his discourse, but simply owing to the fact that the entire lovableness of the man shone through every word he said, and in every glance he threw round the crowded room."

The Matinée Hat Problem.

The managers and manageresses of the following theatres have sent to the Evening News their ideas respecting the matinée hat. Garrick: "Suggest that fair matinée patrons should plunge further into Greek Renaissance fashion, and dispense with hats entirely. Otherwise, can only leave it to good sense and good feeling not to spoil the enjoyment of others." Vaudeville: "We have no difficulty. Jack Straw is a magnet, at once removing all straws in the stalls." Kingsway: "Have found ladies always remove their hats when they read Miss Ashwell's thanks to all those who have done so, which are shown on the fireproof curtain." Daly's: "The only solution would be the prohibition of hats at matinées, as in the evening, but a hard-and-fast rule would destroy the comfort of many elderly ladies." Duke of York's: "Experience no difficulty here with respect to matinée hats. Find ladies readily acquiesce in removing the same when politely requested to do so." His Majesty's: "It is an old story, as far from solution as ever." Adelphi: "Contemplating consulting George Hirst re 'hat trick.'" Haymarket: "The good taste of the public is solving the problem."

"From a psychological point of view," says the Medical Press and Circular, "we imagine the wearer of the matinée hat connotes the qualities of vanity, selfishness, and lack of the æsthetic sense. As the female hat gets bigger, that of man grows smaller. Those who are curious in the matters of sex dominance and sex degeneration will be able to draw their own conclusions."

New Critics and Old Ideas.

"Many of the new critics," writes Mr. G. K. Chesterton in the Daily News, "ask in a wondering way why melodrama is so popular. I can tell them on the spur of the moment, and without the least hesitation. Melodrama is popular because of its profound truth; because it goes on repeating the things which humanity has really found to be central facts. This endless repetition profoundly annoys the irritable artist inside you and me. But it ought to profoundly please the realist. The melodrama is perpetually telling us that mothers are devoted to their children; because mothers are devoted to their children. Humanity may for a time grow tired of hearing this truth; but humanity will never grow tired of fulfilling it. The melodramas say that men are chiefly sensitive upon honour and their personal claim to courage. Men are. It bores one to hear one's honour reiterated; but it would startle one to hear it denied. Now the modern critics seem to mean (when they talk of ideas) some ideas other than, or even opposite to, these old and certain ideas; but surely they are wrong."

A Repugnant Notion.

Mr. G. R. Sims writes to the Mail:—"Perhaps I may suggest an explanation of the withdrawal of Paid in Full at the Aldwych Theatre after a run of only twenty performances. The central idea is repugnant to an ordinary English audience. With regard to Paid in Full, it seems to me to be taken from the same French source as that to which I was indebted for A Wife's Ordeal, a play produced in May, 1893, by Mrs. Brown Potter and Kyrle Bellew with ill-success in America, and by poor Amy Roselle and Arthur Dacre on Feb. 16, 1895, with similar ill-success in Australia. When I read the notices of Paid in Full, with my own experience of the same motive and action to fall back upon, I remarked to a friend, 'This play, though it pleases the critics, will have exactly the same fate as A Wife's Ordeal with the public.'

"An English audience is instinctively antagonistic to the central idea, the pivot upon which the whole plot turns. All sacrifices, to be successful from the stage point of view, should be made for a worthy object. Such a pitiful fellow as the husband in Paid in Full is not the kind of man for whom any woman could, with the sympathy of an English audience, risk the sacrifice of her honour. I forward you the Australian notices of A Wife's Ordeal, and from these you will be able to judge how far I am justified in suggesting that Paid in Full is indebted to the same French source. It was the failure of A Wife's Ordeal in Australia which practically led to the tragedy of the Dacres. On Nov. 18, 1895, poor Arthur Dacre shot his wife in their room at Sydney and then committed suicide."

Maude Adams and Mystery.

Miss Maude Adams, the American actress, has, says the Pall Mall Gazette, been in this country some three months, and beyond half-a-dozen persons who are connected with her no one was aware of the fact. Miss Maude Adams sailed from the United States at the conclusion of her season, and it was thought she was coming to London. She left the liner at Queenstown, however, and went to Dublin. Near that city she spent part of the summer in the quiet of a convent, going about with the nuns among the peasantry, and assisting them generally in their good work. One of the few people in London who knew her address was Mr. J. M. Barrie, who went over there to discuss with her the details of Jeanne d'Arc, the new play he is writing for Mr. Charles Frohman, in which Miss Adams will, of course, play the immortal heroine. Not long ago Miss Adams left her quiet retreat in County Dublin, and she is now living in an old house miles from a station in the Vale of the White Horse.

Mystery has always surrounded Miss Maude Adams's movements. She likes to be lost to the world for months, or even a year at a stretch, and then to reappear, refreshed in health, to increase her fame. Four years ago she disappeared from the American stage, and it was announced that she intended to take a year's rest. But the American public never knew where she took it. She retired to a convent at Tours—since turned into a military barracks—and lived there for the best part of the year with the Sisters, who taught her to become an expert worker in lace. The simple-minded sisters knew little of the outer world. They had never heard her name, never dreamt she was a great actress, and only knew that she was a bright young creature from the outer world who brought a ray of light into the sombre institution. English actresses desiring to fly for a time from the "madding throng" should always leave their addresses for The Era Letter-Box.

Naylor ..... Mr. Henry Jessop
Jackson ..... Mr. George Page
Partlett ..... Mr. Alfred Wynne
Mr. Wilkins ..... Mr. F. Rosse
Mr. Finch ..... Mr. H. W. Parkinson
Mr. Piper ..... Mr. F. Thorpe Tracey
Mr. Gossage ..... Mr. Albert Bernard
Ruth Steen .... Miss Margaret van Hollister
Barbara Wentworth ..... Miss Sylvia Morris
Miss Priscilla Tompkins .... Miss Kate Kearney
Mrs. Thornhill ..... Miss Violet Langley
Hebe ..... Miss Cicely Nicholls
Avice ..... Miss Saffie Kingsford

If We Only Knew is somewhat out of the common groove of melodrama, the period chosen being that of the last century. It has the advantage of supplying that admirable comedian Mr. Harry Nicholls and Mr. P. A. Gawthorn with a couple of characters which suit them exactly, and in which they are continuously prominent. There is something of the Robert Macaire about the dashing, dissolute Dick Steen, and not a little of the Jaques Strop in the "slippery" personage so amusingly portrayed by Mr. Nicholls. The action opens in a small cottage, the tenant of which, Ruth Steen, a gipsy, has been deserted by an aristocratic lover, who, she believes, has left her for the love of another woman. In this surmise Ruth is correct; his second bride was a Miss Barbara Wentworth, an heiress. Unfortunately for Steen, as the criminal nobleman calls himself, he has committed a forgery for which he has been arrested and sent to the hulks, en route for the colonies, on the very eve of his marriage with Barbara. Such is the position of affairs when, having escaped from confinement with the aid of his evil genius, Samuel Scarper, Steen dashes into Ruth's cottage, puts on a gentleman's costume which he left behind him when they parted, and by sheer readiness and audacity puts the peace officer, Crampton, off the scent. Borrowing all Ruth's ready cash, he escapes on the coach to Gravesend, where we find him in the second act, ruffling it bravely at the principal hostelry in the company of his disreputable "pal." Now Miss Barbara Wentworth, having come to the conclusion that it will be better to ignore the mere form of marriage with Steen, has become betrothed to one Ensign John Willmott, who appears at the "Hook and Hatchet" in search of the escaped convict. A warm friend of Willmott's is a certain Mr. Bignell, a London merchant, who is also staying at the inn. Bignell has a large sum of money in his possession, and the two rogues plan to relieve him of it. The merchant comes into Steen's room half-drunk, and Scarper picks his pocket of a number of banknotes. On Willmott entering and trying to take Bignell away, the latter engages in a struggle with him, in which they reel out on the balcony. The balustrade gives way, and Bignell falls into the courtyard below, and is apparently killed. Steen is arrested for the supposed murder, but Willmott refuses to profit by the error, and gives himself up to justice.

The scene now shifts to London. Scarper is engaged in swindling a vain and foolish old lady named Priscilla Tompkins, who is an enthusiastic supporter of the House of Stuart. Scarper has obtained large sums from her on pretence of conveying them to the Pretender over the water. By an accident, Willmott learns of Barbara's first marriage, and leaves her in anger. She is crushed by the blow; and when Ruth, who has long been nursing schemes of murderous vengeance against her rival, offers to stab her with a dagger, Barbara is ready to die, but in justice to herself explains her ignorance of the relationship between the gipsy and the convict bridegroom. Ruth melts and relents, and is inclined to commit suicide; but she is prevented by Barbara, who advises her to wait. Bignell, it now appears, was not killed by his fall, so Willmott is out of danger. In the last act Scarper, who has promised Miss Priscilla to bring to her the Pretender in person, arranges a mock Court, and presents Steen in Highland garb. There is an amusing scene when Miss Priscilla and the supposed Prince discuss the possibility of a morganatic marriage between them. The lady's cash-box is, however, the real attraction; and Scarper, in attempting to secure it, is arrested by the police. Steen's remorse is excited by the spectacle of the two women whose lives he has ruined, and he determines on self-destruction. He therefore arranges with Willmott to fight a mock duel, in which the Ensign shall fire at him a pistol which, Steen says, is only loaded with powder. It contains, however, a ball, which goes to the vagabond's heart; and he dies after begging forgiveness of Barbara and Ruth.

Mr. P. A. Gawthorn, who enacted Dick Steen, was admirably suited to the representation of the polished and callous rascal who is not without all redeeming virtues. He played the part with the necessary ease and smoothness, carrying it through with composure, stern incisiveness, and appropriate emphasis. It is hardly necessary to say how good Mr. Harry Nicholls was as Samuel Scarper. As might have been expected of such a consummate comedian, he endowed the intemperate and ineffectual knave with the richest kind of humorous characterisation. His make-up was most artistic, and the drollery of his expression under various humiliating defeats was irresistible. Another exceptional performance was Miss Kate Kearney's Miss Priscilla Tompkins. In its absolute unconsciousness and its solidly funny style and dignity it was a really remarkable impersonation of self-satisfied vanity. Mr. Ernest Young gave a manly and spirited reading of the part of Ensign Willmott; and Mr. J. Benedick Butler developed the merchant's character strongly and satisfactorily. Mr. William Ames supplied a sound and hearty rendering of the rôle of Crampton; and Mr. Henry Jessop and Mr. George Page were commendable as the Carrier and the Coach-guard respectively. Mr. Alfred Wynne was crisp and sharp as the inn waiter; and various tradesmen were conscientiously portrayed by Messrs. F. Rosse, H. W. Parkinson, F. Thorpe Tracey, and Albert Bernard. Miss Margaret van Hollister, whose expressive beauty stood her in good stead, put plenty of fire and energy into her delivery of the bitter effusions of Ruth Steen; and Miss Sylvia Morris enacted Barbara Wentworth with agreeable sweetness and sincerity. Miss Violet Langley supplied a bright and lively embodiment of Mrs. Thornhill; and Miss Cicely Nicholls and Miss Saffie Kingsford were efficient and intelligent in servants' parts. The play was well mounted, Mr. E. G. Banks's scenery being highly artistic, and it was dressed with particular liberality and care. It had a cordial reception from an evidently well-pleased audience.

The finer traditions of melodrama are well preserved in The Cheat, which was introduced to London on Monday by Mr. Hubert Druce's company, following on its production at Wolverhampton last week. The situations of the piece are arrived at skilfully, and a tense scene in the third act is engrossing beyond measure. The dialogue, too, has the merit of being unpretentious, but terse and forcible. The piece, however, needs elaboration, and a strengthening both of incidents and characters that will make them more definitely outlined. It is nevertheless fortunate in its villain, whose schemes are carried out with neatness and despatch. A thrice-perjured scoundrel is Captain Philip Rivers, whose first act after the opening of the play is to inform Joan Fielding, a girl whom he has deceived under the promise of marriage, that he cannot keep his word. Joan has met and won the love of Stephen Blanchard, a South African millionaire, whom she has promised to marry. When, however, he returns to England for that purpose, she informs him by letter that she cannot be the wife of an honourable man. Stephen, who had lavished all the strength of a deep affection on Joan, is cut to the heart, and vows to force her betrayer to make restitution. Meanwhile Rivers has been at his fell work again, and has caused the accusation of cheating to fall upon his brother officer, Lieut. Richard Blanchard, whose cards Rivers had marked. Richard would fain court inquiry, but the colonel of his regiment, believing him guilty, induces him to resign his commission for the sake of his father, General Blanchard. Such a sacrifice is of little avail, for the General learning of Richard's resignation just after war has broken out on the Indian frontier, believes it is due to Richard's cowardice, and casts him off. Like another famous figure of melodrama, Dick resolves to enlist "in the ranks," and is later distinguished among the Seaforth Highlanders as "the hero of Dargai." The malice of the villain is due to the fact that Dick is betrothed to Ethel Hardy, whom Rivers himself is desirous to wed. He hints to Stephen that the betrayer of Joan was Dick himself, and the millionaire, bent on obtaining retribution, goes off in pursuit.

Dick's late regiment proceeds to the front, where Rivers is left in command of a small force in the hills, where he has incurred the bitter resentment of the natives. News comes that two Red Cross nurses have been captured, and the enemy sends a messenger to offer an exchange. The messenger is no other than Stephen Blanchard, who, in pursuit of his mission, has essayed to get through the Indian passes, but has been taken prisoner. In the attempt to extort information the tribesmen have tortured him beyond endurance. He relates his experiences with his captors, who, not content with burning out his eyes, have rubbed lime into the sockets, and perpetrated other atrocities, the mention of which causes a shudder. Stephen is released in order to carry a message from the enemy to the effect that their women captives will be set free on condition that Rivers is given over to them alive. Stephen declares that one of the nurses whose fate is thus at stake is no other than Joan, who has not only revealed the name of her betrayer, but told him who it was that marked the fateful cards. He urges Rivers to take the chance of atonement thus offered, but the captain cannot face the terrible prospect of giving himself up to his implacable foes. He takes refuge in suicide, and it is Dick who, clad in Rivers's uniform, goes out as a hostage to save the prisoners. Needless to say, Dick's sacrifice is not allowed to be consummated, for just as the exchange is about to be made its motive is recognised by Ethel, Joan's fellow-prisoner, who furthermore finds out that it is not Rivers who is going to his death. The suspicions of the tribesmen are aroused, but before they can take action the sound of the bugle is heard, and Colonel Paget arrives to the rescue. There is an affecting meeting between Joan and Stephen Blanchard, and Dick and Ethel are reunited.

The house on Monday was very full, and included many visitors from outside the district, attracted no doubt by the presence in the cast of artists of West-end fame. At the head of the list stands Mr. Frank Cooper, who made a most impressive personage of the iron-willed millionaire. His appearance as the physical wreck after being released from the clutches of his torturers was realistic without being revolting, and throughout his acting was natural and unforced, the beauties of his elocution being agreeably apparent. The heroic Dick Blanchard was played with quiet effectiveness by Mr. Edward Ferris. All the sinister attributes of the unscrupulous Captain Rivers were outlined by Mr. Edward O'Neill, an actor well practised in such a part, who played remorselessly upon the virtuous emotions of the audience with whom Rivers soon became an object of execration. Miss Helen Russell presented a sweet and prepossessing assumption of Ethel Hardy, and in such opportunities as were allowed her gave evidence of high emotional power. The promise of an impassioned performance of Joan was given by Miss Eugenie Franckyln, whose depiction of utter despair in the first act was cleverly accentuated. Miss Daisy Atherton, who has the distinction of being the daughter of the late Willie Edouin, had no very great chance either as Marjorie Vorland, Ethel's friend, but acted with agreeable grace and vivacity. She was associated in several scenes with Mr. Charles Crawford, who made a smart Lieut. Neyland, and with Mr. Max Leeds, who proved himself a capital light comedian as Lieut. Brabazon, between whom an active rivalry exists for the hand of Marjorie. On them, indeed, the chief humorous scenes of the play rest, though the episode in which one of the youths has to remain under a table while a prolonged scheme of humour is carried out is not justified by much comic result. Merry moments were furnished by the Irish butler of Mr. Littledale Power, who disappeared all too early from the scene. Mr. Royston Keith gave a well-marked rendering of General Blanchard, his sorrow at his son's apparent disgrace being very touchingly expressed; and another sound performance was that of Admiral Bruce-Hardy, enacted in delightfully "breezy" fashion by Mr. Windham Guise. Picturesque both in appearance and delivery was the La Sing of Mr. S. A. Cookson, who gave of the Indian chief a clever study; and Mr. Charles Goodhart and Mr. Edward Y. Rae, as a regimental doctor and Colonel Paget respectively, supplied well-studied impersonations. The drama was admirably mounted and elaborately dressed. Repeated calls were given at the end of each act, and at the conclusion Mr. Ferris acknowledged the call for "Author."

DEATH OF WILLIAM FARREN.

The death is announced of Mr. William Farren, who will be remembered by middle-aged playgoers as a pillar of classical comedy at the Vaudeville Theatre in the seventies, and as the original of Sir Geoffrey Champneys in Henry J. Byron's famous comedy, Our Boys, which was originally produced at the house named on June 16, 1875. The deceased actor had lived in retirement for some years, and passed away at Siena, Italy, on Saturday last, in the eighty-third year of his age.

The deceased gentleman was the son of William Farren, sometimes called the elder Farren, a well-known comedian of the London stage, contemporary with Macready. The elder Farren's father was the original Careless in the production of The School for Scandal (1777). Previous to his entering the dramatic profession Mr. Farren had appeared in London with some success as a singer at the so-called Ancient Concerts. At the outset of his stage career he performed at the Strand and Olympic Theatres under the name of Forrester, and as William Farren, jun. In January, 1851, Mr. William Farren, jun., was a member of the company of the last-named theatre; and on Monday, 13th of that month, he sustained the part of Frederick Plum, first performance of Morton's comedy, All that Glitters is not Gold. At the same theatre in the following year he was in the original cast of the two following plays, viz., The Bag of Gold (Hillyard), first performed at the Olympic Theatre, June 27, 1852; and in Sarah Blangi (adapted from the French, Sarah la Créole), first performed there Oct. 27, 1852, he played Julian Duplessis to his father's Colonel Dumont. In 1853, on Mr. J. B. Buckstone assuming the management of the Haymarket Theatre, Mr. William Farren became a member of his company. On Easter Monday of that year he made his début at the Haymarket as Captain Absolute in The Rivals, and for a great many years took part there in the various revivals of national comedy for which Mr. Buckstone's management was specially distinguished. Mr. Farren was also in the original cast of a number of plays produced at the Haymarket during the period of his engagement. Of these, the principal were from the pen of Mr. Stirling Coyne and Mr. Tom Taylor, and included, among others, Elopements in High Life (Stirling Coyne), first performed at the Haymarket on April 7, 1853, in which the deceased comedian played the part of Charles Perfect; in The Old Château, by the same author, he appeared as Armand; and in The Man With Many Friends, also by Stirling Coyne, he played the Hon. Arlington Veneer. He scored a hit in the part of Harry Arncliffe in Tom Taylor's The Unequal Match, first performed at the Haymarket on Nov. 7, 1857; and in The Contested Election, by the same writer, he appeared in the part of Wapshott. In The Family Secret, by Edmund Falconer, produced at the same house on May 9, 1860, he was the Lord Avonmore.

At the Vaudeville Theatre, in July, 1872, in a revival of The School for Scandal, Mr. Farren sustained his celebrated father's great part of Sir Peter Teazle, and Sheridan's comedy met with so much favour that it ran for 404 nights. At the final performance on Friday, Oct. 31, 1873, an epilogue from the pen of Mr. E. W. Haxell was spoken by the characters, and advantage was taken of the special character of the occasion by the managers of the theatre, Messrs. David James and Thomas Thorne, for the presentation to Mr. Farren of a mark of their esteem and gratitude for the good service he had rendered to them during the run of the piece, and further, as an acknowledgement of the share he had in its success. The testimonial took the form of a valuable diamond ring. On Nov. 1, 1873, Mr. Farren played at the same house the part of Old Dornton, in a most successful revival of The Road to Ruin. In 1875, on Jan. 16, he created the rôle of Sir Geoffrey Champneys in the first performance at the Vaudeville Theatre of H. J. Byron's comedy Our Boys, and continued to play the same character at that theatre nightly without intermission until July, 1878. In the autumn of the same year Mr. Farren presented the part of Grandfather Whitehead—in later years one of the elder Farren's most successful impersonations—in a revival of the comedy of that name (adapted from the French by Mark Lemon), at the theatre of the Westminster Aquarium. At the same time and place he acted Young Wilding in a revival of The Liar (altered from Foote). On Saturday, April 19, 1879, in the first performance at the Vaudeville Theatre of H. J. Byron's comedy, Our Girls, Mr. Farren sustained the part of Josiah Clench. It was at the Vaudeville, too, that he appeared as Hectic, the malade imaginaire, in Petticoat Government, a part originally played by his father when the piece was originally produced at Drury Lane some seventy years since. Another success was scored by the deceased actor as Sir Harcourt Courtley in Dion Boucicault's London Assurance, and herein he rivalled the performance of his celebrated father on the first production of the comedy in 1841.

Among other of his original parts since 1867 may be named Pomerol in Fernande (St. James's, 1870), Arthur Minton in Two Thorns (St. James's, 1871), Sir Geoffrey Champneys in Our Boys (Vaudeville, 1875), Wilfred Lisle in The Lord of the Manor (Aquarium, 1880), Pecksniff in Tom Pinch (Vaudeville, 1881), Fotheringay Trevanion in Byron's Punch (same theatre, 1881), Squire Hesseltine in The Halfway House (Vaudeville, 1881), Drinkwater in The Opera House (same theatre, 1885), James Burnett in On 'Change (Toole's, 1885), Jeremy Sowerby in The Widow Winsome (Criterion, 1888), and Lord Harborough in The Bookmaker (Gaiety, 1890).

William Farren was also seen in London in the following (and other) characters:—At the Haymarket—Captain Absolute (1853), Aimwell in The Beaux' Stratagem (1856), Orlando (1856), Duretête in The Inconstant (1856), Charles Surface (1857), Beauseant (1857), Master Waller in The Love Chase (1857), Sir Thomas Clifford in The Hunchback (1858), Sir Brilliant Fashion in The Way to Keep Him (1858), Bronzely in Wives as they Were (1858), D'Aubigny in Mademoiselle de Belle-Isle (1864), Colonel Freelove in A Day After the Wedding (1865), and Dick Dowlas in The Heir-at-Law (1866); at the Lyceum—Comte du Barri in Narcisse (1868); at the St. James's—Victor in The Woman in Red (1868), Colonel Hardy in Paul Pry (1870), and Michael Perrin in Secret Service (1871); at the Vaudeville—Sir Peter Teazle (1872), and old Dornton in The Road to Ruin (1873); at the Imperial—Grandfather Whitehead (1878), young Wilding in The Liar (1878), Archer in The Beaux' Stratagem (1879), and Adam in As You Like It (1880); at the Princess's—Polonius (1880); at the Vaudeville—Sir John Vesey in Money (1882), and Sir Anthony Absolute (1882); at the Lyceum—Colonel Damas (1883); at the Strand—Lord Ogleby in The Clandestine Marriage (1887); at the Criterion—Digby Grant (1887); at the Globe—Brigard in Frou-Frou (1888); at the Criterion—Simon Ingot in David Garrick (1890); at the Gaiety—Sir Everard Foxwood in A Gold Mine (1890); at the Criterion—Sir Harcourt Courtly in London Assurance (1890); and at the Vaudeville—Mr. Butterscotch in The Guv'nor (1893).

Mr. Frede. Mouillot's company has been particularly pleasing in A Desperate Marriage at the Metropole Theatre, Gateshead. Mr. G. Knox-Ord is a manly Dick Strang; and a clever piece of acting is Mr. E. W. Maule Cole's Clarence Woolmer. Comedy and pathos are ably combined by Mr. Herbert Lloyd's Elijah Boggs; Miss Winifred Whyte is sweet and womanly as Audrey Howard; there is much polish is Miss Gertrude Gilbert's portrayal of Miriam Elton; Miss Helen Anderson as Bertha Mackenzie is to be commended, and Miss Nellie Rousby is amusing as Bertha Onions.

REVIVAL AT THE ADELPHI.

On Monday, Sept. 28, the Play, in Two Scenes, by Rosamund Langbridge, entitled "A TRAGEDY OF TRUTH."

Michael Hennessy ..... Mr. Martin Harvey
Mrs. Riordan ..... Miss Mary Rorke
Mary Riordan ..... Miss N. de Silva

Miss Rosamund Langbridge's piece was originally produced at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on Nov. 2, 1906, under the name of The Spell, and was first seen in London at the Adelphi on June 17 last year, when it was rechristened with its present title. There is a weird and poignant appeal in this little play, with its foundation of witchcraft and superstition, and its mournful desire of an unloved girl to find a mate. When Mary Riordan determines to tell Michael Hennessy, her betrothed, the truth that his love for her is not natural and spontaneous, but has been created by her mother's dark arts, we feel that the "tragedy" is not far off. It has been prophesied and prepared for by the misgivings of the old woman, and by various unlucky happenings. Placed in an atmosphere of sadness and mystery, the story, for all its supernatural basis, has a strong effect, especially when it is acted as it is at the Adelphi. Miss Mary Rorke is finely dramatic and powerfully impressive as the old witch-mother, and makes a very picturesque figure in her ragged garb. Miss N. de Silva's part of Mary Riordan just suits her pathetic and emotional style, and she plays it with a firm, yet delicate, touch, and a deep and telling expressiveness that are warmly commendable. Mr. Harvey has but brief opportunity as Michael Hennessy, but he manages to condense into his single scene a whole gamut of emotion, his depiction of Hennessy's half-crazy horror at the realisation of the "spell" that has been laid upon him being very dramatic and intense. The progress of the performance was accompanied by a really fine musical accompaniment by Mr. Norman O'Neill. So good was it in quality that it often attracted one's attention from the acting to the strains of the admirable orchestra which Mr. O'Neill conducted. The accompaniment was worth hearing on its own merits.

"DOROTHY" REVIVED.

An important development of the Moss Empires enterprise was made on Monday by the revival, at the Broadway, New Cross, under conditions of the most generous character, of the celebrated comic opera Dorothy, which enjoyed such a prosperous career in the West-End after its production at the Gaiety just twenty-two years ago. The significance of the present revival lies in the fact that the cast contains the names of the original exponents of two of the principal parts, Mr. Hayden Coffin resuming his old rôle of Harry Sherwood and Mr. Arthur Williams being seen once again as the sheriff's officer, Lurcher. Brilliance is added to the production by the inclusion in the cast of the eminent tenor, Mr. John Coates, who has the part of Geoffrey Wilder, "created" at the Gaiety by Mr. Redfern Hollins.

A new generation of music-lovers has sprung up since the dainty and melodious strains of Dorothy were first heard, and though many among the crowded audiences at the Broadway this week are renewing former delights, it was evident that to the majority of the assembly on the night of our visit Messrs. B. C. Stephenson and Alfred Cellier's work appealed for the first time. All the tuneful choruses and concerted numbers were loudly applauded and redemanded, and admiration for the beautiful setting was often expressed.

Mr. Hayden Coffin received a hearty welcome when he appeared as Harry Sherwood, looking more youthful than ever. He acted with his usual buoyancy and elaboration, and his singing was marked by his accustomed well-studied expression. The favourite "Queen of my heart," which has occupied a foremost position on the concert platform since its introduction into the opera, was rendered with all the fervour and spirit with which Mr. Coffin invariably enhances his singing, and the last verse had to be repeated. Mr. John Coates' exquisitely tasteful and musicianly treatment of the numbers that fall to Geoffrey was the occasion for much admiration. He was heard to the greatest advantage in the graceful air "With such a dainty maid," which was enthusiastically encored. The heroine, Dorothy, originally played by Miss Marion Hood, had a representative, well favoured alike in looks and voice, in Miss Ruth Davenport, who rendered her solos in cultivated style, and was of invaluable assistance in the concerted pieces. "Be wise in time," led by Dorothy, exercised a most agreeable influence. Miss Hebe Bliss made a captivating Lydia Hawthorne, her well-modulated contralto adding greatly to the effect of the various numbers with which she was associated. The quartet, "One moment, pray," between the four lovers was sung with particular charm. The acting of the two ladies, dressed in male costume, in the duel scene, too, proved highly diverting.

Mr. Arthur Williams revelled again in the eccentricities of Lurcher, and was responsible for continuous laughter. The cream of the comedy has been preserved by Mr. Williams and supplemented by many up-to-date allusions. His references to topical subjects met with ready acceptance, and the drolleries of the comedian seemed inexhaustible. The humours of Tom Strutt, originally played by Mr. John Le Hay, were safely entrusted to Mr. Tim Ryley, a comedian of unlimited resource, who made the utmost of the funny situations in which he was concerned. Squire Bantam, whose first interpreter was the late Mr. Furneaux Cook, was heartily represented, both vocally and dramatically, by Mr. Colin Coop, who sang with breadth and vigour the exacting solo "Contentment I give you." The simpering Mrs. Privett, originally played by Miss Harriet Coveney, was invested with a deep sense of humour by Miss Emily Spiller, who played well up to Mr. Williams in the amusing scenes in which the couple are engaged. Miss Aimée Roberts looked well and sang in good style as Phyllis Tuppitt; and Mr. Fred J. Vigay as John Tuppitt, Mr. Lester Carey as the Parson, Mr. R. White as the Squire's Footman, and Miss Primrose Harding as Lady Betty added to the completeness of the cast. Mr. Julian Hicks has painted the admirable scenery; and the costumes, wigs, and properties by Willie Clarkson are dainty and appropriate. A pack of fine foxhounds under the control of Major Restall lends realism to the fine hunting chorus in the second act.

Mr. James Bell, the lessee and manager of the Theatre Royal, introduced on Friday, for the first time in Darlington, a subscribers' night. For that occasion the prices of admission were raised, and the gallery was closed entirely.

Instructions have, we understand, been given to Mr. Bertie Crewe, the eminent architect, to prepare plans for a new theatre on the site of the present Empire Music Hall, Burnley. The new theatre is estimated to seat 600 more people than the present Victoria Opera House, and the stage will be much larger and deeper. It is expected the new building will be ready next autumn.

"THE FATAL DISC."

Dramatic Episode, in Two Scenes, produced at the King's Theatre, Gateshead, on Monday, Sept. 28.

Colonel Durant .....Mr. Nicholas Graydon
Captain Wedlock .....Mr. Earnie Archer
Colonel Clavering .....Mr. Percival Baker
Oliver Cromwell .....Mr. Jack Baker
Abbie Durant .....Little Hetty Hornsby
Sylvia Durant .....Miss Carrie Young

The Fatal Disc is a very dramatic piece, and had a cordial reception here on Monday. The interest centres in three officers of Oliver Cromwell's army, who have disobeyed an order to retreat whilst engaged in a losing fight. Their action turns the tide in favour of their side; but, notwithstanding, the iron Cromwell has sentenced them to death. The play opens in the room of one of the condemned officers, Colonel Durant, who is relating the story to his little daughter Abbie when Cromwell's men come for their prisoner. The tiny maiden fondly bids her parent good-bye, totally ignorant of the fate awaiting him. Meanwhile Cromwell has endeavoured to induce the men to draw lots to decide which of the three shall expiate the crime of the trio, but without avail, and in Scene II. we are introduced to Cromwell himself. He orders that one man only shall die, and lots are cast for them. He himself decides as to the manner of drawing, and orders one of his bodyguard to bring in a child from the street, who shall be given three discs—two white and one red. The sentenced men are brought in, and their faces turned towards the wall, with their single open palms behind them, into which the child is to place the discs—one in each. Cromwell is thoroughly captivated by the naïveness of the child, and laughingly remarks that should she ever request a favour of him it will be granted. The little girl is given the discs, and her duty explained to her. She recognises her father amongst the three condemned men, and remarks that seeing she loves him so much she will give him the "pretty red one"—and thus sign his death warrant.

Later the truth is told her, and in a moment she sees a way out. She recalls Cromwell's promise of help if ever she needed it, and instantly demands the redemption of the contract. Cromwell abides by his promise, grants her father's release—truly a strong dénouement—and the curtain falls on a very happy assemblage. The playlet goes with commendable swing, the interest never for a moment flagging.

Chief honours are due to Mr. Nicholas Graydon, who, in the part of Durant, combines a polished style with a powerful delivery and studious attention to detail. Mr. Percival Baker is convincing as Colonel Clavering; and Mr. Earnie Archer is well suited to the rôle of Captain Wedlock. A clever embodiment of Oliver Cromwell is presented by Mr. Jack Baker; Miss Carrie Young as Sylvia Durant shows much histrionic ability, her emotional expression being excellent. Little Miss Hettie Hornsby is good as Abbie Durant, and speaks her lines clearly and without hesitation.

"WILDFIRE."

Miss Lillian Russell, who used to be called "the Queen of comic opera," made a new departure a year or two ago, and "went in for" comedy rôles requiring no exercise of that fine singing voice that charmed so many people in days gone by. In Wildfire, a racing comedy in three acts, by George Broadhurst and George V. Hobart, which won success some time ago in other cities, and recently "struck" the American metropolis by way of the Libetry Theatre, Miss Russell easily upholds the popularity that has been hers for many a year. The late Tony Pastor, the "veteran of variety," who recently passed away, "discovered" Lillian Russell, and when she first appeared at this theatre, at a very early age, her beauty quickly made her famous. Gallantry forbids me to mention the exact date of that discovery, although it is said that the lady herself is not at all sensitive on that point, which is not at all surprising, for it serves to give point and emphasis to the assertion to be found in every newspaper notice of her play, to wit, that "Lillian Russell is as beautiful as ever." Furthermore, the critics agree that Miss Russell is as clever as she is beautiful. Wildfire is the name of a horse owned by an attractive widow named Mrs. Henrietta Barrington (Miss Russell). The sporting proclivities of Mrs. Barrington's husband were not disclosed to her until after his death, as he conducted his racing stable under the name of John Duffy. Wildfire was his favourite, and in the first act the widow arranges a final race, which the horse is expected to win. She intends to dispose of her stable after that, as she has reasons. A younger sister is in love with Ralph Woodhurst, the scapegrace son of a minister, who is a vigorous opponent of race-track gambling. The minister is not aware that his son attends the races, and is already under the thumb of a bookmaker named John Duffy, to whom he owes several thousand dollars. The bookmaker is "the villain of the piece." His name enables him to pose as the owner of the stable and deceive a negro jockey, who has been engaged to ride Wildfire. Mrs. Barrington hears of Duffy's plan to make the horse win or lose, as may seem best to him. Now, Wildfire's victory means that young Woodhurst will be saved from exposure and disgrace, so the widow pretends to be flattered by Duffy's attentions to her, and as the horses pass she waves a white handkerchief, which is to be the jockey's signal to win the race. It is hardly necessary to add that all ends happily. The dialogue is brisk and clever. It is naturally very horsey, and the racing atmosphere is well preserved throughout the play, an exceedingly realistic view of the stable being disclosed in the second act. Miss Russell, as the widow, has never appeared to better advantage. Will Archie, a diminutive comedian, makes a big hit as a slangy stable boy named Bud, causing no end of laughter; and others who render good service in prominent rôles are Messrs. Thurston Hall, John D. O'Hara, Franklyn Roberts, Joseph Tuohy, Frank Sheridan, Sydney Booth, and Gilbert Douglas.

The Fancy Dress Ball season at Covent Garden started with great éclat at midnight on the 25th ult., when a brilliant gathering assembled. Many elaborate and ingenious costumes were displayed. Mr. William Clarkson was again in the van of the prize winners, and took first with "Sweet September," second with "Wonder of the Season," and fourth with "The Blue Sky of Fair Italy."

At the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, on Saturday, Mrs. Patrick Campbell gave a special matinée, introducing to the Glasgow public the tragedy of Electra, translated by Mr. Arthur Symons from the German, and also Oscar Wilde's powerful one-act play, A Florentine Tragedy, both works of special merit and more than ordinary interest.

On Monday and the two following evenings, Mrs. Patrick Campbell presented, at the Theatre Royal, Margate, The Thunderbolt. As Phyllis, Mrs. Campbell played with her accustomed power and intensity. Able support was rendered by Mr. Julian Royce as Thaddeus Mortimer; Mr. Murray Carson as James Mortimer; Miss Florence Farr in the rôle of Ann Mortimer; Mr. J. D. Beveridge, who was good as the Solicitor; Mr. Nigel Playfair as Col. Ponting; and Miss Stella Patrick Campbell as Helen Thornhill, and others in a long cast.

The Actors' Association has moved from 409, Strand, to 353.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"DER PRINZ D'AUREC."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by H. Lavadan, produced at the Neues, on Sept. 18.

Prinz .....Herr Schroth
Prinzessin .....Fraulein Reisenhofer
Herzogin .....Fraulein Reichenbach
Baron Horn .....Herr Christians
Vicomte Montrejean .....Herr Schmidthaesler
Montade .....Herr Werckmeister
Chambersac .....Herr Andresen
Dutaillis .....Herr Parow
Stulbach .....Herr Schindler
Louis .....Herr Schulte

BERLIN, Thursday, Sept. 24.—This play, though new to Berlin, is several years old. It was considered at the time of its first production in Paris to be a skit upon certain well-known persons in the worlds of artistocracy and finance, and as such met with—I believe—but scant favour. The environment being entirely Parisian, it was scarcely likely to interest a Berlin audience, and a certain respectfully cordial reception was all that was accorded to it. The wit—when it is apparent—is bright, but is spread over sparsely, and the whole rather bored the audience than otherwise. The interpretation was satisfactory. Herr Schroth as the blasé spendthrift, Fräulein Reisenhofer as the Princess, and especially Herr Christians, as the great Jewish banker Horn, were all deserving of commendation. Herr Linsemann, who was responsible for translation and adaptation, appears to have done his work conscientiously and well, but I do not fancy the piece will hold the boards for any length of time.

Mr. Bernard Shaw's clever and amusing comedy Hin Teufelskerl (Devil of a Fellow) has been revived with signal success at the Schiller Theatre, Charlottenburg. It has not been done here for several years, since it was produced at the Berliner, where it had a very long run. The reception last week on the part of a large audience was enthusiastic, and a second lease of life may be predicted with certainty. The cast was not altogether satisfactory, nor was the mounting, but these faults did not affect the enjoyment of the majority of those present. Two plays by Wolfgang von Gersdorff, drawn from Japanese models, were produced with some success at the Chamber Playhouse of the Deutsches Theatre last week. They are entitled Kimiko and Terakoya respectively. Both are tragic and naïve, as the Japanese drama customarily is. The plays serve to fill an interim bill, but will scarcely run for any length of time.

Eugen D'Albert's dramatic opera Tiefland has again been put in the bill of the Komische Oper, where is was produced for the first time some years ago with such great success. It is still drawing largely. Director Gregor, by the way, proposes building a special Wagner Opera house in Berlin. He will run the theatre on the same excellent lines as the Komische Oper, of which house he will still retain the managership. The undertaking is elaborate, but should prove successful. It is to be a theatre seating 2,500 persons, and is to be ready for opening in 1912. Admission prices are to be genuinely "popular," while Herr Gregor says he intends organising a first-class company and a picked orchestra of seventy-five musicians.

The Deutsches has revived King Lear, with which it made so great a success the last two seasons. Herr Schildkraut again made his mark in the title-rôle, his representation being powerful and original, although it falls short of his Shylock. An excellent piece of acting was the Edmund of Herr Beregis; Herr Moissis, Herr Walden, and Herr von Winterstein were also good, and the parts of Goneril, Regan, and Cordelia were effectively portrayed by Fräuleins Fehdmer, Schlüter, and Hoflich. The mounting was in the good taste to which we are accustomed at this theatre, but the audience expressed much disapproval at the long entr'actes, which made the evening unusually long.

Herr Ernst von Wolzogen has just completed a new three-act satirical comedy entitled Der Unverstandenermann, which will be performed at one of our leading theatres shortly.

"GLORIOUS BETSY."

In Glorious Betsy, a four-act play by Mrs. Rida Johnson Young, recently produced at the Lyric Theatre, New York, Miss Mary Mannering gives a graceful and charming portrayal of Betsy Patterson, the Baltimore belle who became the American wife of Jerome Bonaparte, the brother of Napoleon. The action of the play begins at Old Sweet Springs, Virginia, where Jerome is posing as a teacher of French to Mistress Betsy, a vivacious and frolicsome coquette, with several admirers, including John C. Calhoun and Henry Clay. These two, who afterwards became great statesmen, are dancing attendance on Betsy, and in the first act they "dare" her to take a ramble along the country roads in her bare feet, a challenge that she immediately accepts. After that, they are more madly in love with her than ever. The tutor, however, is the favoured swain. When the love affair of Betsy and Jerome has advanced to the point of a proposal of marriage, the latter receives a message from Napoleon, commanding him to return to France and wed Fredericka of Wurtemburg, and assume the Royal dignity of the kingdom of Westphalia. This creates a conflict of impulses, and leads up to the disclosure of the real name and station of Betsy's lover. The third act takes place on the upper deck of the frigate La Cigale two months later. The lovers, accompanied, by Betsy's father and aunt, have reached a French port, and are about to seek Napoleon's consent to the marriage. Jerome receives an uncompromising message, however, and then the Little Corporal himself comes over the ship's side, and sternly refuses to sanction the union. Jerome is placed under guard and taken ashore, while Betsy is ordered to be sent back to America. In the last act she is at home again in Baltimore, where she is shortly rejoined by her devoted lover, who fulfils his promise to make her his wife, in spite of the imperial prohibition. History tells us that Jerome Bonaparte wedded the lady that Napoleon chose for him, and the dramatist has not escaped reproof for "trifling with facts" in this way. From a critical point of view the play is conventional and artificial, but it contains much that appeals to the popular fancy, and Miss Mannering's popularity is great. Mr. George W. Howard bears himself well as Jerome Bonaparte, Miss Helen Macbeth wins approval as Betsy's friend, Eliza Monroe, and the other rôles are in good hands.

On Sunday last the staff of the Opera House, Harrogate, had their annual outing. This time it was to Ilkley that they journeyed, and at 7.30 a.m. forty-two of them left the theatre for Otley, where breakfast was served at the Black Bull. After breakfast they drove on to Ilkley, where at one, at the handsome Crescent Hotel, a capital dinner was disposed of. Speeches followed, and Mr. Tom Marshall (proprietor) in a few happy phrases thanked Mr. Peacock and subscribers to their fund for the enjoyable day. He also asked Miss Marie Peacock to accept from the staff a handsome box of chocolates. Mr. Peacock (managing-director) replied suitably; and speeches were also made by Mr. Eric Fielding Smith (acting-manager) and Mr. Bob Braithwaite (carpenter). After walks on the moors, &c., the happy party started back, reaching Harrogate thoroughly happy and really tired out after a most enjoyable day at 10.30 p.m.

PLAYS FOR THE CLOSET.

"Mr. Hardy raises in his preface to The Dynasts," writes Mr. A. B. Walkley in "Drama and Life," "the general question of plays which are not intended to be played, but only to be read, plays 'for mental performance,' as Mr. Hardy puts it. To those who urge that an unplayable play is a contradiction in terms he replies that 'the question seems to be an unimportant matter of terminology.' Compositions cast in the dramatic shape, he says, were without doubt originally written for the stage only; 'but in the course of time such a shape would reveal itself to be an eminently readable one.' Would it? Has it? Surely not. But even if it be conceded that some plays happen to be readable, does that prove that plays ought to be written in order to be read? By no means. Some plays may be read, just as, faute de mieux, shoe-leather may be used as an article of diet instead of as a protection for the feet. But, to adapt a familiar line from an Oxford Prize Poem,

It may be eaten, but it is not good.

No, with all respect to Mr. Hardy, the question is much more than an unimportant matter of terminology. It is a question of the relation of means to ends. Just as a play may be readable, so an opera score may be playable in a pianoforte arrangement. Mr. Hardy would call it an opera wherein everything that the piano cannot render is left for mental performance. Most people call it an abuse of the opera, which is intended for the stage, and an abuse of the piano, which is intended for pianoforte music. Surely it is a commonplace that every art-form is conditioned by its medium? The shape, the structure, the points of inflection, the perspective of a play are all determined by the mechanical necessities of the theatre and the fact that it is something to be seen and heard by a spectator. A book, which is something to be read, has no such restrictions; it has others, but not these. If you impose upon a book the form of a play—a form, that is to say, designed to meet exigencies which in its case do not exist—you are misapplying or wasting the means at your disposal; you are running a sack-race; you are playing fives, like Cavanagh in Hazlitt's essay, with your clenched fist. At the best, you have achieved a tour de force. Let me take an example from Mr. Hardy's old profession. It is an elementary principle in architecture that structure is conditioned by material. Stone demands one kind of building, iron another, wood a third. Suppose an architect were laboriously to construct an iron bridge under the limitations proper to a stone bridge, would Mr. Hardy applaud the feat? No; he would say it was bad architecture. So one may say when it is attempted to build a book according to the methods of a play, or a play according to the methods of a book. Lessing has something very much to the point ('Hamburg Dramaturgy,' Feb. 5, 1768): 'It is not enough that a work produces an effect on us'—e.g., that a play is readable—'it's effect must also be that which properly belong to it . . . What is the use of building a theatre, dressing up men and women, putting their memories to the torture, crowding the whole town into a hall, if any work when represented is only to produce some of the effects which might have been produced by a story read in the chimney-corner?' So one may ask, What is the use of enjoying all the means open to the story-teller if he is to sacrifice most of those means to the vain hope of rivalling the playwright, who has quite other means?

"Nor will it do to rely, as Mr. Hardy does, upon the imagination of the reader, or 'mental' spectator. 'The spectator, in thought, becomes a performer whenever called upon, and cheerfully makes himself the utility man of the gaps.' Unfortunately, the 'gaps' in a closet-play, being just those parts of a play which cannot be expressed in dialogue, are its vital parts. The great passions are mute. The culminating point of a play is not a speech, but an action, or a picture of which the effect resides in the mere juxtaposition of certain personages. It is at these moments that the closet playwright suspends—is bound to suspend—work, while the 'mental' spectator comes in and takes up the burden."

Mrs. Stella Brereton Douglas has commenced her autumn season of instruction in elocution, deportment, and acting at her comfortable and spacious premises at 84, New Bond-street, W.

The annual report of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, which has just been issued, exceeds in bulk the last two reports of the Society combined. The Society is extending its influence in all parts, no less than ten new branches having been formed during the past year. Several additional centres are to be inaugurated after the completion of the performances of Twelfth Night, at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, which end to-day.

Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company travelled on Sunday last from Hanley to Brighton via Market Drayton and the Great Western Railway to Kensington (Addison-road). The train left Hanley at 11.10 a.m., and ran from Market Drayton to Addison-road without a stop, a distance of 178 miles, Brighton being reached at 5.45 p.m., or fifteen minutes before time. The Great Western Railway Company have, during the last two or three years, made great improvements in their travelling arrangements for theatrical companies.

At St. Augustine's Petty Sessions, Whitstable, on Saturday, W. G. B. Bell and R. B. Reeves, the lessee and owner of the Assembly Rooms, Whitstable, were summoned for presenting a stage play, in three acts, called The Camden Town Murder, at the Assembly Rooms on the 5th ult. without the licence of the Lord Chamberlain. Evidence having been given of the production of the play and as to its not being licensed, the Bench fined Bell £5 and 7s. 11d. costs, or in default of distress one month's imprisonment, and ordered Mr. Reeves to pay a fine of 5s. and 7s. 10d. costs. As the owner of the hall, they said, he could not get away from his responsibilities.

Messrs. Chappell intend during the approaching season to form a choir of 250 voices, to be known as "The Queen's Hall Choral Society." The prospectus states that every endeavour is to be made to obtain the best voices only, and to train them individually and collectively to a pitch of perfection which, it is hoped, will give to the choir an unrivalled position in the musical world of the metropolis. The choir's trainer and conductor will be Mr. Franco Leoni, the well-known composer. Standard works drawn from the classics are to form the nucleus of the répertoire, but a special feature will be made of choral compositions by young British musicians.

The examination of candidates for pianoforte who had previously passed in paper work but failed to pass in practical work, was held on the 25th ult. at the Royal College of Music. Fifty-two candidates were examined, and the following twenty-six were successful in obtaining the number of marks fixed for passing:—Mrs. Cecilia M. L. Allport, Jean R. Atkins, Grace S. Bannister, Kate P. Barkla, Lilian Baron, Elsie M. Chapman, Emma H. Collins, Florence E. Cotterell, Muriel H. Duke, George F. Fletcher, Lilian M. Gash, Laura M. Jesson, Fannie Knight, Nina Langley, Emma B. Le Lievre, Marianne B. Lincoln, Margaret L. McCaig, Helen M. Mathieson, Emma J. Oakley, Emily Passmore, Christabel E. H. Richardson, Gladys M. Starkey, Olive J. Starkey, Annie Sugden, William C. Twitchen, and Hayda Walters.

LAL BROUGH AT HOME.

In the Pall Mall Magazine for September Mr. H. M. Wallbrook writes delightfully of "dear old Lal Brough," as seen in his home of thirty-seven years in Lambeth. Here the veteran comedian may be found sitting under the big ash in the centre of the garden, with his faithful canine friend Bruno and his beloved daughter Mary as companions. Many of the trees he planted himself, and "the ordered disorder of the flower-beds, with all sorts of plants growing together, is at once his handiwork and his pride." The place is literally a storehouse of pictures, drawings, photographs, books, sketches, and souvenirs of all kinds connected with the theatre. From every wall familiar faces look down.

"In his drawing-room, among other things, are a portrait of Quick the actor, which he believes to be by Rowlandson; an early view of Brighton racecourse, a signed Cosway, an interesting oil-painting of Edmund Kean, as a boy, mounted on a tavern table reciting; a number of pieces in oils by George Cruikshank; a very interesting seascape by G. W. Sheffield, executed in thirty-five minutes; a study of cloud, light, and sea by Joseph Jefferson; a stormy scene, by David Murray; statuettes of Liston, Toole, and other players; portraits of Mr. Brough as Dogberry and Sir Toby Belch; a photograph of his mother in her ninety-fifth year, and a host of other interesting things.

"In the library are a lot of the drawings of that tragically-fated genius, the late Fred Barnard; a striking pen-and-ink likeness of Phelps as Dr. Cantwell; a spirited wash-drawing of a Cavalier, inscribed 'To Lionel Brough, from his friend Seymour Lucas'; a valuable collection of Zoffanys, and a brilliant portrait of King, the original Puff in The Critic. There is a drawing of Nottingham Castle by Charles Mathews; and on one of the tables a splendid photograph of Mrs. Patrick Campbell rescuing the Bible from the stove in the great scene of The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith which so electrified the first night's audience at the Garrick and so irritated Mr. Bernard Shaw, who was then writing dramatic criticisms for the Saturday Review. And on a wall close by hangs a list of the parts Mr. Brough has played, written in gold, and numbering nearly three hundred. It was compiled with great care a few years ago by an unknown admirer, who called and left it as a small mark of his admiration, and has since never been seen by the comedian.

"The dining-room is hung mainly with water-colours, including several by Elijah Walton; and the staircase to the upper floor is so thickly lined on both sides with things in frames that the walls can scarcely be seen. Here is a photograph of Ellen Terry as a little girl, in some play or other, having breakfast with Benjamin Webster; and there is a clever sketch by Miss Viola Tree of Mr. Brough as the Host of the Garter in The Merry Wives of Windsor. A lifelike portrait of E. A. Sothern hangs near a number of original drawings by Phil May and Harrison Weir; and hard by is the photograph of Irving, Wyndham, Toole, John Clayton, Lionel Brough, Henrietta Hodson, and Miss Everard in Dearer than Life, which Mr. Bram Stoker has reproduced in his interesting 'Reminiscences of Henry Irving.' It is curious to look at that picture, with the two low-comedians so prominently posing in the centre, and to think that the dark young man with the black moustache, modestly sitting in the corner, lived to overshadow all the others, and when he died was buried in Westminster Abbey amid a national sense of loss. Near the stairs is a large head-and-shoulders portrait of Irving in the late seventies; and on the floor above, one on a similar scale revealing the sensuous beauty of Lilian Adelaide Neilson.

"Mr. Brough has been a great globe-trotter. He once travelled fourteen thousand miles to make a twenty-days' tour in South Africa, where he played the part of Tony Lumpkin for the 777th time in a red cloak borrowed from a girl and cut into a hunting-coat, a pair of riding-breeches that had gone a thousand miles over the veldt, and a pair of brown-paper leggings affixed to his own shoes to give them the appearance of top-boots.

"Nearly half a century has passed since he first played this part; and his most famous appearance in it was at the Aquarium under Miss Litton, whose Rosalind he considers to be the best he ever saw. It was at that time, also, that his Touchstone became really known in London.

"The last Shakespearean part which Mr. Brough played in London was the little one of the gardener in Richard II., when Mr. Tree revived the tragedy at His Majesty's; and it will be remembered how finely he made it stand out, with what a wise gravity he spoke the fine lines to the Queen—and how near to their eyes were the tears of the audience as he spoke of setting 'a bank of rue, sweet herb of grace' where she had dropped a tear—'in the remembrance of a weeping queen.' He says that tears rose to his own eyes in that passage; and he adds: 'The actor is very sensitive in that way, very susceptible to the emotion of the moment; but it is dangerous to let oneself be mastered by it. It is easy to become incoherent if it is not checked.'"

'In your lord's scale is nothing but himself,
And some few vanities that make him light,'

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" is proving attractive all over the country, and it is equally certain to draw good audiences to the Crystal Palace Theatre next week. In addition to an excellent cast, the company includes Rich and Moore, coloured duettists; Shorty May, comedian; the Tennesseeans, jubilee singers; J. Warrie, buck dancer; Walter Langfield, banjoist; and Dinah Dixie, ballad vocalist. In the plantation festival scene will be found real niggers and freed slaves, and there will be a perfect representation of negro life in the cotton fields of the Southern States of America. The gallery of the theatre, it should be added, is now 6d., so that those purchasing early-door tickets at 9d. can secure seats in the end gallery. The new free cloakroom is much appreciated.

At the Board of Trade Offices, on Tuesday, the statutory first meetings were held of the creditors and shareholders of the Thespian Syndicate, Ltd., under a compulsory winding-up order. The company was formed in April, 1906, with a nominal capital of £5,000, to acquire an option to produce a play entitled King of Clubs, and to carry on theatrical business generally. The option was not exercised. On Aug. 8, 1907, the company acquired a licence, tenable for six years, to use Hengler's Circus for twenty weeks each year at the weekly rent of £125, and produced circus and wrestling entertainments during April, May, and June last. These entertainments resulted in a heavy loss, to which the directors attributed the failure of the company. The liquidation accounts show liabilities £2,366 against assets £29, and a deficiency of £7,337 to the shareholders. In the absence of a quorum, the meetings were formally adjourned for a week.

Sir Henry Irving's birthplace at Keinton Mandeville is not, after all, to fall into the hands of an American syndicate, but has been acquired for preservation as a memorial by Mr. Ernest Jardine, who saved Glastonbury Abbey to the nation two years ago.

Voice and Throat.

Mr. SIMS REEVES, the World-Famed Tenor, writing on "The Art of Singing," said:—"Condy's Fluid clears the Throat and braces up the uvula, which in some singers interrupts the pure emission of the Voice."

Used as a gargle 8 drops of Condy's Fluid in a tumbler of water instantly clear the Throat and Strengthen the Voice. Condy's Fluid is guaranteed to contain NO Permanganate of Potash, which is poisonous. Insist on having "Condy's Fluid." Sold by all Chemists and Stores at 1/-

The Risks of the Profession.

You must have a very good constitution to steer safely clear of the many risks you run in the profession to-day.

Quite apart from the ordinary strain upon your energies and nervous forces in acting, singing, or dancing, you have to consider the many dangers to your health to which you are continually exposed.

You may be well and strong to-day, but a cold is easily caught coming out of an overheated theatre into the chilly air, and a cold means a relaxed throat with bronchial troubles and loss of voice.

But though there are many risks you have to run, you can overcome them and fortify yourself against taking a sudden chill by taking Hall's Wine, the marvellous restorative.

Hall's Wine fights that tendency to take cold by enriching the blood, feeding and bracing the nerves, and maintaining the vital energy and vigour.

And here is another point. Hall's Wine, being a thoroughly matured and delicious wine, has highly beneficial effects upon the vocal organs, rendering the voice clear and resonant and entirely preventing any strain in speaking or singing.

And here is yet another point. Hall's Wine, being a blood-maker of the highest order, it is necessarily a brain feeder, for the brain is fed and nourished only by the blood.

Now there is hardly any profession where greater strain is put upon the brain—upon the mental faculties—than the stage.

A bottle of Hall's Wine should be in every dressing-room, for its stimulative, energising, and nerve and brain invigorating effect is just what you require to help you in your arduous duties.

"The illusions of the stage in the way of scenic effects were," says Dutton Cooke, "much enhanced by Garrick's Alsatian scene-painter, Philip James de Loutherbourg, a man of genius in his way, and an eminent innovator and reformer in the matter of theatrical decoration. Before his time the scenes had been merely strained 'flats' of canvas, extending the whole breadth and height of the stage. He was the first to introduce set scenes and what are technically called 'raking pieces.' He invented transparent scenes, with representations of moonlight, rising and setting suns, fires, volcanoes, &c., and contrived effects of colour by means of silk screens of various hues placed before the foot and side lights. He was the first to represent a mist by suspending a gauze between the scene and the spectator. For two seasons he held a dioramic exhibition of his own, called the Eidophusikon, at the Patagonian Theatre in Exeter Change, and afterwards at a house in Panton Square. The special attraction of the entertainment was a storm at sea, with the wreck of the Halsewell, East Indiaman. No pains were spared to picture the tempest and its most striking effects. The clouds were movable, painted upon a canvas of vast size, and rising diagonally by means of a winding machine. The artist excelled in his treatment of clouds, and by regulating the action of his windlass he could direct their movements, now permitting them to rise slowly from the horizon and sail obliquely across the heavens and now driving them swiftly along according to their supposed density and the power ascribed to the wind. The lightning quivered through transparent places in the sky. The waves, carved in soft wood from models made in clay, coloured with great skill, and highly varnished to reflect the lightning, rose and fell with irregular action, flinging the foam now here, now there, diminishing in size, and dimming in colour, as they receded from the spectator. De Loutherbourg imitated the noise of thunder by shaking one of the lower corners of a large, thin sheet of copper suspended by a chain; the distant firing of signals of distress from the doomed vessel he counterfeited by suddenly striking a large tambourine with a sponge affixed to a whalebone spring, the reverberations of the sponge producing a peculiar echo as from cloud to cloud dying away in the distance. These contrivances of Mr. de Loutherbourg may now, perhaps, be deemed to be of rather a commonplace description, but they were calculated to impress the painter's patrons very considerably."

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.

For Sustaining the Voice.
Indispensable for PUBLIC SPEAKERS

Gentlemen,—For sudden affections of the Bronchial Organs I use and most cheerfully recommend "Brown's Troches." They are regarded as most eligible, convenient, and indispensable by numerous artists of my acquaintance, BOTH IN EUROPE AND AMERICA. They seem to act specially on the organs of the voice, and produce a clear enunciation.—Yours truly (Signed), Marie Rose Matheson.

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

NOTICE.

BASKERVILLE PRINTING WORKS, CAMBRIDGE-ST., BIRMINGHAM.

We have to announce with deep regret the death of Mr. William Albert Upton on Sept. 5, 1908.

Messrs. Arthur Heaton, of Shadwell-street, Birmingham, and James Baskerville Upton, the Son of the late Mr. Upton, have been appointed Directors of the Company, and Mr. Heaton has been elected Chairman.

It is intended to constitute as Departmental Directors, Messrs. C. H. Tebbutt, J. E. Penzer, T. Boyard, and T. R. Barr, who have for so many years conducted with conspicuous ability the departments with which they have been associated. In this way it is thought that the serious loss which the firm has sustained will be best met, and a Staff created which will use their utmost endeavours to continue the Company's business with the efficiency and success which have distinguished it in the past.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1908.

MR. RALEIGH AND THE RATS.

It is not often that a dispute which opened with so much acerbity has ended so much to the honour and credit to both parties as that between Mr. ARTHUR COLLINS and the Society of Water Rats. The latter, certainly, had good cause for complaint, and Mr. COLLINS, in so freely and generously withdrawing the offensive matter from The Marriages of Mayfair at Drury Lane, has shown his appreciation of this. A misunderstanding which begins as this one did too often develops into positive rancour and hostility; and we congratulate both Mr. COLLINS and the merry rodents of Charing Cross Road upon the result of the entirely amicable conference at the Eccentric Club last week.

Various attempts have been made to obscure the issue by sophistry. It has been asked why members of various callings, such as that of the policeman, the shop-walker, &c., have not remonstrated against the ridicule which has been showered upon them by the variety profession. But this argument will not hold water. The ridicule in these cases was directed at the calling generally, and not at any particular persons or societies in it. If Captain SHAW had found anything offensive in the harmless pleasantry with which he was alluded to in Iolanthe, he might well have complained of it; but he would have had no right to protest against jokes about firemen as a body. If Messrs. CECIL RALEIGH and HENRY HAMILTON had merely depicted a party of variety artists misbehaving themselves at a shooting-party they would not have laid themselves open to so much objection. But the unmistakable labelling of the "rowdy," brawling crew in the Marriages of Mayfair as the Rats, even to the singing of the Anthem of the Association, made it impossible to ignore the attack. The picture revealed, indeed, an ignorance of contemporary life which we should not have suspected in the gifted and "usually up-to-date" authors of the Drury Lane drama. Satire, to be successful, must be founded on fact; and where on any of the recent excursions of the Water Rats has there been any instance of two men taking off their coats at luncheon to fight with one another? Where, indeed, has there been an example at these "outings" of anything but good feeling, good humour, and harmless jollity?

There are a number of people who absolutely refuse to realise the change which has taken place in the whole body of variety performers, and in the management and organisation of the modern music-hall profession. Just as the drama grew out of the coarse and often indecent "mystery" plays, so the modern variety theatre has been evolved from the old public-house "sing-songs." It is worthy of notice, however, that the music-hall, in its earlier days, was chiefly supported by "swells." "Champagne Charlie," with his white hat and long Dundreary whiskers, was the acme and idealisation of a certain type of man-about-town of the day. The persons who applauded the SAM HALLS and Captain COSTIGANS of the period were gentlemen, or at least educated persons. What reformed and remodelled the modern music-hall was the adoption of variety entertainment as the pleasure of the people. When the playhouse undertook to appeal chiefly to the well-to-do classes, as it did when the theatre became "fashionable" about the early 'seventies, low comedy, to a certain extent, became neglected. There was no place in the modern scheme of reduced pits and "high-priced" stalls for broad character-acting in the style of WRIGHT or PAUL BEDFORD. Genteel comedy took the place of the "low" branch of the art on the theatrical stage; and the talent thus obscured found a market on the music-halls. The natural result was the ousting of the Bacchanalian ditty of both types—the "Slap! bang!" which celebrated the orgies of the upper class, and the "booze" song which treated intoxication in humble life as a theme for semi-sympathetic ridicule—in favour of realistic and sympathetic pictures of the lives of the proletariat. The impersonations of our leading variety comedians constituted a compendium of information as to the life of the poorer classes in the London of the present day. Concurrent with this change was an improvement in the accommodation of the halls, the abolition of the chairman and the "touting" waiter, and the addition to the entertainment of a great variety of attractions. The improvement in salaries also had an immense influence on the personnel of the profession; and the abandonment of Rabelaisian humour for a more innocent but no less piquant "brand" of comicality completed the success of the variety theatres.

The variety entertainment is, as was the low comedy of the last generation, "racy of the soil." It comes from the rich flesh and blood life of the people, and has a bitter-sweet sympathy with their sorrows and their joys. Mr. ARTHUR BOURCHIER said, at a public dinner the other day, it is impossible, when so many of our leading actors and actresses are appearing at variety houses, to maintain an attitude of opposition, hostility, and contempt. While the theatre is casting out by sheer superfluities excellent artists who are absorbed into the "sketches" of variety houses, the only thing, as Mr. BOURCHIER put it, is to "hedge." More especially should there be reluctance in lampooning the warm-hearted Water Rats, who have done so much good for their class in charity and in generous assistance to their less fortunate variety brethren. There is another reason, too, why the withdrawal of the reference to the Association in the Marriages of Mayfair is admirable. The rest of the play is such a faithful picture of the manners of the present day; the scenes and the dresses are so marvellously realistic, and the pictures of life so accurate and so true that it seemed a pity that the general effect of the piece should be marred by the introduction of satire which might have been accounted for thirty years ago, but could only be regarded nowadays as a weak point in a drama which professed to furnish a complete reproduction of reality.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the meeting of the council, held at 409, Strand, on Sept. 25. Present:—Mr. Fred Grove (in the chair), Messrs. J. Sebastian Smith, Clarence Derwent, Fewlass Llewellyn, Robson Paige, Fred Annerley, Misses Rose Mathews and Marion Lind, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary).

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Letters from Mr. C. Furrell and Mr. Harry Harrald were read, and the secretary received instructions thereon.

Miss Norma Russell and Miss Leslie Warner were elected members.

The secretary was instructed to write to a local sanitary authority with regard to alleged insanitary dressing-rooms.

A member interviewed the council with reference to the conduct of another member.

"HARD LUCK."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—We wish to tender our heartfelt thanks to the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly responded to the call for help on behalf of our daughter (a student teacher), who, through illness, was compelled to relinquish her occupation. She is at Hastings, and rapidly regaining convalescence, thanks to the aid that came when it was sorely needed. Many thanks to you, Sir, for insertion of letter.—Yours faithfully,

MADELINE and WALTER HANSCOMB.

ENGLISH plays figure largely in the forthcoming Paris season. Miss Pauline Chase and several other English artists are appearing in Mr. Barrie's Pantaloon at the Théâtre des Arts, where there will shortly be presented also a translation of Wilde's Lady Windermere's Fan. The Light that Failed will later introduce Mr. Rudyard Kipling to the French stage. Mrs. Clifford's The Latch will be produced during the season at the same theatre. Mr. Pinero's His House in Order is at the Vaudeville, and David Copperfield, after Dickens, by Max Maurey, will shortly be staged at the Odéon.

The production by the Play Actors of Mr. Byng's new piece, The Success of Sentiment, was witnessed by a large audience at the Court Theatre on Sunday evening, and the author received a far-too-flattering "call" after the curtain had fallen on the final act. The play itself introduces us to one or two rather strange, but yet possible, characters. Some of them are multiloquous, to say the least, and through them are dished up many ancient axioms, as well as common-place reflections of modern origin. Thus we have a conversation between a gentleman of leanings Socialistic and another whose opinions are entirely antithetical to such a creed, the latter's remarks being a successful foil to those of his companion, without either being guilty of greater omniscience than one would expect in the bar of a public house. The author certainly seems to have made an attempt to turn out what no doubt he believes to be phrases and sentiments worthy an honoured place in a book of quotations, but the outcome of his efforts in this respect is a heterogeneous collection of puerilities, most of them lacking both in common-sense and good taste. Generous—indeed, excessively so—as an audience brought together by the Play Actors invariably is, the good folk who sat in the Court Theatre on Sunday evening would scarcely have admitted that their attention had been held from the beginning of the play to its ending. All the scenes are laid in Venice, the opening one introducing us to the private sitting-room of the Shires at the Hotel Britannia. The Shires, by the way, are a married couple—Rupert and Vera, to give them their Christian names—and we are led to believe that they are inherently unsentimental. But they have an old aunt, an authoress, who, in spite of her years and her undoubted experience of life, believes in the romance of human affairs, and in their devotion to her—a devotion somewhat actuated by personal interest—they impiously simulate a characteristic which is to her an essential, and a really beautiful part of her existence. Another married couple, Cuthbert and Lucy Kennet, are also playing the same game, but in a very reprehensible manner. They are ridiculous people, and there is even something absurd in the manner in which Cuthbert attempts to place Rupert and Vera in a most unpleasant situation so that he may gain his own ends with the aunt. The Hon. Arthur Frieton, a professing, if not a practising, Socialist, and a believer in the ethics of "free love," induces Vera to agree to run away with him. The silly conversation between the twain is overheard by Rupert, who promptly, after administering a much too lenient rebuke to Frieton, takes his wife away. After they have gone, Cuthbert Kennet suggests to Frieton a means of securing Vera, by bringing about a divorce between husband and wife. He hands to the Socialist an innocent letter which, by the addition of a few words, can be made sufficiently incriminating for the purpose. Frieton accepts the letter, apparently with the intention of acting upon Kennet's advice, but in a meeting of all the parties at Lady Kennet's hotel sitting-room he confesses that he was too much of a coward to carry out the plan to its successful fulfilment. In the end there is a reconciliation between the Shires, brought about by the kindly offices of Lady Mary, and the Kennets are disgraced.

The piece was acted probably as well as such a piece could be. Miss Kate Carlyon's portrayal of Lady Mary Kennet stood out as the most satisfactory study in the production. She gave us a sweet character of a white-haired woman, advanced by Time to the honour of many years, whose long acquaintance with the world had not robbed her of that endearing, yet, in her case, discerning sentimentality, which helps so much to make life better worth the living, and leads to the proper realisation of sympathetic conduct and feeling towards others. Mr. Frank G. Bayly acted well as the matter-of-fact Rupert Shires; and Miss Valerie Salberg was charming, though possibly ultra-vivacious, as Vera. Mr. Edward Rigby was placed in a difficult position in undertaking the rôle of Cuthbert Kennet. The character was an indifferent piece of drawing on the part of the author, but such humorous possibilities as there were in it were taken full advantage of by Mr. Rigby. Mr. Edmund Waller made the most of his part as the imperturbable Socialist, Arthur Frieton, carrying out the author's ideas of a "Social reformer" who is impervious to decent feeling, and more like a piece of well-oiled mechanism than a human being. Miss Gillian Scaife furnished a praiseworthy portraiture as Lucy Kennet.

"WHILE touring the south of England," writes Mr. Butler Stanhope, "I visited a seaport town, and played one of those nautical dramas, now nearly out of date, full of broadsword combats, astounding situations, and hairbreadth escapes, in which the hero knocks the 'supers' about, calling them 'Piratical swabs and cowardly landlubbers.' The supers on the Saturday night struck work; for what cause I do not know. They had in the last scene to tie the hero to a post, and leave him to die. They were determined to be revenged, and so fastened the actor up with all sorts of knots, in spite of his remonstrances. They then made a hasty exit from the theatre. The critical moment arrived, and the heroine had to come through a high window and slide down a rope on to the stage and release her lover. She found she could not untie him, he was so well bound up. The low comedian ran on, made a speech, and set to work to untie the rope; but all in vain. The villain was outside shouting from the wings, 'Now, then, look sharp! Cut the rope if you can't untie it'; but there was no knife forthcoming. A sailor from the pit called out, 'Hold hard a minute, and I'll have a try.' He clambered at once on to the stage, and finally released the actor to the great satisfaction of the audience, who loudly applauded. The sailor bowed his acknowledgments, and left the stage. The heavy man dashed on, saying as he did so, 'Ha, ha! you thought to escape me, my fine young spark; but you'll die.' The hero picked up a sword lying on the stage, saying, 'No, Heaven has placed a weapon in my hands, and I'll fight to the last.' A little girl ran on, the hero took her on his shoulders, fought and killed the villain, and the play ended happily."

THE number of Parisian artists who turn their backs on the music-hall to try their luck on the regular stage increases daily. Some time ago Girier went over to the Nouveautés, Mistinguett to the Bouffes Parisiens, and Moricey to the Variétés. The music hall will shortly lose Mme. Anna Thibaud. That talented lady will make her début at the Enghien Casino in Mariage d'Etoile, the well-known comedy by MM. Bisson and G. Thurner. Curiously enough, Mme. Jeanne Granier, when she gave up operetta, also made her début in the same piece.

HENRY IRVING SHAKESPEARE.

"THE ERA'S" OFFER.

We announce in another column an offer to our readers of a new and cheap edition of "The Henry Irving Shakespeare" on specially advantageous terms. Editions of the greatest dramatist's works are innumerable, but the one that bears the name of the departed Chief—a student and a scholar, as well as a great actor—carries the hall-mark of thoroughness in its artistic beauty and literary excellence. The illustrations—mostly by Mr. Gordon Browne, with the assistance in six of the plays of Mr. W. H. Margetson, Mr. Frank Dadd, and Mr. Maynard Brown—certainly realise the characters of the plays in a way that appeals equally to the student of the text and the art critic. It was said of a great caricaturist whose black-and-white work is to be found in many volumes published during the last century that his women are hideous. Shakespeare's heroines have invariably inspired artists, and how beautifully Mr. Gordon Browne has caught the expression of the tired and lovelorn Rosalind is to be learnt from the full-page etching of Touchstone, Celia, and Rosalind in the Forest of Arden. Again, how happy is the artist in the varied expression he is able to put into the features of the clowns and comic characters of the immortal comedies. In its illustrations alone, therefore, the Irving Shakespeare stands unrivalled.

The patient research and the untiring care of the editors are to be discovered in the introductions to each play, carefully collated from the most reliable authorities, and in the notes concerning the text; but the guiding principle which has been kept in view throughout is the treatment of Shakespeare's work as that of a dramatist, whose plays were intended not to be read as poetical exercises, but to be represented by living men and women before a general audience. The text is given unmutilated, un-Bowdlerised, and Sir Henry Irving has specially marked those portions which, in his judgment, had best be omitted in dramatic presentation.

For the convenience of the student, as well as of the general reader, the Introductions to each play have been divided into three heads: (1) "The Literary History," which treats of the various early editions of the plays and the sources whence the plot, or dialogue, may have been wholly, or in part, borrowed. (2) "The Stage History"—which, in many cases, is very scanty, as we have so few early records of the representations of Shakespeare's plays—giving an account of any remarkable stage versions of the plays which may have been produced, as well as some notice of the most remarkable performances and of any notable cast. (3) "The Critical Remarks," indicating for the reader's guidance the general tone and purport of the play, and calling attention to any noteworthy features in the structure of the plot or in the treatment of the characters.

In this new edition the work has been divided into volumes of more handy size. An appreciation of the late Sir Henry Irving has been given by his friend Mr. Bram Stoker. An important addition has also been made in Mr. Jerome Harrison's description of The Shakespeare Land, forming part of Vol. 14 of the work, which is richly illustrated with half-tone reproductions from photographs specially made for the purpose. From an artistic point of view a notable feature of the present edition is the series of reproductions of pictures by eminent Academicians that form the frontispieces of the several volumes.

On the question of the mounting of Shakespeare, it is interesting to note that Sir Henry Irving, who followed the example of Charles Kean in the elaborate completeness of his dressing and setting of the works of the Bard, quite justifies Mr. Tree's theories of the stage representation of the great dramatist's works. Sir Henry wrote:—

"Much objection has been made to the employment of the sister arts of music and painting in the stage representation of Shakespeare, and to the elaborate illustrations of the countries in which the various scenes are laid, or of the dress and surroundings of the different characters. I do not contend that a play, fairly acted, cannot be fully effective without any of these aids and adjuncts. But, practically, their value has ceased to be a matter of opinion; they have become necessary. They are dictated by the public taste of the day—not by the desire for mere scenic display, but that demand for finish in details which has grown with the development of art in all its phases. A painter who should neglect truthful detail, however broad and powerful his method, would nowadays be exposed to severe criticism. This is not a proof of decadence; it is a striving after completeness. The stage has become not only a mirror of the passions, but also a nursery of the arts, for here students of the past learn the form and colour of the costumes and the decorations of distant ages. To all this there are clear limits. It is not always possible to reproduce an historic period with exactness. Macbeth, and Lear, and Hamlet belong to history too remote for fidelity of costume. But a period has, in such cases, to be chosen and followed with conscientious thoroughness, tempered by discrimination. Above all, the resources of the picturesque must be wholly subordinate to the play. Mere pageant apart from the story has no place in Shakespeare, although there may be a succession of truthful and harmonious pictures which shall neither hamper the natural action, nor distract the judgment from the actor's art. In fine, there is no occasion to apologise for the system of decoration. True criticism begins when the manager carries ornament to excess, for then he sins against the laws of beauty as well as against the poet. Tried by this standard, a successful representation of a Shakespeare play may be ranked as a worthy tribute to the genius which commands the homage of all art, and which has laid on us the memorable injunction of 'an honest method, as wholesome as sweet, and by very much more handsome than fine.'"—(Hamlet, ii. 2. 165-167.)"

Our special terms brings these beautiful volumes within reach of all those who love their Shakespeare. All our readers have to do is to forward us 6s. (six shillings) to-day, and the complete edition will be dispatched, carriage paid. Nine payments of a similar sum, and one payment of 3s. will complete the purchase. Each subscriber is entitled to a magnificent photogravure portrait of Sir Henry Irving in the character of Hamlet.

AN action for breach of promise has been brought by Miss Ada Louise Lonsdale, an actress, in New York, against Mr. Blaine Elkins, son of Senator Stephen B. Elkins, and brother of Miss Katherine Elkins, who is engaged to the Duke of the Abruzzi. £25,000 damages are demanded by Miss Lonsdale, who declares that she possesses 300 letters full of passionate protestations of undying affection from the defendant.

AT the King's Theatre, Sunderland, Tom Jones is being played by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company. Mr. Dan Rolyat created much amusement as Benjamin Partridge, and kept the house in continuous laughter; the part of Tom Jones was in the able hands of Mr. Harry Welchman, whose fine voice and presence were much admired; Mr. Ambrose Manning as Squire Western gave a fine picture of a hearty country squire; Miss Florence Smithson as Sophia was a pronounced success, with her sweet and winning ways. Her waltz song was particularly well received. She was ably assisted by Miss Isabel Dillon as Honour. Others noticeable in a good all-round company were Mr. G. T. Macmillan as Gregory, Mr. Dean Percival as Blifil, Mr. T. Morley as Allworthy, Miss Alice Oppity as Lady Bellaston, and Miss Mary Southwell as Miss Western.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"MADAME BLUFF,"

Comedy, in Three Acts, by M. Alexandre Debray, produced at the Bouffes-Parisiens on Sept. 26.

Mme. Cassagnol ..... MME. AUGUSTINE LERICHE
Marcelle ..... MLLE. SUZANNE GOLDSTEIN
Marthe ..... MLLE. GERMAINE ETY
Mlle. Gourmaion ..... MLLE. JEANNE WILLEMS
Miss Watson ..... MLLE. CEZANNE
Cassagnol ..... M. MILO
Préfailles ..... M. CAZALIS
Pouloche ..... M. GALLET
Pigeard ..... M. PREVOST
Chanterelle ..... M. BONVALLET

PARIS, THURSDAY, Oct. 1.—The heroine in M. Alexandre Debray's new play, brought out at the Bouffes-Parisiens, is Mme. Cassagnol, the wife of a Government official. Ambitious, grasping, and with extravagant tastes, she bluffs everybody in order to raise her husband's social and financial position. Her great desire is to invite Pouloche, the millionaire, to her salons, but all her efforts in that direction fail. Baffled and furious, she vents her anger on the luckless Chanterelle, her son-in-law, and under the pretext that he has been seen in a cab with a strange lady, she forces her daughter Marcelle to divorce him. At last Mme. Cassagnol succeeds in laying her hands on Pouloche, thanks to whom money at once flows into the house. Serious complications, however, arise. Old Cassagnol's income certainly has doubled, but so has his expenditure; and he is worse in debt than before. As to Marcelle, now divorced from Chanterelle, she is pestered by Pouloche, who wants her to be his mistress. Her mother, scenting danger, comes to the rescue, and bluffs Pouloche into promising that he will ask for Marcelle's hand. In the final act we assist at the crisis. Pouloche flatly refuses to keep his promise, and things threaten to take an ugly turn, when Préfailles, Pouloche's secretary, in a charming scene informs Marcelle that he has always loved her, and asks her to become his wife. Mme. Augustine Leriche as the scheming Mme. Cassagnol has a rôle that suited her to the ground. That clever artist was ably assisted by M. Cazalis, a delightful Préfailles; by Mlle Goldstein, a bewitching Marcelle; by MM. Gallet and Milo and Mmes. Ety and Cézanne.

THE management of the Odéon may be congratulated on having unearthed a curious comedy called Le Cœur et la Dot, produced for the first time at the Comédie-Française in 1852, then, for some unaccountable reason, withdrawn from the répertoire. The play having been written at the beginning of the Second Empire, all the personages wear the dress of that period, including the crinoline, which forms an amusing and fitting accompaniment to some of the old-fashioned sentiments expressed therein. The plot is simple. Adèle Desperriers, a pretty girl, is in love with Henri Dumège, a talented young musician. He, however, is poor, and Adèle, who also thinks herself penniless, reluctantly follows her mother to Vichy, where the latter hopes to find a suitable husband for her daughter. But Adèle is not penniless. She is on the point of inheriting some £25,000, a fact of which neither mother nor daughter is aware. The only person in the secret is Chavarot, a lawyer, who hopes to reap the benefit of this early information by marrying Adèle. Fortunately, Nanon watches over her young mistress. Nanon is only Adèle's maid, but she plays an important rôle in the piece, and is nicknamed "La cherchouse" because she has a wonderful talent for bringing to light the most hidden secrets. Suspecting the lawyer of some evil design, she ferrets out the secret of the legacy, and baffles the man's attempts to secure Adèle, who becomes the wife of her beloved musician. The work was capitally acted.

"L'OR," the melodrama by MM. René Peter and Robert Danveny, produced at the Sarah Bernhardt Theatre, is such a poor affair as to make us wonder how the great Sarah allowed such stuff to be given at her house, even during her absence from Paris. In a clumsy manner the authors attack the aristocracy and the Jews, whom they hold responsible for all the evils that befall Society. The principal personage is Wahl, a kind of Hebrew Mephistopheles. His father, whilst in the employ of the rich manufacturer Joulin, had—some twenty years before the story begins—appropriated a sum of money to save one of his relatives from ruin; and his employer, on discovering the theft, showed himself pitiless towards the erring clerk, who drowned himself to escape punishment. The son, having changed his name into that of Wahl, swears to be avenged on Joulin, junior, who has succeeded his father in the business, and he employs diabolical means to carry out his scheme. He begins by prevailing on Count de Frégouze to break off his engagement with Gysèle, a charming but poor girl, and to marry a rich widow. He then induces the Count to supply him with the necessary funds to start a huge industrial undertaking in opposition to Joulin, whom he then ruins. Like an evil spirit, Wahl scatters misfortune around him, and greedy aristocrats help him in his work of destruction. The piece was very badly acted.

"LE PETIT FOUCHARD,"

Comedy, in Three Acts, by MM. Raymond and Sylvane, produced at the Gymnase on Sept. 30.

Holzapfel ..... M. DUMENY
Misseron ..... M. G. DUBOSC
Fouchard ..... M. MATRAT
Lucien ..... M. JEAN DAX
Mme. Misseron ..... MME. HENRIOT
Mélie ..... MLLE. RENEE MAUPIN
Renée ..... MLLE. FREVALLES

MM. Raymond and Sylvane have give us an amusing trifle, wherein three babies—one of them unborn—play the leading rôles. M. and Mme. Misseron, retired tradespeople, are a devoted couple. They are rich; they have a charming villa; but there is a dark spot in their happiness. Devotedly fond of children, they have no offspring. When the story opens Mélie, their servant, informs them with tears in her eyes that Holzapfel, a gendarme, has seduced her, and that she soon expects to become a mother. Despite M. Misseron's entreaties, Holzapfel refuses to repair the harm by making the girl his wife. But Mélie is in luck. Fouchard, the rural postman, has fallen in love with her, and, although she is not a virgo intacta, he marries her, and gives the child, a little boy, his own name. The sight of the baby makes the Misserons mad with joy; and in order to have it constantly with them they make Fouchard give up his berth as postman and appoint him their gardener. Fouchard, however, is shrewd. Seeing his master so wrapped up in little Jean, he hardly does any work, and lives in idleness. He even threatens to go away, taking his wife and child with him, whereupon the terrified Misserons promise to make him a handsome allowance on condition that for the next six years he shall remain with them—a condition which the wily Fouchard readily accepts. But Misseron has a nephew, Lucien, living in Vienna, who speculates on inheriting his uncle's fortune. Lucien, his wife, and their baby arrive at the villa at the moment that Misseron has signed his agreement with Fouchard, and Lucien's anger at discovering this rival baby leads to a most comical scene. The situation is indeed becoming very complicated, but the authors have solved the difficulty in a rather unexpected fashion. Mme. Misseron, although bordering upon fifty, suddenly discovers that Nature has worked a miracle, and that she will bring a little Misseron into the world. But her husband's joy is not shared by his nephew and by Fouchard, whose two babies have now lost all chance of inheriting the coveted fortune. The farce, which met with an excellent reception, was spiritedly played by the smart Gymnase company.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Madge Rickards, Mr. and Mrs. Maas, and Mr. J. W. Winton sailed for Australia on Friday, 25th ult., per P. and O. steamer Moldavia. Mr. Rickards's message sent through us is: "Kind regards to all old friends, and many thanks to managers for their courtesy. Hope to be with you all next year."

Mr. Ben Nathan, when hearing the Earl of Shaftesbury's voice at a church, became impressed with the possibilities of a professional career for that young nobleman, and secured a provisional contract for him to appear for thirty consecutive weeks in the States at a salary of 5,000 dollars weekly, under the management of William Morris, Limited. But the Earl is not dazzled by the prospect of a stage career, and has declined.

A correspondent writes:—"It must have afforded immense pleasure to the King to hear Harry Lauder, on his recent visit to Rufford Abbey, make the remark: 'I am very pleased indeed to meet your Majesty.' It is such touching civilities as these that make the lot of Edward VII. quite a happy one."

Mrs. G. W. Moore, wife of the veteran minstrel, G. W. (Pony) Moore, has been ordered away to Bexhill-on-Sea by her medical advisers, Drs. Percy Smith and H. J. Macevoy. She is suffering from nervous breakdown. The veteran, who is now eighty-eight years of age, greatly misses his beloved partner and constant companion, and we hope soon to hear of her complete recovery.

Miss Adeline Genée, the Empire danseuse, landed at New York on Tuesday for her American tour. To the question, "Are you married?" she replied: "No, I am not even engaged; but if I were it would not be so wonderful, would it? It is woman's sphere to marry, you know; but I am not engaged and not married. I have two years' more contract in the United States. As long as I am dancing I will not marry; and when I marry, if I should, I will not dance."

Miss Marie Lloyd, like the late Nellie Farren, is one of the "darlings of the gods," and on Saturday night she must have been more than delighted with the compliment paid to her by the gallery boys at the Hammersmith Palace. By means of a rope they lowered, to her great surprise, an immense horseshoe of flowers, which she was requested to accept. It was with some difficulty that she returned thanks. The honour is a rare one. It was conferred on the famous Gaiety actress mentioned above when she made her first appearance at that house after her return from America.

Mr. John P. Harrington trusts that the many correspondents who have during the current week written felicitating him upon the sole managership of that flourishing business, the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., will kindly accept his sincere thanks, and (by proxy) those of his partner, Mr. Tom McNaughton (at present in America), for the compliments and kind wishes for the future prosperity of the firm conveyed by their kind letters—far too many to answer, individually, at this busy time of the year. Mr. Harrington hopes sincerely that all who read these lines will "take the will for the deed."

Mlle. Britta Petersen, who is now busily engaged in preparing for the new Spanish ballet at the Alhambra, due Monday, Oct. 12, is, like Mlle. Genée, a Dane. She has had a training at the Opera House at Copenhagen in grand ballet, and, following the example of her great predecessor, she comes to London to win her spurs at an early age. She is only seventeen years old; but Mr. Alfred Moul, the managing-director of the Alhambra, who saw her in Denmark, speaks of her as a finished artist whose work is more than promising.

The new ballet divertissement, Paquita, Mr. Alfred Moul anticipates, will be presented to his patrons at the Alhambra on Monday, Oct. 12. It is in three scenes, all laid in and around Granada. Mlle. Britta will have—for her—a new rôle, that of a gipsy girl, she having hitherto appeared principally in classic dancing, which is usually de rigueur in the Court Opera House of Denmark. Signor Alfredo Curti, who is arranging and producing the divertissement, and Mr. G. W. Byng, who is providing the music, have taken care that she shall have every opportunity of exhibiting her talents.

There is to be a dance of veiled maidens, culminating in a wild Bacchanal, during which is heard an old Moorish march for the entrance of the Prince. Other notable numbers are an anvil dance, a dance of muleteers and water-carriers, and a farandole, with special bell effects. Mr. E. H. Ryan has painted some gorgeous scenery, especially the final one, "La Fête Galante," in the Ambassadors' Hall at the Alhambra, in Granada. Alias supplies the costumes of the period designed by Comelli. Mlle. Britta will be supported by that clever dancer and old favourite with Alhambra patrons, Miss Julia Seale, as Prince Philip; Signor G. Rosi as Don Gomez; Signori Santini and Frielli, Messrs. Tom Coventry and G. Almonti; and Mlle. Jacqueline Blaney.

Mr. John Lawson's latest episode, Pigs in Clover, written by Mr. J. J. Spencer Sutcliffe, which was produced last May at the Empire, Edinburgh, will reach London in a much altered state. The plot deals with the problem of intermixed marriages, and the theme has been very skilfully handled by Mr. Sutcliffe. The cast includes Messrs. J. K. Reynolds, H. Schlesinger, Pascoe Bioletti, and Miss Lucille Sidney and Miss Buena Bent. Special effects, including the destruction of an areoplane, are promised, whilst the scenery, naturally, will be in keeping with Mr. Lawson's usual elaborate productions. Mr. Lawson is due at Balham and Putney on Monday.

Miss Topsy Sinden's delightful dancing has been fascinating the lovers of this most difficult art in Liverpool, and the young and pretty artist has been honoured by most unexpected gifts of flowers. She has been repeating her triumphs this week at the Hippodrome, Brighton.

Mrs. May Swales, daughter of the late Mike Mac (Maccabe), writes:—"In your announcement of the death of J. P. McNally (of the original Two Macs) you state that Joe Mac, who was the husband of Alice Maydue, was his partner. I beg respectfully to correct that statement. Mike Maccabe (or Mac), who died April 2, 1894, was the partner of J. P. McNally. Joe Mac did not become one of the Two Macs until Mike Mac and J. P. McNally had dissolved partnership, after which Mike and his brother, Joe Mac, appeared as the Two Macs." Miss Alice Maydue writes to the same effect.

On the same subject we have received the following interesting communication from Mr. George Belmont, late of Sadler's Wells, and now of the Marquis of Granby, Cambridge Circus. Mr. Belmont writes:—"The original Two Macs were Mike Mac (of Newcastle) and J. P. McNally (of Dublin). Joe Mac was a brother of Mike Mac, and did not join the firm until after the secession of J. P. McNally. I first met and played with them at Brown's Music Hall, Glasgow, as far back as 1879, before their advent into London. Mr. and Mrs. Will Leno and young Dan Patrick (known later as Dan Leno) were also performing at 'Brown's' on this particular occasion."

The Palace Theatre of Varieties, Sunderland, after extensive alterations, reopens on Monday under new management.

At a meeting at the People's Palace, Bristol, on Tuesday, Mr. Horace Livermore was adopted as an independent candidate for municipal honours at the approaching November election in St. Augustine's Ward. It was agreed that the Conservative party in the ward should be written to asking them to withdraw their candidate in view of the adoption of Mr. Livermore.

Mr. R. A. P. Williams, of the Gaiety and Empire, Dundee, is also a candidate for municipal honours. Judging from the able way in which he manages his theatres the town's affairs would be in safe keeping should he be elected, as he undoubtedly will be. He should make a big hit as Lord Provost of Dundee.

The Liverpool Unemployed Fund has during the week been augmented by the following donations:—Royal Hippodrome (Mr. Thomas Barrasford), collections at the doors, £30 13s. 6d.; Messrs. W. H. Broadhead (Pavilion), £10 10s.; Leo Dryden, sale of songs at the Pavilion, £6; Vesta Tilley, £5; Arthur Roberts, £1 1s.; boys who sold Leo Dryden's books, 5s.

The plans for the new Coliseum at Portsmouth, prepared by Messrs. Frank Matcham and Co., the architects of the Coliseum and Hippodrome, London, and many of the suburban and provincial Moss-Stoll Empires, have been passed and approved, so that a commencement may be made with the building on a site purchased some time since. The new house will be run in connection with the leviathan circuit named.

The Coney Island Syndicate have now secured a splendid site in Liverpool, and intend opening a Coney Island there, in addition to Leeds. Mr. Alfred Wood is general-manager for both places, and all communications must be addressed to him.

During the performance last Saturday, Sept. 26, at the Palace Pier Theatre, Brighton, Lord Leighton's "Venus" was presented by Messrs. Coombes and Webb with a gold watch and brooch-pendant as a mark of esteem. Mr. L. Austin Millais made a suitable reply.

Margate intends that English holidaymakers shall have no need to go abroad for rational enjoyment, and an important stage of its policy of keeping abreast of the Continental pleasure resorts has been reached by the decision of the Town Council to buy for £16,000 what is known as the Margate Kursaal site, which occupies about two acres and is on the seafront at the base of the cliffs near Margate's famous jetty.

The half-built Kursaal has had a chequered career. After the Marine Palace at Margate was carried away by the great storm of 1897, there was a scheme for the erection of a concert hall, baths, pavilion, restaurants, and promenades involving an expenditure of £100,000. A new sea-wall was built, and the general buildings were partly completed, when there was a sudden stoppage of work. Repeated attempts were made to obtain capital to complete the work, but without success. The property came into the Court of Chancery, and was put up for sale and subsequently withdrawn.

As is well known, the Margate Corporation make a large profit on their open-air entertainments, admittedly the best of their kind round the coast, and it is computed that over £1,000 is lost each season through the lack of shelter in wet weather. Under the new scheme, when the weather is unfavourable for open-air concerts the Corporation will be able to transfer their entertainers to a large concert hall capable of seating thousands of people.

It is stated that further changes have occurred in regard to the management of the Hippodrome, Grange-road, Birkenhead, formerly the Theatre Metropole, and which has not yet been opened since reconstruction. Messrs. Barrasford and George Dance are reported to have withdrawn, and an authoritative statement has been made that Mr. Walter De Frece has now joined Mr. Will Sley as managing-director of the house. Mr. De Frece hopes to open the Hippodrome in three weeks' time.

The season at New Brighton Tower closes to-day (Saturday, Oct. 3). Yesterday (Friday) the employees of the Tower assembled in the vast ballroom of the Tower and presented to Mr. Arthur Ellis, the resident-manager of the Tower, a handsome ring, together with an illuminated address, as a souvenir of the many kindnesses extended to them during the season. The subscribers included everybody from the offices of the company to the office boy, the gate-keeper, and even the Indians with the Wild West show. Each gave according to his means, and the subscription list was given to Mr. Ellis at his request because of its peculiarly interesting character.

The Tynemouth Palace was put up for auction at the Station Hotel, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Wednesday by Mr. Geo. T. Easten. The bidding was by no means brisk, although the principal amusement caterers were present or represented. The first offer was a bid of £3,000, made by Mr. Joseph Mitchelson, of Blyth; then one of £4,000 by Mr. G. H. Williamson for a client. The sum of £8,000 was then named by the auctioneer, who said: "This is the chance of a lifetime. You buy for £8,000 what cost £120,000. The last glass is turned. It runs quickly. The property is withdrawn." It is anticipated that a sale will be effected by private treaty.

Dr. Walford Bodie still continues his record-breaking tour through Scotland. Last week, at Kirkcaldy, he broke all records for the Hippodrome (late King's Theatre), the takings for the week being over £500. This beats all records for the theatre by nearly £200. He was offered £300 salary to remain another week, but could not do so, being booked at Ayr. He has signed two return dates at the princely salary of £250 per week, for his own act alone. Mr. Williams, of the Gaiety Theatre, Dundee, has offered him a date at £250 per week, and two other dates at £200 for two small towns. This week he is breaking records at the New Gaiety Theatre, Ayr.

Messrs. David Allen and Sons, Belfast, have just completed an entirely new plant of large wall pictorials and lithos for Dr. Walford Bodie, some of them being very striking and really works of art. The Fulwood Printing Co., Ltd., have also completed an entirely new plant of pictorial printing, several being very daring and sensational. The Doctor can now claim to have the finest display of pictorial printing on the road. He can post 1000 sheets without repeating.

At the Winter Gardens, New Brighton, a musical scena, entitled Moments with the Masters, is the chief item. It is most tastefully staged, and the chorus of fifteen juvenile voices is very beautiful, the selections being rendered with spirit and harmony. Scenery, costumes, and electrical effects lend valuable aid. Mr. Patrick Playfair gives an extremely clever exhibition of paper-tearing, and is assisted by Miss Vera Davies, a delightful and artistic singer. Edmunda, with his talking and walking figures, scores well; whilst Mr. Ernest Leslie proves himself a very funny comedian. Mr. G. H. Keith sings acceptably; and the animated pictures are of the very best, clever, and in good taste.

Mr. W. H. Clemart, King Rat and president of the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, will take the chair at the annual general meeting of that Association, to be held at the Bedford Head on Sunday, October 25

An important item at the Oxford on Monday next will be the introduction of a special song-scena by Will Evans. It is entitled Mrs. Morgan's Cure, and has been written and composed by Neville Pigott and George Arthurs.

"The Umbrella Hat," a new song satirising the latest fashion craze, has been most successfully exploited this week, at the Empire, Birmingham, by that always up-to-date comedienne, Miss Daisy James, who has been singing the number since July, in a hat 81in. in circumference. What do Miss Marie George, Miss Madge Temple, and Miss Marie Lloyd say to this? Next, please!

With regard to the Miss Maud Courtney on whom an inquest has been held, we are asked to state that this has no reference to Miss Maud Courtney, the "talkative American girl," who is so popular at the Palace Theatre, and other London houses. The deceased girl, it is stated, was a member of the chorus in the Kitty Grey company.

Mr. Alec Hurley has acquired, with a view to immediate production, Mr. John P. Harrington's new Jap-coster sketch, which is now in active preparation. The title of this new "musical comedietta" is The Cockneys in Japan, and competent critics predict that it will, if anything, outrival in success the same author's Costers' Beano, so long and successfully played by the favourite coster comedian and his talented company.

The little six-year-old son of Florrie Robina and Reed Pinaud has just successfully undergone a serious operation, and is now on the road to recovery. The operation took place at the Evelina Hospital, Southwark. The little fellow made many friends on the Continent, and was a favourite with all, especially at Hamburg, where he picked up the language very quickly.

Miss Millie Hylton has had such a severe attack of influenza that she has been compelled to cease working this past week. She has been staying at Brighton recuperating, and, it is hoped, will be as vivacious as ever by the time she goes to the Manchester Hippodrome, where she will be resplendent in her beautiful gowns made by Louise, of Paris, these latter seen for the first time in the provinces.

Miss Rose Hamilton, who last week played her first engagement at Norwich, is this week making a huge success at Ipswich under the same management. She returns to town Oct. 12, opening at the Chelsea Palace, with new songs and a number of dainty costumes.

Miss Marie Lloyd, the queen of comediennes, in her new songs, will appear at the Tivoli, starting on Monday next, for a very short engagement, prior to her extensive tour. By special request, she will sing her "Directoire" song, and also the song of the "Girl with the naughty eye."

In our list of the wedding presents to Mr. and Mrs. Will Oliver, published in our columns last week, we omitted to mention a silver syphon holder from Mr. and Mrs. T. Parker, a silver clock from Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cowper, and a box of gloves from Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hart.

Mr. Harry Bawn, agent and proprietor, and his charming wife (My Fancy) sailed from Southampton on Wednesday per s.s. Majestic for a short trip to the States. My Fancy will not be able to get as far as St. Louis, her birthplace, but will probably meet some of her relatives in New York. Harry will be looking after novelties for the Empire, Edmonton.

Mr. Bert Errol, who will make his first appearance at the London Pavilion on Monday, is said to be quite indistinguishable on the stage from a lady, and possesses a most natural soprano voice. Another sensation of the programme is Celest, the wonderful wire walker, who returns to renew his triumphs at the Piccadilly Circus house in a very original and clever act.

At the 578th meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A., held at the offices on Wednesday, Mr. Harold Finden occupied the chair, and there were present Lieut. F. Albini, Messrs. Arthur Gallimore, John Alexander, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The financial statement, showing sixty-nine new members and a cash total of £62 5s., was passed.

The Snow Family are now with their skating pantomime at the Rotunda, Dublin, and are causing screams of laughter nightly to delighted audiences.

Messrs. Durham and Ernest's company, in An Uninvited Guest, resumes its tour with that novel and laughable number, opening on Oct. 5 at the Foresters'. The piece since its production a few weeks back has been considerably improved, and nothing has been left undone to ensure its ultimate success and a lengthy run. It is presented by an accomplished trio, including Fred Raines. They have another crisp number in preparation, entitled Look at the Time, which promises to be equally as good as the "Guest."

Victor Niblo, with his wonderful talking birds, opened last week in New York City, where he is a huge success. The polyglot parrot is a novelty in the States.

A complete Lilliputian circus was a new attraction at the Hippodrome on Monday. The performers are the Zeynards—ten tiny men and women who do everything that their taller brothers and sisters of the ring can perform. There is an equestrian act with a dwarf pony, in which appear two performers whose combined height is only 4ft. 6in.; there is a strong man "turn" by a pocket Hercules of 3ft. nothing; a globe-running act by a lady 2ft. 9in. high, and a Tyrolean song and dance "turn" by two clever little mannikins belonging to the company. Finally, the whole troupe appear in a Russian song and dance. The Zeynards are making their début in England.

Mr. Alfred Butt will submit at the Palace Theatre on Monday several interesting novelties. Miss Margaret Cooper, with her sparkling songs at the piano, will return with some fresh musical numbers, and other artists new to the programme will be Miss Jose Delaine and Mr. Sidney Lee, the popular society conjurer.

What may prove a distinctive novelty to this country is to be given also on Monday, when Moran and Wiser will make their début. It is said proverbially that a straw will show which way the wind blows, and a straw hat, when it careers along the muddy Strand, will do much the same thing; but these young Americans—wiser in their generation—throw this sort of headgear among their audiences with the greatest nonchalance and confidence, because, unlike the unfortunate speculator, they can always reckon upon quick returns. Palace audiences will therefore have the unique spectacle of watching these hats circling above them, and "boomeranging" to the stage to be caught. The speed with which Moran and Wiser exchange hats from side to side of the stage is said to be extraordinary.

During the progress of a melodramatic sketch at a suburban Hippodrome this week the hero has to say, "Shall I kill him?" The actor was astonished one evening to hear a piping voice from the pit reply: "Yes, guv'nor, for Gawd's sake do!"

Mr. Oswald Stoll is renewing for the third time his application to the London County Council for a licence for a Finsbury Park Empire, close to tube, tram, and terminus. On two previous applications the local opposition has been too strong.

The application for a licence for the London Hippodrome, which is signed by Sir Edward Moss, asks for the removal of the restrictions regarding refreshment or a modification of them. The refusal to grant the same privileges as those enjoyed by the Empire, Alhambra, and Palace was carried by a snatch vote in 1899.

The Terriers will give their first concert of the season on Sunday next at their headquarters, the Dover Castle Hotel, at 8.30 p.m. Friends (ladies especially) are invited.

Miss Patty Yole returns to town on Monday to commence the Gibbons circuit, opening at the Duchess, Balham. Next week she welcomes back her husband, George Regan (of that well-known duo Regan and Ryan), fresh from Australian triumphs.

Mr. Joe Elvin's chauffeur, George Albert Wallace, was summoned at Kingston on Wednesday for having exceeded the ten miles an hour limit at Kingston. The evidence showed that the pace was seventeen miles an hour, and defendant, who admitted the fact, was fined £1.

Miss Geraldine Montrose, who is playing in Mr. Leslie Clare's sketch Wanted, a Wife, was last week presented by the management of Sadler's Wells, where they were performing, with a handsome bouquet of flowers, Mr. Murray himself making the presentation.

The Dayton Family have returned to England after a most successful Continental tour. Their extraordinary Risley performance has been a great success at Nice, Marseilles, Milan, Barcelona, Madrid, Paris, and other towns. In Madrid they had the honour to perform twice before their Majesties the King and Queen of Spain, and have been highly complimented upon their clever and interesting performance.

Mr. J. D. Harris and his troupe of actor-musicians, known as the Ten Loonies, who, of course, are as sane as most men, will present at the Hackney Empire next week the altogether original antics of a band composed of harmless lunatics. Nothing has been left undone to faithfully copy such a scene, and even the members of the troupe have been given names in accordance with the characters they represent.

Will anybody of good repute and of a charitable disposition adopt a clever, well-trained, and tractable little black piccaninny? There is no bunkum about this request. The little fellow's pet name is Piggy, and he has been performing with Miss Ethel Whiteside as one of her Piccaninnies. He is exceedingly clever, and will be performing at the Oxford for a period of four weeks from Monday next. Any person who seriously desires to consider the matter would oblige by communicating direct with Mr. H. W. Garrick, Durham House-street, Strand, W.C.

Mr. Louis Cohen's sketch, Davy Garrick, as presented by Mr. Hubert Carter and company at the Coliseum, finds an interested audience. Mr. Carter himself undertakes the rôle of Garrick, and portrays what is a difficult character exceedingly well. Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem gives us a most entertaining study of Araminta Brown, realising to the full the comic possibilities of the part. Miss K. Russell is charming and quite unaffected as Ada Ingot, and Mr. H. Cave is a capital representative of the theatre-hating old alderman. The playlet is exceedingly well staged and mounted.

Mr. Harry J. Brett, who is now filling the position of manager for Mr. George Dance at the Richmond Hippodrome, held the post of assistant-manager to Mr. Cecil Paget at the Crown, Peckham, for eleven years. He has had an extensive and varied experience. When Alderman Treloar was Lord Mayor of London a most successful matinée was organised at the Peckham theatre by Mr. Paget, who was largely assisted by Mr. Brett, and in the end over £100 was raised, of which portions went to the Cripples' Fund and the Camberwell Pension Fund.

The football match between the Tivoli and Compass teams was played at Tooting on the 27th ult., when the Tivoli won rather easily by 9—1. The first half was well contested, the Compass being the first to score, one of their forwards heading the ball through from a beautifully-placed corner kick. Then the Tivoli equalised, and were one up at half-time. In the second half the Tivoli had it all their own way, adding no less than seven goals. It was apparent that the Tivoli were in far better condition, as they played strongly right up to the final whistle.

Mr. Jess Smith, assistant manager of the Empire, Shepherd's Bush, since its inception, took his farewell on Saturday last to join the New Bioscope Trading Company as district manager. The leave-taking was marked in a special manner by several presentations, the gifts being a wrist strap with watch from the front staff, gold sleeve-links from the police, and a purse of sovereigns from the patrons. Among the members of the Testimonial Committee were Sir William Bull, the Rev. Cartmel Robinson, and the Rev. Stewart Headlam. Mme. Effie de Bathe (the treasurer) in making the presentation wished Mr. Smith the success he deserved in his new appointment.

In the Vacation Court on Wednesday Mr. Justice Coleridge granted an injunction, moved for by Mr. Harry Relph (Little Tich), until trial, or a further order, restraining Mr. Barry Gilmore from performing at the Waterloo Theatre, Whitby, or elsewhere, in the name of Little Tich, and also an injunction restraining him and Mr. Bainbridge, as lessee and manager of the Waterloo Theatre, from representing that Little Tich was performing at that theatre. The defendants had advertised that "Little Tich" would perform at the Waterloo Theatre. On the bills the name "Little Tich" appeared in large letters, while the name "Barry Gilmore" appeared in much smaller type underneath. The plaintiff complained that defendants' action was calculated to damage his reputation.

Mr. Paul Pelham, comedian, descriptive vocalist, and song and sketch writer, was summoned to Shoreditch on Tuesday, before his Honour Judge Smyly, K.C., to answer a judgment summons for 10s. 3d., issued at the instance of Henry Bennon, of 91, Dalston-lane, N.E., a tailor, for work done. The defendant did not appear. Judge Smyly: Is he in work?—He was last week, at the Hippodrome. Do you mean the Hippodrome at Charing Cross?—No, at Shoreditch, your Honour. I also saw a bill of a sketch at the Palace, Stoke Newington, the other day, and it said, "Written by Paul Pelham." Judge Smyly: Under those circumstances I think an amount of this description will not hurt him, and I will make an order for the payment in a month, or in default ten days' imprisonment.

The ukase has gone forth:—"No member of the V.A.F. must, under any circumstances whatever, visit the offices of any agent who has not already accepted the V.A.F. office copy." Messrs. Fred Neiman, Sam L. Bury, and Sam Hart have taken their names off the list of those agents who accepted the V.A.F. 10 per cent. model office copy.

Mlle. Naverda, the prepossessing lady illusionist, is giving quite a heavy spectacular turn at the Blackpool Palace this week, and is astonishing the audiences with quite a number of new surprises, including the production of "Eve in the Garden of Eden," from an apparently empty cabinet, with astounding celerity. Many of the Blackpool boys say that "Eve" is very attractive, and wonder where Adam is.

Mr. Justice Coleridge on Wednesday refused to grant the Alhambra Company an injunction restraining Miss Cissie Loftus from accepting an engagement with the Coliseum, which, they said, would amount to a breach of her contract to appear in the Alhambra for twelve weeks.

The Rats' eighth grand Bohemian smoking concert will be held at the Vaudeville Club, 98, Charing Cross-road, to-morrow (Sunday) at 9.30 p.m. King Rat (W. H. Clemart) will be in the chair.

Mr. Barney Armstrong, who sails to-day for America, has just accepted a special "skit" from the pens of John P. Harrington and Orlando Powell. It is entitled Directoire Lizzie, which he will specially produce on the other side.

Wills and Mackenzie open on Monday at the Empire, Camberwell, in their novel vocal scena Christina of Sketra. Mr. Richard Douglass, the clever scenic artist, has painted some fine cloths for this production. The words are by John Wills and Esmé Austin.

Mr. Harris Fineberg, the well-known actor, who has recently returned from South Africa, will shortly produce in the halls a powerful dramatic episode, entitled Reunited, specially written for him by the well-known sketch author, Mr. John Jackson.

Princess Pauline, who was appearing last week at the Pavilion, Glasgow, was on Thursday, Sept. 24, in the first house greatly surprised at the greeting extended to her from a great number of the Order of the Eastern Star sisters and brethren, and at the conclusion of her performance was presented with a handsome bouquet, bearing the following:—"Compliments from the Sisters of the Order of the Eastern Star."

Miss Beatrice Felsted, who is again engaged by Mr. J. F. Elliston for pantomime, 1908-9, will resume after Christmas her tour with illustrated pictures. She has secured a long list of bookings.

On the occasion of the unveiling of the monument to the men of the Worcester Regiment who fell in the Boer War, Mr. Arthur Carlton invited all the old Crimean and other veterans to the evening performance at the Theatre and Palace, Worcester. Mr. Carlton got Mr. F. V. St. Clair to write some special lines for the occasion, and these were admirably recited by Mr. Will McIvor. The rendering of the little poem evidently delighted the gallant old fellows.

Carl and Carr, comedians, in A Drawing-room Interlude, are booked for three years with the Moss and Stoll Combine, including the London Coliseum.

A matinée in aid of the fund for the relief of needy survivors of the Light Brigade charge will be held at the Alhambra, on Saturday, Oct. 24. Mr. Alfred Moul and the directors have generously promised (for the fourth time) to provide the whole of the entertainment. Mrs. Clement-Scott will recite "The Charge of the Light Brigade," assisted by buglers and drummers of the London Rifle Brigade, and surrounded by a contingent of the survivors of the charge. Applications for tickets (1s. to £2 2s.) should be made to the Concert Manager, 1 and 2, Plough-court, Fetter-lane, E.C.

Miss Melinda May, secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., desires to thank Miss Marie Lloyd for her very kind gift of a guinea. Mrs. Herbert Shelley made a pretty bonnet and sent it to the Guild, and it was sold the same day. Will Mrs. Shelley accept best thanks, also Miss Belle Elmore, Miss Georgie Corlass, and Mrs. Northcott for very useful parcels of clothing, and Mrs. Chas. Mitchell for gentlemen's ties, and for the anonymous gift of a silk petticoat? Miss May would be grateful for gentlemen's as well as ladies' wearing apparel. Such help enables the unemployed to make a presentable appearance and to obtain engagements. Friends of the charity are heartily welcome to the receptions, held every Wednesday from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Mr. Brewster's Six Canadians have met with most gratifying success all through their tour in Spain and Portugal, their engagements having been prolonged at every theatre and circus they have played.

William Bell, a labourer, living at Somers Town, was charged, on remand, at Bow-street on Wednesday, with stealing two seat covers, worth 10s., from the stalls of the Holborn Empire, where he had occasionally been employed as a cleaner. Mr. E. L. Conroy, the manager, said there was no disposition on the part of the Holborn Empire (Limited) to press the charge, but it was felt necessary to proceed against the prisoner as a warning to others. He was sentenced to one month's hard labour.

On Saturday, at the North London Police Court, Bertie Warrant, 26, no fixed abode, was charged, on remand, with stealing from the balcony office at the Hackney Empire Music Hall, at 10.15 p.m. on Sept. 14, 10s., the property of the Moss' Empires, Ltd. Fresh evidence on this occasion was by Harry Lock, a street seller of newspapers. He deposed that he saw prisoner smash the window of the office with the large piece of paving-stone produced, grab something through the hole he had made, and put it in his pocket. He then ran away. He saw him the next morning, and prisoner said, "I only 'clicked' 10s. I tried for the silver, but could not get it." Prisoner pleaded that he was in drink or he would not have done it. He asked to be dealt with now, and so given a chance. Mr. Fordham sent him for trial, there being a number of convictions against him.

Cruikshank, who is due at Hackney Empire next week, commenced his music-hall career some nine years ago. He owes much of his success on the variety stage to his early training in the circuses. His father, the late Mr. W. C. Cruikshank, was a well-known ring jester, who worked most of the circuses in the last generation, including the celebrated Hengler's and Newsome's. The younger Cruikshank was born in 1875 in Dundee. His earliest appearance was as a child in a pantomime of Cinderella. In those days all the children of the members of a circus company used to take part in the productions for the purpose of gaining experience. Cruikshank's first act of any importance was a wire-walking one, which he did in connection with his two brothers, the trio forming the Cruikshank Family. Eventually he relinquished the wire and seceded from his brother, and after that worked as a "single turn."

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

AMONG the new songs being placed on the market by Messrs. Francis and Day are Mr. Ernest Shand's fine humorous number "What would the congregation say?" by Bert Lee; "The Valley of Hushabye," by Percy Edgar, Fred Warwick, and Julian Wilson; "The Truth," written by Nat Mayer for Mr. Wilkie Bard; and Mr. Fred Spencer's song, "Sweep! Sweep! Sweep!" by Medley Barrett and Haydon Pearsall.

MR. FROHMAN some time since, having been struck by the enormous success so deservedly attained by Miss Vesta Victoria in America with the songs entitled "Waiting at the church," "Poor John!" and "Don't get married any more, ma!" commissioned the English writers, Fred W. Leigh and Henry E. Pether, to supply striking numbers for pieces he was interested in, and the acumen of the great impresario has recently been fully justified. Miss Hattie Williams in Fluffy Ruffles has made an enormous hit with their new song "Willie's got another girl now," which Messrs. Francis and Day have published, and the author and composer—the only two selected by Mr. Frohman to write special numbers—have received the heartiest congratulations from brother writers on their deserved success.

A GREAT comic number for pantomime has been secured by Messrs. Francis and Day in "This little piggy went to market," by Harry Leighton and Medley Barrett, which will be issued immediately, and no "annual" will be considered complete that does not include the same firm's laughable duet for low comedian and dame, entitled "Do you remember? How can I forget!" by H. F. Greenfield.

ADVICES from Manchester chronicle the enormous hit just made by Miss Harriett Vernon in a new song by that talented American team Jerome and Schwartz, entitled "Kiss your soldier-boy goodbye." F. W. Leigh has written additional verses and Messrs. Francis and Day publish the item, which will be very much in evidence in first-class pantomimes.

MR. ARCHIE MILLS, of Nottingham, the smart young Colwick Hall pierrot who recently wrote for, and had a song accepted by, Miss Vesta Tilley, had the felicity a day or so since of being introduced to the great artist, who warmly congratulated him on the number, which is entitled "That's the time a fellow wants his ma." Maurice Scott has set it to music, and it is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS MARIE LLOYD has accepted a particularly smart song, by Fred Murray and Charles Hilbury, entitled "Rosie had a very rosy time." When the great artist has finished with, at present, her best song in most critics' opinion—to wit, "Rumtiddley-um-tum-ta," by F. W. Leigh—she has another low-life humorous number ready in its place, entitled "With my little bunch of daisies in my hand," by the author of "The 'ouses in between," the music by H. E. Pether.

MESSRS. FRANCIS AND DAY are issuing Billy Hobbs's song, entitled "Stand and deliver, Isabella Brown!" by F. J. Barnes, Charles Collins, and Harry Castling, and a striking ballad by F. W. Leigh and C. W. Murphy called "Shine on me, little sunray."

"MY GIRL'S A YORKSHIRE GIRL," the song with which Miss Florrie Gallimore is making such a huge hit, is in great demand for pantomime, and the writers, Messrs. C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton, are to be congratulated upon finding in one season three such successes as Miss Florrie Forde's "Oh! Oh! Antonio," Miss Madge Temple's "Esau, Esau, take me on the see-saw," another prospective pantomime favourite, and the aforementioned "My girl's a Yorkshire girl." These new numbers are published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MISS MARIE LLOYD purposes producing, early next week at all her "turns" a new and highly-diverting "skit" on the general exodus of theatrical beauties from the ranks of musical-comedydom into the "hupper suckles" lately. This entertaining number is entitled "If you want to marry an earl," and is from the same fluent pens responsible for "The Directoire girl," and "I can't make my eyes be good," those of Messrs. John P. Harrington and Orlando Powell, to wit.

A SPECIAL message from America, from Mr. Joseph ("Futurity") Hart, anent the success which his wife, Miss Carrie de Mar, has just achieved in New York with Messrs. John P. Harrington and Orlando Powell's two songs, "Winkie Winnie" and "Gentle Maiden," specially written for the American star prior to her departure from England, has caused much jubilation in the region of Berners-street. Mr. Hart's cable was laconic in the extreme, simplying mentioning the names of the two songs in question, with the highly-significant appendix, "Both big hits."

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company has just acquired the publishing rights of Messrs. John P. Harrington and Orlando Powell's new costume "production" number, "Little maid of Brittany." Admitting, as it does, of the wearing of the picturesque Breton peasant costume, the number should be in universal demand for either principal boy or girl.

A. J. MILLS and Bennett Scott have written a new Irish chorus song entitled "Molly Maloney," and those who have been privileged to hear the number declare it to be the best song written by these celebrated writers since their famous "Zuyder Zee" ditty. They are anxious that those artists who have made hits with their chorus songs should communicate with them re this splendid new number. Copies are to be had from the Star Music Co.

MISS MARIE BLYTHE, at present creating a furore with Teddy Sullivan and Bennett Scott's great motto song, "Don't put your umbrella up before it starts to rain," has acquired from the Star Music Co. the prior rights of a new song by Harry Castling and A. J. Mills with the strange title, "If you don't succeed, what matters?" There is more in the song than the title conveys, and artists requiring a sure applause-winner would do well to write for a copy to the Star Music Co.

ONE of the most likely numbers for pantomime in the Star Co.'s catalogue is a melodious song by Cecil Johnson, J. Burley, and Maurice Scott, entitled "Ayesha, my sweet Egyptian." This song is in great demand by principal boys and girls, and a limited number of permits will be granted for the halls. The composer of "Swing me higher, Obadiah," and "Carolina Brown" has every reason to feel gratified at the extraordinary success of "Ayesha." Band-parts are printed for this winner.

AMONG Messrs. Joseph Williams and Co.'s guaranteed successes for the pantomime season is the topical song published in their current annual, entitled "What a very great improvement that would be!" One "improvement" suggested is the blending of theatrical and variety entertainment, and the imaginative picture of Mr. Tree and Mr. George Robey doing a triple-bar act at the Palace is decidedly amusing. The words are by Arthur Wimperis and the music by H. G. Pélissier. Free permissions may be obtained on application to 32, Great Portland-street, W. Messrs. Williams publish the répertoire of the Follies.

VARIETY ARTISTS' FEDERATION.

THE AGENT QUESTION.

Mr. JOE O'GORMAN presided over a mass meeting of members of the V.A.F. held yesterday afternoon at the Bedford Head Hotel. The room was uncomfortably packed, and amongst those present were Messrs. Harry Lauder, Neil Kenyon, W. H. Clemart, Dutch Daly, Pete Curran, M.P., Horace Wheatley, Albert Le Fre, Geo. D'Albert, Geo. Mozart, Wal Pink, and Alec Hurley; and Mesdames Sisters Anderson, Irma Lorraine, Sisters Macarte, and Miss Maud Lambert.

The CHAIRMAN stated that the agents had been holding their meetings in secret, and that they had invented many nefarious schemes to intimidate the poorer artists. There was one case in which a young artist had refused to sign an agent's office copy, in spite of his unfortunate financial position, and his salary was paid out of the Federation funds. The Chairman added that the committee would be prepared to deal with all similar cases as they came before them. It now became imperative that they should at once open an emergency fund to deal with these cases. The agents had accused the artists of not paying their lawful debts, but what of the honesty of the agents? Would Mr. Richard Warner explain what became of the money that he and some of the managers, including the late George Adney Payne, had cajoled out of the clients on Mr. Warner's books in respect of the formation of the Fibre Matting Company, Ltd.? Mr. Warner's clients had subscribed hundreds of pounds to this company, and they had not received a sixpenny piece back, or any explanation as to what had become of the company. The agents had asked for arbitration on the re-engagement clause. He (the Chairman) would now say on behalf of himself and his colleagues that if the agents were prepared to place the whole working of their business from A to Z before an independent arbitrator, then the Federation would agree to arbitration. But such an arbitrator would not be allowed to consider merely a discussion of the re-engagement clause. They wanted the whole agency system—which was rotten to the core—investigated. The re-engagement clause was dead and buried for ever. Then the agents had said that Mr. Pete Curran had consented to act as arbitrator. That was not correct.

Mr. PETE CURRAN, M.P., stated that he had received a communication from an agent, asking what was his opinion as to the possibility of a settlement between the agents and the artists. That letter come quite unofficially from an individual agent. If the agents had anything to place before him (Mr. Curran), he would be pleased to place it before the V.A.F.

Mr. HARRY LAUDER stated that he was sorry that he was going away to America while this agency trouble was in progress. He did not like to leave the battle, and while he himself was a fighter, he and every one of his brother and sister artists wanted peace. He would be extremely happy if he heard that it came before he left England.

Mr. FRED RUSSELL said that the artists had the upper hand, and they could now afford to be magnanimous. He would therefore propose a resolution as follows:—

"Having regard to the statement made on behalf of the agents that the artists are afraid to submit the commission dispute to arbitration, this meeting instructs the executive committee to inform the agents' representatives that the V.A.F. will agree to the appointment of an independent arbitrator on the definite understanding that the arbitration shall not be confined to any particular phase of the question, but shall deal with the whole matter of agency, including the rate of commission and the retrospectiveness of the re-engagement clause in existing contracts."

Continuing, Mr. RUSSELL said that if there was going to be arbitration, it would have to be on the whole question, and not on any phase of it.

Mr. W. H. CLEMART seconded.

Mr. WAL PINK, Mr. GEORGE MOZART, and others spoke strongly in opposition.

After Messrs. John Warren, Dutch Daly, Bert Danson, and John L. Shine had spoken,

The CHAIRMAN put the resolution to the meeting, when it was found that the voting was overwhelmingly against it, only thirty-one voting in favour. The motion was then declared lost.

Mr. W. H. CLEMART stated that the meeting had now decided against arbitration, and it was now a fight to the death. He proposed a resolution which had been previously placed before the Federation—

"That, if by Friday, Oct. 2, at 12 noon, any agent has not accepted the amended commission note, he shall not be allowed to come to terms with the V.A.F. unless he consents in writing to the abolition of the re-engagement clause in present as well as future contracts."

Mr. Clemart explained that that resolution meant that the artists were not to do business with any agent until they were notified by the Federation that the agent had agreed in writing to abolish the re-engagement clause.

Mr. ALBERT BRADY proposed, and Mr. CHARLES AUSTIN seconded an amendment to the effect that the resolution should be held over for consideration for a week.

On a show of hands the amendment was lost, and the resolution was carried.

THE V.A.F. AND THE AGENTS.

At the conclusion of the meeting of the V.A.F. at the Bedford Head, on Friday, the 25th ult., it was announced that the following letter had been sent by the solicitors of the Variety Artists' Federation to music hall managers all over the country:—

"Dear Sir,—It has come to the knowledge of the Variety Artists' Federation that a circular has been sent out by agents to managers asking them to deduct from artists' salaries certain commissions. It is doubtless unnecessary for us to point out to you the illegality of the suggested course, and the attendant expense and trouble of the litigation which would inevitably follow its adoption. We do not for a moment suppose that you will embroil yourself with a dispute which in no way concerns you; but imagine that you will adopt a strictly honourable course of leaving the parties to fight out their own battles, without favouring either.

"At the same time, we may add that a resolution was passed by the executive committee of the Variety Artists' Federation to-day, and instructions given us to issue summonses the first thing on Monday morning against every manager who, in violation of the principles of fair fight, seeks to aid one of the parties in the present struggle, by doing that which is not only unfair, but is absolutely illegal.—Yours faithfully, (Signed) "JUDGE AND PRIESTLEY.

"3, Liverpool-street, E.C., Sept. 25."

At a gathering of the Grand Order of Water Rats on Sunday at the Vaudeville Club, the question of establishing a central booking agency was again under consideration. A special sub-committee was appointed, and thirty-one members—including most of the "stars" at present in London—attended a meeting at the Vaudeville Club on Wednesday, when it was decided to recommend that such an agency should be established forthwith.

It was agreed that the commission to be paid should not exceed 2½ per cent., and that performers other than members of the Water Rats should be eligible as clients on the same terms. A suggestion was made, and warmly received, that the post of booking agent should be offered to an important and popular manager, at present associated with one of the leading syndicates.

Matters were quiet on Thursday, the first day of the picketing of agents who have disregarded the manifesto of the V.A.F. and refused to accept the Federation's "office copy" of the contract commission note. The work of picketing was carried out by forty V.A.F.'s, ladies assisting.

One comedienne, Miss Jeannie Thomas, was told off to watch the office of Messrs. Fortune and Granville in the Strand. She walked up and down outside the office from eleven o'clock until noon. At last both Mr. Fortune and Mr. Granville came down from their rooms to see the lady. They so admired her pertinacity that "they took me across for some light refreshment"—to quote what she wrote on her report. Eventually "Mr. Walter Munroe came up, and the above-named gentleman and myself were photographed together. Messrs. Fortune and Granville brought me a chair, and promised me lunch on Friday."

The Federation is taking action against a well-known manager who contends that an artist who signs the ordinary agent's "office copy" assigns commission to the manager. The legal advice obtained by the Federation is to the effect that the agent's "office copy" is not an assignment within the meaning of the Act, and a manager has no power to deduct commission on behalf of an agent. It is intended to make the action a test case. None of the members of the Federation have yet paid any commission due to the agents, and so far no legal proceedings have been started in respect to the money withheld.

It may be as well to quote the judgment of Lord Macnaghten regarding this question. He laid it down that "An equitable assignment may be addressed to the debtor. It may be couched in the language of command. It may be a courteous request. It may assume the form of mere permission. The language is immaterial if the meaning is plain. All that is necessary is that the debtor should be given to understand that the debt has been made over by the creditor to some third person. If the debtor ignores such notice he does so at his peril.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I ask why this dispute should not be considered in the same equitable manner as is daily becoming essential to the success of every other line of business—viz., that obsolete conditions be replaced by up-to-date ideas, and mutually advantageous concessions?

Formerly it was incumbent on an agent to spend a considerable portion of his earnings at the refreshment-bar of the old style of proprietor; or, in the case of a salaried manager, to furnish him with certain financial inducements to accept "turns" offered to him, and frequently unknown to him.

As, in these days, proprietors and managers are above that method of doing business, we have shorter interviews, less waste of time, and—with the assistance of present-day rapid railway conveniences—a reduction by one-half of the agents' working expenses; to say nothing of the fact that managers in many cases do not accept an agent's recommendation of an artist, but insist on the performance being seen by their representative, or at a trial show. We have here, in a nutshell, ample proof that an honourable, business-like agent is, to-day, better paid with 5 per cent. commission than formerly with double that figure.—Enclosing my card, I am sir, yours faithfully,

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Under the heading of "Mr. O'Gorman and Mr. Granville" in to-day's Performer two letters are printed. But for some reason my answer sent to Mr. O'Gorman on the same date is not given the same publicity.

Knowing that The Era is always ready to give both sides of a question, I venture to ask for space to publish the same, copy of which I enclose.

Thanking you in anticipation, yours truly,

Variety Artists' Federation,
28, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.

DEAR SIR,—

I regret that in the heat of the moment I misread the paragraph. But it is simply splitting straws. I emphatically deny that I told you that I considered we had earned (or were entitled to) 20 per cent. commission on all engagements we booked.

In discussing with you a certain matter with regard to an artist who had written to a manager asking that the contracts should be sent direct (although we had previously offered them return dates), I told you I considered we were entitled, and would claim commission on these particular re-engagements, and this, I presume, is what you mean by 20 per cent. commission, as there was no other matter discussed between us at our interview.

Yours faithfully,

EDWARD H. GRANVILLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Our client, Mr. Sam L. Bury, desires us to write and inform you that with regard to the question of the Agents and the V.A.F. he was induced to accept the Office Copy now proposed by the Federation at the representation of one of the members, and that all the particulars he agreed to on the Office Copy shown to him were, we are instructed, ten per cent. and the re-engagement clause, three months.

Our client also desires us to inform you that he is still a member of the Agents' Association, and we shall be glad if you will find room for this letter in your next issue, so as to save a lot of unpleasantness and clear up a lot of misconception.—Yours truly, ROBERTS, SEYD, AND CO.

RICHARD SAVAGE, one of the most curious characters in English literary history, was the son of the Countess of Macclesfield by the Earl Rivers, and his birth gave his mother an excuse for obtaining a divorce from a man whom she hated. He was born in 1696 in Fox-court, a low alley out of Holborn, whither his mother had repaired, under the name of Mrs. Smith, her features concealed in a mask which she wore throughout her confinement. Discovery was embarrassed by a complication of witnesses; the child was handed from one woman to another, until, like a story bandied from mouth to mouth, it seemed to lose its paternity. The son of an earl, the child was apprenticed to a shoemaker; but preferring the pen to the awl, he betook himself eventually to literature, after having by an accident discovered his origin. He made the acquaintance of Steele, who formed a grand design to marry Savage to a natural daughter of his, on whom he meant to settle a thousand pounds. How Savage, himself a natural son, might have relished the proposal of a natural daughter for a wife cannot be guessed—a thousand pounds might make even the author of the "Bastard" witness a charm in illegitimacy. But neither the natural daughter nor the thousand pounds was ever forthcoming. Savage, mortified by the frequent disappointments that attended Steele's promises, took an early opportunity to lampoon his friend, and his friend very properly cut him. He was as quick, however, at making friends as he was at losing them. When he was near dying of starvation, a subscription was raised for him, and he was despatched to Wales. He pushed as far as Bristol, where he halted; spent the money he had in hand, wrote impudent letters for more, was arrested for debt, and lodged in gaol, where he died July 31, 1743.

THE ALHAMBRA.

Mr. Alfred Moul, until the production of the new ballet, is relying on the very remarkable manifestations of Mr. and Mrs. Tomson, who are presenting what is very appropriately called The Master Mystery, to a very curious and deeply interested public nightly. Everything seems to have been done by the management to make the "experiment," if we may so call it, as difficult as possible. All the accessories are supplied by the management, which is enabled to give an absolute guarantee that there is no trick of any kind whatsoever in the articles which are used. The roofed cabinet, consisting of a single canvas on simple framing, is erected on the top of two stage cloths upon a solid stage, free from traps of any kind whatsoever. The black wrapper which envelopes Mrs. Tomson as she passes from the dressing-room to the cabinet on the stage is provided by the Alhambra management, and is of so slight a texture that it is quite impossible to conceal materials or objects of any sort, and is not in Mrs. Tomson's possession previous to its being placed upon her by the ladies' committee. It is placed upon her by the ladies' committee only after she has divested herself of her clothing. This fact is vouched for by the affidavit of the female searcher at Vine-street police station.

The Alhambra management seem to be most anxious that their audiences shall understand that the production of material objects is guaranteed to be free from all assistance of trick accessories. There is no mistaking the sensational character of the performance, which was loudly acclaimed on the night of our visit.

In The Two Flags the Alhambra patrons have a chance of applauding that great favourite Miss Julia Seale in her smart and natty impersonation of a smart and natty English naval officer, who is quite welcome among the pretty Parisiennes in the opening scene in la ville lumière, where John Bull is welcomed by Madame La Republique with all the friendly feeling possible. Mr. Bull, in his turn, invites les belles Parisiennes to the Franco-British Exhibition, and we have jinks and evolutions by a gaily-dressed crowd of militaires and a bevy of beautiful ballerine that make a feast of colour. Mlle. Pompenette makes her mark as a lissome dancer of eccentric movement, and the work of the corps de ballet is a sheer delight. Mr. Byng's selected music and original numbers make up an ensemble that is always pleasing and catchy and inspiriting.

The pretty legend of Narcissus, so beautifully and pathetically told by the late Sir Lewis Morris in his poem, is realised by La Belle Leonora, who may well become enamoured of her own reflection in a fountain, though, unlike the beautiful son of the nymph Liriope, she will not, we feel sure, pine away because she cannot kiss her own image. The inspiring beauty of Leonora gives all the poetic significance possible to this prettily illustrated and cleverly realised fable of "Narcissus and Echo," and the production reflects credit on the taste of the management.

In the early part of the evening, Richard List's bears exhibit their docility in a number of tricks; and the good-natured wrestling match between a gigantic Polar Bruin and his trainer excites much curiosity. Coram, the ventriloquist, is decidedly gifted; the song, "Oh, lucky Jim," as given through his figure, is exceedingly droll. Other attractions of the bill are Kitty Traney, who gives a pretty performance with pony and dog; the Bonhair Troupe of acrobats; "Sal-oh-my"; and Jury's Imperial pictures.

REMARKABLE pictures of the Four-inch Race in the Isle of Man were shown on the night of the 25th ult. on the Empire Theatre bioscope.

THE MILTONS, skating comedians, who made such a hit at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, in pantomime last year, have been secured by Mr. Harry Roxbury to play in Mother Goose for a twelve weeks' run.

MR. JOSEPH WILLIAMS, of 32, Great Portland-street, has added immensely to the gaiety of London and New York by the publication of some extremely droll ditties. One of the most comical is certainly "Maria's Diary," written and composed by the late Chas. J. Taylor, and sung successfully by Margaret Cooper. Maria, a flighty sort of person, keeps a diary in which she records all her experiences, but, unfortunately for Maria's hopes, she has adopted the extraordinary expedient of writing in pencil the actual facts. For instance, the indiarubber would not destroy the evidences of her fast conduct, while the indelible ink in which the shams were recorded were intended to deceive her parents and friends, who were invited to inspect the diary; while her bosom friend named Ethel, who had come on a visit, found the diary on her bed, giving a most unflattering account of her appearance and dress. One of the verses describes Maria's difficulties. She was decidedly fast, while her parents were extremely slow and easily taken in. For instance, Maria had gone to a Covent Garden ball, and puts down in her diary that she had spent the evening playing cards and had gone to bed at ten.

ANOTHER most amusing song which was a great hit at the Follies was "Zulu Lulu," which relates how a Zulu chief, being hungry, calls to Lulu not to please his amorous fancy but to appease his hungry appetite. Zulu suspects his design, and hides in a palm grove, but eventually she comes out, and the chief kills the maiden and eats her with relish, the last we hear of Lulu being that the savage is dancing round a platter over the bones of poor little Lulu. The words are very funny, and the music of Mr. Pélissier is quite appropriate, with a ju-jitsu accompaniment to the cannibalistic love song which Mr. Arthur Wimperis, the author, so humorously describes. Absurd as the story is, it caught the fancy of the audience, and was one of the greatest successes of the Follies. A sly allusion to the missionary who thought to reform the chieftain's Little Mary completes the story with great effect.

THE attractive young lady Miss Evelyn Hughes was responsible for the singing of the eccentric song "Mandy," whose nigger lover says:—

"Throw your window open wide,
Stick your curly head outside,
I'm waiting, waiting for my dusky bride.
Mandy, do you hear me?"

The coon lover advises her to slip out of the side door, and join him in the Cake Walk. But the swain in question threatens if Mandy does not come he will call on Amelia Jones. Mr. H. G. Pélissier, the popular composer for the Follies, has written the music as well as the words. "The Flower Girl" is also composed by Mr. Pélissier, but the verses, by Mr. Arthur Davenport, are very effective. The next song on our list is "To the King," written and composed by Mr. John Bradford. He begins by referring to the monarchs of ancient times, and gracefully brings in an allusion to our present King.

THE final publication is a group of orchestral pieces, which can be performed without fee or licence, and the price is only twopence. The works are principally for the first violin, and include such distinguished composers as Goring-Thomas, Victorin de Joncières, the popular French composer, and several delightful waltz writers. The charming and well-known composer Carl Kiefert also contributes. The low price and high quality of these orchestral pieces should secure universal acceptance in the musical world

THE CANTERBURY.

Mr. Charles W. Adams, the manager of this establishment, has an interesting and highly-attractive programme this week. One of the novelties is furnished by Miss Fifi Gordon and a company of girls, who appear in a charming scena, entitled My Tiny Firefly, in which, under the bewitching influence of the moonlight, they sing a song which bears the same name as that which is given to the scena. Their other item is a Dutch operetta, New Sabots, mainly consisting of chorus singing and dancing, with Miss Gordon acting charmingly as Hans and Katarina. Miss Gordon has a pleasing delivery and an engaging presence, and her efforts in New Sabots are greatly enjoyed by the audience. Cole and Rags win favour by their eccentric juggling with clubs, balls, and turnips; and another capital comedy juggling act is provided by Derenda and Green. Miss Nita Clem delights the house with her clever imitation of a Parisian singer and dancer; and Mr. George Antil, "the evening shadow," as he quaintly styles himself, causes amusement by his rendering of a topical song in which he introduces the names of the popular plays running in the West End. Much interest centres in the appearance of Mr. Alick Lauder, brother of Harry Lauder, who, along with Miss Jenny Atten and Mr. George Adair, presents a Scottish sketch, The Christening. In this Mr. Lauder plays the part of a humorous Scot rather fond of the national beverage, who has for a wife an Englishwoman who disputes with him over the naming of their baby in no unmeasured terms. Mr. Lauder is exceedingly droll as the easy-going, slow-of-speech Scotsman; and the parts of the wife and a clergyman are ably portrayed by Miss Jenny Atten and Mr. George Adair respectively. The Daunton-Shaw Troupe of Australian trick cyclists submit a wonderfully smart performance; and Robins and Collier indulge in some entertaining acrobatic and other antics in a railway station scene, the gentleman appearing as a porter and the lady as a passenger. The scenery of this trifle is extremely well painted and is most realistic. Mr. George Robey, as usual, creates uproarious merriment both with his song "It's all done by kindness," in which he appears as a comical lion-tamer, and with the ditty "It's a lie!" Kennedy's Kiddies, who appear in London for the first time this week, have taken on extremely well in their vocal, terpsichorean, and athletic scena, and their songs, "An innocent country girl" and "Some day we'll go back home," are given with much feeling and expression, and are warmly applauded by the audience. These children, twelve girls whose ages range from fifteen to seventeen, also engage in a smart ju-jitsu dance, invented and produced by Mr. Phil Kennedy. In the dance the girls give evidence of good athletic training and ability, and the whole act is one that should become popular. Miss Doris Gilbert has a couple of delightful numbers, "My gipsy girl" and "Red Wing," with which she quite enchants her hearers. Mr. Percy Hannan, an American baritone, is also responsible for some very praiseworthy vocalism; and Mr. Martin Henderson, the blind musical genius and concertina soloist, plays Suppé's "Light Cavalry" in excellent style. La Pia is seen in a new line of fantastic dances, introducing a fresh dance representing a stormy sea breaking and dashing on the shore, whilst the dancer is seen enveloped in the midst of them, dashed hither and thither, and is finally engulfed in the huge seas that break over and around her. The scena is most realistic and effective. Barrett and Knowles, "the green lizard and his friend who disagree," are highly entertaining with their cross-patter; Miss Winnie Darrell wins golden opinions for her light comedy; and Miss Cissie Lawson thrills the audience with her dramatic acting in A Bride for a Living. Ruffell's Bioscope concludes with up-to-date pictures.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

Return of brilliant summer weather has not diminished the patronage accorded the handsome and comfortable temple of amusement so ably presided over by Mr. Ernest Bridgen, the popular and courteous acting-manager, who is in high favour with the frequenters of this hall. Mr. Bridgen has a capable assistant in Mr. C. Young, and Mr. Forbes Russell conducts the fine orchestra with his accustomed skill. The stage is well looked after by Mr. Walter Smith. Mr. Alf. Chester is warmly applauded for his amusing patter and his humorous singing of "Good old mother." Olive and Owen appear in their original entertainment entitled "The Roadside Tinkers." They depict a pair of gipsies, who indulge in clever business, and sing "Two Merry Vagabonds" and "I love you still" in capital style, winning well-deserved applause. Mr. Fred Wilkinson, assisted by Miss Betty Waller, does some smart and original tricks with skill and neatness. Mr. George Cameron presents some clever impersonations of well-known artists, including the late Sir Henry Irving as Mathias in The Bells, and Mr. Martin Harvey as the Rat in The Breed of the Treshams.

Popular Miss Lily Langtry has a warm reception, and sings, in her usual artistic style, "The person in the house next door" and "Oh, the Exhibition!" winding up with a clever dance. The Garganis are three clever acrobats, who afford much amusement by their original comedy act; Dutch Daly is always welcome, and his humour is so natural and unforced, and his concertina-playing so enjoyable, that he cannot come too often. Miss Nellie Wallace delights everybody, as usual. This amusing artist has to sing three songs, entitled respectively, "Georgie," "Young again," and "The Directoire dress," before she is allowed to depart. Mr. Alec Hurley is a huge favourite here, and is greeted with enthusiasm when he appears in his clever comedy scena, entitled The Coster's Beano, which goes with its usual briskness and spirit. Several songs are introduced, and are warmly applauded, viz., "You're my donah," "Our outing," and "Let me call her mother." Mr. Hurley is very ably supported by all the members of his company. Some capital pictures, including one of the Winston-Churchill wedding, are exhibited by the American Bioscope.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

Mr. Fisher White's company forms one of the principal attractions at this hall in the dramatic episode The Broken Heart. Mr. Scott Craven and Mr. T. D. Beresford, the authors of the playlet, are to be congratulated on having utilised the theme of Nihilism with great effect and success. The play was fortunate in having a very capable company to present it, Mr. Scott Craven himself as the Duke acting with energy and effect. Very clever and of great value to the production was the character study of the elder Russian by Mr. Chris. Walker. Mr. H. Corney Grain as the chemist was also excellent, and Mr. Frederick James and Mrs. Fisher White left little to be desired in the remaining rôles. The scenery and effects were remarkably complete, and an interesting little article on the piece, a copy of which was given away with the programme, proved interesting and valuable. The sketch proved very popular.

The remaining items on the attractive bill were also up to the high standard of this hall. Mr. Walter Gilbey, a prime favourite, sang a policeman song well. His second number in the character of a gamekeeper mightily amused the sporting section of the audience, its reception being very cordial. Venie Clements in character song and dance did well, and told some amusing stories of children. Florence and Lillian presented a musical act of exceptional merit, their playing on the piano, violin, horn, bugle, and Japanese fiddle gaining well-merited applause. The Delevines in their dancing act scored their usual success. Kitts and Windrum in The Cuckoo gained plenty of applause, and caused a great deal of laughter. Loïe Fuller, who presented Mlle. Cerutti in classical dances, had a talented pupil, who gave every sign of ability. Hilda Playfair sang "The Green Isle of Erin" very tastefully. R. H. Douglass in his well-known monologue act kept the house amused and had a big reception. The Bioscope was interesting, and Mr. Greco's orchestra was invaluable. Mr. Percival, the acting-manager, was very courteous and attentive in the front of the house.

BOW PALACE.

Mr. Macnaghten's house of variety in the "Far East" seems to enjoy a patronage which is every week increasing. And this is not to be wondered at when one considers the list of attractions he is able to offer, not to mention the manner in which his able lieutenant, Mr. Charles Harvey, the manager, attends both to the comfort and convenience of the audience and the requirements of the house. Among the turns this week that of Miss Alice Blandford, the "New Zealand nightingale," has won great favour at the hands of the visitors to this beautiful house. Miss Blandford is a ballad vocalist who possesses a highly-trained voice, and her renderings of "Just a sweet red rose" and "Once" make her hearers delirious with delight. Miss Rose Pink is another, too, who wins unstinted applause, and her listeners sit enraptured as her cultured voice rings out the poetic lines of the verses "I'll do anything in the world for you" and "Heather bell." Her dancing is exquisite, to say the least, and one might well imagine from her musical movements that the daughter of Jupiter and Mnemosyne must have been the muse that presided at her birth. Stidder and Dunbar are entertainers of a high calibre, and they deserve all the laurels which the vociferous plaudits signify. They are singers and dancers of exceptional ability, and their delivery of "Every little bit helps" brings them such unmistakable panegyrics that these artists would scarcely envy the station of Demetrius or the triumphs of the consuls. The Florodoras furnish what proves to be an immensely popular sort of musical comedy act, and in it they introduce a couple of songs, "Fishing" and "Two's company, three's none," which fairly bring the house down. Baker and De Sales, the world-famous American comedy team, offer beautiful singing and diverting fun, the vocal numbers, "Isn't it nice to have someone to love you?" and "I don't know where I'm going, but I'm on my way," taking the hearts of the listeners by storm. Damerell and Rutland are intensely mirth-provoking in their sporting farce, Clever Mr. Fugg; and the Arthur Gallimore Trio also contribute in no insignificant way to the evening's gaiety. The Sisters Brooks are attractive young ladies whose duet singing is much admired, notably in the song "Mr. Grundy"; and Mr. J. Wright-Aitken and company present the popular sensational sketch Nihilism, Mr. Wright-Aitken's brilliant performance as the Under-Secretary of State being the outstanding feature of the production. Raymond's Bio-tableaux include The Hard-hearted Squire.

RICHMOND HIPPODROME.

Although the magnificent weather has hardly been conducive to indoor amusement, it speaks much for the discretion of the management here that there is no appreciable falling-off in the attendance. My Little One is a somewhat thin production, in which Mr. Picton Roxborough and Miss Fanny Wright quite cleverly manage to elicit considerable applause. They might with advantage try something more worthy of their undoubted ability. "Is everybody happy?" is the query proposed by a darkie comedian, Harry Brown. Quite a droll chap is this, and he manages to successfully solve the problem. Harry Brown made a lot of fun. The Scottish-Canadian, John Henderson, is here with a somewhat extraordinary production, Mid Northern Lights, on which the pruning-knife may be advantageously exercised. As the old Hudson Bay Company official Mr. Henderson did well, and was capably assisted by Miss Millie Henderson and Mr. Frank C. Mason and company. There is no reason why the piece should not do better in an abbreviated form. Juvenile performers are now the vogue, and although the talent displayed is not always of a startling nature, it is always a source of pleasure to encourage good work. Bellew and Stock's company, the Romps, merit all the praise showered upon their efforts. Daintily dressed, a dozen pretty maidens with fresh young voices sing solos and harmonise in a manner that wins the good graces of the audience, and gives unmistakable evidence of able training.

Special mention may be made of the comedienne of this clever little company. She possesses a fund of original humour, and better things may be expected of her. The Romps are delightful, and really gifted.

Tromba's juggling is quite up to the average, and he performs an astonishing number of tricks to the satisfaction of everyone concerned. Apart from the usual feats, he rouses the audience to a pitch of enthusiasm with his method of juggling with three muskets and firing them as caught. Tromba's feats are truthfully billed as "great"; it is a fine performance. Harry Taft has a really comic entrance reminiscent of Don Quixote. As a whistler he rapidly wins popularity, and altogether he is a distinct acquisition.

Of the literary merit of The Power of Music little need be said beyond the fact that it forms a background with Jan Rudenyi as the central figure, and affords him an opportunity to give an exhibition of his wonderful powers. His interpretation of the "Carnival of Venice" with variations was wonderful. Miss Dora de Winton is capable as Eileen Granville; and Mr. J. D. Saunders does well as Reynard Carola.

Mimicry is Charles Norton's forte, and peculiarly happy it is. His imitations of Joe Elvin as "bookie" and a crowd of backers, including R. G. Knowles, Chirgwin, the Fighting Parson, Wilkie Bard, and Harry Lauder, are excessively clever. As a troupe Schiavonis will want some beating. They work splendidly together, and the general result is one of sterling excellence; they met with a magnificent reception and deserved it. The Bioscope is also an attraction.

To the managerial cares of the Hippodrome Mr. H. J. Brett has now succeeded; he brings with him a reputation not easily excelled, and we wish him success under the Dance régime.

THE CASE OF HARRY EVANS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I enclose you cheque for £1 1s. for Mr. Harry Evans, late manager Gatti's, Westminster. I know this to be a most deserving case; he is anxious to get to Canada, where he has relations. If any of his friends who knew him in the old days at Gatti's will help him to get there he will be more than grateful to them for their kindness. His address is 38, Dalwood-street, Camberwell.—Yours truly, JOE ELVIN.

THE AWARDS.—The three interim Awards and the final Award, corrected and revised by George Ranken Askwith, K.C., the official arbitrator appointed to the music hall dispute, may be had in pamphlet form at The Era Offices. Copy, including postage, three-halfpence. Address, The Publisher, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

"THE MISCHIEF-MAKERS."

Sketch, by Leonard Mortimer, Produced at the Camberwell Palace on Monday, Sept. 28.

The King of Neutralia, Prince Eric, Paul, Duke of Gravenburg ..... MR. LEONARD MORTIMER
Constance, Duchess of Rouvalia ..... MISS EDITH LEWIS
Count Karl Schotler ..... MR. E. E. HOWARD
Baron Hoffenlymer ..... MR. HAL BROUGH
Freda ..... MISS IDA CLIFFORD

An "imperial production" is appropriately being made this week at the Palace, at Camberwell, where Mr. Leonard Mortimer is sustaining his wide reputation as a sketch-producer, by the presentation of a "story of the wisdom of a king," entitled The Mischief-Makers. The action, which is laid in the palatial hall of the King of Neutralia, a supposititious state on the Continent, is swift and strong. Scarcely has the curtain risen than the aged King is struck down by an assassin, and his unscrupulous nephew, Duke Paul of Gravenburg, connives with the Duchess of Rouvalia to secure possession of the throne. The people have been oppressed by the Duke, and clamour for the abdication of the King, selecting as their mouthpiece the blind Socialist, Count Karl, who exercises an incredible influence over the multitude. Meanwhile the King's son, Eric, who has been speculating in copper mines abroad, returns with his bride, and claims the crown. He is received by the populace with cries of execration, which soon, however, change to cheers. Duke Paul, prompted by the wily Minister of Finance, puts it into the head of Count Karl that his daughter had been betrayed by Eric, and the blind old man seeks an audience with the young King. The monarch enters with all the panoply of State, and listens to the charges urged against him. He is soon able to rebut the first, that of oppressing the people, by declaring that the money which came from an unknown source, and saved the State from bankruptcy, was the result of the earnings of his copper enterprises. The further charge of betraying the Socialist leader's daughter is answered by the production of the girl, who is none other than the newly-made Queen.

The piece is sumptuously mounted, and the uniforms and costumes are elaborately designed. Mr. Leonard Mortimer acted with all his wonted fire as the young king called to the command of a disturbed country. He made a truly regal appearance, clad in ermine robe and wearing a kingly helmet, and his performance was throughout spirited and dramatic. Mr. E. E. Howard gave an impressive performance as Count Karl, his fine speeches being marked by excellent elocution. Mr. Walner Gregory gave an effective impersonation of the unscrupulous Duke of Gravenburg, acting and delivery being skilfully varied; and Mr. Hal Brough supplied a well-defined character sketch of Baron Hoffenlymer. The duties of Queen Freda and the Duchess of Rouvalia were gracefully undertaken by Miss Ida Clifford and Miss Edith Lewis. The sketch kept the audience engrossed throughout, and cheers loud and enthusiastic marked its progress.

"THE WHITE HAND OF A WOMAN."

A sketch, in three scenes, by George R. Sims, produced at Sadler's Wells on Monday, Sept. 28.

Captain Scarsdale ..... MR. BERNARD MERVYN
Marsden ..... MR. W. G. BLUNT
Lord Farnleigh ..... MR. SYDNEY C. KEARNS
Lady "Dickie" Dunbar ..... MISS MAMIE RENDLE
Belle Bellingham ..... MISS B. DOYLE
Poplin ..... MISS EDITH LORRAINE

One can always rely upon Mr. George R. Sims for something daring and original in the way of a plot, and we are certainly treated to a somewhat novel idea in the playlet under review. Belle Bellingham is the assumed name of an adventuress, Fay Faringdon, who murdered her husband some short time previously in America, and who is now in England seeking another victim in the person of Lord Farnleigh, who is certainly desperately in love with her. Indeed, a marriage has been arranged between the two, and it forms the topic of conversation in the opening scene, which is set in a riverside house at Maidenhead. The late Mr. Faringdon was a friend of Captain Scarsdale, who vows revenge upon Belle Bellingham. He has already put the police on her track, and a detective, disguised as a butler, is staying at the riverside residence. But the means which Scarsdale employs to avenge his friend is somewhat different from that which the ordinary man would put into use, for the gallant captain discovers a resource in matrimony. He proposes to the lady, is immediately accepted on account of his wealth, and together they disappear suddenly from Maidenhead. Scarsdale leaves a note for Lord Farnleigh stating what has been or is about to be done, and giving the name of the London hotel where he is to be found. The concluding scene shows us the Greville Hotel, Bond-street, where Scarsdale and Belle, now united in wedlock, are staying. Into their presence there rushes Lord Farnleigh, who threatens Scarsdale with a thrashing for having robbed him of his betrothed. Scarsdale retorts that, while he may have robbed Farnleigh of a wife, he has saved him from becoming married to a murderess by marrying the latter himself! Then he calls the detective in to arrest Mistress Belle, who, however, is so inconsiderate as to deprive the hangman of his fee by stabbing herself. Mr. Bernard Mervyn acts forcefully in the rôle of Captain Scarsdale; and Mr. Sydney C. Kearns is a quiet, gentlemanly personage as Lord Farnleigh. Miss B. Doyle as Belle Bellingham is a most charming personage in the early part of the sketch, and no one would suspect that she is a stage villainess until, in the concluding scene, she gives us just a few seconds of capital tragedy. Mr. W. Blunt as the detective, and Miss Mamie Rendle and Miss Edith Lorraine in their parts, render able assistance.

NOTTINGHAM HIPPODROME OPENED.

In the period of a little over five months the above hall has been erected and opened, a triumph of building that has never before been accomplished, thereby reflecting the greatest credit on the contractors, Messrs. J. Parkinson and Sons, of Blackpool, and Mr. Bertie Crewe, the architect. The opening night was fixed for Monday last, when the spacious auditorium presented a charming appearance with its Louis XVI. scheme of decoration in cream and gold, its striking crimson panels and hangings, its rich carpets in harmonious shades, and its perfect blaze of electric light.

Mr. Thomas Barrasford had issued a large number of invitations for the second performance, and the house assumed quite a gala appearance, being graced by the presence of the Mayor, Town Councillors, and many of the leading inhabitants. After the performance an inaugural supper was given at the George Hotel to about seventy guests, presided over by Mr. A. L. Parkinson, supported by Mr. Barrasford, Major Savage, Mr. George Dance, and Mr. R. G. Knowles. The toast of "Success to the Hippodrome" was duly honoured, and replied to by the directors present, and an enjoyable evening was spent.

An excellent company is engaged for the week, headed by the eminent raconteur, Mr. R. G. Knowles, who was in excellent form on Monday, his drollery, mercurial activity, and humorous "patter" being a constant source of merriment. A wonderful exhibition of herculean strength and skilful jugglery was given by the Carmos, who had an enthusiastic reception. A drawing-room sketch by Tom and Marie Motramo evoked applause and laughter, both for its humour and clever instrumental work. A pretty performance by the cockatoos of Clotilde and Musto won high praise, and the Stowe Bros. were well rewarded for smart acrobatic feats. Gladys Huxley sang pleasantly and effectively, and the Primrose Quartette rendered part-songs and glees to the enjoyment of all. Ferdie's Ma-in-Law proved a screamingly funny farce. Dan Whitley's song was well received, and animated pictures were shown on the Barrascope. The orchestra was a feature, under the bâton of Mr. Reed, and the acting-manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell, made all provision for the comfort of the visitors.

STAFF OF HIPPODROME, BLACKPOOL. ANNUAL PICNIC, SEPT. 13, 1908.

The staff of the Hippodrome, Blackpool, held their first annual picnic on Sunday, Sept. 13. A four-in-hand was chartered for Garstang, where the party, numbering about forty, were entertained to an excellent lunch and tea at the Kenlis Arms Hotel, a spot in a district famous for its beauty. In the course of the speeches Mrs. Fioni was enthusiastically referred to, and it was remarked that the Hippodrome, Blackpool, had been worked up under her care and management to a huge financial and general success. Mrs. Fioni, in her response, took the opportunity of thanking her staff for their loyal support, and declared that it was only by a feeling of camaraderie and the combined efforts of every one of her employees, that the almost unexpected and unprecedented success that had been achieved at the Blackpool Hippodrome could be maintained. Thanks were also tendered to the picnic committee for the successful organisation of the outing.

GOLDSTON ON CONJURING.

There are few things more fascinating than to be told "how it is done," and Mr. Will Goldston, of Gamage's, in his most interesting book, "Tricks and Illusions for Amateur and Professional Conjurers," which has been published by that famous firm, has "covered the ground" in his descriptions of the modus operandi of many of the feats which have puzzled and perplexed the outsider. The work is divided into three parts: "Tricks," "Handcuff, Box, and Sack Tricks," and "Stage Illusions." In order to make his explanations clearer, Mr. Goldston adds to each of them an excellent illustration. Some 150 different marvels of ingenuity are depicted and described in this clever and compendious work, which will doubtless meet with a large sale amongst conjurers, amateur and professional. It supplies a want which has long been felt by both classes; and besides this, it should be extremely interesting to the general public, whom it initiates very agreeably into the mysteries of the craft.

CAPTAIN GRUBER is at the King's Theatre, Gateshead, this week with his well-trained elephant, horse, and pony; Mr. W. T. Thompson and company are seen in a screaming absurdity entitled Watch the Chalk; a great success is The Fatal Disc, played by Nicholas Graydon and company, a full notice of which appears on another page; the Kurios have some cleverly devised "props" and a fund of amusing gags; Walter Stanley is a successful comedian; Bernard and Weston raise numerous laughs; Geo. Rae is a very eccentric comedian; Steeley and Dowton, burlesque artists, Cissie Thompson, comedienne, and the usual pictures are other attractive items on the programme.

THE programme given by the Pierrots this week, at the Pier Pavilion, New Brighton, includes Mr. Charles Harvey and Mr. Nat Known, comedians; Mr. John Hughes, basso; Mr. Ernest Sewell, illusionist; Mr. W. G. Sutton, vocalist; Miss M. Cathcart, comedienne; and Miss C. Thompson, soprano. Mr. Harvey gains much laughter, and Mr. Sutton sings some taking items; whilst the other ladies and gentlemen of the company all work hard, with satisfactory results.

THE GEM, GREAT YARMOUTH.

At Yarmouth Police-court on Tuesday, before a full bench of magistrates, Mr. C. J. Wiltshire renewed his application for a music licence for the Gem. At the outset he elicited from Mr. H. Chamberlin that he did not now oppose on behalf of the Britannia Pier. He also stated that, on considering all the circumstances, the applicants had decided not to proceed with their appeal, so that the justices could now consider the matter. The present bench was not asked to sit in judgment on the magistrates who previously refused a full licence for music, singing, and dancing. Now all that was asked was a restricted licence, allowing the piano accompaniment to the pictures, songs to be sung illustrating the pictures, the gramophone to be permitted inside in order to give the pianist a rest, and that the Sunday hours should be the same as for other places of entertainment. No suggestion of complaint could be made against the character of the entertainment. There was no objection to the building, or to the entertainment, and therefore he failed to see why a licence should be refused. The only private opposition now appeared to come from the Cabin, but the owner had just let it to a new tenant for three years, and the tenant had no objection to the Gem. So it came to this, that the opposition was purely trade rivalry, and he hoped the Bench would not hold that Mr. Nightingale, Miss Lawton, and others could claim a monopoly in the supply of entertainments at Yarmouth. He submitted that a fair and strong case had been made out for the granting of the licence.

A witness named Thrower, who proved publication of the notices, said there was no stage, and it was necessary the hall should be in darkness to show the pictures. The floor was occupied with chairs.

Mr. Cochran, manager and director of the Gem, said there was no intention on the part of applicants to go beyond the terms of the proposed restricted licence. Cross-examined: He had been a director since June 26. It was not true that only nine £1 shares had been allotted, and if that was a return from Somerset House this month it was because the official record was not up to date. It was certainly a bonâ fide company. Mr. Bostock was a shareholder and director. He ran the Jungle at Earl's Court, and was a proper person to have this licence. He had run the show the whole summer without a licence after entering an appeal against a conviction. The appeal was dropped now as a prelude to this application. He had not acted in defiance of the magistrates. They had had no different advice, but now thought it desirable to carry on the entertainment with a licence. The piano might be going ten hours a day, but there were intervals. He had three pianists and three bioscope operators to divide the daily duties. The building held from 800 to 1,000 persons. At the lowest price charged, 2d., some were able to sit, and others stood; but they did not block the gangways. In addition to the main exit, there were doors at the side, and at the back of the screen was an emergency exit by a large push door. He considered there was no place in Yarmouth with better exits. The owners of the building he believed to be the Yarmouth and Gorleston Investment Corporation, which he thought was a syndicate. All his negotiations had been through Messrs. Ferrier and Ferrier.

By Mr. de Caux: He ran the show without a licence on account of the opinion obtained. He next applied for one on the suggestion of the Chief-Constable, not because he thought the advice was wrong. Originally a dancing licence was asked for in connection with the moving pictures, not for dancing on the floor.

Re-examined: Mr. Bostock was one of the best-known showmen in the world, and held licences all over the country. No pianist, as had been suggested, played for ten hours a day at the Gem. There were three for a day. The building was comfortably emptied in about one minute.

Mr. Wiltshire, in reply to Mr. T. W. Swindell, said they would not have a man outside touting if the magistrates objected to it. They were most anxious to meet the wishes of the Bench in every way.

Mr. Chamberlin said the whole thing seemed shrouded in mystery. The building was owned by the Yarmouth and Gorleston Investment Corporation, of which they knew nothing, and the show was carried on by the Yarmouth Amusement Centre, of which, according to a return dated Sept. 19 from Somerset House, had nine shares allotted. Had such a case in the interest of the public been made out that the magistrates should reverse a decision given by the Bench two months ago, though some justices, he was glad to see, had come who did not usually attend. He maintained that the application was precisely the same as at first, and that if it was granted the promoters could have anything except a brass band; and another season it might blossom out into a full-blown music hall. The south part of the town was considered the best end of Yarmouth, and they might well hear of big houses being to let if such places as this were to be planted there. Mrs. Lawton might well complain that she was paying £600 a year to the coffers of the Corporation, and a licence was now to be granted to strangers who came to Yarmouth to run a rival entertainment. No one could say that Yarmouth was not well supplied with amusements already: He asserted that the appeal entered was a bogus one, because applicants had got their season and made their profit, and now they dropped the appeal, which should not have been made to the Quarter Sessions at all, but to the Court of King's Bench. This matter, he complained, had been "engineered" in a way that was unique, and no doubt if it succeeded they would rub their hands. But he would not say what they would think of Yarmouth people. If the licence was granted it would be a most unusual course for the Bench to adopt. Proprietors of other entertainments who had invested large sums in providing shows had a right to come to the Court and protest against further amusements being forced on the town.

The magistrates were twenty minutes conferring in their private room, and the Mayor, on their return to court, said the licence would be granted upon conditions.

The Clerk said the conditions were that the building be opened during the usual hours, that the number of persons to be admitted at one time should not exceed that to be fixed by the Borough Surveyor after measuring the floor-space. The only musical instruments permitted to be one piano and one gramophone. On no occasion were these instruments to be used outside the building. Only one song or ballad was to be sung during each hour of the entertainment, so that there would be one hour's interval between each song. At no time must announcements of the entertainment be shouted from the outside, or any megaphone be used for that purpose.

INDISPENSABLE! Rayne's "Pocket Date Book." Contents: Map (19in. by 10in.), showing the distance betwixt the various music halls at a glance. Will tell if one hall is within the barring radius of the other, thus saving fears, worry, and anxiety. All about artists' luggage, list of clubs, information about stamping contracts, foreign money table, London music halls and theatres, their telephone numbers, list of brougham proprietors, list and address of photographers, size of theatrical printing paper, names and addresses of theatrical railway managers, &c. Price 1s., post free. The proceeds from the sale will be divided equally amongst the two great charities of the dramatic and musical professions, the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Music Hall Home Fund. AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, Aug. 18.—The Tivoli has a choice programme, the newcomers being Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Meymott in their sketch, Semi-Detached. The talented couple were well received. Mr. Meymott is a native of Sydney (his father was for years one of our District Court judges), but he has been making headway in London and provincial theatres. Austin Rudd, Mignonette Kokin, the Stavordale Quintette, and Mr. Harry Rickards' pick of European and Australian artists give a very fine show.

"THE KILTIES" BAND opened on the 15th at the Town Hall, under Mr. Frederick Shipman's direction. The house was packed to hear the Canadians, who give an attractive performance, including Highland flings, Irish jigs, and sailor's hornpipes by the Clan Johnstone, weird bagpipe solos, and humorous selections among the more ambitious music played by this unique combination. Two of the Kilties are over seven feet high. The Governor attended the first concert.

MISS ELLA CASPERS, the young Australienne with a beautiful contralto voice, gave her farewell concert on the 15th prior to departing for European tuition. Mesdames Melba, Butt, and Sherwin highly praise Miss Casper's voice and singing, and she has a definitely favourable future in immediate reach. A new basso, Mr. W. M. McEachern, from Albury, made his first Sydney appearance, and created a good impression. Miss Zara Wolinski, possessed of a pure lyric soprano voice, was heartily encored, as was also Mr. Emil Süssmilch. Other local artists assisted, and Miss Ella Caspers was loaded with floral tributes.

WEST'S PICTURES, at the Palace Theatre, now include a fine set of scenes from The Silver King, and during the Fleet visit the management will revive "Our Navy" series of life on board a British man-o'-war.

STEVENS' PICTURES, McMahon's For the Term of His Natural Life, and the picture shows are all doing paying business, and the Amphitheatre has an adequate vaudeville company.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 25.—PRINCESS'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. Allan Hamilton).—A large audience witnessed the performance of The Prince Chap on Saturday evening. This pleasing comedy can only be staged for five more nights. On Saturday evening next Mr. J. C. Williamson's company will open in the Dutch musical play, The Red Mill.

THEATRE ROYAL (Lessees, Messrs. Meynell and Gunn; Business-Manager, Mr. Stanley W. Cherry).—After a successful run of three weeks the sensational drama, Two Little Sailor Boys, will be withdrawn on Friday night next. On Saturday evening the National Opera Company make their first appearance in Melbourne. Their opening production will be Les Cloches de Corneville. Popular prices are being charged, and the season promises to be a successful one.

OPERA HOUSE (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon).—A full house thoroughly enjoyed the generous programme provided on Saturday evening. Mr. Burt Shepard made his first appearance in an entertaining monologue turn. A specially hearty reception was accorded to the troupe of Arabs, whose surprising exhibition becomes more popular the more it is seen. Mr. Tod Lowen rendered three quaint ditties in his best style. Other artists on the present bill include Fred Bluett, Rigoletto Bros., Desmond Sisters, Four Rosebuds, Nellie Wilson, George Dean, and the Ranger Sisters. A distinct hit was made with the biograph pictures depicting the arrival of the American Fleet at Sydney.

KING'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant).—The stirring melodrama, A Life's Revenge, was revived on Saturday evening, and served to draw a full house. The part of Princess Vauda Ivyala was ably sustained by Miss Eugenie Duggan. Mr. Lawrence Dunbar was well cast as the Prince; he succeeded in making himself thoroughly detested by the audience. Other characters were satisfactorily played by Mr. Bert Bailey, Mr. Temple Harrison, Mr. Edmund Duggan, and Miss Ada Guildford; while the minor parts were all well taken by other members of the company. The scenery and costumes left nothing to be desired.

BIJOU THEATRE (Director, Mr. Henry Hayward).—Mr. Hayward's company are approaching the end of a successful season. This week will afford the last opportunity of seeing the wonderful illusions of Maskelyne and Devant, the adroit and brilliant juggling of Gintaro, and the inimitable drolleries of Mr. Barclay Gammon.

GAIETY THEATRE (Manager, Mr. Harry Brennan).—The National Vaudeville Company appeared in a complete change of programme on Saturday evening. A special feature was the reappearance of Jarvis and Martyn, comedy jugglers and hoop spinners. The rest of Mr. Brennan's company contributed interesting turns.

WEST'S pictures at Wirth's Olympia continue to draw large houses.

MADAME STOCKHAM'S Ladies' Orchestra, including the celebrated harp trio and vocalists, will be heard at the Crystal Palace on Monday next and during the week. This band of entertainers were extremely successful when they last visited Sydenham, and no doubt they will attract an unusually large crowd.

HANDSOME prizes are now on view in the Centre Transept of the Crystal Palace. These will be gained by many of the young ladies and gentlemen and children who compete in the Grand Fancy Dress Carnival and Confetti Fête which will take place at the Palace on Wednesday, Oct. 14. There is, however, no reasan why old folk should not also endeavour to secure some of the beautiful trophies. There will be prizes for the handsomest, most original, and most topical costumes, and for the advertisements, comical, and children's competitions. Competitors in fancy dress only will be admitted to the carnival, and can compete free of charge except for the usual admission to the Crystal Palace. The North Nave will be opened at 6 p.m., and the judging will take place at 6.15 p.m.

THE Chrysanthemum Show will be held at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday next and two following days. The Kennel Club Dog Show is fixed for Oct. 20 to 22.

REHEARSALS for the eighth season of the Crystal Palace Orchestral Society will be resumed on Monday evening in the Concert Room, for Elgar's "King Olaf," McCunn's "Lord Ullin's Daughter," new concert selection from German's opera The Princess of Kensington, "Suite Algerienne" (Saint-Saëns), and "Welsh Rhapsody" (German). There are vacancies for all strings, and application should be made to Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, conductor, or Mr. P. J. Morgan, hon. secretary.

COLLEY CIBBER, who was often deficient in his part from making too free with the bottle, was one evening sustaining a character in a Roman tragedy. When he came to this passage, "I was then in Rome," his memory failed him, and after several ineffectual attempts to recover the passage, and receiving no assistance from the prompter, he started aside, and seizing the fellow by the collar, fairly dragged him forward, and pinching his ear, exclaimed, "Hang you, you scoundrel, what was I doing in Rome? Why don't you tell me?"

"THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT," for actor and composer, by Albert A. Strong, LL.B. (Lond.). Price 3s. 6d., post free 3s. 10d. Published at The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

MR. FRED MILLER'S TESTIMONIAL.

The excellent qualities of Mr. Fred Miller, as a man, as a sportsman, and as a manager, are generally recognised by all branches of the profession, and no artist or proprietor who has ever come into contact with him has failed to recognise his sterling honesty of purpose, or to be impressed by his unobtrusive courtesy and consideration to everyone working with him. For fifteen years Mr. Miller has been associated with the halls, and though the sphere of his activity for most of that time has been restricted to the South and East of London, his connection with the Syndicate has brought him much popularity up West. Several of his friends, taking into consideration his long and honourable career, feel that the present time is very opportune for presenting him with a testimonial, which it is intended shall take the shape of a purse of gold. Mr. W. H. Armstrong, the well-known professional solicitor, of 1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, is interesting himself in the project, and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, manager of The Era, is the hon. treasurer of the fund, and will be pleased to receive subscriptions.

It was at Lechlade, Gloucestershire, that Mr. Fred Miller first saw the light. His father, an influential grazing farmer, was an enthusiastic rider to hounds, and from the age of twelve young Fred followed his father in the field, and in many an eventful run was in the first flight. At the age of seventeen he accepted an offer from an uncle in the cattle trade, and settled down with him at Wormholt Farm, Shepherd's Bush, where he gained considerable experience and became a good business man. The death of his uncle brought about a change in his fortunes, and he accepted a situation as travelling secretary with Captain Macdonald. Again his employer died, and he had to try fresh fields and pastures new. Through the instrumentality of the late Mr. Harry Lundy, distantly related to him through marriage, Mr. Miller was introduced to Mr. George Adney Payne, who gave him the position of secretary to Mr. Arthur Tressidder, then manager of the Paragon. On Mr. Tressidder's departure on a voyage in search of health Mr. Miller was transferred to Mr. Will Lennon, the successor of Mr. Tressidder at the Paragon. At his death Mr. G. A. Payne chose Mr. Miller for the managership of the house in the Mile End-road, and on the resignation of Mr. Fred Holden of his position at the Canterbury Mr. Miller was installed as manager of both the Canterbury and the Paragon.

The jubilee of the Canterbury in November, 1902, when Charles Morton paid his last visit to a house that was indelibly associated with his career, owed its interest and its success to the organising powers of Mr. Miller, who placed before the patrons of the historic house a novel realisation of the present and past in music-hall entertainment. The portraits of favourites of the 'sixties, the 'seventies, and the 'eighties were thrown upon a screen, and many of the famous old songs were sung by new favourites. It was a great night. Though Mr. Miller has severed his connection with the Canterbury, it is to be hoped that he will be placed in a position commensurate with his abilities and experience at another hall. His many friends anticipate that it will be in London.

Mr. Kendall Robinson, a staunch friend of Mr. Fred Miller, in sending a contribution to this Fund, testifies as follows:—"I have much pleasure in enclosing cheque for one guinea for the Miller Testimonial. I have known Mr. Miller for many years. Uniformly warm-hearted and open-handed, his kindnesses and 'good turns' to large numbers of those who were brought in contact with him at the Paragon and Canterbury can only have been limited by his physical capacity for doing them."

DR. PARR used to tell the following story:—A Mr. Greethead wrote a tragedy which he called The Regent. It came out whilst the great question of the Regency was pending, and so hotly debated by Pitt and Fox. Of course, people flocked to see a play with such a name, thinking, no doubt, it related to the great party question of the day. But it was a Spanish story, and had nothing to do with the Regency; and everybody was disappointed. Mrs. Siddons, by her excellent acting, kept it up for some nights, but it was only a faint, languishing state of existence. At last some wags in the pit set up a laugh at some ridiculous passage in the dialogue, and then it sank for ever. Somebody asks one of the personages where he had left the King, and is answered thus:—

"Within his tent, surrounded by a friend
Or two, he sits and mocks at fortune."

Now, if the word had been attended, all would have been well; but the idea of a man surrounded by a friend or two was most egregiously absurd.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE sixth annual concert in aid of the Benevolent Funds of the London branches of the National Association of Theatrical Employees will take place on Sunday evening, Nov. 29, in His Majesty's Theatre, Mr. Tree having generously consented to lend the theatre to the Association for this purpose. The Concert Committee are now considering the arrangements, and it will endeavour to provide a novel programme as, having regard to the concerts given by the Sunday League and the Musicians' Union, it is not intended to compete with them in the provision of instrumental music.

MR. J. B. WILLIAMS, the general secretary of the Musicians' Union, has been paid an unusual compliment. At the suggestion of Mr. Thomas Barrasford, he has been selected to arbitrate between Mr. Barrasford and the Brussels Musicians' Union in the dispute now proceeding between that organisation and the management of the Alhambra Music Hall in that city. The Brussels Union is connected with the International Federation of Musicians, of which the A.M.U. is an affiliated body. Mr. Williams has already left for Brussels.

MR. WM. MATHER has been appointed stage-manager at the Islington Hippodrome in place of Mr. Tolano.

CHILDREN ON THE STAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Last Saturday a licence was applied for at Bow-street for a child to appear for one week at the Holborn Empire. Her mother was present, and informed the magistrate that she would accompany the child. She also produced a doctor's certificate stating that the child was in thorough good health and perfectly fit to fulfil the engagement, and also produced the child's birth certificate—in fact, complied with all the requirements of the Act. The magistrate absolutely refused to grant the licence on the ground that the mother, who was in the box, was unable from memory to satisfy him the year the child was born in, although the certificate of birth was lying before him.

The Act in its present form applies only to theatres, and not to a music hall with two performances nightly. The licence states a child must have four hours' rest between each performance, consequently a child going on at 6.45 in the first house must go on not before 10.45 in the second house. The child would therefore not be able to reach home before eleven o'clock, or later. Is this not cruelty to children?

The ridiculous decision of the Bow-street magistrate will, no doubt, influence other magistrates, and I think a clear-headed member of the L.C.C. or some other important body should, without delay, take the matter up, and endeavour to place the Act in a more proper form.—Yours faithfully,

A MUSIC HALL MANAGER.

Brixton, S.W., Sept. 30, 1908.

THE ENGLISH OPERA HOUSE.

"Masquerades and costume recitals," writes Mr. H. Barton Barker in his "History of the London Stage," "were given at the English Opera House to fill up the winter months, and occasionally special permission was obtained for some distinguished actor to appear in a round of legitimate characters. It was in 1821 that Mrs. Glover played Hamlet for her benefit, and a year or two later Mathews was allowed to appear in some of his famous characters of legitimate comedy. Here, in 1821, was produced the operatic version of Guy Mannering, Miss Kelly being Meg Merrilies. Liston and Mme. Vestris in 1823 were playing in Sweethearts and Wives.

"In the same season was given a dramatic version of Mrs. Shelly's weird romance Frankenstein. T. P. Cooke's Monster was a wonderful performance, which he afterwards repeated at the Porte St. Martin, and for eighty nights thrilled the Parisians as he had thrilled the Londoners. No less hair-stirring was his Zamiel, in an English version of Der Freischütz. Though the score was very much condensed, the great opera was an enormous success. The minor house could still boast of the finest talent of the day. In addition to the actors already named may be added Miss Stephens, Henry Phillips, Miss Romer; two celebrated juvenile prodigies of the time—Clara Fisher and Master Burke; James Bland, Keeley; and, on July 2, 1825, the bills announced that Miss Goward, from the Theatres Royal, Norwich and York, would make her first appearance in London as Rosina in the ballad opera of that name, and Little Pickle in The Spoiled Child. That lady was destined to become one of the greatest favourites, scarcely excepting Fanny Kelly, that ever trod those boards, but she was better known thereafter as Mrs. Keeley.

"During 1828, an explosion of gas having compelled the closing of Covent Garden, the company appeared here, and Kean played some of his finest parts—Shylock, Sir Giles Overreach, Sir Edward Mortimer. A famous melodramatic sensation, The Bottle Imp, in which O'Smith, who was to be Cooke's successor in diablerie, played the Imp, and Frank Matthews made his first appearance, was produced in the same year, and ran for forty-four nights.

"On Feb. 10, 1830, while in the occupancy of a French company, the English Opera House died the natural death of all theatres—by fire. It was a terrible conflagration, sweeping away one side of Exeter-street, and involving a loss to Mr. Arnold of £8,000. During the next three years the company played now at the Adelphi, now at the Olympic; and it was not until July, 1834, that the present building was finished and opened under the name of the 'New Theatre Royal, Lyceum, and English Opera House.' Beazeley, the architect, made a curious omission in the plan—the gallery stairs were forgotten. This extraordinary oversight was not discovered until the building was finished, and a temporary wooden staircase, which however, remained for several years, had to be hastily put up for the ascent of the gods to their Olympus."

SOME one or two years after Edmund Kean's metropolitan début he was engaged in the circuit of Mr. J—— C——. His success was immense, and he received nightly half the receipts of the house. The average exceeded £50 per night. Kean's share was brought to him each night after the play by Mr. J—— C——, to whom, however, nothing could induce him to speak one word; but, with a doggedness that appeared premeditated, when the well-known knock came to the door of his dressing-room, he always said aloud to his servant, "See what that man wants." About 1827, when the once flourishing manager, stricken by sorrow and by years, applied to the tragedian to play one night for his benefit, Kean consented: the night was fixed for the one after Kean's engagement. Some nights previous to its occurrence he, with some of the actors of the company, met at a tavern in the town, and the ci-devant manager, thinking all former ill-feeling buried, rose, and made a speech allusive to Kean's generosity. This was received with loud acclamations, amid which Kean rose and said: "Don't let us misunderstand one another. I am bound to you by no ties of former acquaintance. I don't play for you because you were once my manager, or a manager. If ever a man deserved his destiny it is you. If ever there was a family of tyrants, it is yours. I do not play for you from former friendship; but I play for you because you are a fallen man."

OUR MUSICAL CONDUCTORS.

MR. E. T. DE BANZIE.

Of French extraction, Mr. E. T. de Banzie was born in Hull on June 7, 1862, educated at Carlisle, and graduated in Medicine at the Glasgow University. He comes of a medical stock, his father being an M.D., LL.D., and his mother a nurse with Miss Florence Nightingale during the Crimean War; but music had a firmer hold on Mr. de Banzie than medicine, so he "threw physic to the dogs," and devoted his attention to St. Cecilia. Glasgow saw most of his labours, and by natural ability and undoubted business capacity he rose to be one of the most popular musicians in Scotland. The International Exhibition of 1888 brought him unmistakably to the front as a conductor. "De Banzie's Band" became famous, and he had the honour of performing before the late Queen Victoria on three occasions. Mr. de Banzie was for over twelve years musical-director for the Glasgow Corporation bands, in the parks, and concerts; director of the sacred and classical concerts; bandmaster of the Glasgow Highlanders; and resident musical-director for Messrs. Howard and Wyndham at the Royal and Royalty theatres, where he stage-managed as well as conducted three consecutive pantomimes for the late T. W. Charles, of the Prince's, Manchester. He was also Professor of Instrumentation at the Athenæum School of Music, and his many private pupils and apprentices now hold prominent positions as soloists and conductors.

It was Mr. Robert Courtneidge who first induced Mr. de Banzie to try authorship, and the result was a farcical operetta, Pim-Pom! written expressly for Mr. Courtneidge's benefit at the Glasgow Princess's, where he was playing principal comedy part in the pantomime of Peter Wilkins. Since then Her Wedding Day, Honour Bright, The Inkslinger, In the Green-room, Who's Zoo? A Scotch Marriage, A Scotch and Polly, &c., have issued from his fertile pen. He is an indefatigable worker. Par example, he produced in March last year at the Regent, Salford, A Scotch Marriage, in July A Trip to the Highlands, and in September, at the Pavilion, Glasgow, Who's Zoo? this in addition to his duties as conductor, and the many calls upon his pen for songs and minor sketches. Mr. de Banzie is well known as a composer of melodramatic and pantomime music, and was resident-composer at the Pavilion Theatre, London, with Mr. Isaac Cohen for five years, and in conjunction with the late Fred Locke has "scored" many successes. One pantomime they wrote—Babes in the Wood—for Battersby's Children's Opera Co., ran without a break for nearly four years. Mr. de Banzie is well known in Masonic circles as an enthusiastic brother, holding high degrees, and for "Masonic work done" has had conferred upon him hon. life membership by over a dozen lodges. He was elected to the W.M.'s chair in Lodge Dramatic, 541 (his mother Lodge), four times. He is an artist in both oil and water colours of no mean order, and his ready pen-and-ink sketches afford amusement to his many friends and intimates, who include some of the most prominent artists in the theatrical and music-hall world.

AMUSEMENTS IN NAPLES.

NAPLES, Sept. 24.—The summer season here has been an ideal one. The lion's share of patronage has fallen to the charming Eldorado Lucia, and its elegant summer theatre has been taxed to its utmost capacity night after night. The Merry Widow (La Vedova Allegra) and The Prince of Pilsen, played by Signor Lombardo's Operette Company, were the most successful pieces, recording about forty consecutive performances respectively.

THE annual competition for the best new Neapolitan songs, in celebration of the Piedigrotta Feast, was held at the beginning of this month, and many beautiful songs were submitted for prizes offered by the several local music publishers. A nightly festival of the successful songs and duets is now held in the beautiful Galleria Umberto I. Enthusiastic demonstrations are given to the Neapolitan duettists, Signor and Signora Moretti.

GREAT preparations are being made by the management of the Teatro S. Carlo for the coming winter season, which promises to be the best for many years. Amongst the operas new to Naples are Wagner's Crepuscolo degli Dei, Massenet's Thäis, Cilea's Gloria, Mascheroni's Perugina, and a sacred action, Battista, based on the Salomé subject, with music by D. Giocondo Fino. Other operas will be Verdi's Aida, Mascagni's Ratcliff, Thomas's Amleto, and Bizet's Carmen. The artists specially engaged for Wagner's opera are Borgatti and Litwinne. Among the tenors will be A. Bassi, M. Gilion, F. Vignas, and John McCormack. Battistini and Titta Ruffo figure at the head of the baritones. Amongst the ballets is Nel Giappone, by C. Coppi, of Alhambra fame.

"WHEN you draw your parallels of great actors," said Elliston, addressing Moncrieff, whom he had requested to become his biographer, "you will not fail to recollect that Garrick could not sing—I can. That Lewis could not act tragedy—I can. That Mossop could not play comedy—I can. That Kean never wrote a drama—I have. Do not forget these things, sir, but in mentioning my name you cannot help associating with my name all that is memorable in the age in which I flourished."

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the PUBLISHER, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

THE OLD STOCK DAYS.

Just as I was beginning to think again of the Queen's shilling, wrote John Coleman in "Fifty Years of an Actor's Life," there came an offer to join the company of Messrs. Pike and Gudgeon at Greenock for the light comedy and juvenile tragedy at a rural guinea a week. The light comedy and juveniles, quotha! At last my ability was being discovered, and doubtless this was the first step on the highway to fortune.

I immediately closed with this munificent proposal, and the next night found me in the steerage of the good ship "Roslyn Castle" bound for Greenock.

As soon as I landed, I looked out for the bill of the play. Oh, joy! oh, rapture! I saw myself advertised in large letters after this fashion:

TO-MORROW NIGHT THE CELEBRATED JUVENILE TRAGEDIAN, MR. J. C., FROM [VERY MUCH FROM] THE THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE, WILL MAKE HIS FIRST APPEARANCE IN THIS CITY [WHY CITY?] IN THE PART OF ALONZO IN SHERIDAN'S GRAND TRAGIC PLAY OF PIZARRO; OR, THE DEATH OF ROLLA.

Night falls—I forget the time of year, but it must have been in the winter, because it got dark so soon. I don my great-coat, and am off to the theatre. At last I find it. It is fully an hour before the time of commencement; there is not a light or a sign of a light outside the building.

The stage door is open (there is no hall porter). I grope about, and at length find my way to the stage. The gas is not yet on; but by the light of three or four stodgy tallow dips bound together in a vessel, which I afterwards learn is called the "fat pot," I perceive a remarkable-looking person in a shabby black dress-coat and vest, a clerical top hat, white choker, and slate-coloured continuations sweeping the stage. This gentleman is humming something to himself about "Heather Jock" being "awa." While I am wondering who Heather Jock may be and what takes him "awa" the singer catches sight of me, pauses, and abruptly inquires, "Well, sir, and who may you be?"

I respond with the requisite information, and ask when Mr. Gudgeon or Mr. Pike is likely to arrive. My interlocutor informs me that he himself is Mr. Pike, and that his partner, the redoubtable Gudgeon, is expected immediately. Thereupon Mr. Pike thrusts his greasy paw (to the serious detriment of my lavender gloves) into mine, gives me an effusive welcome, produces some snuff, wrapped up in a piece of brown paper, from his waistcoat pocket, and offers me a pinch. Wishing to be civil to the old gentleman, who, I feel convinced, is one of those eccentric managers of whom I have so often heard, I take a pinch, with woeful consequences.

Mr. Pike graciously inquires about my late manager and various members of the Belfast company, and resumes the apparently congenial task of sweeping the stage. At last the property man appears. This worthy fellow is "three single gentlemen rolled into one"—property man, carpenter, and gasman. He "lights up," and with the aid of Mr. Pike sets the scene and drops the curtain. Then, announcing the arrival of the great Gudgeon, Pike offers to introduce me. I am conducted to a large and commodious dressing-room (for the theatre is a decent little house), where I am confronted by a tall, elderly, bald-headed man, built somewhat like a spider. His face is deeply pitted with smallpox. He has no chest to speak of. His lower limbs resemble those of a daddy-long-legs. His protuberant digestive apparatus, however, asserts itself in a manner so menacing that it looks as if it were about to burst through the doublet which he has assumed for The Master of Ravenswood. He inquires about the Keans by their Christian names, which, of course, evinces his familiarity with those distinguished artists.

While making these inquiries he leisurely attaches half a dozen corkscrew ringlets to a black scratch wig, which constitutes his chevelure for the last Lord of Ravenswood.

"Of course, you've acted Alonzo?" he remarks, casually.

As I didn't want him to know I was a novice, I improvise a pious fraud. "Of course!" I reply; "but I shall want to have a look at the book, just to refresh my memory."

"By all means; we'll have it looked out. Meanwhile, Pike, perhaps you'd better introduce the young gentleman to the company."

"Certainly," replies Pike; "come along, sir."

When we return to the stage I hear the band rasping away. Furtively peeping through the curtain, I catch sight of a little man in a Richard armhole robe and a short white wig (through which, in various places, wisps of stubbly black hair are protruding). He is the leader, fiddling away for dear life at a set of Scottish quadrilles, and is supported by a cornet, a flute, and a trombone. There are two or three dozen people in the pit eating scones and cracking nuts—altogether a lively and inspiring sight! Presently Mr. Pike leads me to the left-hand side of the stage, where I find a fire, round which are grouped three elderly ladies and two boys of my own age.

One of the ladies was a gaunt, elderly person with "no prominences to speak of but her heels and her elbows." Her scanty tresses were bound by a strip of tinsel lace which did duty for what in those days was called a "zone"; her eyes were like boiled gooseberries; her nose corrugated, but celestially inclined; while a dress of threadbare black velvet emphasised the absence of adipose tissue and the presence of her lank, lean arms. At the moment of my introduction to Mrs. Gudgeon she was taking snuff. The situation was awkward, but she rose to the occasion and cordially invited me to join her. With every desire to make myself agreeable to the lady, the recollection of my last experience emboldened me to decline the proffered courtesy.

The second lady was a buxom party of middle age and ample dimensions, with eyes which must have done much mischief in their time, a piquant, tip-tilted nose, a capacious mouth, splendid teeth, and a still passably fine head of black hair. Such was the better half of Mr. Pike. The third and last lady, Mrs. Melton, was a faded, emaciated creature, who looked as if she had been pressed in a hortus siccus, which had squeezed every drop of blood out of her attenuated body. She still retained traces of former beauty, an abundance of fair hair, bright blue eyes, and pearly teeth. The poor soul was a widow, and mother of the two boys, Harry and Willie, to whom I was now introduced. One of them did Hayston of Bucklaw; the other did half a dozen parts.

By this time the curtain had rung up, and the leader of the orchestra came on the stage for Sir William Ashton. During these repeated introductions I was all impatience to make the acquaintance of "the fair, the chaste, the inexpressive" Miss Love. So I asked one of the boys when she appeared.

"Huts!" he replied, "there's no Miss Love!"

"Then who plays Lucy Ashton?"

"Yon!" said he, pointing significantly to the Gorgon with the grizzled hair, who was taking a final pinch of rappee before she went on the stage. My heart sank into my boots as I beheld this gruesome apparition. How I wished myself back at Belfast—anywhere, anywhere out of this museum of antiquities!

THE funeral of Mabel Countess Russell took place at Maidenhead on Friday, Sept. 25.

Barton Mop.

The pleasure fair in connection with this ancient hiring fair at Gloucester opened on Saturday, Sept. 26. For the opening day the principal shows and machines on exhibition were those of the lessee, Mr. Jacob Studt, whose magnificent display of up-to-date machines and the mammoth cinematograph theatre were the great attractions of the fair. The superb cinematograph and variety theatre, with its great organ front and its clever troupe of outside paraders, was the centre of attraction, and the immense pavilion was crowded by delighted audiences.

The Gordon-Bennett motor-cars (a very fine set), the scenic railway, with gondola switchback cars, the galloping horses, and the helter-skelter tower were amongst the other novelties provided by Mr. Jacob Studt.

The Other Shows.

Owing to an unfortunate delay at Ross on their way from Abergavenny Fair, Messrs. J. Dooner and Son did not arrive with their cinematograph theatre until too late to build up and do business on the Saturday. A. Purchase and Sons' well-known menagerie arrived only in time, in the early hours of Monday, to build up for the principal fair day. Both these high-class concerns undoubtedly added to the attractiveness of the fair. The other shows included Tom Taylor's up-to-date sparring pavilion, with school of athletes and boxers, and three small side-shows of a freak and novelty character; Mr. H. Strickland provided both steam roundabouts, park swings, and other novelties; Mr. W. Wilson exhibited his aerial wheel; Mr. John Fossett provided shooting-ranges and photo-saloons; Mr. W. H. Freeman with throwing games and novelty frames; shooting concerns, hoop-la circles, and all the fun of the fair were provided, amongst others, by W. Moore, E. Smith, C. Clack, J. Edwards, jun., S. Robins, H. Davies, and J. Stanley.

Taunton Fair.

The principal shows and amusements at Taunton Carnival Fair were provided by Messrs. Anderton and Rowland, Marshall Hill, Alfred Wright, F. Heywood, E. Chaplain, J. Gratton, J. Herbert, T. Rowland, E. Hill, T. Powell, Bernard Hill, E. Smith, and J. Anderson.

Haslemere Fair.

The September fair was maintained by the local caterers, principal amongst whom were Mr. R. Wall (the local showman), who provided steam horses, park swings, Winchester range, and throwing games. The other caterers were Messrs. A. Smith, Matthews, and Davies.

Guild Subscriptions for 1908: L. Rich, 5s.; M. Chapman, 5s.; J. Harker, 5s.; M. E. Paine, 5s.; Mr. Hey, 5s.; Mr. Dabell, 5s.

Show Notes from the Midlands.

For the pleasure fair at Studley the attractions included Chipperfield's modern show of living pictures, T. Clark's electric motor-cars, helter-skelter tower, and minor novelties, with the usual attendant throng of the providers of stalls, throwing games, and varieties.

Sedgwick's American menagerie has visited Evesham for a short season.

The fair will take place on Merstow Green on the usual date, Oct. 9.

The Star Animated Picture Company has been at the Assembly Rooms, Astwood Bank, for two nights.

Llanelly pleasure fair was well supported by local showmen this year. The principal show was W. Haggar's superb bioscope exhibition, giving a fine range of up-to-date pictures under the direction of Mr. Walter Haggar. Closely following in popularity was the bioscope show of Messrs. Creecraft. Another acceptable feature of the fair was Mr. Frank Gess with school of boxers. The machine novelties were provided by Messrs. Henry Studt and Son, and Messrs. North and Matthews exhibited their big range of minor novelties, coker sheets, shooters, swings, and variety frames.

White's amalgamation of amusements are at Dowlais this week, every concern on the ground being well patronised. With the bioscope entertainment, and, appearing at each performance, are those clever performers, Mazzoli, the handcuff king; Miss Mahoney, the fettered lady; Walter Gibbons, baritone vocalist and song illustrator; Willie Long, comedian; and the capable manager and advance-agent, Alfred Shirley, each performer being well received.

WORLD'S FAIR.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL, ISLINGTON, N.

"I think," said Mr. T. E. Read, lessee and manager of this highly-popular and long-standing annual show, "that the 'Fair' becomes more popular every year, the chief reason being the enormous number and variety of its attractions, and the marvellously small sum of sixpence for admission. For which you can practically see everything free, except an occasional 1d. or 2d. for some of the special large, handsome side-shows, the very best to be seen in the world.

"There is an enormous amount of capital sunk in a show of this character, and any amount of travelling, far and wide, in search of novelties, and the largest and best attractions to be secured for the delectation of the amusement-seeking public. They have been so educated in their tastes for amusements that they only want, and will have, absolutely the very best. Give them that, and you get their patronage. And to give it, as I said before, entails an enormous outlay, and the devoting of your whole time and attention for many months prior to and during the run of the show.

"I will just give you a little idea. For instance, take Hanneford's Great Canadian Circus. There is travelling abroad to see it on tour, also to arrange for its enormous stud of horses, ponies, dogs, and various other animals. The big company of equestrian artists, male and female, all speciality turns and first-class artists in their various lines. The transport from and to the Continent, which runs into big figures. The same applies to Bostock's world-famed 'Zoological Collection,' the upkeep of which is absolutely terrific. The elephants alone put away some tons of hay a week, also flesh for the carnivorous animals. Another enormous item is that of the aerial shows. This is, of course, one of the big features, and must be of the very first rank, and it is only from the Continent these speciality artists can be obtained, the heavy fare and freightage being almost prohibitive. However, the public want them, and their wants have to be supplied. The Six Banvards will bring a marvellous act this season, and will no doubt eclipse all its forerunners, good as they have been, the adaptability of the vast hall lending itself greatly to its effectiveness, and of which the Six Flying Banvards will take full advantage. They are the very cream of the aerial world, commanding exceedingly high salaries, giving two shows daily, and can be seen free of any extra charge.

"There is also an additional hall, wherein are numerous other shows and amusements of an highly-attractive character; in fact, its attractions are endless, and the original and popular 6d. is the secret of the enormous success it has achieved. It is indeed a prodigious undertaking. What with the foregoing and a big working staff, it is no visionary dream.

"Its realisation can only be materialised by hard work and little rest, and, as I before mentioned, its popularity and nominal 6d. admission, a figure I claim to have popularised for a really big show. The weekly change of the circus is a big feature, which greatly enhances its reputation, and the greatly increased traffic and cheap fares is another great incentive."

Todmorden Wakes.

Amongst the novelties at this fair were Relph and Pedley's galloping porkers; Marshall's motor-cars, East's galloping horses, Cornwell's shooting saloons, Bentley's bottle battery, and Holland's swings and bottle-smasher.

Tyldesley Wakes.

For this excellent fixture a great crowd of concerns, big and little, gathered together. The cinematograph theatres were Kemp's and Clark's. Westwood's giant children, Manders', West and Barber's novelty booth, and Gal Hague's boxers were the sideshows. The machine novelties were provided by Messrs. Green, Davies, Helm, Show, Shuttleworth, Sharpe, Humphreys, and the Mitchell Family. Shooters, throwing games, and variety frames were provided by Messrs. Jewell, Sharpe, Royle, Humphrey, Sedgwick, Whatnough, Richmond, Lorenzo, Fletcher, Henshaw, Forshaw, Ingham, Chadwick, Butterworth, Stanley, Dearden, Gorton, Wilson, Brannan, Harrison, Hughes, and Whatmore.

Dunstable Fair.

The chief amusements at this fair were provided by Mr. Fred Gray, who exhibited two fine machines, the motor switchback and the galloping horses, also park swings, shooters, and varieties; G. Saunders with racing birds; J. Short with gem motors and rifle saloon; and throwing games by Messrs. Sulley and E. Taylor.

Long Stratton Fair.

The amusements here were in the capable hands of Mr. Stocks, the local showman.

The Royal Italian Circus has opened a five-weeks' engagement at Plymouth, and are doing excellent business. The animals, to the number of 200, are trained to the highest pitch of excellence, and their performance reflects the greatest possible credit on Signor B. Volpi, who, by the way, has twice performed before H.M. the King. A feature of the entertainment is a little sketch, entitled The Deserter, performed by the animals, who appear able to do everything except talk, and depicts a trial by court-martial, dogs acting as counsel, and in the end the accused is sentenced to be, and ultimately is, shot by four monkeys impersonating soldiers. Another feature of the show is some wonderful addition by a pony named Thursa. The interludes are filled with some choice selections from a first-class band, and a visit to the Drill Hall is being eagerly anticipated by all the younger folk of Plymouth, to say nothing of their elders.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD AT GLOUCESTER FAIR.

Ever since the transfer by the city authorities of Old Barton Fair from the narrow and crowded streets of the city to the spacious new fair-ground known as the Oxleazes, Westgate Bridge, there has been a marked improvement in the fair. There is room for the old-time fair to adapt itself to the modern circumstances of a growing industrial city. In order to effect this great improvement, the city corporation has wisely co-operated with the showmen, and Gloucester Fair, under its new conditions, is rapidly becoming one of the most promising fairs in the country. Mr. Jacob Studt has been identified with the city scheme to improve the fair, and has ably seconded the efforts of the corporation, for during the past four years (under his management and control) some of the best concerns travelling the country have been found at Gloucester Fair.

Civic Recognition of the Showmen's Guild.

For three years past there has been at every fair an important gathering of the Showmen's Guild. Each time the Mayor and city officials have taken part in the proceedings. This official recognition of the showmen by the cathedral city has given great satisfaction, and it is felt that towns like Hull, King's Lynn, Bolton, and Gloucester are pointing out the way for other enlightened and progressive corporations to follow. We confidently anticipate that other great towns, instead of committing the mistake of the bad old times and endeavouring to abolish the open-air amusements of the people, will welcome the co-operation of the showmen, and that in the end showmen will be recognised for their true worth as the people's itinerant entertainers.

The annual public meeting of the Showmen's Guild at Gloucester Fair has become quite a feature of the popular festival. This year His Worship the Mayor (F. H. Bretherton, Esq.) presided over the gathering, and to mark the official importance of the occasion wore his beautifully-jewelled chain of office. He was supported by the Rev. T. Horne (Guild chaplain), the City High Sheriff (G. Aldridge, Esq.), Alderman W. P. Hume, Councillor James Bruton, the town clerk (G. Sheffield Blakeway, Esq.), and other gentlemen.

The Mayor's Opening Address.

His Worship, in an extremely genial address, observed that he had come at the invitation of the Guild chaplain, Mr. Horne, to welcome the showmen once again to the ancient city of Gloucester, a duty which he performed as mayor with very great pleasure. Gloucester had been associated for many hundreds of years with the gathering known as Barton Fair, and he rejoiced that the fair was as much alive as ever, and all the better for being housed in a more comfortable and satisfactory place. From congested Barton-street, with its danger to public safety, especially since the laying down of the tramways, to the spacious fair-ground provided by the city was indeed a great and important step. He was glad to see in the current report of the Guild that 1907 was a record year—a record as regards the success of its work in opposing restrictive legislation, and a record, too, with regard to the numbers of members enrolled.

There was one point in the report that had attracted his particular attention, and that was where it was stated that showmen were kind-hearted and sympathetic. With that sentiment he fully agreed. All his experience of show life was in support of that statement, and all who had read Charles Dickens' story of Little Nell would remember the sympathy and kindness which had marked Nell's dealings with the showpeople.

He was glad to have the opportunity of introducing to the meeting the travelling chaplain of the Showmen's Guild. He had no doubt that from the great range of his experiences amongst showpeople that they would hear a most interesting and informing address. He would therefore, without further remark, ask the Guild chaplain to address them.

The Guild Chaplain's Address.

On rising to speak, the Rev. T. Horne was warmly received. The work of the Guild, he stated, really comprised three great departments. The first thing they were concerned with was the protection of the trade and business interests of the world of travelling shows, and of necessity linked with that was the defence and maintenance of the people's fairs, in order that the showman might carry on his legitimate work and business.

The second great department of their work was to vindicate the showman's character and to uphold his claims for the rights and liberties of citizenship in the commonwealth.

Their third great work had most naturally grown out of the other important activities—the uplifting of the showman's life, the betterment of the amusements of the people, and bringing in a really helpful form the Church of God on to the fair-ground. (Applause.)

He begged them to bear in mind these three great departments of their labour, and it would be to him a pleasure to inform that meeting of the great progress they had made with every department of their organised life.

The Difficulties of Organisation.

Economists recognise that wherever trade or business is unorganised there is a downward tendency towards sweating and injurious labour conditions. The only salvation for the workers lies in organisation, in combination for mutual protection and advancement. Showmen were an extremely difficult body of workers to organise. His hearers would recognise this when he reminded them that no trade or business in the world afforded greater scope for individual talent than the business of the fair-ground. It was of the very necessity of his being that the showman should be not merely self-contained, but that he also claimed to have something that the public wanted, and that he and he alone could supply. The successful showman must be individualistic. The same genius, however, which carried the showman into public favour also gave him the ability to see (when the necessity arose to defend himself) the advantage of combination.

Twenty or more years ago the showmen combined to defend their trade and calling, to vindicate their character from unjust attack, and to improve and advance their business in public esteem. He ventured to say that there were many at the meeting who could carry their memories back thirty, or perhaps forty, years, to Barton Fair in the olden times—to the kind of shows and entertainments that were then provided. Keeping that picture of thirty years ago in their minds, and comparing it with the splendid fair they saw around them on that fair-ground that day, the vast improvement, the perfection and splendour of the entertainments, the thoroughly up-to-date and attractive character of the amusements, were sufficient proof, if proof were asked, of how far the showman has justified his position as part and parcel of the industrial progress of the present age. (Applause.)

Trade Defence a Continued Necessity.

In the great work of vindicating the showman's claim to the rights and liberties of citizenship they had been compelled from time to time to oppose mistaken legislation. They had been compelled to oppose Bills in Parliament that aimed at the destruction or the serious restriction of their liberties as lawful traders in the State. Showmen had been driven into combination twenty years ago by a Bill promoted by a set of men who held the most narrow-minded and fanatical views with regard to show life and the amusements of the people. He was sorry to have to bring before the meeting a signal example of the recrudescence of similar fanatical proposals in the present Parliament. Lord Clifford of Chudleigh had introduced a Bill into the House of Lords which was, in fact, the resurrection of the old Movable Dwellings Bill of eighteen years ago. He proposed, at the conclusion of his address, to move a resolution with regard to this, the very latest attack upon the life and liberties of showpeople. To justify that resolution he would claim their patience for a few minutes whilst he briefly outlined the serious nature of Lord Clifford's Bill.

The Showmen's Objections to Lord Clifford's Bill.

Showmen claimed to be under the ordinary law of the land. They recognised that in all matters of daily life and conduct both inside and outside their movable dwellings they were subject to the ordinary restraints of the law. They would see the serious nature of the attack upon the showman's life in Lord Clifford's Bill when he reminded them that it proposed to substitute the policeman for the sanitary officer. The administration of the Health Acts by the medical officer and the sanitary authority was undoubtedly for the benefit of the community. Showmen recognise this, and heartily submit, as other house-dwellers submit, to the wise provisions of the sanitary authority. Showmen indignantly repudiated that any further legislation was necessary for movable dwellings than the very ample provisions that already existed. He had gone thoroughly into the matter, and it was already upon the Statute Book that every van, tent, or shed was as much under the control of the sanitary officer as fixed dwellings. If the promoters of the Movable Dwellings Bill want special coercive legislation to deal with gipsies and squatters on common lands, let them be open and honest about it and call their Bill "The Gipsy Encampment Bill." (Hear, hear.)

The Progressive Trend of the Guild's Work.

Leaving the question of trade defence and the opposition to mistaken legislation alone for a little while, he begged to draw their attention to the third great department of the Guild's work—the uplifting of the showman and his working life. He candidly confessed that when he threw in his lot with the showpeople twenty years ago his great object was to defend their character from attack and to protect their means of livelihood. Out of that almost purely secular work there had grown up a much greater work. He would venture to say that this greater enterprise was the very flower and crown of their work. It was the bringing of the Church of God, with all its ministries of spiritual comfort and its sanctions and sweetness of life, to the very door of the showman. That work under God had grown in his hands, and it was to him (and he was proud to say the great body of the men who were worthy of the name of showmen) an equally great pleasure that upon the fair-grounds of the country, wherever the work of the Guild demanded his presence, services had been held, with the knowledge of the bishops and the hearty co-operation of the local clergy. (Great applause.)

He was proud to acknowledge himself a convinced trade unionist; he had fought in many a fight for better conditions of life and better wages for the workers. There was, however, a peculiar honour about the showmen's trade union. It defended his trade, it vindicated his character. That honour was shared alike by all trade unions, but the Showmen's Guild was not content to stop at secular things, but went on and endeavoured to provide for the educational and spiritual needs of its members.

He had been permitted, in the very first years of his association with the Showmen's Guild, to stamp it with this signal honour—that as an organised body of traders they were banded together not merely for defence, but for advance. (Applause.)

The Resolution Against the Bill.

In concluding his address, he wished again to refer to Lord Clifford's Bill now before Parliament. He trusted that the resolution he was about to propose would meet with the approval of the Mayor and the members of the corporation who had honoured the showmen by their presence that afternoon. From what he had already stated, it would be seen that legislation that would impose upon the travelling traders of our fairs restrictions and disabilities that settled traders were not subject to would be a gross perversion of justice and an invasion of the liberties of the subject. He claimed for showmen that class legislation would stigmatise them as unfit for the ordinary duties of citizenship and for the enjoyment of the liberties and freedom of ordinary life, and would be a gross act of injustice. He felt sure that he would carry with him the sympathies of that meeting when he repudiated, with all the warmth of his nature, the libel that showmen as a body of workers deserved to be treated as though they were "lepers, or unclean." He therefore proposed "That this meeting heartily approves of the work of the Showmen's Guild, and strongly deprecates class legislation that would inflict unmerited stigma and disgrace upon the life and work of showpeople." (Applause.)

Other Speeches.

Mr. Johnson, proprietor of the Victoria (portable theatre), Ferndale, Rhondda Valley, in an impressive speech, seconded the resolution. He had been much touched by the Mayor's kindly sympathy, and in particular by his reference to the works of the great Charles Dickens. As an actor he had studied not only our great dramatists, but the great classic writers of our literature; and he, like his Worship the Mayor, was a disciple and student of that great master of human sympathies—the immortal Charles Dickens. Not only in the story of Little Nell, but throughout his writings, there were deeps of human sympathy that the great master of pathos alone could plumb. (Applause.)

He claimed the sympathy of the Mayor and the members of the corporation present, and in fact the whole of that meeting, for the cause of the travelling showmen. The showmen needed sympathy. The very fact that such a Bill as the one he was now condemning had been introduced by responsible statesmen in Parliament was proof more than sufficient that showmen stood in need of all the kindly help and sympathy that Gloucester City could give them. He was proud to be identified with the work of their good chaplain. He had listened with the greatest respect and admiration to the wise words of Mr. Horne's address, and he could assure that meeting that under their chaplain's guidance and by his leadership they were prepared to go forward and to provide for the people amusements and entertainments that would be worthy of their craft and of their calling in life. He was deeply grateful to the Mayor, the City Sheriff, and the other gentlemen present for their kind help and encouragement, and he could assure them that every showman on the ground would endeavour to justify the appreciation that the city had given them. He seconded with all the earnestness he possessed the important resolution moved by the Guild chaplain. (Applause.)

The Mayor then put the resolution to the meeting and it was carried unanimously.

The Complimentary Votes.

Mr. Jacob Studt (the lessee of the fairground) expressed the great pleasure it gave him to have in his show the Mayor of Gloucester, the City Sheriff, the Town Clerk, and the other members of the Corporation who had responded to the invitation of the Showmen's Guild to be present at that meeting. He begged to move a hearty vote of thanks to the Rev. T. Horne, the Mayor, the City Sheriffs, and to the other gentlemen who had taken part in the meeting. He, for his part, would continue to do his best to make Gloucester Fair worthy of the ancient city, and he was confident that such meetings as the present one were calculated to uplift the ideals of showlife and to encourage public bodies to co-operate with practical showmen in the betterment of the amusements of the people. In moving the vote of thanks to the chairman and the speakers, he felt sure he should carry with him the hearty approval of all those present. He was absolutely certain that (along with himself) every showman present at Barton Fair was proud of the honour that the city, through the Corporation, had conferred upon them.

The motion was duly seconded, and carried with acclamation.

The City Sheriff, in responding for the Mayor and the other speakers, gave expression to the deep interest he had taken in the whole of the proceedings. He quite agreed with the Mayor that the civic control and recognition of the fair was bound to have a good effect and to improve the character of the entertainments, as well as to encourage greater patronage of the fair by all classes of the community. To him the most interesting fact he had learnt from the meeting was that the Showmen's Guild dealt with the whole life of the showman—his trade, his home-life, and, in a very real way, his spiritual advancement. The great thing of all was that the Guild not only cared for the worker's livelihood and the security of his family life, but that it also dealt with the higher and spiritual attributes that make for character and that really improve their social conditions.

He wished especially to emphasise the strong point in the Guild Chaplain's address wherein he claimed for the Guild that just where the ordinary Trades Union ceased to be effective, there the Showmen's Guild continued its good work until it touched every corner of the showman's heart and life. It was the consideration of this important truth that inspired him to say to the showmen, "God be with you in your work and enterprise." He responded most heartily, on behalf of the Mayor, the speakers, and others present, to the vote of thanks so warmly expressed.

This brought the meeting to a successful termination.

Showmen's Service at the Fair.

With the consent and co-operation of the Rev. J. J. Luce (hon. local Guild Chaplain), the Rev. T. Horne conducted a highly successful Guild service in Mr. Studt's show at eight o'clock in the evening. The beautiful show pavilion, illuminated by electric lights, was readily adapted for the purpose of the Divine service. The commodious seating arrangements (tip-up plush velvet chairs) afforded accommodation for at least five hundred persons, and the wide avenues and the run-up at the back must have contained four to five hundred more persons standing. The whole of the working staff and Mr. Studt and members of his family entered heartily into the arrangements for the congregation.

Mr. Studt's company rendered every assistance, and the singing of the service was very largely sustained by the fresh young voices of Mrs. Studt's troupe of dancing girls, strengthened by other members of the company.

The Guild Chaplain records with great gratitude that for the first time in his varied experience the choir, the organist, and every assistant in the service were drawn from the showpeople themselves on the fairground.

The Rev. T. Horne intoned the service, read the appointed lesson, and preached. The service was marked by the deepest reverence and attention, and created a marked impression upon the crowded congregation.

After Meeting of the Guild.

Owing to the busy day, the Organising Chaplain was not able to bring matters of urgent business importance before the showpeople alone until after the conclusion of the Guild service. There was a moderately good attendance, and Mr. Richard Dooner was unanimously voted to the chair. Adverting to the late hour of the evening and to the fact that they had been practically in session all day with meetings, he announced his determination to be extremely brief and, he trusted, to the point in what few remarks he wished to make. They were face to face with an exceeding grave state of affairs in Parliament with regard to their life and business, and it was no exaggeration to say that if the Movable Dwellings Bill was passed it would ruin the show business. They had to fight it, and it was a great blessing to them that they had such men as Mr. Horne to stand out and to champion their cause. He asked their friend the Guild Chaplain to explain the Movable Dwellings Bill to the meeting.

The Rev. T. Horne's Speech.

The Bill (said the Chaplain) sought to set up every county and county borough authority as a registration authority to secure the registration, inspection, and licensing of all living vans, in accordance with the rules and regulations that would bind them hand and foot under the control of the county police. He explained in detail other obnoxious points in the measure, and in particular dwelt upon the prohibition of fairs clause.

He concluded a trenchant exposé of the measure by calling upon those present to strengthen the hands of the Guild executive, that all necessary measures might be taken to defeat the Movable Dwellings Bill.

Mr. Jacob Studt's Speech.

He strongly deprecated the apathy of a certain number of the showmen at Gloucester Fair, who had not attended that extremely important meeting. He marvelled at this apparent indifference to their own vital interests. He wished very strongly to identify himself with all that had been said with regard to the necessity for vigorous action, for closing in their ranks and standing shoulder to shoulder as a united body against the common foe. He begged them to think what it would mean if the police of every town had the right of entry merely on suspicion into their homes. They had always been ready to obey every just and proper law with regard to the health and sanitary conditions of their movable homes; but it was the sanitary officer, the medical officer of health, and not the police, that had the right of inquiry and the authority to see to the safety of the general health. He joined with the chairman and with Mr. Horne in urging that non-members joined the Guild, and that all members give, to the best of their ability, additional support to the fighting funds of the society.

Mr. Johnson's Speech.

Mr. Johnson (proprietor of the Victoria Theatre, Ferndale), in an eloquent address, urged the showpeople present to rally to the support of the Showmen's Guild. It was the society that stood between them and their enemies as a bulwark of defence. The Movable Dwellings Bill would treat travelling showpeople as dogs, and wanted to designate their vans as dog-kennels. As an Englishman, and proud of his citizenship, he claimed equal rights with all other men before the law. Let each man in his own sphere do his share towards the defence work; let each one of those present go forth as a missionary to tell others of the pressing need for ready help and of the tremendous danger that faced them; then he felt sure that with such men at the head of affairs as their reverend friend the victory would be certain, and that showmen would be fully vindicated.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd.

Off to America.—In this we get scenes and incidents of the Atlantic voyage on board the s.s. Adriatic. Previous series have dealt with this subject, but even as the charm of actual travel is found in the constant variety afforded, so the pictorial representation of more or less familiar scenes viewed from different aspects always appeals to the observer with fresh force and added delight. The novelty of the first section of this beautiful and breezy subject lies primarily in the fact that the course of the Adriatic is followed by the camera until she is far out from Queenstown, and that the picture-story is taken up by other cameras stationed on the great liner's decks. By these means, the thoroughness of the series is emphasised, and the results show a decided advance over previous pictures of the same class. The second division affords delightful illustration of the daily life on board—no dulness here, but an exhilarating epitome of a voyage on one of the largest and best-found liners afloat, its pleasures, comforts, and amusements. The series concludes with the unusually brilliant scenes in New York harbour, and the bridges, streets, and principal buildings of the great city.

The Pyrenees.—A combination of scenic and spectacular subjects most unusual and original is here set forth. Nature is at her grandest, with sublime effects of sparkling river, rushing torrent, sun-kissed woodland, and gloomy mountain defiles; rural scenes of country life, with primitive farming methods; bull-fight in the Llandes, without any objectionable feature—a play, in fact, not the real thing, but exciting and amusing withal; the Great Monument built over the healing waters of Lourdes—scene of many and constant pilgrimages; old Spanish castle and town of Cargasonne; festival scenes at Fontarabie; quaint and picturesque procession of peasants and frontier soldiery beneath the frowning walls of the castle. All these and many more fascinating scenes form a sum of pictorial variety and beauty of a district out of the usual beaten track which every audience in any country will hail with enthusiasm.

Salving H.M.S. Gladiator.—The vessel depicted was sunk off Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, on April 25 last, after collision with the American liner St. Paul. The Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd., has in times past recorded in vivid motion pictures many wonderful events in maritime history, but the acme of naval engineering, the triumphant salving of the Gladiator, cinematographed by special and exclusive permission of the Lords of the Admiralty, may be regarded as one of the most remarkable of the whole series. In the first picture the wreck is seen as she lay on her side on the morning after the disaster. Then to his great task comes Captain Young, of the Liverpool Salvage Association. Divers begin the work by attaching wire hawsers to the mighty hull, the huge cammells (or air-tight caissons) are sunk, tripods and shore-cables are placed in position, and ultimately the strenuous labours of five long months are crowned by the bringing of the cruiser to an even keel—a weird and wonderful spectacle.

The Lake of the Four Cantons describes a trip by steamer on Lake Lucerne. The towns of Lucerne, Vitznau, and Veggis pass in close stereoscopic review, revealing beautiful and stately mansions, chalets, hotels, theatres, and embankments on the lake front, while fitting backgrounds are afforded by towering mountain peaks, verdure-clad in the lower altitudes, rugged in the distance, but picturesque always. A complete circuit of the lake presents to the delighted gaze typical Swiss scenery of every description, fertile valleys, the Rigi-Bahn or mountain railway, and the romantic chalets nestling in leafy seclusion, mountain shelter behind, pellucid lake in front. The whole series is one of unusual charm by reason of the facilities afforded for the purpose by steamer, lake, gently rising foreground, and the great heights of the cloud-piercing peaks.

Pathé Frères.

The Thought-Reader.—A gentleman, possessed of the gift of thought-reading, discovers around him all sorts of plots which he makes end just as suits his mood. His son is courting the maid, and he dismisses the girl. He kindly warns a peasant that the latter is going to lose all his earnings if he entrusts them to a certain business man whom he knows is going to squander all the money he has in his house belonging to other people. He helps a poor woman who is going to abandon her child for want of the necessary money. He also tells a young lady that the man she is going to marry only likes her money, and at last he causes two ruffians to be arrested just as they are going to murder their victim. But the thought-reader is very wise, and he does not try to use his knowledge for his own benefit, because he thinks that it is better sometimes to be blind than to see too much.

New Laid Eggs.—Just as he reaches home, a man remembers why he went out, for his numerous stops at the different public houses have slightly dimmed his memory. He retraces his steps and goes and buys a dozen new-laid eggs. But how is he to carry these breakable little things, which slip from his fingers like water? He has scarcely gone ten yards when all the eggs fall on the pavement. He has to go back and buy another dozen eggs; this time, what with the many glasses of spirit he has taken, he finds it difficult to keep his balance, and he thinks it safer for him to lean upon a friend of his he meets, and with whom he goes and has another drink. As he is going to give his friend a great hug he feels something crashing in his clothes. The eggs, which he had forgotten, are now forming a poultice in his pocket. He does not despair, he goes and buys a third dozen eggs, and in order that they should be safe he puts them carefully inside his cap, and puts the whole on his head. But a passer-by whom he has pushed a little gives him a mighty blow on the head. There is another omelette. At last, after sundry and various misfortunes, he comes home with a dozen unbroken eggs; but as it is late, and his wife has already retired to bed, he puts the eggs under her pillow for safety, and the next morning she finds chickens where the eggs had been.

A Villain.—A beautiful young woman, apparently happy with her husband, is indiscreet enough to carry on a correspondence with a man unknown to her family. She goes to the post office and receives a letter from her secret lover. She carelessly drops the envelope in the street, and it is picked up by a man who makes a business of blackmailing. He follows her, and as she tears up the letter and casts it to the wind he gathers up the fragments, and taking them to his room, pastes them together and learns the contents. It is a note asking her to meet her lover at the usual place. He goes to her house, and asks for an interview in which he states that he will keep her secret if she hands him a large sum of money. As she has not got that amount, she is made desperate, and going to her room, she drinks poison. Seeing that she does not return, the blackguard hands over the letter to her husband, who is dumbfounded at its contents; then hastening to his wife's room, he finds her lifeless body on the bed with the villain's note demanding money tightly held in her hand. He realises the situation at a glance, and dragging the blackmailer into the room, shows him the effect of his work, and seizing a revolver shoots him through the heart.

The Miniature Circus.—John has received as a present a nice circus with all kinds of clowns and animals. But after playing with his new toy for some time John becomes tired and falls asleep. His dream is a marvellous one, for the clowns are performing their turns with great skill, while the horses, and elephants, and ostriches, &c., come to life and move about. It is so nice! But his parents entering the room wake the little boy up, and he is still so excited with what he has just seen that he must tell Father and Mother all about it. There are some clever trick scenes in this film production.

The Faun.—Mythology and fiction of the fairy-tale order are agreeably combined in this. A faun, in love with Diana, appears amongst the undergrowth in the forest, and on his way he awakens the sleeping nymphs. But Diana, pleased with the sweet music made by a young god at her side, listens to it with delight. The faun is so jealous that he goes for the god and throws him to the ground. Yet Cupid, the god of Love, gives to Diana a philtre, thanks to which the young god comes back to life, whereas the faun, bound with ropes by the nymphs, is placed by them in a petrifying fountain and changed into stone.

Gaumont Company.

A fine record in animated picture production was created last week by the Gaumont Company, of Chrono House, London. The scene was the unveiling of the Worcestershire War Memorial on Wednesday last. One of Gaumont's expert operators, with a Chrono camera, was commissioned to secure a film of this event. Having procured his picture, he caught the 2 p.m. train to London, arriving at 4.15. He then motored with all haste to the firm's extensive works, where the film was immediately taken in hand and developed. Ready for the screen it was despatched to Worcester, where it arrived in time to be shown during the evening's performance. The film was received with great applause, and was of such fine quality stereoscopically that the inscription was easily distinguishable on the monument. The Gaumont Company are to be highly congratulated on their enterprising smartness. The following letter was received by the company, from Mr. Arthur Carlton, of the Theatre Royal, Worcester:—"I should like to thank you very heartily for the great pains and trouble that you took to produce the film of the unveiling of the Worcester Memorial. We received the first part of the film here at Worcester punctually at 8.53 and showed it at 9.15. It caused very great excitement in the theatre. I think without doubt it must be a record for animated photography in this country, as, of course, your man had to travel to London and send the film back here in time for our show."

The New Bioscope Trading Company have appointed as their district manager Mr. Jesse Smith, assistant-manager of the Empire, Shepherd's Bush, since its inception. The leave-taking on Saturday last was marked by presentations, made by Mme. Effie de Bathe, the gifts being a wrist strap, with watch, from the front staff; gold sleeve links, from the police; and a purse of sovereigns from the patrons. Sir William Bull, the Rev. Cartmel Robinson, and the Rev. Stewart Headlam were on the committee.

The Devil.—The story as shown by this film is of the meeting, after years of absence, of an artist, Karl, and an old sweetheart, Olga, at the house of her husband. In spite of their belief that their love is dead, old memories awake. Receiving an order to paint the wife's portrait, our artist friend passes a restless night and is chided by his model for his coldness. He promises to visit her; but meantime he meets husband and wife coming to keep an appointment for a sitting. The husband having left, preparations are made for the sitting, during which the Devil puts in an appearance. Olga, frightened, rushes from the room. The Devil now brings his power into play, so that Karl and Olga, having overcome their scruples, are about to kiss, when her husband arrives. The Devil satisfactorily explains, and the husband is mollified. The artist's model again appears on the scene, and the Devil creates jealousy between her and Olga. Karl now endeavours to resist temptation, but is worsted in the encounter with his satanic majesty. Having now got both of them in his power, the Devil creates commotion at a ball, where the artist comes in conflict with Olga's husband. As a result of this she decides to write Karl "never to see her again." But the Devil wills otherwise, and causes her to say "I love you; I am yours; take me!" and in the struggle to write, she is overcome, and faints. Finally we are shown the triumph of the tempter, Olga rushing to Karl's room, where the Devil gloats over his successful work.

An interesting presentation was made at the staff dinner of Walter Tyler, Ltd., which took place at the Holborn Restaurant on the 23rd ult. Mr. Harold Bishop, chairman of the company, occupied the chair, and Mr. Walter Tyler and Mr. F. Fullagar, both of whom are retiring from active management in the firm, were guests of the evening. Mr. E. Holman Bishop proposed the toast, "Walter Clement Tyler," and said he would like to voice the feelings of good-will and affection felt by the whole of the staff for their late chairman, the founder of the business, who in his retirement could feel that he had not only in his successful life's work established a flourishing business, known throughout the world, but had won the affection and regard of the whole of the staff. He had pleasure in presenting to their founder a gold watch and chain. Mr. Tyler suitably responded, adding that he had found in Mr. E. Holman Bishop a man able and competent to fill his place. Mr. W. H. Palmer proposed the health of Mr. F. A. Fullagar, and said that his retirement from the board was regretted by directors and staff alike, and wished him success in his new venture. Mr. Fullagar expressed his thanks felicitously.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

11,130.—Railways for recreation. Bishop, R. H., and Down, W., both of London.

Relates to amusement apparatus of the gravity-railway type, which comprises an inclined track and an elevator for raising the cars to the point where the descent begins. The elevator consists of a pair of endless travelling chains (a) carrying forked triangular platforms (b), which form horizontal supports for the cars while being raised.

FIG. 5.

The platforms are provided with two pairs of wheels (f, g) running in the same grooves (e) as the chains (a); the grooves form parallel-sided figures with irregularly-shaped ends, which are duplicated, as shown in Figs. 1 and 5. The extremities of the axle of the front wheels (f) are attached to the chains (a), and are carried round the path indicated by the broken line in Fig. 1, while the wheels (g) deviate at the top and bottom to follow the duplicate path. To prevent the rear wheels (g) from falling back into the channels at the lower end of the elevator, each platform is provided with laterally-projecting plates (h) adapted to ride on lugs (i), and thus give the necessary support at the crossing points. The cars are brought into position at the foot of the elevator by means of a chain with a projection (l), which engages a bracket (m) on the cars and moves them one by one along a forked stage (d). The cars are provided with rollers (o) (Fig. 10), mounted on T-shaped plates (r), which are pivoted on pins (s) on the under-side of the cars. The rollers underlie a T-shaped guide and safety-rail (n), and the axles of the wheels are secured to the plates (r), with the result that curvature of the track is met by a corresponding change in the position of the axles.

FIG. 10.

To Stage Machinists and Electricians.—The Manager will be pleased to receive particulars of any new stage appliances or ideas for same for illustration in this column.

MR. W. C. BURNS.

Mr. W. C. Burns, the well-known and experienced showman caterer, has done a marvel in the way of catering at Cooke's Circus, Edinburgh, during the whole of this past summer, commencing March 28. He tried a picture show and turns firstly, but with rank failure; then, after the third week, commenced contests, which he has carried on unremittingly for twenty-four weeks. W. C. B. has many fine achievements in the way of showmanship to his credit, but this is his latest and greatest, inasmuch that the Exhibition for a time closed up every other entertainment house in the city except two. The many various and interesting contests which he has put up included baby shows, beauty shows, wrestling bouts, &c., his greatest endeavour in this respect being his great Marathon Race from Dalkeith to the circus (seven miles) last Saturday, Sept. 26, which set the whole of the Scottish capital ablaze, and, although amidst a drenching rain, the route was packed with thousands of interested spectators. A special force of over 100 police were detailed to keep the home route open. There were forty-seven entries, thirty-five started, and thirty-one came home. The prizes consisted of a very fine handsome silver cup, and gold, gold-centred, and silver medals, total four, which were presented by Mr. Burns on the stage at night amidst the greatest possible amount of enthusiasm to each of the four winners with appropriate remarks. The huge building, holding over 3,000, was densely packed, showing great appreciation in the event. Mr. Burns has again, for the second season, been appointed manager by Mr. Cooke for his equestrian season, commencing middle of Nov., as usual. The picture season finishes Saturday, Oct. 31, and Mr. Burns has set down his benefit for Oct. 30, when he promises a cyclonic bill of fare on that night.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

At the Trinity College, on Wednesday afternoon, Dr. John Warriner delivered a lecture, choosing for his subject how real culture in music is gained. Dr. Warriner had his lecture illustrated by a number of young scholars from the London County Council of the College Saturday classes for training of teachers. In the commencement of his lecture the professor remarked that the best study required real effort, and quoted Pope in saying we ought to rather blame the culture, not the soil. Dr. Warriner also referred to Sir Walter Besant's novel "The Children of Gibeon," in which two girls, one the daughter of a duchess and the other of humble station, receive the same education, and he gave it as an instance of the value in training. Parents sometimes think any sort of teacher will do. In speaking of refinement, the professor said he overheard some ladies in the train speaking of a lady they knew whom they thought vulgar because at tea she put in sugar before milk. In contrast to this Dr. Warriner spoke of a man having tea with a swell, who, on seeing his guest pour his tea into a saucer, at once did the same, and he mentioned this as an instance of true refinement. In music, people often talk about technique, style, tone, &c., and either say it is superb or rotten without in the least understanding music. The great Ruskin said anybody can criticise a picture or a sunset. The lecturer gave several instances of teaching music in the past with book in one hand and cane in the other, and the later equally bad system of bar to bar, saying he knew a gentleman who only could play one tune, which he had learnt a bar at a time. After the lecture the children went through some very clever exercises and sight-singing; and on the professor extemporising at the piano after the manner of a great composer, the children very cleverly gave the name of the composer the professor was imitating. After Master Richard Johnson, a very young and clever student of the College, had played part of the first movement of Mozart's Sonata in F, the pupils of Dr. Warriner, at his request, correctly hummed the principal theme. A youthful vocalist, Miss Nellie Kowin, who has a really beautiful contralto voice, sang "Life's Lullaby" (Gerald Lane) and "She is far from the land," by Frank Lambert. Much applause followed the close of Dr. Warriner's able lecture.

GERMAN CHAMBER PLAYS.

In the current number of the Contemporary Review there is an interesting article on German "Chamber Dramas." Dr. Paul Goldmann, the Berlin correspondent and dramatic critic of the Neue Freie Presse, in a recently published work, "Vom Rückgang der deutschen Bühne," says: "Literary managers, literary dramaturgists, literary authors and literary critics set about the foundation of the truly 'modern' theatre. Everything would have gone smoothly but for one element which in the theatrical business is not devoid of all importance, namely, had not the public shown a deplorable backwardness. The fact remains that the public does not applaud every piece which these authorities—managers, dramaturgists, authors, and critics—acclaim as really literary and modern. The public is frequently unliterary enough to regard a bad piece of this kind as really bad. One can imagine how disturbing this attitude of the public must be in the literary theatrical business, and one can moreover understand what a notable service Max Reinhardt has rendered by succeeding in removing this disturbing element."

The solution was found in the foundation of the Berlin "Kammerspiele." The promoters of the scheme wisely recognised that the public for which they were angling had money and was willing to spend it in the gratification of its intellectual appetites. They saw that their audiences, in their craze for realism, wanted to be brought into even closer touch with the drama, to have it introduced into their drawing-rooms, as it were, so that they could follow every gesture and every spoken word as though actually assisting at the happenings of real life. The idea then was to transfer to stage conditions the distinction existing between concert and chamber music—there the brilliancy of lights and the blare of a full orchestra, here the shaded seclusion of wax candles and the modulated tones of spinet and flute. Kammermusik and Kammerspiele—Chamber Music and Chamber Drama. Considerations of the Censorship—nota bene, an office far more solicitous of the administration of the lèse-majesté law than of the cause of public decency—were surmounted by emphasising the intimate character of the theatre, which was effected by screwing up the prices charged for admission beyond the purses of ordinary mortals. Fifteen, ten, and five marks for stalls, with no other seats but these, are the prices charged. Drama at these prices, in a city where a stall at the opera costs but 8s. 6d., cannot be said to be accessible to the general public, even were the latter likely to be attracted by the strictly modern fare dispensed at the "Kammerspiele." But the hyper-intellectuals have money, you see, and can afford to pay for their thrills.

The "Kammerspiele" is like some dainty édition de luxe printed for private circulation only. It is fitted up in a style of recherché elegance in consonance with the high class of intellectual entertainment it offers. Not a discordant note jars on the perfect harmony of the whole, no noisy footstep re-echoes on the luxurious velvet-pile carpet of the auditorium, no glaring lustres intrude their unwelcome rays on the sacrosanct twilight enveloping this shrine of intellect. Alas! the theatre's pedigree is base and lowly. It was formerly a notorious dancing saloon known to generations of students and their grisettes under the name of Emberg's. As is the way of the world, with its degeneration it became ashamed of its old name and went downhill to the Erebus of bankruptcy under the ægis of Diana, although the traditional epithet of the goddess would hardly have applied to the frequentees of the Diana Säle.

But the interior now shows no signs of those unregenerate days. The parquet slopes up to the back of the auditorium, where are situated the two entrances. The walls are lined with dark cedar wood, the low, flat ceiling is virgin white. The interior is lighted by electric candles in heavy bronze sconces, whose discreetly modulated rays in nowise break the sober impression conveyed by the whole. Soft-voiced attendants in black liveries with red facings, black knee-breeches and buckle shoes, usher the audience silently into their seats. These are not the agonising chairs of torture which elsewhere a long-suffering public tolerates under the name of stalls, but luxuriously padded armchairs. Their comfortable depths, it is true, may tend to augment the soporific effect on the Philistine of Maeterlinck or Ibsen, but, then, this Temple of Art is not for the profane. The attendants with their unobtrusive manner, their exaggerated politeness and noiseless footfall, seem to reflect the character of the place. Like animated marks of interrogation, like the asterisks of the Roman passionel, they seem to incorporate the note of indiscretion, the suggestion of half-revealed intimacies, the query, "What will come next?"

The jarring rustle of the late-comer is taboo at the "Kammerspiele." Every ticket bears a notice that the doors will be closed as soon as the curtain has risen on an act. There must be no risks of the spell being broken. But to say that the curtain rises would not be correct—so simple a procedure were unworthy of the dignity of the place. The ceremony is far more solemn. A gong is struck somewhere at the back of the stage—one heavy booming note—the attendants glide to the doors and silently close them, the lights sink slowly until the auditorium is enveloped in inky darkness, and then the gong resounds again. With a sighing rustle the green silk curtains divide, the drop rises, and the play begins. There are no matinées at the "Kammerspiele"—daylight would imperil the subsequent impression—and calls before the curtain are likewise forbidden as calculated to break the continuity of thrill.

In German theatrical annals the name of Max Reinhardt will for ever be indissolubly associated with the turntable stage, the so-called "Drehbühne." The mechanism is extremely simple. The stage is simply a huge revolving disc, capable of division into seven sections radiating from the centre, so that seven scenes can be set up at one time. Only one is fitted to the proscenium opening, and at the conclusion of the act the disc is revolved so that the next segment comes before the audience, and so forth. For more elaborate productions on a large scale the "Drehbühne" is impracticable, because all scenes have to be set to a point, to the centre of the circle, although to secure depth the entire diameter of the disc may also be utilised. From this short explanation it will be seen that the turntable stage permits of rapid change of scenery with comparatively little trouble. Backcloths are practically dispensed with, for the back wall of the stage is concavely domed and with suitable lighting arrangements effectively represents an open-air background, while neutral tones hangings—à la Mr. Tree's Hamlet—are generally used for interiors. I have gone somewhat fully into these technical details as being of such essential importance to the "modern" dramatist.

In accordance with their "modern" character the plays presented at the "Kammerspiele" are mostly of the tense realistic order, with a strong leaning towards the erotic.

"THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD."
Specially rewritten for the Provinces
by Mr. Comyns Carr, by arrangement with
Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree.

The Production last week at Worthing was pronounced by Resident-Manager and Press as the most enthusiastic premiere ever known at the Worthing Theatre.

The Worthing Gazette says:—
Mr. Payne Seddon commenced his tour here, and is entitled to the most hearty congratulations upon the excellent manner in which he has placed the piece upon the stage. (Here follows a lengthy eulogy of the scenery, dresses, and company.) . . . The really powerful portrayal of the exacting part of John Jasper being the most conspicuous feature. Mr. C. H. Croker King's success was proclaimed by the cheers which greeted him at the close, the enthusiasm of the audience being most pronounced. . . . The entire production was of the highest standard of excellence.
Eastbourne Society says:—
Not the least of Mr. Hayes' recent achievements is the attractive engagement of Mr. Payne Seddon's company in "Edwin Drood." The perfection of acting calls for remark. If Mr. Croker King's admirers were astonished at his marvellous performance of Jasper, how much more so were those who had only known him by repute. . . . His art reminds one of Irving in "The Bells" . . . and moreover he has the technique of dramatic impersonation at his finger-tips.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.

By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

AN UNFORTUNATE HUSBAND.

Code Word, "ETRIER."

An old man is making preparations to go on a journey, and his young wife is hurrying him out of the way, for she is expecting her affinity. The young lover arrives before her husband is gone, and the wife hides him under the table until the coast is clear. The old fellow leaves, but, from the look on his wife's face, he judges that there is something on her mind, and he becomes suspicious. He goes outside the door, and makes a noise with his feet, to mislead her, and make her think he has gone down the stairs, but, instead, he peers through the keyhole, and, to his horror, sees his wife and the young man greet each other very affectionately. He hits upon a scheme, whereby he will catch them. He hastens to the street, and spies a ladder belonging to a window-cleaner, and, going over, he takes it and carries it to his house, and is about to climb in through his window when the owner of the ladder and a couple of policemen come along, and, after a hard struggle, arrest the unfortunate husband as a burglar. In the meantime, the wife and her friend escape from the house and elope. The poor husband has a hard time before the magistrate explaining the situation, but finally he is allowed to go home. Upon entering his apartment, he is set upon by two burglars, and bound hand and foot and left to his fate, while they escape with all the valuables. A messenger enters and releases him and hands him a note stating that he has lost his position for neglect of duty in not making the intended trip.

560ft. The Subject, £9 6s. 8d.

A VILLAIN.

Code Word "ENLEVER."

A beautiful young woman, although happy with her husband, carries on a correspondence with another man. She goes to the post-office and receives a letter from her secret lover. She carelessly drops the envelope in the street, and it is picked up by a man who makes a business of blackmailing. He follows her, and gathers up the fragments of the letter as she throws them away, and, taking them to his room, pastes them together and learns the contents. He goes to her house, and asks for an interview, in which he states that he will keep her secret if she hands him a large sum of money. As she has not got that amount, she is made desperate, and, going to her room, she drinks some poison. Seeing that she does not return, the blackguard hands over the letter to her husband, who is dumbfounded at its contents; then, hastening to his wife's room, he finds her dead, with the villain's note demanding money tightly held in her hand. He realises the situation at a glance, and, seizing a revolver ,he shoots the blackmailer through the heart.

428ft. The Subject, £7 2s. 8d.

NEW-LAID EGGS.

Code Word, "EXEMPLE."

Mr. Canny, reaching home in a state of intoxication, suddenly remembers he went out to buy eggs. He retraces his steps, and goes out and buys a dozen, which he puts in his pocket. But, as Canny gives a friend he has met a great hug, he feels something crashing in his pocket, and, on looking, he finds the eggs, now a poultice, in his pocket. He, however, buys another dozen eggs, and, for safety, he puts them in his cap, and puts the whole on his head, but a passer-by, whom Canny has pushed, gives him a mighty blow on the head. There is another omelette. At last Canny reaches home with a dozen unbroken eggs, but, as it is late and his wife has already retired to bed, he puts the eggs under her pillow for safety, and the next morning she finds chickens where the eggs had been.

THE INNKEEPER'S REMORSE.

Code Word, "EXPEDIENT."

The innkeeper in this picture is so short of cash that he does not know how to meet his bills. A rich customer coming in thus puts into his head the idea of appropriating the other man's money by killing him. Remorse, however, throws before his eyes the horrifying vision of his crime, and one night he drops to the ground in front of his victim, come back to life to reproach him with his sin, so the hallucinated man thinks.

379ft. The Subject, £6 6s. 4d.

THE CABMAN'S WIFE.

Code Word, "EXCLUSIF."

At the seaside a bather is flirting with the wife of Jack, the cabman. One day Mr. Cadd thinks he would like to go and see Mrs. Jack, and he beckons a cab, which is just that of her husband. The latter, without suspecting anything, drives his fare to his own address, and, as his customer seems to be a long time, Jack goes with a friend of his to the public-house, where he has a good time. But, seeing that his customer still does not come, he goes up to his wife, and, although he is rather tipsy, he understands why his fare was in no hurry to come down. Attracted by the noise upstairs, some policemen have the three of them marched off. Jack struggles and shouts like a madman, and abuses the police-inspector so much that he is locked up, while in his mind still lingers the idea of his wife and her lover.

528ft. The Subject, £8 16s. 0d.

THE THOUGHT-READER.

Code Word, "FABLIAU."

A gentleman, possessed of the gift of thought-reading, discovers around him all sorts of plots, which he makes end just as suits his mood. His son is courting the maid, and he dismisses the girl. He helps a poor woman who is going to abandon her child for want of the necessary money. He also tells a young lady that the man she is going to marry only likes her money; and at last he causes two ruffians to be arrested just as they are going to murder their victim. But Mr. Newman is very wise, and he does not try to use his knowledge for his own benefit, because he thinks that it is better sometimes to be blind than to see too much.

595ft. The Subject, £9 18s. 4d.

THE MINIATURE CIRCUS.

Code Word, "ESTRADE."

John has received as a present a nice circus, with all kinds of clowns and animals; but, after playing with his new toy for some time, he becomes tired, and falls asleep. His dream is a marvellous one, for the clowns are performing their turns with great skill, while the horses and elephant and ostriches, &c., come to life and move about. It is so nice! But his parents, entering the room, wake the little boy up, and he is still so excited with what he has just seen that he must tell father and mother all about it.

643ft. The Subject, £10 14s. 4d. Colouring extra, £7 0s. 0d.

THE FAUN.

Code Word, "ETAGE."

A faun, in love with Diana, appears amongst the undergrowth in the forest, and on his way he awakens the sleeping nymphs. But Diana, pleased with the sweet music made by a young god at her side, listens to it with delight. The faun is so jealous that he goes for the god, and throws him to the ground. Yet Cupid, the God of Love, gives to Diana a philter, thanks to which the young god comes back to life, whereas the fann, bound with ropes by the nymphs, is placed by them in a petrifying fountain and changed into a stone faun.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d. Colouring and Toning, extra £4 10s. 0d.

TOO CREDULOUS.

Code Word, "EXPERT."

The day before quarter-day several daubers invite their door-keepers to drink champagne. Mr. and Mrs. Goodnature put on their best clothes for the occasion. The merry fellows make them tipsy, and then one of them wraps himself in a large sheet, and comes to them spectre-like, exhorting them to prepare for their last journey. Mr. and Mrs. Goodnature are so scared that they allow the young scapegraces to remove thier furniture without paying their rent.

330ft. The Subject, £5 10s. 0d.

Pathé's Films

UNEQUALLED THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

PATHÉ FRÈRES AHEAD OF ALL OTHER FIRMS.

LAST WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE BEGINNING OF THE SERPENTINE.

Code Word, "ENTRETIEN."

Rising from a melting-pot, the Serpentine spreads her flowing draperies, surrounded by her sisters, who fill the screen with the flutter of their wings, sometimes resembling huge butterflies, at other times bearing a great likeness to beautiful and freakish flowers. This film is beautifully coloured. Making a grand finish to a programme.

412ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 4d. Colouring and Toning extra, £4 15s.

Code Word, "ESSENCE."

In the carriage of a fast train a man looks with artful eye at a lady cuddling her poodle in her lap. The lady, objecting to the cigarette he is smoking, he throws it out of the window; but presently he lights a cigar. The lady remonstrates once more, and the gentleman relinquishes his cigar again. After a few minutes he takes his pipe out of his pocket and begins puffing at it. The lady, vexed, snatches the pipe out of the hands of its owner, and it takes the same way as the cigar and cigarettes. The gentleman gently grips the dog, and sends him to join the other articles. The poor lady is desperate, but at the next stop she is delighted again to find her darling dog waiting for her with the gentleman's pipe in his mouth. As a reward, the faithful poodle receives a bank-note, which he at once puts into the bowl of a blind man that happens to be there.

362ft. The Subject, £6 0s. 8d.

A MAGISTRATE'S CONSCIENCE.

Code Word "EXCURSION."

A girl having fallen in love with a student who is not true, is left alone with her small son when the fellow makes a wealthy marriage which will enable him to uphold his position as a magistrate; and the selfish father thinks that he has done his duty towards his baby when he puts in the hand of its mother a few bank-notes, which will enable her to bring it up, so he thinks. The boy is about twenty years of age now, and his poor mother is very ill—so ill, in fact, that the doctor orders her to a warmer climate. But he has no money, and throwing away all idea of honesty and straightforwardness, he steals the money which will restore health to his mother, but too late, for when he comes back his mother is dead. Poor boy, it is in vain that he has sacrificed his honour, and while he is still sobbing his heart out, the police come and march him off. But it happens that the magistrate who is going to sentence him is his own father, before whose mind appears the feeling of his own responsibility in leaving him helpless with a helpless woman to fight out as well as they could the terrible fate that he has practically shaped out for them. Therefore the father, understanding at last what he owes to his son, helps the youth to retrieve the past in enabling him to leave for a foreign country.

560ft. The Subject, £9 6s. 8d. Toning extra, 10s.

"OFF TO AMERICA!"

SCENES AND INCIDENTS OF THE ATLANTIC VOYAGE ON BOARD THE S.S. "ADRIATIC" (25,000 TONS).

By courtesy of Messrs. Ismay, Imrie, and Co., of the White Star Line, and the London and North Western Railway Co.

Part 1.—THE "ADRIATIC" LEAVING SOUTHAMPTON, CHERBOURG, AND QUEENSTOWN.

The novelty of this beautiful and breezy subject lies in the fact that the "Adriatic" is followed by the camera until she is far out from Queenstown, when the picture story is taken up from her own decks. By these means the results show a decided advance over previous pictures of this class. Scenes at Southampton. In the Solent. At Cherbourg. Panoramas of Queenstown and the "Adriatic."
No. 2257. Code "Mails." Length 470ft.

Part 2.—SCENES ON BOARD THE "ADRIATIC," IN NEW YORK HARBOUR, AND IN THE CITY.

A delightful illustration of daily life on board. No dullness here, but an exhilarating epitome of a healthful voyage on one of the largest and best-found liners afloat, its pleasures, comforts, and amusements. Unusually brilliant sea effects. Scenes in New York Harbour. Brooklyn Bridge and the principal streets and buildings of the great city in splendid panoramic sequence.
No. 2258. Code "Liberty." Length 410ft.

WINSLOW'S Skates

THE BEST ICE AND ROLLER SKATES

The Standard of the World for more than Fifty Years. Are used in all the best Rinks in the United States, and the greatest number of Rinks everywhere. Are noted for speed, beauty, strength and durability. Roller Skating is more popular to-day than ever before. A Rink can be established in any hall, irrespective of its size or shape, and will prove to be a very profitable investment. The only essentials are a good floor and good skates. We refer, by permission, to C. P. Crawford, Esq., General Manager of the large and excellently appointed Rinks now being operated in Tournament Hall, Liverpool; the American Roller Rinks, Leeds, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Sunderland, Belfast, Dublin; Hippodrome, Llandudno; and the Olympia, London, Dec. 1; St. James's Hall, Manchester, Jan. 1. In all these Rinks Winslow's Skates are used exclusively.

We are prepared to make prompt deliveries from our London Office.

HER PRINCELY BETRAYER.

A THRILLING SICILIAN DRAMA
by
ROBERT WILFORD.

SCENERY BY FRANCIS H. BULL.
COSTUMES BY J. A. HARRISON.

An Enormous Success Everywhere.

See what the Press say:—

CARLISLE JOURNAL, July 21, 1908:—"Her Princely Betrayer" is not a condensed version of a drama, nor is it a mere sketch. It is something more. Into twenty minutes or so is crammed a world of events. . . . The acting is excellent.

THE YORKSHIRE POST, Aug. 4, 1908:—"Her Princely Betrayer" possesses that dramatic touch that will ensure its success as a tabloid drama.

THE LEEDS MERCURY, Aug. 4, 1908:—A powerful dramatic sketch, and a well-staged production.

THE LIVERPOOL ECHO, Aug. 18, 1908:—A new departure in music hall sketches. It is quite unique in its way. . . . and last night held the audience spellbound.

THE BIRKENHEAD ADVERTISER, Aug. 22, 1908:—It is really one of the finest turns on the music hall stage to-day.

THE NORTHERN WHIG, Belfast, Aug. 25, 1908:—The powerful story embodied in the creation is full of strong human interest.

THE ULSTER ECHO, Aug. 25, 1908:—The piece is excellently set, and from first to last it holds the audience breathlessly interested.

GEORGE DANCE'S SKETCHES

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER WRITTEN BY A FRENCHMAN ON A VISIT TO THE WHITE CITY.

Mon cher ami,—

This Angleterre is what you call tres bon. I have do nothing since I arrive but eating and drinking. I am full of beef and Bass. I met last night M. Barrasford, the Director of the Alhambra in our own dear Paris. He is what you call all right. He took me to see a Vaudeville at one of the Music Halls des Londres. It was called "The Burglars' Ball." Oh, my friend, I did laugh! The antics of the comedians made me explode my insides out. I am still rubbing my ribs with eau-de-Cologne to remove the pains and bumps. And the girls! Ah, mon cher ami, we have nothing in La Belle France to hold a candlestick to them. Oh! la, la! I am tumbled over head and ears in love. M. Barrasford tells me "The Burglars' Ball" will soon visit Paris. When it comes I will purchase a private box, and in it I will put you, my friend, and your wife as my honoured guests.

Au revoir, JULES.

MORE GREAT RECORDS BROKEN BY THE

ONE AND ONLY

BODIE.

THE MAN OF THE MOMENT.
THE FAMOUS BLOODLESS SURGEON.
Playing to enormous business everywhere.
Smashing records all along the line.

Still the greatest draw in the Country. Unprecedented success last week at the Hippodrome, Kirkcaldy, the beautiful building packed to the doors nightly by the élite of Kirkcaldy and district. All previous records for the theatre absolutely smashed. The advance booking simply phenomenal. These are the takings for the week. No idle bluff, but facts.

READ! READ!! READ!!!

DR. WALFORD BODIE,
THE FAMOUS BLOODLESS SURGEON,
AT THE HIPPODROME.
HUNDREDS TURNED AWAY NIGHTLY.

"The crowds that have visited the Hippodrome to see Dr. Bodie, the great bloodless surgeon, have never been equalled in the annals of entertainment in Kirkcaldy. The drawings average over £90 nightly, which makes an average of 2,700 persons nightly, or a total of over 12,900 persons for five nights. One of the features of the whole entertainment is the enthusiasm with which the doctor has been received nightly, and also the great pleasure that the patients have derived from the marvellous cures the doctor has administered. During the week he has cured several local children of paralysis in full view of his audience. After he had administered his famous electrical treatment his patients were able to walk about the stage with the greatest of ease, and to use the affected limbs with comfort, which speaks for itself of the skill of the famous bloodless surgeon. Apart altogether from the curing of paralysis, Dr. Bodie has performed some of the most daring feats, such as lighting ordinary gases by the most sensitive part of the body, namely the teeth. He also displays in a remarkable manner the power that 'Bodieism,' or 'Bodie-Force,' has over the human system, and his audience is kept in fits of laughter by the antics of his subjects."—Vide the Fife Free Press, Sept. 26, 1908.

DR. WALFORD BODIE,
AT THE KIRKCALDY HIPPODROME.
ALL RECORDS BROKEN.

"This week all records for Kirkcaldy have been utterly smashed at the Hippodrome, the visit of Dr. Walford Bodie, the marvellous electro-hypnotist and bone specialist, drawing each night a packed house, with hundreds unable to gain admission. The daring electrical experiments, the wonderful cures effected before the eyes of the huge audiences, and the screamingly funny antics of mesmerised volunteers, have been the sole topic of conversation throughout the district during the week."—Vide Fifeshire Advertiser, Sept. 25, 1908.

LIVERPOOL ECHO.
A varied and altogether delightful entertainment is occupying the boards at the Argyle this week. Kate Carney is back again, and a right Royal welcome she receives. Her three best-known songs were rendered last night, including "Mr. Postman," and the famous song-scene, "The Yiddisher Boy." This latter is quite unique. Certainly nothing like it has been on the halls for many years. Last night's audience went almost wild with enthusiasm, and it was only with great difficulty that the curtain could be finally lowered.

MISS MARIE LOFTUS
Resting through indisposition.

Special Notice.—Proprietors and Managers allowing any infringement of my original lisping song will be held responsible. My first Lisping and Stuttering songs were written by Felix McGlennon, and sung by me all over England, and in New York at Weber and Field's, where they were at once "pinched" by everyone that could get hold of them. My latest Lisping song is by Harrington and Powell, which I have been working with terrific success.
Dresses by Hina, Griffiths, and leading firms.

"Can't Keep Still!" Harrington and Powell.
No one has permission to sing my song, "Exhibition," by Harrington and Powell.
